Proposed Rule 22d-3. Section 22(d) of the Act prohibits a registered investment company, its principal underwriter, or a dealer from selling any redeemable security issued by such registered investment company to any person except at a current public offering price described in the prospectus. At the request of Congress, the Commission conducted a study of the possible consequences of the repeal of Section 22(d), at the conclusion of which it published a report, "Mutual Fund Distribution and Section 22(d) of the Investment Company Act of 1940" ("Report"), prepared by its Division of Investment Management Regulation. Based upon this study, the Commission determined not to recommend the repeal of Section 22(d). However, as suggested by the Report, the Commission, on November 4, 1974, announced a comprehensive program to propose revision of the laws and regulations affecting the distribution of shares of open-end investment companies, including mutual funds and variable annuities.[2] One of the recommendations in the Division's Report was that a rule be adopted conditionally exempting the sale of variable annuity contracts from Section 22(d) (See pages 102-3 of the Report). The Commission is hereby adopting such a rule.

The rule provides an exemption from Section 22(d) to permit variations of the sales load and certain other deductions from purchase payments for variable annuities, based upon differences in costs or services, and subject to the conditions set forth in the rule. The Commission believes that Section 22(d) has little relevance to the marketing of variable annuities because: (1) the uniform offering price requirement is unnecessary because variable annuity contracts are typically sold through employees of the sponsoring insurance company, and (2) it is unlikely that a secondary dealer market in variable annuity contracts would develop since such contracts are generally not assignable, and, even if they were, they do not lend themselves to public trading since they are based upon the continuing life of a particular individual. Nevertheless, the rule permits retail price competition in the sale of variable annuity contracts to the extent that such competition is not prohibited by state law. The Commission also expects that adoption of the rule will obviate the need for filing applications for certain types of exemptions from Section 22(d) which have been granted to numerous issuers of variable annuity contracts.[3]

Minor changes have been made in the rule since it was proposed which are intended to clarify its scope and to state more precisely the required basis for variations in sales loads or other deductions from purchase payments. The Commission has also modified the disclosure requirement of the rule to permit a separate account to disclose either the precise circumstances and amount of any variations which shall be available or the general basis for variations and the procedure which the company will employ to determine entitlement.

An additional revision was made to emphasize that variations in any deductions from purchase payments need not precisely equal variations in costs. In this regard, while the rule provides that variations in sales loads or in any administrative charge or other deduction from the purchase payments must be based upon differences in costs or services which might arise, for example, as a result of size, a prior or existing relationship with the prospective purchaser, or the prospective purchaser's performance of certain functions which the insurance company would otherwise be required to perform, such variations need not be precise or exact in their reflection of cost savings. Of course, variations in charges must not be unfairly discriminatory against any person.

COMMISSION ACTION

1. Rule 22d-3 is adopted as follows:

§ 270.22d-3 Exemption from section 22(d) for certain registered separate accounts.

A registered separate account, any principal underwriter for such account, any dealer in contracts or units of interest or participations in such contracts issued by such account and any insurance company maintaining such account shall, with respect to any variable annuity contracts, units, or participations therein issued by such account, be exempted from Section 22(d) to the extent necessary to permit the sale of such contracts, units or participations by such persons at prices which reflect variations in the sales load or in any administrative charge or other deductions from the purchase payments; Provided, however, that (a) the prospectus discloses as precisely as possible the amount of the variations and the circumstances, if any, in which such variations shall be available or describes the basis for such variations and the manner in which entitlement shall be determined, and (b) any such variations reflect differences in costs or services and are not unfairly discriminatory against any person.

2. Rule 0-1(e) is hereby amended to read as follows:

[1] Investment Company Act. Rel. No. 8775 (April 30, 1975) (40 FR 20315).

[2] Investment Company Act Rel. No. 8570, November 4, 1974.

[3] See, for example, Investment Company Act Rel. No. 6261 (November 30, 1970) (35 FR 18566).

The introductory text of paragraph (e) and paragraph (e)(2) of 17 CFR 270.0-1 is revised as follows.

§ 270.0-1 Definition of terms used in this part.

(e) Definition of separate account and conditions for availability of exemptions under §§ 270.14a-2, 270.15a-3, 270.16a-1, 270.22d-3, 270.22e-1, 270.27a-1, 270.27a-2, 270.27a-3, 270.27c-1, and 270.32a-2 of this chapter.

(2) As conditions to the availability of exemptions under §§ 270.14a-2, 270.15a-3, 270.16a-1, 270.22d-3, 270.22e-1, 270.27a-1, 270.27a-2, 270.27a-3, 270.27c-1, and 270.32a-2 of this chapter, the separate account shall be legally segregated, the assets of the separate account shall, at the time during the year that adjustments in the reserves are made, have a value at least equal to the reserves and other contract liabilities with respect to such account, and, at all other times, shall have a value approximately equal to or in excess of such reserves and liabilities; and that portion of such assets having a value equal to, or approximately equal to, such reserves and contract liabilities shall not be chargeable with liabilities arising out of any other business which the insurance company may conduct.

The foregoing shall become effective on August 15, 1975. Required publication of these rules 30 days prior to their effective date under Section 553 of the Administrative Procedures Act is unnecessary because taken together they provide for a substantive change which grants an exemption or relieves a restriction.

By the Commission.

Assistant Secretary.

Title 21—Food and Drugs

CHAPTER I—FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION, DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, EDUCATION, AND WELFARE

DRUGS FOR HUMAN USE

Containers for Collection or Processing of Blood and Blood Components

The Commissioner of Food and Drugs is amending certain food and drug regulations to reflect the reestablishment of administrative responsibility within the Food and Drug Administration for approval of containers, with and without ingredients such as anticoagulant solutions, intended for blood collection or for use in the processing of blood and blood components; effective August 13, 1975.

The Commissioner has conducted a review concerning the administrative efficiency of the present procedures for approval of the following:

A. CONTAINERS WITH ANTICOAGULANT SOLUTIONS INTENDED FOR BLOOD COLLECTION

When component ingredients, such as anticoagulant solutions, are packaged in containers intended for blood collection, the ingredients together with the container are a new drug which is subject to premarketing clearance pursuant to section 505 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 355). Pursuant to § 312.1 Conditions for exemption of new drugs for investigational use (21 CFR 312.1), investigation of these products requires that a Notice of Claimed Investigational Exemption for a New Drug be accepted by the Bureau of Drugs, Food and Drug Administration. Similarly, pursuant to § 314.1 Applications (21 CFR 314.1), marketing these products in interstate commerce requires the approval of a new drug application by the Bureau of Drugs, Food and Drug Administration.

In addition, blood is a biological product subject to section 351 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 262). As a requisite for approval of a license application for the shipment of blood in interstate commerce, manufacturers must demonstrate to the Bureau of Biologics that blood prepared in these subject containers is not adversely affected by the container or the anticoagulant solution.

The Commissioner finds that the present procedure requiring that data concerning the safe use of blood collection containers with anticoagulant solutions or other ingredients be submitted, for independent review and approval, to both the Bureau of Drugs and the Bureau of Biologics is administratively inefficient. To avoid duplication, the Commissioner has determined that approval of such blood collection containers shall be the sole responsibility of the Bureau of Biologics. Therefore, the Commissioner concludes that paragraph (g) of § 312.1 and paragraph (a) of § 314.1 should be amended to require that data to support the proposed use of these products be submitted to the Bureau of Biologics, rather than to the Bureau of Drugs.

B. EMPTY CONTAINERS INTENDED FOR USE IN THE COLLECTION AND PROCESSING OF BLOOD AND BLOOD COMPONENTS

Blood collection containers marketed without ingredients, including containers intended for use in the processing of blood and blood components, are medical devices subject to the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act. The Bureau of Biologics currently reviews license applications for blood and blood products processed in such containers to be assured that the container material does not interact with the contents under the customary conditions of storage and use in such a manner as to have an adverse effect upon the blood product.

The Commissioner has determined that the regulation of these empty containers intended for the collection of blood or the processing of blood components shall remain the responsibility of the Bureau of Biologics. Inasmuch as the food and drug regulations do not specify the Bureau responsible for approval of such containers, no amendment of the regulations is needed to implement the Commissioner's decision. Inquiries and comments concerning all such containers should be directed to the Bureau of Biologics, 8800 Rockville Pike, Bethesda, MD 20014.

C. CONTAINERS AND SOLUTIONS INTENDED FOR USE IN THE MANUFACTURE OF RED BLOOD CELLS (HUMAN) FROZEN

A Statement of General Policy or Interpretation (21 CFR 3.80), published in the FEDERAL REGISTER of August 14, 1970 (35 FR 12890), established that the Division of Biologics Standards, National Institutes of Health approve containers and solutions used for the manufacture of Red Blood Cells (Human) Frozen. Previously, this responsibility was jointly exercised by the Food and Drug Administration and the Division of Biologics Standards, National Institutes of Health. The Division of Biologics Standards was transferred from the National Institutes of Health to the Food and Drug Administration and elevated to Bureau status as the Bureau of Biologics, notice of which was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER of June 29, 1972 (37 FR 12865). Since responsibility for approval of the containers and solutions is now reestablished within the Food and Drug Administration, the Commissioner finds that 21 CFR 3.80 is no longer necessary and should be revoked. Responsibility for approval of such containers remains with the Bureau of Biologics.

Therefore, under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (sec. 505, 52 Stat. 1052-1053 as amended (21 U.S.C. 355)) and the Public Health Service Act (sec. 351, 58 Stat. 702 as amended (42 U.S.C. 262)), and under authority delegated to the Commissioner (21 CFR 5.1), Chapter I of Title 21 of the Code of Federal Regulations is amended as follows:

PART 3—STATEMENTS OF GENERAL POLICY OR INTERPRETATION

§ 3.80 [Revoked]

1. In Subpart A by revoking § 3.80 Red blood cells (human)—frozen.

PART 312—NEW DRUGS FOR INVESTIGATIONAL USE

2. In Subpart A by revising § 312.1(g) to read as follows:

§ 312.1 Conditions for exemption of new drugs for investigational use.

• • • • • •

(g) A "Notice of Claimed Investigational Exemption for a New Drug" which pertains to a product subject to the licensing provisions of the Public Health Service Act of July 1, 1944 (58 Stat. 682 as amended; 42 U.S.C. 201 et seq.) or to ingredients packaged together with containers intended for the collection, processing, or storage of blood or blood components, shall be submitted initially to the Director, Bureau of Biologics, 8800 Rockville Pike, Bethesda, MD 20014. Radioactive biological products for human use are not deemed to be subject to the licensing provisions of the Public Health Service Act (see § 310.4 of this chapter) and a "Notice of Claimed Investigation Exemption for a New Drug" which pertains to radioactive biological products shall be submitted to the Division of Oncology and Radiopharmaceutical Drug Products, Bureau of Drugs, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20852. Amendments of or supplements to such notice, and progress reports, consultations, or other communications with regard to the investigation shall be directed to the same office to which the original notice was sent. A sponsor for a "Notice of Claimed Investigational Exemption for a New Drug" submitted to the Bureau of Biologics shall substitute in reading this section "Bureau of Biologics" for "Bureau of Drugs" wherever it appears.

* * * * *

PART 314—NEW DRUG APPLICATIONS

3. In Subpart A by adding to § 314.1 (a) two new sentences. As revised § 314.1(a) reads as follows:

§ 314.1 Applications.

(a) Applications to be filed under the provisions of section 505(b) of the act shall be submitted in the form described in paragraph (c) of this section and, if for human use, optionally in the form described in paragraph (d) of this section and assembled as required by paragraph (e) of this section; if the drug is intended for human use and is one for which an abbreviated new drug application has been found by the Food and Drug Administration to be sufficient, the application may be limited to the information described in paragraph (f) of this section unless otherwise specified in such finding. If any part of the application is in a foreign language, an accurate and complete English translation shall be appended to such part. Translations of literature printed in a foreign language shall be accompanied by copies of the original publication. The application must be signed by the applicant or by an authorized attorney, agent, or official. If the applicant or such authorized representative does not reside or have a place of business within the United States, the application must also furnish the name and post office address of, and must be countersigned by an authorized attorney, agent, or official residing or maintaining a place of business within the United States. An application, including subsequent amendments and supplements that pertain to ingredients packaged together with containers intended for the collection, processing or storage of blood and blood components should be submitted initially to the Director, Bureau of Biologics, 8800 Rockville Pike, Bethesda, MD 20014. Such applicant should substitute, in reading this Part 314, the unit "Bureau of Biologics" for the "Bureau of Drugs" wherever it appears.

* * * * *

Pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U.S.C. 553 (b) and (d)), the Commissioner concludes that notice, public procedure, and delayed effective date are unnecessary for the promulgation of this order inasmuch as it does not impose a duty or burden on any person, but rather (1) provides notice of an internal administrative designation of responsibility concerning review of containers intended for the collection and processing of blood and blood products and (2) deletes an unnecessary and outdated division of function between the Food and Drug Administration and the National Institutes of Health.

Effective date. This order is effective August 13, 1975.

(Sec. 505, 52 Stat. 1052–1053 as amended (21 U.S.C. 355); sec. 351, 58 Stat. 702 as amended (42 U.S.C. 262).)

PART 1952—APPROVED STATE PLANS FOR ENFORCEMENT OF STATE STANDARDS

Withdrawal of the Wisconsin Plan

Notice is hereby given that the State of Wisconsin has withdrawn its approved State plan, effective June 30, 1975. Consequently, Subpart AA of Part 1952 of Title 29, Code of Federal Regulations, is revoked, as of that date.

The State, in a letter from Governor Patrick J. Lucey, dated May 14, 1975, has given notice of its intention to withdraw its approved plan effective June 30, 1975. In accordance with 29 CFR 1951.25(d), the State will also terminate its grant approved under section 23(g) of the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 (29 U.S.C. 672) (hereinafter called the Act) effective June 30, 1975.

In accordance with section 18(f) of the Act, the State may retain jurisdiction in any case commenced before June 30, 1975, the effective date of the withdrawal.

This decision does not preclude the submission of another occupational safety and health plan by Wisconsin under section 18 of the Act at some future time.

PART 127—SECURITY ZONES

Establishment of Security Zone Corpus Christi, Texas

This amendment to the Coast Guard's Security Zone Regulations, establishes the waters of Corpus Christi Harbor, Texas as a security zone. This security zone is established because of the presence of the Cuban Fishing Vessel "E 82 HB" which, having been duly seized, is in the custody of the United States of America.

This amendment is issued without publication of a notice of proposed rule making and this amendment is effective in less than 30 days from the date of publication, because this security zone involves a foreign affairs function of the United States.

In consideration of the foregoing, Part 127 of Title 33 of the Code of Federal Regulations is amended by adding § 127.801 to read as follows:

§ 127.801 Corpus Christi Harbor, Texas.

That area of the waters of Corpus Christi Harbor, Texas, within a 150 yard (radius) circle drawn from the center of the U.S. Coast Guard Depot Dock on the northern shore of Corpus Christi Harbor, Texas.

PART 183—BOATS AND ASSOCIATED EQUIPMENT

Inboard Safe Loading Standard

This amendment to the safe loading standard in Subpart C, Part 183 of Title 33, Code of Federal Regulations, establishes an alternate formula for the calculation of the maximum weight capacity (W) for inboard and inboard-outdrive boats.

A notice of proposed rulemaking was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on March 6, 1975, (40 FR 10652) proposing to delete the formula in the regulations and to establish a new formula for the maximum weight capacity for inboard and inboard-outdrive boats.

No public hearing was held; however, the notice did provide that any person who wished to present his comments orally and informally before an appropriate Coast Guard official at Coast Guard Headquarters could do so. A comment period was specified during which any interested person could submit written comments on the proposal. The written comment period ended 21 April 1975. No written or oral comments were received on the proposal.

During the comment period, however, the Coast Guard reviewed the maximum weight capacities on conventional boats which would result under the new formula. The expected reductions in capacity on these boats was discussed in the preamble to the notice of proposed rulemaking. The Coast Guard concluded that no real enhancement of safety would stem from reduction in capacity on conventional boats. Accordingly, this amendment retains the original formula and adopts as an alternative the formula contained in the notice of proposed rulemaking. Thus, a manufacturer may use whichever formula yields the most reasonable and appropriate capicity rating.

The Coast Guard will allow manufacturers, at their option, to use the alternative formula before the effective date of the amendment. Thus, a boat which bears a date of certification of August 13, 1975, or thereafter, and which displays a maximum weight capacity calculated in accordance with the alternative formula will be considered by the Coast Guard to be in compliance with the requirements of §§ 183.23 and 183.33.

In consideration of the foregoing, § 183.33(a) of Title 33, Code of Federal Regulations, is revised to read as follows:

§ 183.33 Maximum weight capacity: Inboard and inboard-outdrive boats.

(a) The maximum weight capacity (W) marked on a boat that has one or more inboard or inboard-outdrive units for propulsion must not exceed the greater value of W obtained from either of the following formulas:

$$W = \frac{\text{(maximum displacement)}}{5} - \frac{\text{boat weight}}{5} - \frac{4\ \text{(machinery weight)}}{5}$$

OR

(Sec. 5, 85 Stat. 215 (46 U.S.C. 1456))

Effective date. This amendment takes effect on February 9, 1976.

Technical Amendment

The need for a technical amendment has been identified. The amendment is set forth in this publication and is described in the table below.

The Agency finds that good cause exists for omitting as unnecessary a notice of proposed rulemaking, public rulemaking procedure, and postponement of effective date in the issuance of this amendment, in that (1) the change does not in any way invalidate the test procedures currently used by the manufacturers as prescribed by regulation for the 1975 and 1976 model years and (2) the change places no additional burden on the regulated industry.

EXPLANATION OF TECHNICAL AMENDMENT CHANGE

Section. 1. 86.177–6(a)(2), 86.777–6(b), 85.075–10(b), 85.275–10(b), 85.774–10(b).

Change. Remove language specifying the minimum required lead and phosphorus content in unleaded fuels used for mileage accumulation.

Reason. Minimum amounts of lead and phosphorus were originally specified for unleaded fuel used for mileage accumulation to assure that such fuel would be representative of unleaded fuels expected to be commercially available. Now that unleaded gasoline is generally available, it is unnecessary to specify minimum amounts of lead and phosphorus for that purpose.

Part 85 of Chapter I, Title 40, of the Code of Federal Regulations as applicable to 1975 and 1976 model years and Part 86 of Chapter I, Title 40, of the Code of Federal Regulations as applicable beginning with the 1977 model year are amended as follows, effective on August 13, 1975. These amendments are issued under the authority of sections 202, 206 and 301(a) of the Clean Air Act, as amended (42 U.S..C 1857f–1, 1857f–5, 1857g(a)).

PART 10—LICENSING OF OFFICERS AND MOTORBOAT OPERATORS AND REGISTRATION OF STAFF OFFICERS

PART 12—CERTIFICATION OF SEAMEN APPRENTICE MATES

Issuance of Documents as Apprentice Mate to Persons in the Apprentice Mate Program

● Purpose: The purpose of these amendments is to prescribe regulations governing the issuance of documents as apprentice mate to persons enrolled in an apprentice mate program approved by the Commandant, and to authorize an examination for a license authorizing service as Third mate of ocean steam or motor vessels to successful graduates of such a program. These amendments are based on a notice of proposed rulemaking published in the January 23, 1975, issue of the Federal Register (40 FR 3610). Twenty-eight (28) comments were received which opposed and supported the proposed amendments, often presenting diametrically opposite points of view. ●

Those comments received objecting to the proposed amendments presented such diverse arguments as:

1. The proposed regulations would permit a reduction in the standards for licensing, reduce the quality of deck officers, provide insufficient education, and dilute the quality of training in general.

2. The assumption that career retention is enhanced as the period of training is shortened or the curriculum narrowed presents a simplistic solution to the complex issue of motivation for a career at sea and raises critical questions as to the content and quality of maritime officer education.

3. Adoption of the proposed amendments would discourage rather than attract the high caliber professional type people needed to cope with the increasing complexity of the design and operation of today's modern vessels.

4. There is no shortage of available young officers and the present academies and colleges are producing enough graduates whose full potential is not realized and who become discouraged because of discriminatory practices of unions who close their books to such graduates.

5. If a shortage exists or will exist, then the enrollments at the present federal and state academies and colleges should be increased with the U.S. Maritime Administration providing further funding rather than to experiment with new vocational educational schools.

6. The acceptance of the proposed amendments would defeat industry efforts toward programs to upgrade and provide better trained and more competent officers to man more sophisticated and faster vessels.

7. The apprentice mate program would represent an additional cost burden for vessels not receiving federal subsidies.

8. Adoption of the proposed amendments might jeopardize present training programs whose graduates are equipped to enter any phase of the maritime industry and could lead the states to question the expenditure of large sums to support the present state academies or colleges.

9. Existing academies should be invited to submit proposals for abbreviated deck officer programs to complement the existing professional degree programs.

10. The proposed amendments in their present form may be doing a disservice to the total educational planning effort of a state, and a graduate of a vocational-education program is stigmatized because his education is regarded as subbaccalaureate and terminal.

11. If a program is needed, it should be a cooperative higher education program, not a vocational apprenticeship.

12. The Coast Guard should not be concerned with the supply and demand situation.

13. Manpower forecasts are difficult to project. The U.S. Maritime Administration recommendation, expressed in its 1974 study, that a new supply of officers be encouraged to come from industry schools cannot be justified and such studies are full of implicit assumptions which will not stand up under close scrutiny at a later date.

14. Whether apprentice mates meet the qualifications of junior ratings forming part of a navigational watch required by IMCO Sub-Committee on Standards of Training and Watchkeeping, STW V/II, page 9, paragraph x(f), and STW V/II, Annex VI.

15. Authorization being granted which would allow sea training to be gained aboard vessels registered in other nations which may not meet U.S. safety and operating standards and which would not be under Coast Guard supervision and inspection. Commenters on this point feel such training would not be comparable to that obtained aboard an American flag vessel.

16. Questioning the ethics of the corporation now prepared to provide accommodations for the sea training portion of such a program and expressing concern that the Coast Guard is seeking to cater to the demands of one management group, the multinational oil companies, which it was alleged, may allow these companies to undermine the remainder of the U.S. fleet.

17. The implementation of the proposed amendments could interfere with existing collective bargaining arrangements which courts have ruled in the past must be considered when considering the imposition of new manning regulations.

18. The adoption of the proposed rule may increase the dangers of inter-union disagreements by the fact they may have the effect of shifting advancement opportunities from one class of maritime workers to another.

19. A traditional avenue of advancement for unlicensed seamen would be closed or throttled by the influx of apprentice mates, and thus deny unlicensed seamen who have gained a knowledge of seamanship an opportunity to fill officer slots aboard U.S. flag vessels.

20. Adoption of the proposed amendments would unquestionably be counterproductive to the expressed intent of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, in that apprentice mates, and apprentice engineers now at the approved Calhoon MEBA School of Engineering, will not have concurrent training in naval science which is detrimental to the national defense of the United States. The Act provides that all deck and engineering officers employed on vessels on which an operating differential subsidy is paid or on Department of Commerce vessels shall, if eligible, be members of the U.S. Naval Reserve.

Those comments received in support of the proposed amendments raised the following for consideration:

1. The proposed amendments are analogous to the existing regulations concerning apprentice engineers, and it would be discriminatory not to provide similar rules applicable to deck officers, and in view of the success of an existing apprentice engineer program, no reason can be determined as to why a similar program applicable to deck officers would not be equally as successful.

2. The proposed amendments could offer career and educational opportunities to young persons who cannot afford the financial burdens of other schools.

3. There is no question as to the adequacy of the number of persons holding licenses as third mate but that in order to encourage career retention into the mid and upper grades of deck licenses, this alternate means of providing licensed deck officers should be supported.

4. The proposed program is considered to be within the federal guidelines for existing state academies, but it would provide more realistic training.

5. Adding liberal arts subjects to a curriculum to satisfy baccalaureate requirements does not guarantee a more professional merchant marine officer.

6. The absence of covert or overt pressures upon programs at a public institute would only provide another source of supply of qualified personnel, not preclude career advancement in the traditional manners.

7. Objection to an apprentice mate program would, by inference, object as well to the traditional method of advancement from unlicensed ranks and be contrary to tradition by not allowing such an avenue of advancement because a person could not afford a four-year college.

The seatime portion of the training for an apprentice mate is consistent with the seatime required in the apprentice engineer's program presently conducted at the Calhoon MEBA School of Engineering.

A three-year apprentice mate program would not represent a reduction in the standards for licensing. The minimum service to establish eligibility to be examined for a license as third mate of ocean steam or motor vessels of any gross tons upon oceans is 3 years on deck of ocean or coastwise steam or motor vessels of 1,000 gross tons or over of which 6 months shall have been while holding certification as an able seaman. 46 CFR 310.3(c) provides that the minimum period of training required at state academies or colleges is 3 years. For the coastally located schools, at least 6 months of the total time must be aboard a schoolship in cruise status.

The decisions to provide a four-year course leading to a baccalaureate degree at state academies or colleges were not made by the Federal Government, the decisions were made by the states. The states are free to return, at any time, to the minimum program required by federal regulations.

An analysis has been made of the curriculum of the proposed program with the curriculums of 3 of the schools in the same general geographic area. It was found that, insofar as nautical subjects are concerned, the content and depth offered under the proposed program is at least equal to any of the existing schools. Additionally, the proposed program would require twelve months sea service, all aboard the type of vessels the graduate might later be called to serve upon. It is the view of the Coast Guard that this represents a proper professional approach.

The Coast Guard will not require apprentice mates to be listed on any vessels' certificate of inspection, thus not requiring an increase in the cost of operating a vessel. The owners of vessels will determine whether or not the vessels will carry apprentice mates.

The possible jeopardization of existing training programs has been appraised but is not considered valid. Vocational training has been accepted in the maritime industry for training mariners and providing motivation for a seagoing career.

The Coast Guard has not directly concerned itself with the supply and demand situation except to require an applicant for a license to present the required evidence to establish his eligibility to be examined and that a vessel be manned in accordance with its certificate of inspection. However, the Coast Guard does have a responsibility to ensure that competent persons are provided to man U.S. vessels. This has led to the Coast Guard's granting of approval to appropriate programs designed for licensed, as well as unlicensed, personnel where it is shown that such programs will improve the mariner's skills.

The endorsement as apprentice mate does not authorize the holder to fill any of the regular ratings. Thus, an apprentice mate would be in addition to those junior ratings forming part of a navigational watch required by the IMCO Sub-Committee on Standards of Training and Watchkeeping.

An approved apprentice mate program will require an instructor holding a license issued by the Coast Guard to accompany any group of apprentices aboard vessels.

Only one-third of the required sea training would be gained on foreign flag vessels. This method has an advantage over assigning one or two future officers to a vessel where their acceptance and the quality of their training may be in direct proportion to the interest shown by the officers aboard the vessels to which they are assigned and the interest of the trainee himself. Allowing part of the training on foreign flag vessels will provide the trainees an opportunity to broaden their experience and gain a better knowledge of international practices, while retaining their obtainment of practical, on-the-job-training.

The Coast Guard has and will remain open to reviewing training programs submitted for approval, be they from management, labor, or the academic worlds. Where it has been found that the proposed training can fulfill a need, approval has been generally granted. This holds true whether the training be for unlicensed personnel, such as both large maritime unions now provide for their members, or for programs directed towards critical officer skills. Often such training is only available to a limited group of persons. Not all persons employed at sea are affiliated with the organizations sponsoring training programs and cannot avail themselves of training facilities. Further, with the exception of certain organizations' schools, there are few programs offered to upgrade the skills of active mariners. For these reasons, it is concluded that an apprentice program offered at a public institution which has also expressed interest in developing programs for the active mariner regardless of any particular affiliation is to be encouraged. The acceptance and number of persons licensed as a result of the training received at Southern Maine Vocational Technical Institute will be dependent upon the number of students for whom vessel operators will provide an opportunity to gain the necessary sea service and training.

The comment concerning court rulings on new manning requirements and their impact on labor relations in the maritime industry must be considered in light of the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals decision in Le Bus v. Seafarers' Union (68 LRRM 2909). In that case, the Court held that an appeal from a denial of an injunction to restrain a union from an alleged violation of section 8(b)(4)(D) of the Labor Management Relations Act jurisdictional strike provision was moot. The Marine Engineers Beneficial Association (MEBA) placed two apprentice engineers aboard vessels belonging to Delta Steamship Lines. Delta had an exclusive collective bargaining agreement with Seafarers' International Union (SIU) for hiring unlicensed personnel, and a similar agreement with MEBA for hiring licensed engineroom personnel. Delta and MEBA included apprentice engineers in the Delta-MEBA contract.

SIU demanded the discontinuance of the employment of unlicensed apprentice engineers and struck Delta. The National Labor Relations Board sought an injunction against the strike. The District Court denied the injunction and there was an appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals.

Subsequent to the submission of the case to the Court of Appeals, the Executive Council of the AFL–CIO ruled against MEBA and found that MEBA had interfered with the established bargaining relationship between the SIU and Delta. MEBA removed the two apprentice engineers from the Delta vessels. The Court of Appeals held that, since the unions had reached an agreement, the appeal from the denial of the injunction was moot. The Court of Appeals did not rule on the merits, and did not prohibit the use of apprentice engineers.

The requirements of naval reserve membership as expressed in the Merchant Marine Act, 1936 are permissive to the extent that 46 U.S.C. 1132(g) provides that officers on certain vessels shall, if eligible, be members of the U.S. Naval Reserve. The requirement is not applicable to all U.S. vessels. The Navy will make the determination as to whether or not to offer training at institutions providing apprentice training.

After review and consideration of all comments, it is considered that the program proposed by Southern Maine Vocational Technical Institute would be an acceptable course to provide training.

The program offered by Southern Maine Vocational Technical Institute will consist of two academic years of instruction, and twelve months service and training afloat on commercial vessels of 1,000 gross tons or over. Not more than one-third of such sea service and training may be gained on other than vessels of U.S. registry, and students gaining service and training on vessels other than a U.S. registry must be accompanied by an instructor holding a deck officer's license issued by the U.S. Coast Guard. License examinations will not be authorized until such time as a student has successfully completed all academic and sea service requirements. Formal interim approval has been granted to such program as presently offered to extend for two years. Subsequent five-year periods of approval may be granted depending upon the training school's continued maintenance of a sound program of instruction and its continued acceptance by any interested party prepared to offer an opportunity for the enrolled students to gain the necessary sea service and training.

In consideration of the foregoing, Parts 10 and 12 of Title 46 of the Code of Federal Regulations are amended as follows:

§ 10.05–33 [Amended]

1. In § 10.05–33, by amending paragraph (a)(7) by striking "." and inserting "; or," in place thereof and by adding a new paragraph (a)(8) to read as follows:

(8) Satisfactory completion of a three-year apprentice mate training program approved by the Commandant.

2. By adding a new § 12.25–40 to read as follows:

§ 12.25–40 Apprentice mate.

A person enrolled in an apprentice mate training program approved by the Commandant who presents a letter or other documentary evidence that he is so enrolled may be issued a merchant mariner's document as apprentice mate and may be signed on ships as apprentice mate. The endorsement "apprentice mate" may be in addition to other endorsements. However, this endorsement as apprentice mate does not authorize the holder to fill any of the regular ratings.

CHAPTER IV—FEDERAL MARITIME COMMISSION

[General Order No. 33; Docket No. 72–62]

PART 506—REGULATIONS TO ADJUST OR MEET CONDITIONS UNFAVORABLE TO SHIPPING IN THE FOREIGN TRADE OF THE UNITED STATES

Correction

The following changes should be made in the preamble and regulations issued in this proceeding published in the FEDERAL REGISTER July 9, 1975 (40 FR 28801).

1. The third sentence under the heading "506.3 Findings—Conditions unfavorable to shipping in the foreign trade of the United States," in the preamble to the new regulations (middle column, p. 28801) should read:

Appropriate sanctions for rebating are generally provided in section 18(b)(3) of the Shipping Act, 1916. Since rebating is also a condition unfavorable to shipping in the foreign trade which arises out of or results from competitive methods or practices, the Commission may issue rules and regulations to combat such rebating under the general terms of these regulations. It is not therefore necessary to make the amendment proposed.

2. The phrase "and Title V of the Independent Offices Appropriations Act of 1952 (31 U.S.C. 483(a))" should be deleted where it appears as authority for issuance of these regulations.

By the Commission.

Delegation to the Assistant Secretary for Environment, Safety, and Consumer Affairs

The purpose of this amendment is to delegate to the Assistant Secretary for Environment, Safety and Consumer Affairs authority and responsibilities vested in the Secretary by the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966.

Since this amendment relates to Departmental management, procedures and practices, notice and public procedure thereon are unnecessary and it may be made effective in fewer than 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

In consideration of the foregoing, Part 1 of title 49, Code of Federal Regulations, is amended as follows:

In section 1.58, paragraphs (f) and (h) are redesignated (d) and (e), and a new paragraph (f) is added, to read as follows:

CHAPTER V—NATIONAL HIGHWAY TRAFFIC SAFETY ADMINISTRATION, DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION

[Docket 74–33; Notice 3]

PART 571—FEDERAL MOTOR VEHICLE SAFETY STANDARDS

Protection From Steering Control System; Response To Petition for Reconsideration

This notice responds to a petition for reconsideration of the notice published April 24, 1975 (40 FR 17992), which exempts from the application of Standard No. 203 (49 CFR 571.203) vehicles conforming to the frontal barrier crash requirements (S5.1) of Standard No. 208 (49 CFR 571.208) by means other than seat belt assemblies.

One petition for reconsideration, from American Motors Corporation (AMC), was received. The petitioner requests that the exemption be extended to vehicles conforming to the frontal barrier crash requirements of Standard No. 208 by any means, including seat belts.

The NHTSA has concluded that AMC's petition should be denied. AMC argues that the requirements of Standard No. 203 are inappropriate for a vehicle equipped with a seat belt system conforming to Standard No. 208 because, when restrained by such a belt, the driver will impact his head on the steering control system instead of his chest. AMC also asserts that Standard Nos. 203 and 208 are redundant, and therefore the economic burden of compliance testing for both standards is not justifiable. The NHTSA agrees with AMC that seat belt restraint systems afford significant protection from chest injuries suffered by impact with the steering control system. However, that does not mean that if a vehicle is equipped with such a restraint system, the protection afforded by Standard 203 is redundant. First, the incidence of non-use of seat belt restraint systems conforming to Section 208 is high. Second, as noted above, even with seat belt restraints, there is still a potential impact by the driver with the steering control system. Therefore, the driver of a vehicle equipped with seat belt restraints still needs the protection afforded by Standard No. 203.

Occupant Crash Protection

This notice amends Standard No. 208, Occupant crash protection, 49 CFR 571.208, to continue until August 31, 1976, the present three options available for occupant crash protection in passenger cars. This amendment replaces provisions of the standard which were to have come into effect on August 15, 1975, but were suspended as a result of the decision of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit in Chrysler v. DOT, 472 F2d 659 (6th Cir. 1972).

This extension of the present occupant crash protection options was proposed April 10, 1975 (40 FR 21617). Vehicle manufacturers and the American Safety Belt Council (ASBC) supported the proposal, but requested that the modifications apply indefinitely instead of being limited to a 1-year extension. Ford Motor Company, Chrysler Corporation, and Volkswagen of America also asked that the future provisions for light trucks and multipurpose passenger vehicles (MPV) (S4.2.3) be similarly modified. The California Traffic Safety Foundation and the Vehicle Equipment Safety Commission supported the proposal but only for the 1-year period for which it was proposed.

While the NHTSA recognizes that the present crash protection options will in all likelihood be in effect for some period after August 31, 1976, the agency has not proposed more than the 1-year extension. The Administrative Procedures Act specifies, with limited exceptions, that notice and opportunity to comment be provided interested persons in the case of agency rulemaking proceedings (§ 553(b)). The NHTSA intends to propose the long-term requirements for occupant crash protection, both for passenger cars and for light trucks and MPV's, as soon as possible.

Until that time, the NHTSA finds that manufacturers must be assured of the regulations for occupant crash protection as they apply to upcoming production. In consideration of the foregoing, Standard No. 208 (49 CFR § 571.208) is amended as follows:

1. The title and first sentence of S4.1.2 is amended to read:

S4.1.2 Passenger cars manufactured from September 1, 1973, to August 31, 1976. Passenger cars manufactured from September 1, 1973, to August 31, 1976, inclusive, shall meet the requirements of S4.1.2.1, S4.1.2.2, or S4.1.2.3.

2. S4.1.3 is revoked and reserved.

Effective date: August 13, 1975. Because the present requirements for occupant crash protection terminate in less than 30 days and manufacturers need to be advised of the continuation of the requirements as soon as possible, it is found for good cause shown that an effective date sooner than 30 days following the date of publication is in the public interest.

(Sec. 103, 119, Pub. L. 89–563, 80 Stat. 718 (15 U.S.C. 1392, 1407); delegation of authority at 49 CFR 1.51.)

CHAPTER X—INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION

PART 1033—CAR SERVICE

Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad Co.

At a Session of the INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION, Railroad Service Board, held in Washington, D.C., on the 8th day of August, 1975.

It appearing, That the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad Company (MILW), in Finance Docket 27771, has requested authority to operate over tracks of the Burlington Northern Inc. (BN), between milepost 1475.66 at Spokane, Washington, and milepost 1431.25 at Newport, Washington, a distance of approximately 44.37 miles; over the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation Company (OWRN), Union Pacific Railroad Company lessee, between Engineer's Station 2467+13 and Engineer's Station 2490+26.6, a distance of approximately 2513 feet, at Spokane, Washington; over 491 feet of OWRN tracks connecting the OWRN with the BN in the vicinity of Engineer's Station 2458+96.9 at Spokane; and over 2628 feet of the BN connecting track between BN Engineer's Station 1283+16.1 and BN Engineer's Station 1256+88.0, including the right to cross the Spokane International Railroad Company's tracks at BN Engineer's Station 1281+67.3, at Spokane; that the order of the Commission authorizing the aforedescribed operation does not become effective until September 2, 1975; that immediate operation by the MILW over the aforementioned tracks of the BN and OWRN will facilitate the construction of Interstate Highway 90, which intersects the MILW near McGuires, Idaho; in the interest of the public and commerce of the people. Accordingly, the Commission finds that notice and public procedure herein are impracticable and contrary to the public interest, and that good cause exists for making this order effective upon less than thirty days' notice.

§ 1033.1217 Service Order No. 1217.

(a) (Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad Company authorized to operate over tracks of Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation Company, Union Pacific Railroad Company, Lessee, and over tracks of Burlington Northern Inc.) The Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad Company (MILW) be, and it is hereby, authorized to operate over tracks of the Burlington Northern Inc., (BN) between milepost 1475.66, at Spokane, Washington, and milepost 1431.25, at Newport, Washington, a distance of approximately 44.37 miles; over the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation Company (OWRN), Union Pacific Railroad Company, Lessee, between Engineer's Station 2467+13 and Engineer's Station 2490+26.6, a distance of approximately 2513 feet, at Spokane, Washington; over 491 feet of OWRN tracks connecting the OWRN with the BN in the vicinity of Engineer's Station 2458+96.9 at Spokane; and over 2628

(b) It is further ordered, That the MILW be, and it is hereby directed, to continue to provide railroad service in accordance with its tariff to all shippers located on its line between milepost 0.0 at McGuires, Idaho and milepost 43.87 at Newport, Washington, pending consummation of the abandonment of that line in accordance with the order of the Commission in Docket AB-7 (Sub No. 18), dated July 23, 1975.

(c) Application. The provisions of this order shall apply to intrastate, interstate, and foreign traffic.

(d) Effective date. This order shall become effective at 12:01 a.m., August 11, 1975.

(e) Expiration date. The provisions of this order shall expire at 11:59 p.m., September 3, 1975, unless otherwise modified, changed, or suspended by order of this Commission.

(Secs. 1, 12, 15, and 17(2), 24 Stat. 379, 383, 384, as amended; 49 U.S.C. 1, 12, 15, and 17(2). Interprets or applies Secs. 1(10–17), 15(4), and 17(2), 40 Stat. 101, as amended, 54 Stat. 911; 49 U.S.C. 1(10–17), 15(4), and 17(2).)

It is further ordered, That copies of this order shall be served upon the Association of American Railroads, Car Service Division, as agent of the railroads subscribing to the car service and car hire agreement under the terms of that agreement, and upon the American Short Line Railroad Association; and that notice of this order shall be given to the general public by depositing a copy in the Office of the Secretary of the Commission at Washington, D.C., and by filing it with the Director, Office of the Federal Register.

CHAPTER II—NATIONAL MARINE FISHERIES SERVICE, NATIONAL OCEANIC AND ATMOSPHERIC ADMINISTRATION, DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

SUBCHAPTER H—TUNA FISHERIES

PART 285—ATLANTIC TUNA FISHERIES

Notice is hereby given that, pursuant to Section 6 of the Atlantic Tunas Convention Act of 1975 (the Act), Chapter II of Title 50, Code of Federal Regulations, is amended by adding a new Part 285—Atlantic Tuna Fisheries and by revising Subchapter H to read "Tuna Fisheries."

The Act, among other things, provides authority to the Secretary of Commerce (the Secretary) to promulgate regulations which implement recommendations adopted by the Commission established under the provisions of the International Convention for the Conservation of Atlantic Tunas (the Commission). Section 6(d) of the Act directs the Secretary to promulgate, within 30 days of its enactment, regulations which are necessary and appropriate to implement and carry out the 1974 recommendations of the Commission with respect to Atlantic bluefin tuna (Thunnus thynnus thynnus). In accordance with Section 6(d) of the Act, regulations with respect to Atlantic bluefin tuna are set forth below. These regulations establish fishing seasons, quotas, reporting requirements, enforcement procedures and penalties. The authority of the Secretary under the Act has been delegated to the Director, National Marine Fisheries Service (the Director).

Prior to passage of the Act and the authority contained therein to promulgate these regulations, the Director had proposed listing Atlantic bluefin tuna as a threatened species pursuant to the Endangered Species Act of 1973, 16 U.S.C. 1531 et seq., and implementing the Commission's recommendations through protective regulations provided for in the Endangered Species Act (see 40 FR 14777). The proposed listing was based, in part, on the inadequacy of existing statutory authorization to regulate. In view of the regulatory regime hereinafter set forth, the basis for proposing to list Atlantic bluefin tuna as a threatened species no longer exists. Consequently, by this publication the Public is hereby notified that the Director will initiate steps to terminate action to list, at this time, Atlantic bluefin tuna as a threatened species.

As a result of the proposed listing of Atlantic bluefin tuna as a threatened species, comments from the Public were solicited and a public hearing was held in Boston, Massachusetts, on May 16, 1975, with respect to, among other things, the proposed protective regulations. Consequently, although the Public has not had an opportunity to comment on the regulations promulgated hereunder, the Public's views expressed on the proposed protective regulations for Atlantic bluefin tuna under the Endangered Species Act of 1973, both written and oral, have been considered in these regulations.

The recommendations adopted by the Commission which are implemented by the regulations set forth hereunder are the following:

(1) That the Contracting Parties take the necessary measures to prohibit any taking and landing of bluefin tuna (Thunnus thynnus thynnus) weighing less than 6.4 kg. Notwithstanding the above regulation, the Contracting Parties may grant tolerances to boats which have incidentally captured bluefin weighing less than 6.4 kg., with the condition that this incidental catch should not exceed 15% of the number of fish per landing of the total bluefin catch of said boats or its equivalent in percentage by weight.

(2) That as a preliminary step, the Contracting Parties that are actively fishing for bluefin tuna (Thunnus thynnus thynnus) or those that incidentally catch it in significant quantities shall take the necessary measures to limit the fishing mortality of bluefin tuna to recent levels for a period of one year.

With respect to the second recommendation on page 18 of the Proceedings of the Third Regular Meeting of the Council the following appears:

It was also clarified that interpretation of the recent levels (of fishing mortality of bluefin tuna), referred to in the second proposal, should be left to each member state. It was also suggested that each country should be free to choose whether to limit catch or effort. This flexibility is particularly necessary because bluefin statistics for some countries are presently very inadequate.

In implementing the second recommendation, the Director chose to limit catch as a means to keep the fishing mortality of Atlantic bluefin tuna at recent levels. On the basis of the data available, there is indication that levels of fish mortality of Atlantic bluefin tuna vary with the size of Atlantic bluefin tuna. Consequently, the regulations are written in a way which reflects the relationship of recent fishing mortality levels to a particular size of Atlantic bluefin tuna.

For purposes of the 1975 fishing season, and these regulations, all Atlantic bluefin tuna taken during this calendar year will be considered by the Director in determining, among other things, when the quotas in Section 285.12 have been reached. In this connection, the quota for fishing by purse seining for Atlantic bluefin tuna that weigh between 14 pounds round weight and 115 pounds round weight is 1,100 short tons. This amount has been reached at this time. Consequently, there will be no open season this year for fishing by purse seining for Atlantic bluefin tuna that weigh between 14 pounds round weight and 115 pounds round weight.

With respect to fishing by purse seining for Atlantic bluefin tuna that weigh in excess of 300 pounds round weight and fishing by methods other than purse seining for Atlantic bluefin tuna that weigh between 14 pounds round weight and 115 pounds round weight or in excess of 300 pounds round weight, the open seasons commence as of this date.

Section 9 of the Act provides for regulations to be effective within the territorial sea of the United States (generally the area over which the States have jurisdiction pursuant to the Submerged Lands Act, 43 U.S.C. 1301–1343), provided that the Secretary first determines that:

a. Within a reasonable period of time after promulgation of these regulations States have not adopted measures which implement the Commission's recommendations; or

b. If a State adopts regulations they are:

(1) less restrictive; or

(2) not effectively enforced.

There is also provision for a State to request a hearing on the record to consider these issues. However, both the House Report (H.R. Rep. No. 94–295, 1st Sess. (1975) at p. 17) and the Senate Report (S. Rep. No. 94–269, 1st Sess. (1975) at p. 11) note that for the 1975 fishing season the respective Committees have no objection to the provisions of Section 9(d)(2) being waived. Consequently, in view of both the Senate and House Reports and the importance of meeting international obligations, these regulations will be immediately effective within the territorial sea of the United States subject, however, to the right of a State to request a hearing within 30 days from this date in accordance with the Act. In the event such a hearing is held, should the Secretary determine on the basis of the evidence of record that a State has promulgated regulations which implement the Commission's recommendations, that such regulations are not less restrictive than the regulations hereinafter set forth and that such regulations are effectively enforced, the regulations hereinafter set forth shall not, from the date of the Secretary's determination, be effective in the waters over which the State has jurisdiction. For fishing seasons after December 31, 1975, the procedures set forth in Section 9 of the Act shall be implemented prior to including the territorial sea of the United States in the regulatory area.

The Act does not provide for the immediate promulgation of regulations to implement the Commission's recommendations with respect to yellowfin tuna (Thunnus albacares) or to implement immediately regulations which establish importation restrictions on various regulated species or species under investigation by the Commission. Consequently, the promulgation of such regulations will be in accordance with rulemaking procedures required by the Act. It is anticipated that proposed regulations in this regard will be published by September 1975.

Subchapter H of Chapter II of Title 50, Code of Federal Regulations is titled "Eastern Pacific Tuna Fisheries." That subchapter heading is amended to read "Tuna Fisheries" in view of the fact that Atlantic tuna fisheries are now included in the subchapter.

In accordance with Executive Order No. 11821 dated November 27, 1974, it is hereby certified that the inflationary impact of this action on the Nation has been carefully evaluated. The additional Federal expenditures required are so minimal that no substantial impact on the Nation is anticipated.

Issued at Washington, D.C., and dated August 11, 1975.

Effective date: This part becomes effective on August 13, 1975.

JACK W. GEHRINGER,
Acting Director,
National Marine Fisheries Service.

§ 285.2 Basis and purpose.

(a) At a Tuna Symposium convened in Dakar, Senegal December 12–17, 1960, the Commission for Technical Cooperation in Africa South of the Sahara suggested the need to develop international procedures for the conservation of Atlantic tunas. The idea gained support and culminated in the convening of a Conference of Plenipotentiaries on the Conservation of Atlantic Tunas in Rio de Janerio, Brazil, during May 2–14, 1966. The Conference prepared the International Convention for the Conservation of Atlantic Tunas, which entered into force March 21, 1969, after ratification by Canada, Japan, France, Ghana, South Africa, Spain, and the United States. Ratifications have been deposited by Brazil, Cuba, Ivory Coast, Korea, Morocco, Portugal and Senegal since the Convention entered into force.

(b) The International Commission for the Conservation of Atlantic Tunas (ICCAT) has been established under the authority of the Convention. The Commission is responsible for the study of the populations of tuna and tuna-like fishes in the Atlantic Ocean and is empowered to recommend proposals for joint action by member governments aimed at maintaining these stocks at levels which will permit the maximum sustainable catch. The Commission structure also includes a Council which serves as an executive body between biennial meetings of the Commission.

(c) The First Regular Meeting of the Commission held in Rome, December 1–6, 1969, and the First Regular Meeting of the Council in Madrid, November 16–20, 1970, centered on organizational questions. Priority was given to the collection of basic data by the Secretariat from member countries on tuna fisheries and to the organization of a Standing Committee on Research and Statistics (SCRS). The Committee, composed of scientists from member countries, is responsible for coordinating and reviewing data collection and stock assessment work on tuna and tuna-like species in the Atlantic.

(d) At the second biennial meeting of the Commission held in Madrid December 2–7, 1971, the SCRS reviewed the somewhat limited data available and warned that regulatory measures may be needed in the future (1) to control the taking of Atlantic bluefin and yellowfin tuna below a certain size and (2) to reduce fishing intensity on yellowfin tuna.

(e) At the Second Regular Meeting of the ICCAT Council in Madrid November 29–December 5, 1972, The Council recommended a ban on taking and landing yellowfin tuna weighing less than 3.2 kilograms but provided for an incidental catch allowance for yellowfin tuna weighing less than 3.2 kilograms of 15 percent of all yellowfin onboard. The Council held its Third Regular Meeting in Madrid November 20–26, 1974, at which time it adopted two regulatory measures for Atlantic bluefin tuna which included a 6.4 kilogram minimum size and a limit on fishing mortality of Atlantic bluefin tuna to recent levels for a period of one year. The Council's recommendations were formally approved by a majority of the Commission members in February 1975.

(f) On August 5, 1975, the President signed into law the Atlantic Tuna Convention Act of 1975, which under certain conditions authorizes the Secretary to implement the Commission's recommendations. The Secretary's authority under the Act has been delegated to the Director.

(g) The regulations in this part are designed to implement the provisions of the Act and the Commission's recommendations for conservation.

§ 285.3 Prohibitions.

(a) It shall be unlawful—

(1) For any person in charge of a fishing vessel or any fishing vessel subject to the jurisdiction of the United States to engage in fishing in violation of these regulations; or

(2) For any person to ship, transport, purchase, sell, offer for sale, import, export, or have in custody, possession, or control any fish which he knows, or should have known, were taken or retained contrary to these regulations, without regard to the citizenship of the person or fishing vessel which took the fish.

(b) It shall be unlawful for a dealer or master or any person in charge of any fishing vessel subject to the jurisdiction of the United States to fail to make, keep, or furnish any catch returns, statistical records, or other reports required by these regulations to be made, kept, or furnished by such dealer, master or person.

(c) It shall be unlawful for a dealer or master or any person in charge of any fishing vessel subject to the jurisdiction of the United States to refuse to permit any person authorized to enforce the provisions of these regulations, to enter the premises of said dealer or to board such vessel in order to inspect its catch, equipment, books, documents, records, or other articles or question the persons onboard in accordance with the provisions of these regulations, or to obstruct such officials in the execution of such duties.

(d) It shall be unlawful for any person to improt from any country any fish in any form of those species subject to regulation pursuant to a recommendation of the Commission, or any fish in any form not under regulation but under investigation by the Commission, during the period such fish have been denied entry in accordance with the provisions of these regulations.

§ 285.4 Civil penalties.

Any person who—

(a) Violates any provision of § 285.3 (a) of this Part shall be assessed a civil penalty of not more than $25,000 and for any subsequent violation of said section shall be assessed a civil penalty of not more than $50,000;

(b) Violates any provision of § 285.3 (b) or (c) of this Part shall be assessed a penalty of not more than $1,000 and for any subsequent violation of said subsection shall be assessed a civil penalty of not more than $5,000; or

(c) Violates any provision of § 285.3 (d) of this Part shall be assessed a civil penalty of not more than $100,000.

(b) Enforcement Agents of the National Marine Fisheries Service shall enforce these regulations and the provisions of the Act on behalf of the Secretary and may take any actions authorized by the Act and these regulations with respect to enforcement. The Secretary may utilize, by agreement, the personnel, services, and facilities of any other Federal Agency for the purposes of enforcing this Act. Pursuant to the limitations of section 6 of the Act, the Secretary may also designate personnel of a State to enforce these regulations and the provisions of the Act.

§ 285.6 Civil procedures.

The method for assessment of civil penalties for violation of these regulations or the Act shall be in accordance with the rules and procedures set forth in 50 CFR Part 218.

§ 285.7 Persons and vessels exempt.

Nothing contained in this Part shall apply to any person or vessel authorized by the Commission, the Director, or any State to engage in fishing for research purposes.

Subpart B—Atlantic Bluefin Tuna (Thunnus thynnus thynnus)

§ 285.10 Authorized fishing.

Fishing for Atlantic bluefin tuna that weigh between 14 pounds round weight (6.4 kg.) and 115 pounds round weight (52.3 kg.) or in excess of 300 pounds round weight (136.4 kg.) by persons or fishing vessels subject to the jurisdiction of the United States is authorized in the regulatory area only during open season. Fishing for Atlantic bluefin tuna that weigh less than 14 pounds round weight or in excess of 115 pounds round weight but less than 300 pounds round weight by persons or fishing vessels subject to the jurisdiction of the United States is not authorized at any time in the regulatory area. However, Atlantic bluefin tuna that weigh less than 14 pounds or in excess of 115 pounds round weight but less than 300 pounds round weight may be incidentally taken in the course of fishing in the regulatory area by persons or fishing vessels subject to the jurisdiction of the United States only in the manner and in the numbers or weights, as the case may be, as set forth in § 285.13.

§ 285.11 Open and closed seasons.

(a) The Director shall announce in the FEDERAL REGISTER the opening and the closing of the seasons or areas for the taking of Atlantic bluefin tuna. In determining whether a season or area shall be opened and when a season or area shall be closed for the calendar year 1975, the Director will take into consideration the number or tons, as the case may be, of Atlantic bluefin tuna taken during the period from 1 January 1975 to the date these regulations are promulgated.

§ 285.12 Quotas.

The quotas, by method of fishing, for Atlantic bluefin tuna in the regulatory area during the open season are as follows:

(a) Purse seining:

(1) The total annual quota for Atlantic bluefin tuna that weigh between 14 pounds (6.4 kg.) round weight and 115 pounds (52.3 kg.) round weight is 1,100 short tons (997 metric tons).

(2) The total annual quota for Atlantic bluefin tuna that weigh in excess of 300 pounds (136.4 kg.) round weight is 200 short tons (182 metric tons).

(b) Fishing by other than purse seining:

(1) The total annual quota of Atlantic bluefin tuna which weigh in excess of 300 pounds round weight is 2,250 tuna of which no more than 200 tuna shall be taken south of a line extending from the entrance to Chatham Harbor, Massachusetts, east into the Atlantic Ocean.

(2) The daily bag limit per person for persons who angle for Atlantic bluefin tuna which weigh between 14 pounds round weight and 115 pounds round weight is four Atlantic bluefin tuna.

When the quota for a particular weight of Atlantic bluefin tuna has been reached, the Director shall, in accordance with § 285.11 close the season for Atlantic bluefin tuna of that weight.

§ 285.13 Incidental catch.

(a) Purse seine vessels fishing for Atlantic bluefin tuna weighing more than 14 pounds round weight but less than 115 pounds round weight, may, in addition, incidentally take on any one trip Atlantic bluefin tuna outside said weight limits provided, however, that the number of such tuna taken shall not exceed either 15 percent of the total number of Atlantic bluefin tuna taken which do not exceed said limits or 4 percent by weight of the total weight of Atlantic bluefin tuna taken which do not exceed said limits.

(b) Persons angling for Atlantic bluefin tuna, which weigh between 14 pounds round weight and 115 pounds round weight, may include in the daily bag limit one Atlantic bluefin tuna less than 14 pounds round weight and one Atlantic bluefin tuna greater than 115 pounds round weight but less than 300 pounds round weight.

(c) Persons or fishing vessels subject to the jurisdiction of the United States fishing for species of fish other than Atlantic bluefin tuna may, in addition, incidentally take on any one trip, or in the case of traps within any 30 day period, Atlantic bluefin tuna of any weight provided that said tuna do not exceed, by weight, 2% of the total weight of the fish taken.

(d) All Atlantic bluefin tuna taken incidentally shall be included in the quotas set forth in § 285.12.

§ 285.14 Reporting requirements.

(a) Reports and records required by this section when required to be forwarded to the National Marine Fisheries Service, should be forwarded to:

Director, Northeast Region
National Marine Fisheries Service
14 Elm Street, Federal Building
Gloucester, Massachusetts 01930

The tags referred to in (b) and (c) of this section may be obtained by writing to the same address.

(b) Any person or master or operator of any fishing vessel subject to the jurisdiction of the United States that takes an Atlantic bluefin tuna in excess of 300 pounds round weight shall affix through the fleshy part of the keel on the peduncle, an individually numbered tag furnished by the National Marine Fisheries Service. The person, master or operator shall complete the numbered card furnished with the tag and mail the card to the National Marine Fisheries Service within 72 hours of landing.

(c) It shall be the responsibility of any dealer who purchases or otherwise obtains an Atlantic bluefin tuna that weighs in excess of 300 pounds round weight to affix, unless there is already affixed upon the tail, through the fleshy part of the keel on the peduncle, an individually numbered tag furnished by the National Marine Fisheries Service. The dealer shall complete the numbered card furnished with the tag and mail the card to the National Marine Fisheries Service within 72 hours of receipt of such tuna. An affixed tag whether attached by a dealer, person or master or operator of a fishing vessel must remain in place until such tuna is being processed, packed for export or otherwise disposed of, at which time the dealer shall remove a 3–6 inch section of the tail (caudal peduncle) containing the tag, notify the National Marine Fisheries Service and retain the tail piece with tag for collection by a representative from the National Marine Fisheries Service.

(d) With respect to Atlantic bluefin tuna that weigh less than 300 pounds round weight, dealers shall maintain and forward to the National Marine Fisheries Service, within 72 hours of engaging in a commercial activity involving such Atlantic bluefin tuna, a complete record of such activity including the numbers, and disposition (names, addresses and where applicable country of origin) of such Atlantic bluefin tuna.

§ 285.15 Presumptions.

For purposes of this Part 285, there shall be a rebuttable presumption that Atlantic bluefin tuna which are of the following lengths when measured in a straight line from the tip of the nose to the fork of the tail weigh the amount noted in association with the length:

27 inches (68 cm.)—14 pounds (6.4 kg.).
56 inches (142 cm.)—115 pounds (52.3 kg.).
75 inches (191 cm.)—300 pounds (136.4 kg.).

For any Atlantic bluefin tuna which is less than or in excess of the lengths set forth herein, there shall be a rebuttable presumption that such Atlantic bluefin tuna correspondingly weighs less than or in excess of, as the case may be, the appropriate associated weights.

FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS

The findings and conclusions on the material issues are based upon the evidence presented at the hearing and the record thereof, and are as follows:

(1) Eggs are produced and marketed in commercial volume in each of the 48 contiguous States of the United States. The distribution of egg production is not proportionate to population distribution by States and regions. The record evidence shows that on a regional basis the West North Central, South Atlantic, East South Central, West South Central, and Pacific regions each produce substantial surpluses of eggs, whereas the regions of New England, Middle Atlantic, East North Central, and Mountain are in a deficit position (assuming uniform per capita consumption in all areas). (These regions are used by the Statistical Reporting Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture for some egg industry statistics.) Of the top 10 producing States in the Nation, only two, Texas and Pennsylvania, are egg-deficit States, meaning they do not produce enough eggs to supply their States' consumption. Egg-deficit States receive eggs from surplus-producing States in order to meet consumer demand. As a result, both eggs and spent fowl and their products move in large volume across State lines from producing to consuming areas. Import and export trade combined amounts to less than 1 percent of U.S. production.

Exhibit 5 received in evidence in Atlanta, entitled "Economic Characteristics of and Changes in the Market Egg Industry" shows that in 1969 processing plants producing frozen and dried eggs were concentrated in the Midwest and the South. For both shell eggs and processed eggs, there is little evidence of any trend toward self-sufficiency for every State or region. For example, while Boston receives the bulk of its eggs from the New England States, large shipments of eggs move from the Southern and Midwestern States into Boston and the balance of New England. In addition, eggs from California move to Colorado, Texas, Utah, and Wyoming.

Some eggs, spent fowl, and their products are consumed within the States where grown, but even these affect interstate commerce, because they compete with eggs, spent fowl, and products thereof that move in interstate commerce. With modern communications, egg prices and/or the supply situation in any one area are promptly known in all other areas and have a direct effect on egg prices and marketings in all production areas.

The record evidence supports the finding that all eggs, spent fowl, products of spent fowl, and derivatives of egg production produced in the 48 contiguous United States are either in the current of interstate and foreign commerce or directly burden or affect interstate commerce of these products. Therefore, it is found that the right to exercise Federal jurisdiction with respect to the order as hereinafter set forth, is established.

(2) Eggs constitute one of the basic, natural foods in the human diet. Eggs are among the most economical, high protein foods in the supermarkets of America, yet the trend in demand is downward. The record evidence shows that many American consumers have not been adequately informed about the nutritional value of eggs. The order is needed to provide the egg industry with an opportunity to adopt a systematic program with which to get the facts about the advantages of using eggs to American consumers.

The record evidence shows that in 1974 farmers produced about 5.5 billion dozen eggs with gross sales amounting to approximately 3 billion dollars. The egg industry provides employment for many thousands of workers engaged directly in egg production and marketing, and for many more thousands of workers in allied industries, such as feed, transportation, equipment, and building. Total egg production in the United States has been declining on an annual basis since 1971, but more significant is the rapid decline in per capita consumption of eggs. In 1974, per capita consumption of eggs was down to 287 compared to 393 in 1951. The downward trend in the demand for eggs has had a depressing effect on the egg and allied industries.

Growthwise, the egg industry has grown only 12 percent during the past 25 years. Total annual production of eggs in 1974 at 5.5 billion dozen was only 0.6 billion dozen above the 4.9 billion dozen eggs produced in 1950.

Egg prices have generally trended downward since the late 1940's. Prices paid to producers for eggs averaged 46 cents a dozen in 1947–49 according to Exhibit 8, received in evidence in Atlanta, entitled "Changes in the Egg Industry and Projections for 1980." Since 1950, prices generally trended downward to a low of 31 cents a dozen in 1967. Prices recovered strongly by 1969; however, they declined again to low levels in 1971–72 before improving to 53 cents per dozen in 1974 (partly because of inflation). Egg production by 1980 is projected to be about 6.3 billion dozen; however, this projection was based on an expected per capita consumption of about 300 at the end of this decade, whereas consumption has dropped well below that level to 287 per person in 1974 and the evidence is that the downward trend is continuing.

Shifts in geographical areas of production, shifts to fewer and larger units of production, marked changes in mechanization, vertical integration of a large part of the industry, and greatly increased costs of production, all have created problems for egg producers in recent years.

The egg industry in the last 2½ decades has not been subjected to price support programs. There are no Federal marketing allotments, production quotas, cash subsidies, or price guarantees for eggs or spent fowl. Some nationwide assistance has been provided through the former USDA Plentiful Foods Program and more recently by other USDA promotional assistance. In addition, USDA has purchased some quantities of the products of eggs and spent fowl during periods when the market suffered from surplus supply and resultant depressed prices. These actions have helped in a limited way to alleviate economic pressures on egg producers. However, the egg industry is still faced with problems of declining per capita consumption, surplus supplies, and low prices.

The number and size of egg-producing units have changed dramatically during the past 25 years. More eggs are being produced by fewer producers in a system that is moving toward a more coordinated, integrated form of production. The number of farms selling eggs fell sharply from 2.4 million in 1949 to 471,000 in 1969. The decline in the number of laying flocks and the trend to larger operations reflect many factors affecting the supply of and demand for eggs and spent fowl. Contract production has been steadily increasing to the extent that probably about half of all eggs produced are from farms with some type of contractual, integrated structure between the grower and other firms associated with the industry. Contract production has come about largely because of the cost-price squeeze experienced by the industry. There have been major geographic shifts in production of eggs, mainly to the South and West, largely due to lower costs of production. The location of facilities for grading and cartoning eggs has changed mainly for economy reasons. These operations were first performed largely by wholesalers in central, terminal markets. Today, much of the grading and cartoning is done by producers or by assembler-packers in producing areas because costs are lower and general efficiency is improved.

While national per capita disposable incomes more than doubled since 1950, egg prices to farmers have increased not more than 10 percent on the average during that period.

The decline in per capita consumption of eggs from the high level around 1950 was testified to be due, in part, to changing life styles of many Americans. Many Americans no longer eat eggs at breakfast due in a large part to the availability of substitute foods or, because people are no longer eating any breakfast at all. The egg industry has so far been unable to interest consumers in the use of more eggs at other meals. The net result is that the egg industry has suffered from a declining demand for its products.

Egg producers have been trying unsuccessfully for years through voluntary, cooperative action to promote increased use of eggs and spent fowl, but only substantial investments in intensive research and promotion can help them. Major egg producing States have programs to collect funds and conduct advertising and promotion. These programs have had limited success because they have been too small in size and too limited in scope to reverse the downward trend in egg demand. Since 1939, when the egg industry formed the Poultry and Egg National Board, now the American Egg Board, it has attempted to carry out promotion and consumer information programs on a national scale with voluntary contributions. However, sufficient financing has not been available to carry out the program in the several major markets at the same time. The efforts of both State and national industry egg associations to promote and advertise eggs have been too little to stem the downward trend in egg consumption.

The proposed research and promotion order has received widespread support of the egg industry. There were 19 national, regional, and State producer organizations which sponsored a proposed order. Record evidence shows that there is widespread industry support for the order. The evidence establishes a need for financing research as provided for in the order to find solutions to problems in production, handling, and marketing of eggs, spent fowl, and products thereof. The evidence shows that the coordinated system of financing research and promotion, as envisioned by the order, is needed and will result in certain benefits to the egg industry and consumers as well. Consumers would benefit by being more knowledgeable about eggs and how they may be used in their diet.

It is concluded, from the record evidence, that the egg industry urgently needs a research and promotion program and that the order would provide such a program and would effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(3) (a) Certain terms applying to specific individuals, agencies, legislation, concepts, or things are used throughout the order. These terms should be defined for the purpose of designating specifically their applicability and establishing appropriate limitations on their respective meanings whenever they are used.

"Secretary" should be defined to include not only the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States, the official charged by law with the responsibility for this order, but any other officer or employee of the U.S. Department of Agriculture who is, or who may hereafter be, authorized to act in his stead.

"Act" should be defined to provide the correct legal citation for the statute pursuant to which the order may be put into effect and operated. The inclusion of this definition will make it unnecessary to refer to such law and statutory citation every time reference is made to the act in the provisions of the order. "Act" should be defined to include any future amendments that may be made to the Egg Research and Consumer Information Act.

"Fiscal period" should be defined to be the specific 12-month period corresponding with the calendar year. A clearly defined and predetermined fiscal period of 12 months can facilitate auditing, budgeting, accounting, and making of expenditures on an orderly basis. Promotional activities for the egg industry are normally conducted during several periods of the calendar year. A full calendar year of activities can be better evaluated in comparison with the total of the previous year's activities. There are advantages in contracting for promotional work for 12-month periods as contrasted to contracting for shorter periods. Record evidence indicates that companies in advertising, media, printing, etc., use the calendar year as their fiscal year. However, the Board should be given authority to recommend a change in the fiscal period if changes in circumstances, at any time, warrant a different fiscal period from the one specified in the order. For example, the Board might wish to recommend to the Secretary that the fiscal period begin on October 1 instead of January 1, and continue for a 12-month period, if the operation of the program warrants it. The section applicable to fiscal period in the order would permit this flexibility.

"Egg Board" or "Board" should be defined as the administrative agency or body charged with the duty to administer the order. Since the order would be for the benefit of egg producers, the administrative agency should be composed of egg producers, or representatives of egg producers, selected by the Secretary from eligible organizations, associations, cooperatives, or producers. The act provides for the establishment of an administrative body to be known as the "Egg Board". A similar provision is included in the order. However, the term "Egg Board" may engender some confusion, considering the prior existence of the American Egg Board, the national voluntary promotion organization of the egg industry. In recognition of this potential confusion in terminology between the term specified in the act and an existing organization, the order should, with the approval of the Secretary, permit the "Egg Board" the discretion of adopting a name of its choice, if such alternative choice would tend to eliminate confusion on the part of producers and the general public.

"Commercial eggs" or "Eggs". The definition of the sole commodity to be assessed and to be subject to the provisions of the order is necessary to distinguish it from other agricultural commodities.

The definition of "commercial eggs" or "eggs" is intended to include all commercially produced eggs from domesticated chickens in the production area and sold for human consumption either as shell eggs or egg products. The production area of the order is the 48 contiguous States of the United States. The record evidence justifies the fact that there should be exempted from the order persons engaged in producing eggs that are to be used primarily for hatching purposes. Their volume is only a small proportion of the total volume of eggs sold for table use or egg product use. The evidence adduced shows that their marketing pattern is often incidental and apart from normal distribution channels of shell eggs and egg products.

The order defines "United States." The evidence shows that this term should be defined the same as in the act. The evidence confirms that commercial egg production is a part of the economy of each of the 48 contiguous States of the United States, and that it would be impractical and unjustifiable to exclude any of them.

"Handler" should be defined in the order to identify the persons who would be subject to certain recordkeeping requirements provided for by the Board, and who would have the responsibility for collecting the assessments. This definition should include any person who receives or otherwise acquires eggs from an egg producer, and processes, prepares for marketing, or markets such eggs; it also should include producers who perform the aforesaid functions with eggs (whether or not of his own production), and all other persons who perform functions which place eggs in the current of commerce or cause the eggs to be placed in the current of commerce. Any act by any person whereby he purchases eggs from a producer or markets eggs from a producer should be included in the actions which would make such person a handler. If a person does nothing except buy the eggs from a producer and resell them to a processing plant, he would perform a marketing function and should be termed a "handler." To be a handler, a person need not necessarily grade or process the eggs, or put them in cartons. Thus, the definition of handler should include the person who receives eggs from a producer for resale, whether or not he grades and cartons them; it should also include any producer who grades, cartons, or otherwise performs handling functions of eggs of his own production, except that if a producer sells "nest run" eggs only he should not be so defined. If a producer is a handler of only a portion of his production, then all eggs produced by him should be considered as handled.

The term "promotion" should be defined to include paid advertising, sales promotion, merchandising, consumer education, publicity, or any other activities which will enhance the image, acceptability, or desirability of eggs, egg products, spent fowl, or products of spent fowl, in either domestic or foreign markets. However, the order should prohibit the payment of funds to sponsor any advertising which includes brand names of eggs, spent fowl, or their products, except that cooperative advertising and promotion should be permitted whereby nonbranded eggs, or spent fowl, or their products combine with non-competing, compatible branded products to share the advertising message and cost.

"Research" should be defined to include any type of research intended to advance the image, desirability, marketability, production, or quality of eggs, egg products, spent fowl, or products of spent fowl. It should include market research, market testing, product research, packaging research, distribution research, consumer opinion polls and studies, attitude research, evaluation of promotion projects and research contracts, production research, and related research. The order should specify that research performed under its provisions should not preempt, duplicate, or supplant research performed by the United States Department of Agriculture, the Land Grant Colleges, or other public or private research entities.

"Marketing" should be defined, based on the record evidence, with the same definition as specified in the act. However, the word "sale" or "disposition" should be interpreted in a broad sense. The marketing definition should include all activities that occur from the time the eggs are produced until they are sold to the ultimate consumer.

"Eligible organizations" should be defined on the basis of record evidence to include organizations, associations, and cooperatives representing egg producers nationwide, regionally, statewide, or in portions of States. The final determination of whether an organization is an eligible organization should rest with the Secretary of Agriculture in accordance with the criteria set forth in the act.

"Plans and projects" should be defined on the basis of record evidence and as specified in the act to indicate the type of activities which may be recommended to the Secretary by the Board. These terms are not intended to be limiting, but rather to include any types of research, development, advertising, and promotion which may be authorized.

"Part and subpart" should be defined in such a manner that the word "part" refers to the order plus all the rules, regulations, and supplemental orders or amendments subsequently issued and pertaining to the order. The term "subpart" should be defined to refer to the order itself, and to any other portion or segment of the "part."

"Person" should be defined in the order the same as that term is set forth in the act. For example, if a husband and wife are engaged in the commercial production of eggs as a single legal entity, they should be considered a person for purposes of the operation of the order. Likewise, two or more individuals, who have formed a legal partnership and are operating as such, should be a person for purposes of the order. Furthermore, any group of two or more individuals, who are functioning as a single business entity, whether or not they have gone through a legal process of organization, should be considered a person under the order.

"Egg producer" or "producer" should be defined in the order to identify the persons who will be responsible for the payment of the assessment under the order. In addition, producers are the persons who will have the right to vote in any referendum on the order and will be eligible to serve or be represented on the Board and to nominate others to serve on the Board.

The egg production business is carried on, to some extent, through a large number and variety of production contracts between egg farmers, feed companies, and a variety of other persons. The terms of these contracts govern the rights and obligations of the various parties to each, such as providing for the ownership of the laying hens, the obligation to feed and medicate the hens, the responsibility to provide and maintain the production facility, the risk of loss in the event of death or destruction of the flock, and so on. Depending on the particular contract, these rights and obligations may fall on one party or another. Therefore, from one contract to another, the ownership of the hens may be lodged in any one or more of the various parties to the contracts. A typical example would be a three-party contract between a feed company, a person owning a production facility, and a person with financial backing and know-how capable of running an egg production business. The terms of such a contract could provide that ownership of the laying hens be held by the feed company. Alternatively, ownership of the hens might be held by one or both of the other parties. The point is that, without an inspection of the contract to determine its terms, it would not be possible in many cases to tell which party to the contract actually owns the laying hens. If all such contracts had to be reviewed by the Board or the Secretary to determine who owned the laying hens for the purpose of identifying each producer, it would generate an enormous amount of work that could place a severe burden on the operation of the program set up by the order.

The producer definition should therefore be written to allow sufficient identification of all persons who are owners of laying hens intended to be classified as producers under the order and at the same time to eliminate the need to review all of the various contracts under which the eggs are produced. Specifically, the definition should set up two categories of persons who would be producers under the order. The first category should be all egg farmers who do not produce eggs as a result of entering into contracts for the production of eggs, but, instead, acquire their own laying hens, started pullets, and/or chicks for the purpose of producing commercial eggs, and own laying hens engaged in the production of commercial eggs, and operate their own egg production business. Such egg farmers should be egg producers under the order by virtue of their ownership of the hens. The fact that such an egg farmer may sell his production of eggs under a sales contract with an egg handler will not affect his status as an egg producer under this definition.

Second, in all cases where an egg production business operation is based upon a contract for the production of eggs involving two or more persons, the party to the contract who acquires and supplies laying hens, started pullets, and/or chicks to the production operation will be presumed to be the owner of the hens engaged in the production of commercial eggs and, therefore, will be the producer under this definition. This presumption is based upon the fact that in the egg industry the party to an egg production contract who supplies the hens is most frequently the owner of them. In the event the contract involved is oral, and not evidenced by any written instrument, and the Secretary or the Board determines that the person who actually supplied the hens cannot be readily identified, the party to the contract who has actual possession and control of the hens at the production facility will be presumed to be the owner of the hens. However, in such a case, the parties to the contract may all sign a written notice and submit it to the Board or the Secretary identifying the actual owner of the hens, if other than the party presumed to be the owner. Finally, in any case where the party to the contract supplying the hens is presumed to be the owner but does not retain ownership in them, it may be established in writing, to the satisfaction of the Secretary or the Board that one of the other parties to the contract actually owns the hens. In each situation specified above, the party identified as owning the hens would be the producer.

In summary, the producer definition must take into account and minimize the potential for dispute in the determination of ownership of the laying hens, and also eliminate to the greatest extent possible the need for reviewing a substantial number of egg production contracts in order to determine the ownership of the laying hens. The definition, as written, is based upon actual ownership of hens where such ownership can be readily determined and presumes ownership in situations where the actual determination of ownership might require extensive study and review of the applicable contracts. However, whenever such a presumption is made, the parties to the contract are provided the means to rebut the presumption and to notify the Board or the Secretary as to who is actually the owner of the hens and, thus, correctly identify the producer in the event the presumption is wrong.

The evidence adduced at the hearing brought out the need to define a "representative of a producer," due to the fact many producers in the egg industry are joined together and organized into business entities, each entity a person under the order, who, by necessity, must frequently speak or act through a representative. Therefore, the order should provide that a representative of a producer is an individual who is the owner, officer, or an employee of an egg producing firm who has been authorized to act in behalf of the producer.

The act defines a number of terms, which must be clearly understood in the operation of the order; however, it is not necessary to repeat all such definitions in the order for appropriate application of such terminology. The terms defined in the act and not specifically defined in the order include: "hen" or "laying hen," "case," "hatching eggs," "egg products," "spent fowl," "products of spent fowl," "hatchery operator," "started pullet," and "started pullet dealer."

(b) Record evidence shows that an administrative agency, known as the "Egg Board", should be established to administer the order. The Board should be composed of egg producers, or representatives of producers, selected by the Secretary from nominations made by eligible organizations, associations, cooperatives, or producers.

Evidence shows that there are several organizations, associations, and cooperatives representing egg producers in each geographic area of the United States. The definition of what constitutes eligibility of such organizations, associations, and cooperatives, to nominate members to the Board should include, but not be limited to, the criteria listed in the order. The final determination of eligibility should rest with the Secretary of Agriculture.

The composition of the Board should reflect several important factors. Eggs are produced commercially in all 48 contiguous States, so producers in all of these States should be represented. In order to hold the size of the Board down to an efficient and effective size, the States should be grouped into areas, as hereinafter set forth. Proportionate representation should be given to the areas based upon the number of eggs produced. An overly large Board would entail unduly high administrative costs for Board meetings, and thereby reduce the amount of money available for carrying out plans and projects of research and promotion. On the other hand, an unduly small Board would make it difficult to get adequate representation from all segments of the egg industry. The act provides for the establishment of an Egg Board of not more than 18 members. Record evidence shows that an Egg Board of 18 members, with representation as hereinafter provided in § 1251.328, with a like number of alternates, should be a workable, equitable, representative Board providing adequate industry representation and assuring recommendations for administration reflective of the general consensus of the industry. It should also be adequate for the discharge of the other various Board duties and responsibilities.

Since a declared policy of the act is to strengthen the egg industry's position in the marketplace, it is appropriate that the members of the Board should be producers or representatives of producers. A democratic process for the selection of the Board is needed. Any egg organization, association, or cooperative should be permitted to seek to be qualified as an eligible spokesman for egg producers in the submission of nominations for Board membership and their alternates. However, if a substantial number of egg producers are not adequately represented by the eligible groups, they should also be permitted to submit nominations if they so desire. The Secretary should appoint the 18 members of the Board, and their alternates, from the nominations submitted to him.

The term of office for Board members should be 2 years, after the initial Board has been selected as set forth in the order. It is important that the terms be staggered to avoid the possibility of all Board members' term of office expiring at the same time. The initial Board should be appointed, proportionately, for terms of 2 and 3 years. This will provide continuity and, at the same time, it will allow producers to express changes in their thinking. The Secretary should give equal representation, as far as possible, to the geographic areas when determining expiring terms of the initial Board, and their alternates. One method for determining which members of the initial Board, and their alternates, should serve for 2-year terms, and which for 3-year terms, could be accomplished by a drawing of the names within each geographic area. The names of the first half of the Board members drawn, and their alternates, would serve for 3 years, and the second half for 2 years. Since the first and sixth area, as hereinafter provided in § 1251.328, each should have 3 Board members, and their alternates, a drawing could be made of these two areas. For the first area thus drawn, 2 members, and their alternates, would be appointed for 3 years and 1 member, and his alternate, would be appointed for 2 years; in the remaining area, that is, the one not drawn first, 1 member, and his alternate, would be appointed for 3 years, and 2 members, and their alternates, would be appointed for 2 years.

After the initial appointments, 2-year terms of office for all Board members, and their alternates, should be made for several reasons. A term of less than 2 years does not provide adequate time for a Board member to become oriented to his responsibilities and apply his talents to the maximum benefit. A 2-year term is sufficient time to allow a Board member to be of valuable service to the Board, and to enable him and the producers he represents to determine whether a renewal of his term of office would be appropriate. The record evidence indicates that a renewal of a Board member's, or his alternate's, term of office may be in the best interests of the industry in some situations and not in others. Limiting members to not more than 3 consecutive terms would insure that new members would be coming into the organization with new ideas responsive to the needs of the industry. Finally, the provision that each member and alternate member continue to serve until such time as his successor is selected and has qualified would assure continuity of representation.

Nominations to the Secretary for each Board member, and alternate, should follow a systematic procedure. Adequate time should be provided to all producers and their representatives so that nominations may be agreed upon and submitted to the Secretary. Since there is more than one eligible organization, association, or cooperative within each geographic area, in the interest of obtaining the greatest possible unanimity in the nomination process, such eligible organizations, within each area, should caucus for the purpose of jointly nominating two qualified persons for each member, and each alternate member, to be appointed. If the producer representatives in any area do not caucus, or if a caucus fails to result in joint agreement upon any of the nominees, each eligible producer organization should be authorized to submit to the Secretary two nominations for each appointment to be made. A time period of 30 days from the approval of this order by referendum should be sufficient time for all eligible organizations, associations, or cooperatives, certified by the Secretary pursuant to § 1251.356, to caucus, make their selections, and submit their nominations. In addition, this would allow sufficient time for the submissions of nominations as further provided in § 1251.328. The record evidence indicates that most eligible organizations of producers are expected to caucus in advance of the results of any expected referendum, in anticipation that the results of the referendum would be favorable.

After the initial Board has been established, nominations for subsequent Board members and alternates should be provided for in the order. It is important to those who are to be nominated to have a reasonable advance notice. Subsequent nominations (after initial appointments) should be submitted by a date that will give the Secretary ample time to select the members, to inform them of their selection, and to allow acceptance of such appointment before the beginning of the term of office for which they were appointed. Submissions of nominations to the Secretary for subsequent board members and alternates should be made not less than 60 days prior to the expiration of the terms of members and alternates previously appointed to the Board.

Section 8(b) of the act provides for producer representation on the basis of proportion of eggs produced in certain geographic areas, to the extent practicable. The proposal in the notice of hearing referred to geographic areas, as defined by the Secretary. However, testimony adduced at the hearing is to the effect that geographic areas should be specified in the order. A first consideration in the delineation of geographic areas should be the recognized areas of egg production. Historically, the producing segment of the egg industry has aligned itself within the geographic areas as hereinafter designated. Industry meetings are generally attended within the designated areas. Therefore, the areas hereinafter designated will tend to simplify the needs for caucusing among groups and will reduce travel to a minimum for meetings. The designated geographic areas should provide adequate representation on the Board on the basis of proportion of eggs produced in those areas, provide for a harmonious working arrangement among the producers, and in general should tend to effectuate section 8(b) of the act relating to geographic areas.

Based on record evidence, the order should specify under § 1251.328 six geographic areas composed of the various States as follows: Area 1 (North Atlantic States) Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey, Maryland and the District of Columbia; Area 2 (South Atlantic) Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida; Area 3 (East North Central) Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin; Area 4 (West North Central) Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, and Kansas; Area 5 (South Central) Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, and Texas; Area 6 (Western) Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Nevada, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, and California.

The order should provide for the following number of members of the Board and an equal number of alternate members: North Atlantic—3, South Atlantic—4, East North Central—2, West North Central—2, South Central—4, and Western—3, for a total of 18. This distribution of Board members is based on the percentage of the total United States egg production in each area times the total membership of the Board which is 18, rounded to the nearest whole number, except no area will be without representation. The available data received in evidence establishes that the percent of total U.S. egg production in each area is: North Atlantic—16 percent, South Atlantic—21 percent, East North Central—13 percent, West North Central—12 percent, South Central—20 percent, and Western—18 percent of U.S. egg production.

In the past, egg production has shifted in relative importance from State to State, and between areas. At times this shift in location importance has changed rapidly, and at other times it has changed very slowly. Provision should be made for mandatory review at any time, but not less often than once every 5 years, of the production by geographic areas and the pattern of area functioning of organizations, associations, and cooperatives, to determine (1) whether the areas should be redefined, and (2) whether the number of Board members, and their alternates, needs changing per geographic area of egg production so that representation on the Board, in so far as is practicable, is fair and equal.

Persons selected by the Secretary as Board members, and as alternates, should qualify by filing a written acceptance promptly after being notified of their selection so that the Board and the Secretary will know they have accepted their appointments, and of their intention to serve in the position to which they have been appointed.

Provision should be set forth in the order for the filling of any vacanies on the Board. In the event a vacancy occurs, the same procedure should be followed for the person or persons to be nominated, qualified, and appointed as specified for the normal reappointment or appointment of new members. Every effort should be made to fill a vacancy as soon as possible so that all areas will be fully represented. The order should provide sufficient time for eligible organizations, associations, or cooperatives to caucus, submit nominations and for selection and appointment by the Secretary. A minimum of 60 days is considered reasonable for the nomination of persons to fill a vacancy. However, should a vacancy occur within 6 months of the expiration date of a member's term, the order should provide that the Secretary not be required to fill the vacancy for such a short period of time.

The order should contain a provision authorizing appointment of an alternate member to the Board for each Board member. There will be times when a person serving as a member of the Board will find it necessary to be absent from some of the Board meetings for legitimate reasons. The purpose of having an alternate member is to assure that the business affairs of the Board shall not be impaired during such situations. The alternate member should serve in the absence of the Board member. The alternate Board member should be assigned the same responsibilities as a Board member and should be authorized to act when serving in the place and stead of a Board member. An alternate member should meet the same criteria for membership as a Board member and accept the responsibilities to perform such duties as assigned. A person serving as an alternate member should be eligible for consideration to be nominated as a Board member even after having served as an alternate, but this provision should not preclude the consideration of any other eligible person for nomination as a member of the Board. The same procedure should be followed in nominating alternatives as is provided for the nomination of members to the Board. In the event of a vacancy of a Board member, for any reason, his alternate should act for him until his successor is appointed and qualified.

The procedure for conducting meetings of the Board should conform with the by-laws and rules and regulations for such to be adopted by the Board and approved by the Secretary. However, such matters as the method of voting and what constitutes a quorum should be set forth in the order. The record evidence indicates that when the Board assembles, the presence of a majority of the members should be necessary to constitute a quorum. A quorum could be composed of both members and the alternates filling in for absent members. On any vote taken by the Board, a majority of those present and voting should concur before any action can be taken. The order should provide that all votes cast, at any assembled meeting, should be cast in person. Proxy voting at an assembled meeting should not be permitted.

The Board should have authority to follow procedures which will assure that it operates properly and efficiently. In order to facilitate the transaction of routine, noncontroversial business where it might be expensive and unreasonable to call an assembled meeting, or in instances when rapid action may be necessary, the Board should be authorized to conduct meetings by telephone, telegraph, or other means of communication. Such possibilities as conference telephone calls, or simultaneous meetings of groups of its members in two or more places with direct communications connections should be considered and utilized if advantageous to the operations of the order. However, the order should provide that any such action by telephone be confirmed promptly in writing.

It is appropriate that the members and alternates of the Board be reimbursed for necessary expenses incurred when performing authorized Board business, since it would be unfair for them to bear personally such expense incurred in the interests of all egg producers. If an actual expense reimbursement procedure is preferred, the Board should adopt a standard expense account form and expense reimbursements should be made only when properly requested on such form and accompanied by receipts for all travel, room accommodations, and other reasonable expenses. Board members should serve without compensation.

The Board should be given those specified powers which are set forth in section 8(a) of the act. Such powers are necessary to enable an administrative agency of this character to function properly under the order. The Board should have the power and the responsibility to administer the order and to carry out the authorized plans and projects. The Secretary has responsibility to see that the Board does not exceed its authority.

The Board should have the power to develop and recommend rules and regulations, to be issued by the Secretary and subject to his approval, which will be the mechanics or procedures by which the Board will carry out its responsibilities under the order. Such rules or regulations should specify the assessment to be paid, when and how it is to be paid, and other requirements of the order.

It is possible that violations of the rules or regulations or of the order itself may occur. The Board should promptly investigate violations and reports of violations. A policy should be established and a procedure developed for handling all violations fairly and without prejudice. The Board should make an effort to make collections of assessments and settle alleged violations. However, in those cases when the Board cannot effect proper settlement, then the Board should report such violations to the Secretary for appropriate action.

There may be some problems arise, or conditions may change within the industry that would necessitate amendments to the order. The Board would be a logical entity to determine such need, and when such determination is made by them, they should have the power to recommend to the Secretary amendments to the order.

The Board's duties as set forth in the order are necessary for the discharge of its responsibilities. These duties are generally similar to those specified for administrative agencies under other programs of this nature, the necessity of which is justified by record evidence.

They include such duties as to meet and organize and to select from among its members a president or chairman and such other officers as may be necessary to handle the affairs of the Board; to select committees and subcommittees of Board members and to adopt such rules for its conduct as it may deem advisable. The Board should be authorized to establish advisory committees of individuals, without any voting rights under this order, other than Board members. The advisory committees should be advisory only and should not have final authority over any part of the plans or projects nor authority to expend funds. The Board would be composed only of producers or representatives of producers, and, therefore, should be authorized to establish advisory committees of persons other than Board members, since there may be other producers (not Board members), handlers, processors, distributors, State, regional and national association executive personnel, and others connected with the egg industry, who could be of great value to the Board by acting in an advisory capacity in formulating plans or projects and making decisions. It is proper that the members of each advisory committee should be reimbursed for necessary expenses incurred by them in carrying out their assignments under the order.

The Board should have the duty of appointing or employing such persons as it may deem necessary and to define the duties and determine the compensation of each. It it important that the chain of management responsibility be clearly defined.

Each fiscal period, and as may be necessary thereafter, the Board should prepare and submit to the Secretary, for approval, a budget of anticipated expenses for the coming year, listing the estimated costs for administration and for the various plans and projects, and recommending an appropriate rate of assessment for the ensuing fiscal year. The budget should be prepared in the form of a report, showing estimates of income and expenditures with accompanying analysis and explanation thereof.

The plans and projects that should be developed by the Board are expected to be sizeable and may require engaging other persons and organizations to carry them to completion. The Board should have the duty to enter into contracts with persons, State agencies, State, regional, and national associations, cooperatives, private agencies, and others involved in advertising, promotion, and research to effectuate the order. Each recommended contract should be based on requirements that the contractor develop and submit to the Board a plan or project together with a budget or budgets which should show estimated costs to be incurred for such projects, and that any such plan or project shall become effective only after approval by the Secretary. Each contractor should be required to maintain certain records, to keep the Board informed of progress made, to account for all funds received and expended, and to furnish any records or reports as may be required by the Secretary.

(c) The act provides that funds for operation of this order shall be acquired from assessments levied on producers of eggs, collected from the producers by handlers, and that such handlers shall pay the assessments to the Board. Such a procedure is provided for in the order. The rate of assessment should be established, within the limits provided in the act, each fiscal period by the Secretary, upon recommendation of the Board and consideration of other available relevant information. Such rate of assessment may not exceed the statutory maximum of 5 cents per 30-dozen case of eggs marketed for human consumption. Evidence shows that a maximum assessment of 5 cents per 30-dozen case of eggs marketed for human consumption should provide sufficient funds to carry out the policy of the act and not create an undue burden on producers.

Handlers responsible for remitting the assessments to the Board, as provided in the order, may collect them from producers or deduct them from proceeds paid producers for eggs handled. The record evidence indicates that only the first handler of eggs should be required to collect and remit assessments to the Board. For purposes of administration, the "collecting handlers" should be distinguished from other handlers of eggs who are not responsible for collecting and remitting assessments. Each handler responsible for collecting and remitting assessments to the Board has been appropriately designated a "collecting handler" in the order.

Record evidence shows that marketing practices differ considerably from one producer to another and in the various egg producing areas of the United States. Differences may occur depending on whether eggs are graded for quality, sized, cartoned, and sold direct to retail outlets by the producer, or whether all of such marketing functions are performed by the person or firm acquiring the eggs from the producer. In other instances, buyers purchase "nest run" eggs from producers and sell them as such to another person or firm with the latter performing the sizing, grading, and packaging functions. Some persons help in the marketing of eggs by serving as brokers or sales representatives of producers, but do not actually acquire the eggs. Others assist producers in marketing eggs by providing information on market outlets and prices. In order to most effectively cope with these differences, the order should define the broad categories into which all collecting handlers may be classified and provide for the collection of assessments. The record shows that in most cases the person who carries out the first marketing function should be designated as the collecting handler and required to collect and remit assessments. Of course, as previously noted in the definition of "handler," the producer who performs the first marketing function (such as grading, sizing, and cartoning) should become the first handler and consequently the collecting handler and, as such, he should be responsible for payment of the assessment on all of the eggs he produces.

Evidence presented on the methods of handling eggs shows that handlers responsible for collecting the assessment should be either the first person who performs a function of a handler or a producer who performs a function of a handler. However, evidence also indicates that if the Board finds that one or more other categories of persons needs to be designated, it shall do so. The order provides such provisions. It is noted that these provisions of the order are somewhat different than in the proposed order contained in the notice of hearing. But they are inclusive of all categories of collecting handlers as indicated by the record evidence.

In the United States eggs are produced by many persons, with the producing enterprises ranging in size from a few laying hens, used mainly to produce eggs for home consumption, up to large commercial operations of more than 1 million laying hens. During the hearing on this national program of research and promotion, the evidence was presented which shows that the cost of administration would be too great to include all small producers, and that all producers owning 3,000 or fewer laying hens should be exempt from the provisions of the order. However, producers owning more than 3,000 laying hens should be subject to the provisions of the order. In addition, the evidence shows that the cost of collecting assessments on eggs sold for human consumption from persons producing eggs primarily for hatching purposes, likewise, would be excessive relative to the funds collected. It is therefore concluded that producers owning 3,000 or fewer laying hens and producers owning flocks producing eggs primarily for hatching purposes should be exempt from the assessment provisions of the order. The order so provides.

A number of egg research and promotion programs already are operating on a voluntary basis in some States. These programs, for the most part, are financed by the collection of assessments on eggs handled. Authority should be provided in the order that the Board may use available facilities of existing agencies or organizations to facilitate the collection of assessments on behalf of the Board in such States, if the Board finds the use of such State organizations or agencies would be efficient and desirable. Reasonable compensation for such services should be permitted.

The collecting handlers should be required to pay assessments to the Board promptly when they become due. A date 15 days after the end of the month in which eggs are handled would be reasonable as a due date. When eggs are handled as defined in the order, and any rules or regulations issued thereunder, the handler should be required to pay the assessment on them regardless of whether he has made settlement with the producer or has, in fact, collected the assessment from the producer. In all cases in which the collecting handler has collected such assessment from the producer or deducted such assessment from the proceeds paid the producer, he should furnish the producer a receipt for each collection or deduction.

As further consideration of the budget, good business practices require consideration for contingencies. The Board should be authorized to set aside funds in an operating reserve and to budget for such a reserve. It would be impractical to plan and carry out many programs or projects on a short-term basis. The record shows that in practice, research and promotion programs and projects in a given year probably will be financed in part by money collected the previous year. The record evidence indicates that a reserve fund for operating purposes would be desirable. The amount of the reserve fund should be determined by the Board, with the approval of the Secretary. A maximum in the reserve fund of an amount sufficient to operate for 1 year seems desirable based on evidence presented and information adduced at the hearing.

(d) The Board should have the authority to determine the type of research, development, advertising, and promotion activities to be undertaken, and it should be charged with the responsibility for initiating and recommending to the Secretary the establishment of such projects as are authorized by the act.

The projects and programs should be designed to assist, improve, or promote the marketing, distribution, utilization, and production of eggs, spent fowl, and their products. The authority should be broad and flexible to enable the Board to use the most efficient and effective methods of carrying out the purposes of the act.

Record evidence indicates that the order is not intended to reduce the efforts of groups, organizations, or agencies within the egg industry who are presently engaged in research and promotion activities, nor to compete with such groups. All organizations which have been so engaged should be encouraged to continue to promote and advertise as well as to engage in research and development projects for eggs and spent fowl and their products.

The Board should have the authority to recommend programs designed to expand sales in foreign markets for eggs and spent fowl and their products. The evidence indicates that the Board would be in an advantageous position to cooperate with private agencies or with the Government in developing such export markets.

The provision that no advertising or promotion should make any reference to private brand names of eggs, egg products, spent fowl, and products of spent fowl or use unfair or deceptive acts or practices with respect to quality, value, or use any competing products is necessary to preclude discrimination. An organization, such as the Board, must be fair and helpful to all segments and elements of the egg industry. However, the prohibition against private brand names should not prevent the Board from cooperating with promotion efforts of other industries in which brand names are used that are in no way competitive with brand names of eggs, spent fowl, or their products.

The prohibition on the use of false or unwarranted claims in behalf of eggs or spent fowl or their products or false or unwaranted statements with respect to the attributes or use of competing products is also necessary for proper administration of the order. This provision is a safeguard against the possibility of overzealous claims in behalf of eggs and spent fowl and their products and to forestall any derogatory statements about competing products.

An adequate steady supply of eggs for consumers is clearly in the public interest. Maintenance of markets and the development of new markets, both here and abroad, are essential if the egg industry is to remain viable enough to fill the needs of the consumers. The order therefore provides the necessary authorizations for research and promotion designed to accomplish this objective. It would enable the Board to undertake such research as: consumer preference studies, research affecting egg sales, basic market research, new product development, production improvement, evaluation of the effectiveness of research or promotion, and other research of marketing and production problems aimed at aiding the entire egg industry.

The order would permit research into consumer demand which is needed to insure that the products of the egg industry are disseminated to all appropriate markets. Studies pertaining to egg merchandising, advertising, and promotion should be authorized to improve marketing practices that will assure all market outlets have a constant, convenient, and reliable supply of quality products. Research projects which would improve transportation and handling procedures should be authorized. Furthermore, research into feed conversion, packaging, handling, and marketing should be included in the scope of work that could be performed by the Board.

The Board may either perform research or promotion work within its own organization, or be authorized to contract for such research, development, advertising, and promotion projects and programs with public and private research and development agencies which are properly staffed and equipped to do the type of work needed.

Prior to such contracting, the approval of the Secretary should be required to insure that the projects and programs contemplated are consistent with the provisions of the order.

While the projects and programs should be submitted to the Secretary for approval, it is recognized that considerable study and planning are involved in the development of such activities. Therefore, expenses which will be incurred in connection with such development should be authorized as part of the annual plan or budget prior to the time such projects are submitted.

It is concluded, therefore, that the provisions of the order as modified from the original proposal on the basis of record evidence, and as hereinafter set forth, are comprehensive and flexible enough to enable the Board to develop or carry out whatever research, development, advertising, promotion, and public information activities are needed for eggs and spent fowl and their products.

(e) Refunds of assessments to producers who request them should be provided for in the order. The act provides that any egg producer against whose commercial eggs any assessment is made and collected from him—and who is not in favor of the programs—shall have the right to demand and receive from the Board a refund of such assessment. The order includes such provision. The refund request should be made to the Board personally by the producer in accordance with regulations and on a form prescribed by the Board and approved by the Secretary. The Board should issue regulations allowing the producer a reasonable length of time from the date of payment to submit a request, which should include evidence that he paid the assessment for which such refund is claimed. However, in no event should such period be more than 90 days after the end of the month in which the assessment is due and collectable. Such refund should be made by the Board within 60 days from the date the request is received. The refund provision is a keystone in the overall concept of the order. It means no producer is forced to financially support an order that he does not favor. The refund forms should be readily available to producers from the Board. Also, each producer who asks for a refund must individually request it. This does not mean that he must physically go to the office of the Board, but that the producer must be the one to fill out the form requesting such refund and must provide the necessary information to show that he paid the assessment. Handlers, cooperatives, marketing associations, brokers, or others should not be able to request refunds on behalf of producers; each producer must file his own request. Handlers should not be entitled to refund even though they paid to the Board funds in the amount of a producer's assessment without collecting such funds from the producer. But, a handler who is also a producer and has paid the assessment as a producer is entitled to request and receive a refund. A producer is not eligible for a refund unless he actually paid the assessment, or the assessment was deducted from the proceeds of the sale of his eggs which were handled.

The Board should have the responsibility to recommend, for the Secretary's approval, rules or regulations concerning the method of obtaining refunds together with the form to be used for such purposes

(f) Reports and recordkeeping are a necessity to most business operations. The procedure for establishing, reporting, and recordkeeping requirements which was set forth with the notice of hearing should be contained in the order. The act provides that hatchery operators, persons engaged in the sale of egg-type baby chicks and started pullet dealers, persons engaged in the production of commercial eggs, persons who receive or otherwise acquire eggs from such persons and process, prepare for market, or market such eggs, including eggs of their own production, and persons engaged in the purchase, sale, or processing of spent fowl, maintain and make available for inspection such books and records as may be required by any order issued pursuant to the act.

Collecting handlers and all other persons subject to section 7(c) of the act should be required to report to the Board periodically such information as is required, which may include: number of cases of eggs handled; number of cases of eggs on which an assessment was collected; name and address of each producer from whom any assessment is collected; and date collection of the assessment was made on each case of eggs handled. The specific guidelines for accomplishing the necessary reporting and recordkeeping objectives should be established through the rulemaking procedure. The Board should recommend, and the Secretary approve, rules and regulations which would require the least possible addition to records already being kept by the persons referred to § 1251.351 and § 1251.352 of the order.

When a collecting handler reports to the Board the collection of assessments required by the order, he should have in his custody and make available for inspection by the Board, and the Secretary, such accounts or records necessary to establish the exact amount of funds collected. This does not mean that every person subject to the order and to section 7(c) of the act will be checked on all transactions. It is anticipated that only that amount of inspection will be performed as would be in keeping with prudent business practices to insure compliance with the provisions of the order. Necessary records to insure that all persons carry out the provisions of the order should be retained for at least 2 years beyond the fiscal year of their applicability in order that any audits or investigations authorized by the Board and the Secretary can be completed.

The confidential treatment of business records of all persons covered in the order is clearly stated in the order and the act. All information that, in any way, might reveal trade secrets should be kept confidential by employees of the Board and the Secretary. Certain employees of the Board should have access to the records and accounts of producers and handlers in order to insure full compliance with the assessment provision of the order.

The record indicates that certain information obtained from reports may be beneficial to the industry in general. Therefore, the provisions of the order do not prohibit the issuance of general statements based upon the reports of the number of persons subject to the order, or statistical data collected therefrom, which do not identify the information furnished by any person; the publication, as approved by the Secretary, of general statements relating to refunds made by the Board during any specific period of time; or the publication, as approved by the Secretary, of the name of any person violating the order, together with a statement of the particular provisions of the order violated by such person.

(g) Section 1251.350 prohibits the use of assessment funds to influence Government policy or action. The only exception permitted would be in recommending amendments to the order.

Various sections of the order have referred to the right of the Secretary to approve or disapprove every action under this part. The proposed order issued with the notice of hearing omitted a specific section specifying such right. Therefore, based on the record evidence, the order should include a section entitled "Right of the Secretary."

The section concerning the right of the Secretary should specify that all fiscal matters, programs or projects, rules or regulations, decisions, determinations, or other proposed actions of the Board shall be submitted to the Secretary for his approval. These provisions are necessary and appropriate, as the Secretary is charged by law with the responsibility for the administration of the order in accordance with the policy and provisions of the act.

The provisions of sections 1251.357 through 1251.363, as hereinafter set forth, are generally included in programs of this type. Each section sets forth certain rights, obligations, privileges or procedures which are necessary and appropriate for the effective operation of the order. These provisions are incidental to, not inconsistent with, the terms and conditions of the act, are necessary to effectuate the other provisions of the order, and are supported by the record evidence. The substance of such provisions, therefore, should be included in the order.

RULINGS ON BRIEFS, PROPOSED FINDINGS, AND CONCLUSIONS

At the conclusion of the hearing, the Administrative Law Judge fixed July 18, 1975, as the final date for interested parties to file briefs, proposed findings, and conclusions based on the evidence collected at the hearing.

Nine briefs were filed on behalf of the following interested parties: Glenn W. Kreuscher, Director, Nebraska Department of Agriculture, Lincoln, Nebraska; Henry Kreher, President, New York State Poultry Industry Coordinated Effort, Inc., Ithaca, New York; David Shetzich, President, The Maryland Egg Council, Simpsonville, Maryland; Olan D. Forker, Professor of Marketing, New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, Cornell University, Ithaca, New York; James L. Smith, Egg Producer, Owl Haven, Mundelein, Illinois; Robert J. Williams, Director, Illinois Department of Agriculture, Springfield, Illinois; Clinton L. Warner, President, Consumers League of Ohio, Cleveland, Ohio; Lee Campbell, Chairman, Egg Industry Task Force, Poultry and Egg Institute of America, Washington, D.C.; and Everett A. Eikenberry, Eaton, Ohio.

These briefs and any proposed findings and conclusions were considered in conjunction with the evidence in the record in making the findings and conclusions as set forth herein. Two of the briefs expressed strong support for the order.

One of the briefs, while expressing whole-hearted support for the order, requested that there be appointed to the Board a New York State commercial egg producer. Record evidence shows that under the proposed geographic distribution of members of the Board, the State of New York is a State in the North Atlantic area. New York State is a major production and consumption area for commercial eggs. The North Atlantic area would have three members of the Board, as provided for in the order. The evidence shows that the order makes adequate provision for nominations to be submitted by any eligible organization, association, or cooperative, or if the Secretary determines that a substantial number of egg producers are not members of, or their interests are not represented by, any such eligible organization, association, or cooperative, then nominations may be made by such egg producers in the manner authorized by the Secretary. Therefore, it is concluded that the wording of the order, as hereinafter set forth, relative to establishment and membership of the Board is fair and reasonable; and that the request to further refine the geographic distribution of the membership of the Board is not practical because, if granted for New York State, the same provision should be made for each of the 48 contiguous States in the United States, and this would result in a Board much larger than is authorized under the act.

One of the briefs requested that the language in the order be modified to direct the Board to conduct evaluative research. The brief further suggested that the order provide the Board a great deal of flexibility in deciding which programs and plans need evaluating, in selecting the techniques for evaluation, and in determining the amount of money to allocate to evaluative research. Evidence adduced at the hearing indicates that the Board should have the authority to determine the types of research activities to be undertaken, subject to approval by the Secretary. The authority should be broad and flexible to enable the Board to use the most efficient and effective methods of carrying out the policy of the act. It is expected that the Board will be prudent in the use of funds obtained by assessment against egg producers. The Secretary is also charged with the responsibility of determining that the projects and programs of the Board are such as would tend to accomplish the policy of the act. It is concluded that the evaluative research needed is a normal part of good administrative procedure, that the wording in the order does not restrict such research, and that the amount and kind of such research to be carried out can be best determined by the Board and the Secretary. The recommended modification presented in the brief is hereby denied.

Two briefs were filed in opposition to the order. One was in general opposition and the other stated that small producers could not afford the assessment and recommended that all commercial egg producers with 100,000 laying hens, or fewer, should be exempt from the terms and conditions of the order. Record evidence shows substantial support for the order and for the exemption of producers having 3,000 or fewer laying hens from the assessment provisions based upon the economics of the cost of collection versus the amount of money collected. In addition, the record shows that the assessment of 5 cents per 30-dozen cases of eggs sold would amount to considerably less than one-half of 1 percent of the usual selling price and that such assessment would not constitute an undue burden on producers with more than 3,000 laying hens. Furthermore, the act does not authorize exemption of producers with more than 3,000 laying hens. Therefore, these motions are denied.

A brief filed in support of the program recommended that the Board be required to enter into arrangements with existing organizations for research and promotion on a State and local basis. The evidence presented at the hearing shows that there is no justification or need to provide in the order that the Board should usurp any of the responsibilities of State, regional, or national organizations by preempting existing egg research and promotion programs. Furthermore, the order provides that the Board may authorize other organizations or agencies to collect assessments as its agent, and that it is the duty of the Board to "enter into contracts or agreements with persons, including, but not limited to, State, regional, or national agencies, or State, regional, or national egg organizations which administer research, education, or promotion programs . . . and egg producer organizations . . ." and that the Board should pay the cost thereof with funds collected pursuant to the order. It is concluded that the order adequately provides for the Board to exercise its discretion concerning matters referred to in the recommendation in the brief and that no modification of the order is necessary.

A brief filed in opposition stated that there is no demonstrated need for promoting eggs, and that the order would tend to increase prices of eggs through withholding of supply. However, the record contains a wealth of evidence showing conclusively that there is an urgent need to strengthen the egg industry's position in the marketplace, and maintain and expand domestic and foreign markets and uses for eggs, spent fowl, and their products. Further, the order has no provisions for regulating the supply of these commodities.

Another brief, while expressing strong support for the order, recommended: (1) that the order define a representative of an egg producer, and (2) deletion of subparagraphs (3) and (4) in § 1251.330(a), deletion of the first complete sentence in subsection (b) of the same section, and deletion of the words "paragraph (a)(1)" in the second sentence of subsection (b) of the same section all in the proposal contained in the notice of hearing.

The hearing evidence supports the need to define a representative of a producer as previously discussed herein. The order contains such definition.

Although the brief did not provide reasons for the second recommendation, evidence adduced at the hearing shows that the items marked (3) and (4) of § 1251.330(a) and all of subsection (b) of such section as written in the notice of hearing are either redundant, or are adequately provided for by the remaining provisions in § 1251.330 as proposed in the notice of hearing. The order, as written, accepts this recommendation and therefore complies with the intent of this brief.

Every point in each of the briefs was carefully considered along with the record evidence in making the findings and reaching the conclusions herein set forth. Several recommendations and suggestions made during the hearing were adopted and the provisions of the order have been revised from the proposed order which accompanied the notice of hearing. To the extent that the suggested findings and conclusions filed by interested parties are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions as set forth herein, the request to make such findings or reach such conclusions are denied for the reasons previously cited in this decision.

GENERAL FINDINGS

Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at the hearing and the record thereof, it is found that:

(1) The Egg Research and Promotion Order and all of the terms and conditions thereof, as hereinafter set forth, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act; and

(2) All handling of eggs produced in the 48 contiguous States of the United States, as defined in the said order, is in the current of interstate commerce, or directly burdens, obstructs, or affects interstate commerce in eggs, spent fowl, and their products; and

(3) The following terms and conditions of the order are recommended as the detailed means of carrying out the declared policy of the act with respect to the establishment of an orderly procedure for the financing through adequate assessments on eggs produced in the 48 contiguous States of the United States for human consumption, and the carrying out of a program of research, development, advertising, consumer information, and promotion:

RECOMMENDED EGG RESEARCH AND PROMOTION ORDER

The following national egg research and promotion order is recommended as the detailed and appropriate means by which the foregoing conclusions may be carried out.

RESEARCH, EDUCATION, AND PROMOTION

§ 1251.341 Research, education, and promotion.

The Board shall develop and submit to the Secretary for approval any programs or projects authorized in this section. Such programs or projects shall provide for:

Any such demand shall be made personally by such producer in accordance with regulations and on a form and within a time period prescribed by the Board and approved by the Secretary. However, in no event should such period be more than 90 days after the end of the month in which the assessments are due and collectible. Any such refund shall be made within 60 days after demand is received therefor.

§ 1251.350 Influencing governmental action.

No funds collected by the Board under this subpart shall in any manner be used for the purpose of influencing governmental policy or action except to recommend to the Secretary amendment to this subpart.

REPORTS, BOOKS, AND RECORDS

§ 1251.351 Reports.

Each handler subject to this subpart and other persons subject to section 7(c) of the act may be required to report to the Board periodically such information as is required by regulations and will effectuate the purposes of the act, which information may include but not be limited to the following:

§ 1251.352 Books and records.

Each handler subject to this subpart and persons subject to section 7(c) of the act shall maintain and make available for inspection by the Board or the Secretary such books and records as are necessary to carry out the provisions of the subpart and the regulations issued hereunder, including such records as are necessary to verify any reports required. Such records shall be retained for at least 2 years beyond the marketing year of their applicability.

§ 1251.353 Confidential treatment.

(a) All information obtained from such books, records, or reports shall be kept confidential by all officers and employees of the Department of Agriculture and the Board, and only such information so furnished or acquired as the Secretary deems relevant shall be disclosed by them, and then only in a suit or administrative hearing brought at the direction, or upon the request of the Secretary, or to which the Secretary or any officer of the United States is a party, and involving this subpart. Nothing in this subsection shall be deemed to prohibit (1) the issuance of general statements based upon the reports of the number of persons subject to this subpart or statistical data collected therefrom, which statements do not identify the information furnished by any person, (2) the publication, by direction of the Secretary, of general statements relating to refunds made by the Egg Board during any specific period of time, or (3) the publication, by direction of the Secretary, of the name of any person violating this subpart together with a statement of the particular provisions of this subpart violated by such person.

CERTIFICATION OF ORGANIZATIONS

§ 1251.356 Certification of organizations.

Any organization may request the Secretary for certification of eligibility to participate in nominating members and alternate members on the Board to represent the geographic area in which the organization represents egg producers. Such eligibility shall be based in addition to other available information upon a factual report submitted by the organization which shall contain information deemed relevant and specified by the Secretary for the making of such determination, including, but not limited to, the following:

(a) Geographic territory covered by the organization's active membership;

(b) Nature and size of the organization's active membership, proportion of total of such active membership accounted for by producers of commercial eggs, a chart showing the egg production by State in which the organization has members, and the volume of commercial eggs produced by the organization's active membership in such State(s);

(d) Evidence of stability and permanency of the organization;

(e) Sources from which the organization's operating funds are derived;

(f) Functions of the organization; and

(g) The organization's ability and willingness to further the aims and objectives of the act.

The primary consideration in determining the eligibility of an organization shall be whether its egg producer membership consists of a substantial number of egg producers who produce a substantial volume of the applicable geographic area's commercial eggs to reasonably warrant its participation in the nomination of members for the Board or to request the issuance of an order. The Secretary shall certify any organization which he finds to be eligible under this section and his determination as to eligibility shall be final.

MISCELLANEOUS

§ 1251.357 Suspension and termination.

(a) The Secretary shall, whenever he finds that this subpart or any provision thereof obstructs or does not tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act, terminate or suspend the operation of this subpart or such provision.

(b) The Secretary may conduct a referendum at any time, and shall hold a referendum on request of 10 percent or more of the number of egg producers voting in the referendum approving this subpart, to determine whether egg producers favor the termination or suspension of this subpart, and the Secretary shall suspend or terminate such subpart at the end of 6 months after he determines that suspension or termination of the order is approved or favored by a majority of the egg producers voting in such referendum who, during a representative period determined by the Secretary, have been engaged in the production of commercial eggs, and who produced more than 50 percent of the volume of eggs produced by the egg producers voting in the referendum.

§ 1251.358 Proceedings after termination.

(a) Upon the termination of this subpart the Board shall recommend not more than six of its members to the Secretary to serve as trustees for the purpose of liquidating the affairs of the Board. Such persons, upon designation by the Secretary, shall become trustees of all the funds and property then in the possession or under control of the Board, including claims for any funds unpaid or property not delivered or any other claim existing at the time of such termination.

(b) The said trustees shall: (1) continue in such capacity until discharged by the Secretary, (2) carry out the obligations of the Board under any contracts or agreements entered into by it pursuant to § 1251.336, (3) from time to time account for all receipts and disbursements and deliver all property on hand, together with all books and records of the Board and of the trustees, to such person as the Secretary may direct, and (4) upon the request of the Secretary, execute such assignments or other instruments necessary or appropriate to vest in such person full title and right to all of the funds, property, and claims vested in the Board or the trustees pursuant to this section.

(c) Any person to whom funds, property, or claims have been transferred or delivered pursuant to this section shall be subject to the same obligation imposed upon the Board and upon the trustees.

(d) Any residual funds not required to defray the necessary expenses of liquidation shall be turned over to the Secretary to be disposed of, to the extent practicable, in the interest of continuing one or more of the research or promotion programs hitherto authorized.

§ 1251.359 Effect of termination or amendment.

Unless otherwise expressly provided by the Secretary, the termination of this subpart or of any regulation issued pursuant hereto, or the issuance of any amendment to either thereof, shall not:

(a) Affect or waive any right, duty, obligation, or liability which shall have risen or which may hereafter arise in connection with any provision of this subpart or any regulation issued thereunder;

(b) Release or extinguish any violation of this subpart or any regulation issued hereunder; or

(c) Affect or impair any rights or remedies of the United States, or of the Secretary, or of any person, with respect to any such violation.

§ 1251.360 Personal liability.

No member or alternate member of the Board shall be held personally responsible either individually or jointly with others, in any way whatsoever, to any person for errors in judgment, mistakes, or other acts, either of commission or omission, as such member or alternate, except for acts of dishonesty, or willful misconduct.

§ 1251.361 Right of the Secretary.

The Board (including successors and alternates) and any agent or employee appointed or employed by the Board, shall be subject on just cause to removal or suspension at any time by the Secretary. Each and every regulation, decision, determination, or other act of said Board shall be subject to the continuing right of the Secretary to disapproval of the same at any time. Upon such disapproval, the disapproved action of the said Board shall be deemed null and void, except as to acts done in reliance thereon in compliance therewith prior to such disapproval by the Secretary.

Amendments to this order may be proposed, from time to time, by the Board, or by an organization certified pursuant to section 16 of the act, or by any interested person affected by the provisions of the act, including the Secretary.

§ 1251.363 Separability.

If any provision of this subpart is declared invalid or the applicability thereof to any person or circumstances is held invalid, the validity of the remainder of this subpart of the applicability thereof to other persons or circumstances shall not be affected thereby.

1. Background. Part 1953 of Title 29, Code of Federal Regulations, prescribes procedures under Section 18 of the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 (29 U.S.C. 667) for review of changes and progress in the development and implementation of State plans which have been approved in accordance with section 18(c) of the Act and Part 1902 of this chapter. On May 1, 1973, a notice was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (38 FR 10717) concerning the approval of the California Plan and of the adoption of Subpart K of Part 1952 containing the decision. Section 1952.173 of Subpart K sets forth the developmental schedule under which the plan will meet the criteria of section 18(c) of the Act and Part 1902 within three years following commencement of operations under the plan. On June 17, 1975 the State of California submitted a supplement to the plan involving the completion of a developmental step (see Subpart B of CFR Part 1953).

The supplements submitted by California concern the promulgation of regulations related to enforcement activities under the California plan. These regulations concern advance notice of inspections, citation procedures, proposed penalty procedures and employee rights concerning monitoring and measuring of exposure to hazards. In addition, the regulations concern the procedures and requirements for the issuance of permits for excavations, trenches, construction and demolition activities and requirements for reporting work-connected injuries.

2. Location of the plan and its supplements for inspection and copying. A copy of the plan and its supplements may be inspected and copied during normal business hours at the following locations: Technical Data Center, Occupational Safety and Health Administration, Department of Labor, 200 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Room N-3620; Washington, D.C. 20210; Office of the Assistant Regional Director for Occupational Safety and Health, Federal Office Building, 450 Golden Gate Avenue, Room 9410, San Francisco, California 94102; California Occupational Safety and Health Administration, 1006 4th Street, Third Floor, Sacramento, California 95814; California Occupational Safety and Health Administration, 455 Golden Gate Avenue, Room 2152, San Francisco, California 94102; and Division of Industrial Safety, 3460 Wilshire Boulevard, Los Angeles, California 90010.

3. Public participation. Interested persons are hereby given until September 12, 1975 in which to submit written data, views, and arguments concerning whether the supplement should be approved. Such submissions are to be addressed to the Assistant Secretary for Regional Programs, Occupational Safety and Health Administration, 200 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Room N-3608, Washington, D.C. 20210.

Any interested person may request an informal hearing concerning the proposed supplements by filing particularized written objections with respect thereto within the time allowed for comments with the Associate Assistant Secretary for Regional Programs. If in the opinion of the Assistant Secretary substantial objections are filed, which warrant further public discussion, a formal or informal hearing on the subjects and issues involved may be held.

The Assistant Secretary shall consider all relevant comments, arguments, and requests submitted in accordance with this notice and shall thereafter issue his decision as to approval or disapproval of the supplements, make appropriate amendments to Subpart K of Part 1952, and initiate further appropriate proceedings if necessary.

BASIC RULES OF THE DEFENSE PRIORITIES SYSTEM

Proposed Change in Schedule II

Notice is hereby given that the Deputy Assistant Secretary for Domestic and International Business, Domestic and International Business Administration, pursuant to Section 704 of the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended (50 U.S.C. This action would thereby exclude all "copper raw materials" from being subject to priority ratings.

DPS Reg. 1 currently provides for the extension of priority ratings to all "copper raw materials", with the exception of copper scrap, including intermediate shapes. Copper-base scrap, in its various forms and shapes has been excluded from BDC rating authority, as the category of "scrap" has been continued in Schedule II to DPS Reg. 1.

The proposed amendment is presented below:

Part A of Schedule II to DPS Regulation 1 is hereby amended to read as follows:

PART A

"The following items under the jurisdiction of BDC are presently not subject to any ratings issued by or under authority of BDC (but are subject to directives issued by or under authority of BDC) and therefore such ratings shall not be effective to obtain any of them: [1]

Copper raw materials as that term is defined in DMS Order 4 (formerly BDSA Order M-11A), except intermediate shapes (as defined in that order).
Crushed stone.
Gravel.
Sand.
Scrap.

Coast Guard

[ 46 CFR Parts 32, 35 ]

[CGD 75-017]

AIR COMPRESSORS; CARGO HANDLING ROOM BILGES ON TANK VESSELS

Proposed Requirements

The Coast Guard is considering amending the regulations for tank vessels to—

(a) prohibit the accumulation of cargo in cargo handling room bilges;

(b) prohibit installation of an air compressor in cargo handling rooms and other cargo areas on a new tank vessel;

(c) prohibit use of an air compressor in a cargo area on an existing vessel and require that it be made permanently inoperative or removed from the cargo area at the next drydocking or inspection for certification of the vessel, whichever occurs first.

Interested persons may participate in this proposed rule making by submitting written data, views, or arguments to the Coast Guard (G-CMC), 400 Seventh Street, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20590. Each person submitting comments should include his name and address, identify the notice (CGD 75-017) and give reasons for any recommendations. Comments received before September 29, 1975, will be considered before final action is taken on this proposal. Copies of all written comments will be available for examination by interested persons in room 8234, Department of Transportation, Nassif Building, 400 Seventh Street, SW., Washington, D.C. The proposal may be changed in light of the comments received. No hearing is contemplated but may be held at a time and place set in a later notice in the Federal Register if requested by an interested person desiring an opportunity to comment orally at a public hearing and raising a genuine issue.

The amendments in this notice are proposed in accordance with the Commandant's Action on the Marine Board of Investigation of the SS TEXACO NORTH DAKOTA. The Commandant's Action concluded that cargo that leaks or is drained or spilled into a pump room bilge poses a hazard to the vessel and its personnel and make the operation of an air compressor in the pump room hazardous. It has been determined further that cargo that leaks or is drained or spilled into a bilge of any cargo handling room poses a hazard and that operation of an air compressor in or adjacent to any cargo area on a tank vessel likewise poses a hazard.

In consideration of the foregoing, it is proposed to amend Chapter I of Title 46 of the Code of Federal Regulations as follows:

1. By adding a new § 32.35-15 to read as follows:

§ 32.35-15 Installation of air compressors on tank vessels contracted for on or after [the effective date of these regulations]—TB/ALL.

No tank vessel contracted for on or after [the effective date of these regulations] may have an air compressor or an air compressor intake installed in any of the following cargo areas:

(a) A Cargo handling room.

(b) An enclosed space containing cargo piping.

(c) A space in which cargo hose is stowed.

(d) A space adjacent to a cargo tank or cargo tank hold.

(e) A space within three meters of any of the following:

(1) A cargo tank opening.

(2) An outlet for cargo gas or vapor.

(3) A cargo pipe flange.

(4) A cargo valve.

(5) An entrance or ventilation opening to a cargo handling room.

(f) The space on the open deck that is 2.4 meters high and that has a deck area bounded by the following:

(1) The port and starboard edges of the open deck.

(2) A straight line that—(i) Connects the port and starboard edges of the open deck;

(ii) Is three meters forward of the cargo tank or cargo tank hold closest to the bow; and

(iii) Is perpendicular to the centerline of the vessel.

(3) A straight line that—(i) Connects the port and starboard edges of the open deck;

(ii) Is three meters aft of the cargo tank or cargo tank hold closest to the stern; and

(iii) Is perpendicular to the centerline of the vessel.

(g) An enclosed space having an opening into a location described in paragraphs (a)-(f) of this section.

(h) A location similar to those described in paragraphs (a)-(g) of this section in which cargo vapors or gases may be present.

2. By adding a new § 35.35-80 to read as follows:

§ 35.35-80 Tank dregs and slops TB/ALL.

(a) No person may drain or authorize the drainage of cargo from a pump, piping system, or tank into a cargo handling room bilge except during repairs or maintenance of cargo handling equipment.

(b) The master or person in charge of a vessel shall ensure that cargo that accumulates in a bilge of a cargo handling room is promptly removed from the bilge.

3. By adding a new § 35.35-85 to read as follows:

§ 35.35-85 Air compressors TB/ALL.

(a) No person may operate an air compressor in a cargo area described in § 32.35-15 of this subchapter.

(b) The owner of a vessel that has an air compressor or an air compressor intake in a cargo area described in § 32.35-15 of this subchapter must have the equipment made permanently inoperative or removed from that location at the next drydocking or inspection for certification of the vessel after [the effective date of these regulations], whichever occurs first. The equipment may not be reinstalled thereafter in a cargo area described in § 32.35-15 of this subchapter.

There are issued herewith the comments of the Staff of the Federal Power Commission in this proceeding regarding the cost of finding and producing new supplies of natural gas for sale in interstate commerce for resale, submitted pursuant to Order Instituting National Rate Proceeding, issued herein December 4, 1974 (39 FR 43093, December 10, 1974). The comments consist of analyses and recommendations of the FPC Bureau of Natural Gas (BNG), Appendix A,[1] and of the FPC Office of Economics (OEC), Appendix B.[1]

In issuing this order for public comment, the Commission recognizes the substantial divergence between the comments of the Bureau of Natural Gas and the comments of the Office of Economics, as well as the comments of the various respondents to this proceeding. The difference in views of two important offices of this Commission makes public comment relating to both views essential. The Commission emphasizes that we do not endorse or reject either view at this time. The Commission will prescribe just and reasonable rates upon the conclusion of this proceeding, based upon a comprehensive analysis of all comments, evidence, and exhibits submitted for the public record.

There has been utilized in both the BNG and the OEC presentations, data on reserves, drilling statistics, and financial statistics from the American Gas Association (AGA), American Petroleum Institute (API), and Joint Association Survey (JAS) sources that have been employed in other costing studies. The Staff has used the AGA, API, and JAS data in its presentations on a tentative basis only, recognizing that they might have to be revised if Commission investigations and further data submissions indicate this is necessary.

The Staff comments, all comments of the parties submitted pursuant to the December 4, 1974 order initiating this proceeding, all comments of the parties in reply to such staff comments and comments of the parties, and certain other comments, information, and data[2] are or may be material to the Commission's resolution of the issues raised in this proceeding.

UNIFORM SYSTEM OF ACCOUNTS

Notice of Proposed Rulemaking

AUGUST 7, 1975.

In the matter of amendments to the Uniform Systems of Accounts for Classes A, B, C and D Public Utilities and Licensees and Natural Gas Companies to Establish Customer Service and Informational Expense Accounts, General Advertising Expense Account, and Related Changes to Annual Report Forms No. 1, No. 1-F, No. 2, and No. 2-A.

Pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 553, Sections 3, 4, 301, 304 and 309 of the Federal Power Act (41 Stat. 1063-1066, 1353; 46 Stat. 798; 49 Stat. 838-841, 854-856, 858-859; 61 Stat. 501; 16 U.S.C. 796-797, 825, 825c, 825h), and Sections 8, 10 and 16 of the Natural Gas Act (52 Stat. 825-826, 830; 15 U.S.C. 717g, 717i, 717o), the Commission gives notice it proposes to amend:

A. An instruction and certain accounts in the Uniform System of Accounts for Class A and Class B Public Utilities and Licensees, prescribed by Part 101, Chapter I, Title 18, CFR.

B. An instruction and certain accounts in the Uniform System of Accounts for Class C and Class D Public Utilites and Licensees, prescribed by Part 104, Chapter I, Title 18, CFR.

C. Certain schedule pages of FPC Form No. 1, Annual Report for Electric Utilities, Licensees and Others (Class A and Class B), prescribed by Section 141.1, Chapter I, Title 18, CFR.

D. Certain schedule pages of FPC Form No. 1-F, Annual Report for Public Utilities and Licensees (Class C and Class D), prescribed by Section 141.2, Chapter I, Title 18, CFR.

E. An instruction and certain accounts in the Uniform System of Accounts for Class A and Class B Natural Gas Companies, prescribed by Part 201, Chapter I, Title 18, CFR.

F. An instruction and certain accounts in the Uniform System of Accounts for Class C and Class D Natural Gas Companies, prescribed by Part 204, Chapter I, Title 18, CFR.

G. Certain schedule pages of FPC Form No. 2, Annual Report for Natural Gas Companies (Class A and Class B), prescribed by Section 260.1, Chapter I, Title 18, CFR.

H. Certain schedule pages of FPC Form No. 2-A, Annual Report for Natural Gas Companies (Class C and Class D), prescribed by Section 260.2, Chapter I, Title 18, CFR.

The Commission proposes to provide for more accounting detail and reporting disclosure for operating expenses incurred in the area of non-promotional customer assistance expenses by adding an additional Operation and Maintenance Expense subsection in the Uniform Systems of Accounts for classification of costs incurred in customer service, information, and education activities and to provide separate account classification for costs incurred in advertising and related activities not now provided for in the Uniform Systems of Accounts.

Presently, the Commission's Uniform Systems of Accounts and annual report forms provide for accounting and reporting of sales expenses of a promotional nature. These expenses are now classified under the title of "Sales Expenses." In recent years, conditions have changed to the degree that utilities are now incurring costs of an educational, conservation, and customer assistance nature. These costs are presently being accounted for under the sales expense classification, because the Uniform Systems of Accounts do not specifically provide account classification for such expenses. It appears that a more detailed segregation of the presently classified sales expense amounts should be made so as to identify the amounts related to non-promotional as well as to promotional expenses. We propose to do this by adding a new classification in the Operation and Maintenance Expense Accounts section of the Uniform Systems of Accounts to be entitled "Customer Service and Informational Expenses" and to retain the present Sales Expenses classification to collect those costs relating solely to promotional type expenses.

In additon to informing customers as to what they, as individuals, can do to use the utility's service in a safe, efficient manner, utilities have entered into programs through the advertising media to inform the public of the companies' involvement in safety, conservation, and environmental programs; and research to provide additional or alternative sources of energy. The costs incurred in this area are of a general corporate nature, not directly associated with a particular operating function and, as such, should be provided for under the "Administrative and General Expenses" classification. We propose to provide for this classification by adding a new account to the "Administrative and General Expenses" section titled "930.1, General Advertising Expenses."

The proposed revisions, as detailed hereinafter, would amend the Uniform System of Accounts prescribed for Class A and Class B electric (gas) utilities by adding a new Operation and Maintenance Expense Classification subsection titled "Customer Service and Informational Expenses," to encompass new accounts entitled "907, Supervision," "908, Customer Assistance Expenses," "909, Informational and Instructional Advertisng Expenses," and "910, Miscellaneous Customer Service and Information Expenses," and by adding a new account under the present subsection "Administrative and General Expenses," entitled "930.1, General Advertising Expenses."

The Uniform System of Accounts prescribed for Class C and Class D electric (gas) utilities would be amended to accomplish the same objectives.

The Commission's annual report forms would be revised to reflect the accounting proposals.

Any interested person may submit to the Federal Power Commission, Washington, D.C. 20426, to be received no later than September 22, 1975, data views, comments or suggestions in writing concerning the amendments proposed herein. Written submittals will be placed in the Commission's public files and will be available for public inspection at the Commission's Office of Public Information, Washington, D.C. 20426, during regular business hours. The Commission will consider all such written submittals before acting on the matters herein proposed. An original and 14 conformed copies should be filed with the Secretary of this Commission. Submittals to the Commission should indicate the name, title, mailing address, and telephone number of the person to whom communications concerning the proposal should be addressed, and whether the person filing them requests a conference with the staff of the Federal Power Commission to discuss the proposed revisions. The staff, in its discretion, may grant or deny requests for conference.

The proposed amendments to the Commission's Uniform Systems of Accounts under the Federal Power Act, and to FPC Annual Report Forms No. 1 and No. 1-F, would be issued under authority granted the Federal Power Commission by the Federal Power Act, particularly Sections 3, 4, 301, 304 and 309 (41 Stat. 1063-1066, 1353; 46 Stat. 798; 49 Stat. 838-841, 854-856, 858-859; 61 Stat. 501; 16 U.S.C. 796-797, 825, 825c, 825h).

The proposed amendments to the Commission's Uniform Systems of Accounts under the Natural Gas Act, and to FPC Annual Report Forms No. 2 and No. 2-A, would be issued under the authority granted the Federal Power Commission by the Natural Gas Act, particularly Sections 8, 10 and 16 (52 Stat. 825-826, 830; 15 U.S.C. 717g, 717i, 717o).

The petition shall include a statement describing the specific purposes for which import relief is being sought, which may include such objectives as facilitating the orderly transfer of resources to alternative uses and other means of adjustment to new conditions of competition.

"(b)(1) Upon the request of the President or the Special Representative for Trade Negotiations, upon resolution of either the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives or the Committee on Finance of the Senate, upon its own motion, or upon the filing of a petition under subsection (a)(1), the Commission shall promptly make an investigation to determine whether an article is being imported into the United States in such increased quantities as to be a substantial cause of serious injury, or the threat thereof, to the domestic industry producing an article like or directly competitive with the imported article.

"(2) In making its determinations under paragraph (1), the Commission shall take into account all economic factors which it considers relevant, including (but not limited to)—

"(A) with respect to serious injury, the significant idling of productive facilities in the industry, the inability of a significant number of firms to operate at a reasonable level of profit, and significant unemployment or underemployment within the industry;

"(4) For purposes of this section, the term "substantial cause" means a cause which is important and not less than any other cause.

"(5) In the course of any proceeding under this subsection, the Commission shall, for the purpose of assisting the President in making his determinations under sections 202 and 203, investigate and report on efforts made by firms and workers in the industry to compete more effectively with imports.

[2] Section 406 of the Trade Act provides in pertinent part as follows:

"(a)(1) Upon the filing of a petition by an entity described in section 201(a)(1), upon request of the President or the Special Representative for Trade Negotiations, upon resolution of either the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives or the Committee on Finance of the Senate, or on its own motion, the International Trade Commission (hereinafter in this section referred to as the "Commission") shall promptly make an investigation to determine, with respect to imports of an article which is the product of a Communist country, whether market disruption exists with respect to an article produced by a domestic industry.

An entity is considered to be representative of such industry when it represents firms and/or workers accounting for a majority of the production of the article by the industry. If an entity represents less than a majority of such production, it may still be considered to be representative of an industry if the circumstances of its representation warrant it.

§ 206.14 Contents of petition.

A petition under this Subpart C shall include assertions, supported by specific information, that imports of an article the product of a Communist country which are like or directly competitive with an article produced by a domestic industry, are increasing rapidly, either absolutely or relatively, so as to be a significant cause of material injury, or threat thereof, to such domestic industry. Such petition shall include the following information:

(a) Product description. A petition shall name and precisely describe the like or directly competitive article concerned which is the product of a Communist country, specifying the United States tariff provision under which such article is classified and the current tariff treatment thereof, and shall name and precisely describe the domestic article concerned.

(e) Domestic production data. A petition shall include data on total U.S. production of the named and described domestic article concerned for each of the most recent 5 full years.

(f) Data showing injury. A petition shall include quantitative data indicating the nature and extent of the material injury to the domestic industry concerned, with particular reference to the extent of idling of productive facilities in the industry, the inability of a significant number of firms to operate at a reasonable level of profit, and unemployment or underemployment in the industry; and/or quantitative data indicating the nature and extent of the threat of material injury to the domestic industry concerned, with particular reference to a decline in sales, a higher and growing inventory, and a downward trend in production, profits, wages, or employment (or increasing underemployment) in the industry.

(g) Cause of injury. A petition shall include an enumeration and description of the causes believed to be resulting in the injury, or threat thereof, described under paragraph (f) of this section, and a statement regarding the extent to which increased imports, either absolutely or relatively to domestic production, of the named and described Communist article concerned are believed to be such a cause, supported by specific data.

"(2) Upon request of the President or upon its own motion, the Commission shall advise the President of its judgment as to the probable economic effect on the industry concerned of the extension, reduction, or termination of the import relief provided pursuant to this section.

§ 206.21 Reports.

SIGNATURE (In ink) Edward J. Maruska
DATE July 10, 1975

JULY 10, 1975.

DIRECTOR (FWS/LE),
U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, U.S. Department of the Interior, P.O. Box 19183, Washington, D.C. 20036.

DEAR SIR: The Cincinnati Zoo is applying for an Endangered Species Permit to exchange captive born Persian leopards Panthera pardus saxicolor with the Leipzig Zoo under the Endangered Species Act of 1973. We would like to send a male cub born here December 25, 1974, for a male cub born in Leipzig October 7, 1974.

1. Common and scientific names of the species or subspecies, number, age, and sex of the wildlife to be covered in the permit.

One male Persian leopard "Najad" born in the Cincinnati Zoo on the 25th of December, 1974. This animal was born to "Sherezade" and "Shah". Both parents were born at the Cincinnati Zoo. This male is to be exchanged for the male born at the Leipzig Zoo (unnamed) the 7th of October, 1974. Parents are "Peter", born July 2, 1961, in Munster, Germany, parents were captured in Iran; and "Mixe", born 1966/67, purchased from G. van den Brink, July, 1967, and captured in Iran. Common and scientific names: Persian leopard, Panthera pardus saxicolor.

2. Copy of the contract or other agreement under which such wildlife is to be imported, showing the country of origin, name and address of the seller or consignor, date of the contract, number and weight (if available), and description of the wildlife.

Attached is a copy of a letter from Dr. Siegfried Seifert, director of the Leipzig Zoo, in which he states his interest in exchanging zoo-born male leopard cubs.

3. A full statement of justification for the permit including details of the project or other plans for utilization of the wildlife in relation to zoological, educational, scientific, or propagational purposes as appropriate and the planned disposition of the wildlife upon termination of the project.

The Cincinnati Zoo is the only zoo in this hemisphere using this rare subspecies at the present time. The original pair includes a male purchased in 1957 from Hagenbach when approximately nine months old. This animal was born in an European collection, and the female was purchased on January 7, 1972, and was captured in Iran. This female suffers from severe hyperparathyroidism and had difficulty in giving birth. Numerous offspring were born dead. Three viable offspring were taken by two separate Cesarean sections. Because of the difficulties with the original female, we have not had the excellent success we have had with other leopard subspecies. As an example, we have a trio of African leopards Panthera pardus pardus, that have produced 60 offspring since 1962, of which 56 survived. We also have a pair of black leopards Panthera pardus fusca that have produced 17 offspring since 1962. We have stopped breeding of both African and black leopards because of the inability to dispose of the offspring. A male "Shah" born on the 26th July, 1970, and a female "Sherezade" born on the 26th July, 1970, brother and sister, bred and reproduced two offspring on the 25th of December, 1974, the male of which we would like to use in this exchange.

We are very desirous of obtaining an infusion of new blood to prevent continued inbreeding of this rare subspecies. As the enclosed correspondence from Dr. Seifert indicates, Leipzig has also been successful in propagating Persian leopards.

As stated above, it is very desirable at this time to begin a new blood line to maintain the vigor of this stock. As surplus animals become available through our breeding program, specimens will be made available to qualified zoological parks that have professed interest in acquiring and propagating this rare subspecies. Upon the demise of any cats in this stock, Dr. Robert J. Izor, Division of Mammals, Field Museum of Natural History, Chicago, Illinois, has expressed interest in obtaining specimens for the Museum.

4. A description and the address of the institution or other facility where the wildlife will be used or maintained.

This animal will be held at the Cincinnati Zoo. The Zoological Park is owned by the City of Cincinnati and managed and operated by the non-profit corporation known as the Zoological Society of Cincinnati. The postal address is Cincinnati Zoo, 3400 Vine Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, U.S.A. 45220. The telephone number is 513-281-4700.

5. A statement that at the time of application the wildlife to be imported is still in the wild, was born in captivity, or has been removed from the wild.

As documented in Mr. Maruska's and Dr. Seifert's letters, the animals are captive born.

6. A resume of the applicant's attempts to obtain the wildlife to be imported from sources which would not cause the death or removal of additional animals from the wild.

The animals are zoo born and constitute no drain on the population.

Enclosed is a personnel resume.

7. (i) A complete description, including photographs or diagrams, of the area and facilities in which the wildlife will be housed.

Our leopards are presently housed in a series of five cages, each cage has dimensions of 7 ft. x 8 ft. x 10 ft. We are presently designing a series of large, spacious outdoor exhibit areas for our Persian and snow leopards. This cat complex is funded and a copy of the conceptual drawing of the exhibit area is enclosed along with correspondence with the architectural firm. The dimensions for the outdoor facilities are 34 ft. long, 26 ft. wide, and 18 ft. high. These large enclosures will have rocky ledges and trees which will provide the cats with ample exercise. The present inside cages will be retained as breeding dens.

(ii) A brief resume of the technical expertise available, including any experience the applicant or his personnel have had in propagating the species or closely related species to be imported.

See enclosed personnel resume.

7. (iii) A statement of willingness to participate in a cooperative breeding program and maintain or contribute data to a studbook.

Mr. Alan H. Shoemaker, Zoologist, of the Columbia Zoological Society is maintaining data for studbooks on the rare leopard subspecies. Correspondence is enclosed, and we wholeheartedly support his efforts in maintaining a studbook on the Persian leopard.

(iv) A detailed description of the type, size and construction of the container: arrangements for feeding, watering, and otherwise caring for the wildlife in transit; and the arrangements for caring for the wildlife on importation into the United States.

The cats will be shipped by air in crates that comply with the International Air Transport Association (IATA) Live Animals Regulations.

I hereby certify that I have read and am familiar with the regulations contained in Title 50, Part 13, of the Code of Federal Regulations and the other applicable parts in Subchapter B of Chapter I, Title 50, and I further certify that the information submitted in this application for a permit is complete and accurate to the best of my knowledge and belief. I understand that any false statement hereon may subject me to the criminal penalties of 18 U.S.C. 1001.

Sincerely,

EDWARD J. MARUSKA,
Director.

Maritime Administration

[Docket No. S-458]

AMERICAN PRESIDENT LINES, LTD.

Application

Notice is hereby given that American President Lines, Ltd. has applied for amendment of its Operating-Differential Subsidy Agreements, Contract Nos. FMB-50 and FMB-76 to permit interchange of subsidized C6 type containerships between services in both contracts and to enable containerships to perform service obligations under either or both contracts with vessels subsidized under either contract. The application contemplates that a transpacific containership sailing would be permitted to call at both California and Washington-Oregon and count as a sailing under Contract Nos. FMB-50 and FMB-76.

As information, the minimum/maximum sailing requirements of the two operating-differential subsidy contracts will remain the same; no increase in sailings are requested and no additional vessels covered by FMB-50 and FMB-76 are proposed. The Operator desires to reinstate its Round-the-World Service (Westbound), and to modify its existing RW feeder service so as to provide feeder service betwen ports in Singapore, Indonesia, Malaysia, and Thailand now authorized in the Operator's service descriptions. The vessels which the Operator intends to use for the reinstituted Round-the-World (Westbound) service are to be those vessels in excess of its needs in the transpacific services.

Any person, firm or corporation having any interest in such application and desiring a hearing on issues pertinent to Section 605(c) of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended (46 U.S.C. 1175), should by the close of business on August 22, 1975 notify, the Secretary, Maritime Subsidy Board in writing in triplicate, and file petition for leave to intervene in accordance with the Rules of Practice and Procedure of the Maritime Subsidy Board.

Each such statement of interest and petition to intervene shall state whether a hearing is requested under section 605 (c) of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended (46 U.S.C. 1175) and with as much specificity as possible the facts that the intervenor would undertake to prove at such a hearing.

In the event a Section 605(c) hearing is ordered to be held, the purpose thereof will be to receive evidence relevant to (1) whether the application is one with respect to a vessel to be operated in an essential service, served by citizens of the United States which would be in addition to the existing service, or services, and if so, whether the service already provided by vessels of United States registry in such essential service is inadequate, and (2) whether in the accomplishment of the purposes and policy of the Act additional vessels should be operated thereon.

Any service authorized pursuant to the application Noticed herein will not be deemed existing service within the meaning of section 605(c) for purposes of Docket No. S-417.

If no request for hearing and petition for leave to intervene is received within the specified time, or if the Maritime Subsidy Board determines that petitions for leave to intervene filed within the specified time do not demonstrate sufficient interest to warrant a hearing, the Maritime Subsidy Board will take such action as may be deemed appropriate.

By Order of the Maritime Administration.

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION

National Highway Traffic Safety Administration

[Docket No. EX 73–5; Notice 5]

INTERMECCANICA AUTOMOBILI

Termination of Temporary Exemption From Motor Vehicle Safety Standards

This notice terminates the temporary exemption from several Federal motor vehicle safety standards granted Intermeccanica Automobili on the grounds that the exemption is no longer in the public interest or consistent with the objectives of the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966.

Intermeccanica Automobili of Turin, Italy has twice been granted temporary exemption from several Federal safety standards on the grounds that compliance would cause it substantial economic hardship. In 1969, it was granted exemptions from Standard Nos. 201, 202, 203, 204, and 301 for its Italia model (Federal Highway Administration Exemption No. 69–4). In 1974, its Indra model was exempted until January 1, 1977 from compliance with Standards Nos. 201, 212, 215 and 301 (NHTSA Exemption No. 73–5, 39 FR 10315). Because the company has been unwilling or unable to resolve certain compliance problems with the Italia in an enforcement proceeding, the Administrator has decided to terminate the company's current exemption.

Between 1969 and a date prior to May 1973, Intermeccanica manufactured 128 passenger cars for sale in the United States. An inspection of 15 of these vehicles showed that none had the tire inflation placard required by 49 CFR 571.110, Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 110, or means to lock the operator's door as required by 49 CFR 571.206, Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 206, or occupant restraint labeling in accordance with 49 CFR 571.209, Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 209, as required by 49 CFR 571.208, Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 208. Tires on two of the vehicles were not labeled according to 49 CFR 571.109, Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 109. None of the vehicles were provided with consumer information pursuant to 49 CFR Part 575. The NHTSA asked the company its views on these matters by letter of August 10, 1971, but received no response.

In April 1973, Intermeccanica petitioned for a new exemption for its Indra model, and was informed that its petition would not be processed until an answer had been provided to the letter of August 10, 1971. The company then promptly responded, stating among other things that it would furnish tire inflation placards to distributors and that it would send consumer information to NHTSA under separate cover. There is no record that the company did either.

Accordingly, the agency asked the company on April 5, 1974, to show cause why a civil penalty should not be imposed, and afforded it an opportunity to submit information, data, or arguments relative to this matter. On November 11, 1974, the company was informed that the Administrator would consider a compromise of $1,000 as appropriate under the circumstances provided the company conducted a notification campaign. The company did not respond. On April 29, 1975, the company was informed that the Administrator was considering termination of Exemption No. 73–5 because of its violations and was offered an opportunity to submit its views. It responded by letter of May 6, 1975, agreeing to pay $1,000 within 30 days. On July 1, 1975, it wrote that there would be a further delay, unspecified in length, before it could settle the matter.

Because Intermeccanica Automobili has not met the obligations imposed upon a manufacturer of motor vehicles by the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966 as set forth above, it is hereby found that continued exemption of the company from compliance with motor vehicle safety standards is no longer consistent with the public interest or the objectives of the Act. Accordingly, NHTSA Exemption No. 73–5 is hereby terminated, effective September 12, 1975.

Issued on August 7, 1975.

CIVIL AERONAUTICS BOARD

[Docket No. 22859; Order 75–8–38]

AIRLIFT INTERNATIONAL, INC.

Domestic Air Freight Rate Investigation; Order of Suspension

Adopted by the Civil Aeronautics Board at its office in Washington D.C. on the 8th day of August, 1975.

By tariff revisions[1] issued July 11 and marked to become effective August 10, 1975, Airlift International, Inc. (Airlift) proposes, inter alia, to increase numerous domestic bulk and container general commodity rates and charges, and add and reduce container rates in various markets. Bulk minimum charges per shipment are to be increased by $2.00 to $14.00 for hauls under 1,000 miles, and $17.00 for longer hauls.

Airlift asserts that the proposal would bring its rates into closer alignment with competition while making an improvement in revenues of about $1,047,000, or 6.4 percent of revenues received in 1974. However, even with the proposed increase, Airlift forecasts that it would incur an operating loss of about $1.2 million, based upon 1974 operations.

The proposed rates and charges come within the scope of the Domestic Air Freight Rate Investigation (DAFRI), Docket 22859, and their lawfulness will be determined in that proceeding. The issue now before the Board is whether to suspend the proposal or to permit it to become effective pending investigation.

The Board has reviewed these rates in the light of recent industry-average costs, including a full return on investment, of carrying air freight. With the exception of exception rates on human remains, Airlift's proposed rates and charges do not exceed those costs and will be permitted to become effective.

The proposed rates on human remains, however, are published in the tariff as an exception rating equal to 165 percent of the general commodity rates, and would significantly exceed the costs for that traffic in all markets. In view of the foregoing and upon consideration of all other relevant factors, the Board finds that the proposal, to the extent it results in higher rates for movements of human remains, should be suspended.

Accordingly, pursuant to the Federal Aviation Act of 1958, and particularly Sections 204(a), 403, 404, and 1002 thereof,

IT IS ORDERED THAT:

1. Pending hearing and decision by the Board, the new and increased rates, charges, and provisions described in Appendix A hereto are suspended and their use deferred to and including November 11, 1975, unless otherwise ordered by the Board, and that no change be made therein during the period of suspension, except by order or special permission of the Board; and

2. Copies of this order shall be filed with the tariffs and served upon Airlift International, Inc.

[1] Revisions to Airline Tariff Publishing Company, Agent, Tariffs C.A.B. Nos. 169 and 227.

This order will be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.[2]

[Docket No. 25659; Order 75–8–41]

LOCAL SERVICE CLASS SUBSIDY RATE

Class Rate VII

Adopted by the Civil Aeronautics Board at its office in Washington, D.C. on the 8th day of August, 1975.

On July 14, 1975, the Board adopted Order 75–7–64 which found the fair and reasonable annual subsidy due and payable to the seven local service carriers in Class Rate VII, on and after July 1, 1975, to be $65.0 million. Exceptions to Order 75–7–64 were received from Hughes Airwest and Texas International.[1]

Hughes' exception points out an error in the computation of its nonoperating income offset and that an adjustment to its property acquisition adjustment was incorrect. Upon examination, we find that Hughes' nonoperating income offset was indeed overstated in Order 75–7–64 due to a staff error in the computation of reinvested capital gains[2] and the $1.6 million adjustment to Hughes' system investment to reflect a write-off in their property acquisition adjustment was also made incorrectly.

Hughes' annual net subsidy due and payable, as reflected in Order 75–7–64, on and after July 1, 1975 was $8.7 million. However, after corrections to nonoperating income and investment, the annual net subsidy due and payable to Hughes, on and after July 1, 1975 is $9.3 million. The increase is due to increases in adjusted operating breakeven need, return, taxes, and the deficiency in eligible services, and a decrease in the ineligible profit offset.

Based on the foregoing corrections, we find that the fair and reasonable annual net subsidy due and payable to the seven carriers in Class Rate VII, on and after July 1, 1975, is $65.6 million.

Accordingly, it is ordered that:[3] 1. Effective on and after July 1, 1975, Appendices A, I, B, I–B, C, I–C, F–1, L, and M–1 of Order 75–7–64 shall hereby be corrected based on the corresponding attached appendices[3a]

2. The subsidy due and payable to each carrier on and after July 1, 1975,[4] shall be computed on the basis of the daily subsidy rate set forth for each carrier in Appendix L (Third Revised) in Order 75–7–64, after corrections based on Appendices attached to this order;

3. This order shall be effective as of the date of service hereof; and

4. This order shall be served upon all parties to this proceeding.

This order will be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

By the Civil Aeronautics Board.

FEDERAL ENERGY ADMINISTRATION

ELECTRIC POWER FACILITY CONSTRUCTION INCENTIVE ACT OF 1975

Availability of Draft Environmental Impact Statement

Pursuant to Section 102(2)(C) of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA) the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) has prepared a draft environmental impact statement on the Electric Power Facility Construction Incentive Act of 1975.

The document has been prepared to consider the environmental impact of, and alternatives to, this Act which amends the Internal Revenue Code. The Act contains five major titles as follows:

Title I deals with the increase in investment credit for electric utility property other than petroleum-fueled generating facilities.

Title II deals with the extension of the period during which pollution control facilities may qualify for 5-year amortization and provides a similar amortization period for investment to convert or replace petroleum-fueled generating facilities into or with facilities using different fuels.

Title III permits depreciation deductions on construction expenditures beginning with the year such expenditures are made for building electric power property other than generating facilities which use petroleum or petroleum products as a principal fuel.

Title IV permits stockholders of electric utilities who elect to reinvest their dividends in stock of those utilities to defer taxability of such dividends until such stock is disposed of.

Title V limits most of the tax benefits provided by the first three titles to utilities permitted by their regulatory agencies to include construction work in progress in their rate bases. Those same tax benefits are also individually subject to a normalization requirement.

Single copies of the draft environmental statement may be obtained from the FEA Office of Communications and Public Affairs, Room 220, Old Post Office Building, 12th and Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20461.

Issued in Washington, D.C., August 7, 1975.

FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

CORPORATE PATTERNS SURVEY

Authorization of Collection of Economic Reports

Notice is hereby given that the Federal Trade Commission has given final approval to the Corporate Patterns Report survey of the 1,000 largest manufacturing companies. This survey, cleared by the General Accounting Office on March 24, 1975, will be conducted by the Bureau of Economics and will principally collect value of shipments data for the year 1972 for each of 1,300 manufacturing product classes. Corporate Patterns Report data will provide detailed market share information for corporations that account for more than three-fourths of the total assets of all manufacturing corporations. The forms will be mailed on Friday, August 22.

The Commission's resolution approving the survey specifies that no individual company data will be published before January 1, 1978, or five years after the 1972 year for which data will be collected.

In a supplementary statement on confidentiality, the Commission stated it would consider individual company data to be exempt from disclosure pursuant to a Freedom of Information Act request for access but noted it would comply with official requests for data from a Congressional committee or pursuant to a court order.

The 1972 Corporate Patterns Report is the first such survey since data for the year 1950 were collected in the initial survey of this type. In its statement to the General Accounting Office, however, the Commission indicated that it planned to collect 1977 data during 1978.

Besides value of shipments, the survey will also collect information about ownership links among the 1,000 largest manufacturers, about their interests in joint ventures, and about their sales in non-manufacturing activities. The firms will be given ninety (90) days to complete the report forms. In order to reduce their burden, a screening form will be used to determine whether smaller, borderline companies have large enough manufacturing activities to be included in the survey.

The principal uses of the survey results will be to provide the Commission with a comprehensive data base for enforcement efforts, economic studies, and policy planning activities. The data will be essential in fully and promptly evaluating the competitive impact of mergers and other changes in market structure. In economic studies, the data will be used to relate market structure to diversification, integration, and merger activities.

The texts of the Commission's resolution and statement concerning confidentiality are as follows:

RESOLUTION AUTHORIZING AND DIRECTING THE COLLECTION OF ECONOMIC REPORTS

Whereas, the Federal Trade Commission is authorized by Section 6 of the Federal Trade Commisison Act to gather and compile information concerning, and to investigate from time to time the organization, business, conduct, practices and management of corporations (as specified in the Federal Trade Commission Act) engaged in commerce, and their relation to other corporations and to individuals, associations and partnerships; and

Whereas, the Federal Trade Commission may require that such corporations file annual or special reports, or both, furnishing to the Commission such information as may be needed as to their organization, business, conduct, practices, management, and their relation to other corporations, partnerships and individuals; and

Whereas, it is deemed necessary in the public interest for the Federal Trade Commission to gather information as to the nature of business and the relation of such corporations and of corporations and businesses acquired by such corporations to other corporations, individuals, associations, and partnerships which are interrelated in varying degrees with other corporations, individuals, associations, and partnerships within the various industries and lines of commerce in the United States, as to their majority ownership interests, as to their value of shipments or production by product class in manufacturing, as to their sales, business receipts or other appropriate value measure by major group and more detailed classification in nonmanufacturing activities, as to their acquisitions and dispositions of companies or part of companies, as to their net sales and total assets, as to the financial and other characteristics of their minority-interest companies, including buyer and seller relationships with their joint ventures for the purpose of making reports authorized under Section 6(f) of the Federal Trade Commission Act concerning concentration, diversification and integration of firms by product classes and major groups and for the purpose of obtaining precise information as to the position of firms and of competitive conditions in various product markets to the end that a proper determination of the effect on competition may be made in connection with the administration and enforcement of Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act and Sections 2, 3 and 7 of the Clayton Act, as amended.

Now, therefore, it is hereby resolved that the Federal Trade Commission, in the exercise of the powers vested in it by Section 6 of the Federal Trade Commission Act, and with the aid of any and all powers conferred upon it by law and any and all compulsory processes available to it, do forthwith proceed to investigate and collect information, including information in the form of reports, of the nature and for the purposes hereinabove stated, from such corporations engaged in commerce as may be designated by the Commission pursuant to general or special orders. It is further resolved that no information for individual companies will be published before January 1, 1978.

STATEMENT OF THE COMMISSION CONCERNING CONFIDENTIALITY OF INDIVIDUAL COMPANY DATA SUBMITTED PURSUANT TO CORPORATE PATTERNS REPORT (CPR)—1972

The Commission will not publish earlier than January 1, 1978, any individual company data submitted pursuant to CPR–1972. In addition, subject to the conditions noted below, the Commission pledges not to disclose earlier than January 1, 1978, any individual company data to persons not employed by the Commission. The Commission considers the individual company data to be confidential and exempt under 5 U.S.C. § 552 (b)(4) from disclosure pursuant to a Freedom of Information Act request for access.

This pledge will not apply to the Commission's furnishing individual company data in response to an official request from a committee or subcommittee of Congress or pursuant to court order. In the event of such release, the Congressional committee or subcommittee or the court will be advised that the Commission and company consider the material to be confidential.

Consultants retained by the Commission who pledge to maintain the confidentiality of the data may be given access to individual company data.

If the Commission decides to disclose individual company data to a Congressional committee or pursuant to a court order, the company will be provided with ten (10) days' prior notice where possible, and in any event as much notice as can reasonably be given.

Issued by direction of the Commission dated July 29, 1975.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE COMMISSION

NEW, ON-THE-HIGHWAY, FOUR-WHEELED, PASSENGER AUTOMOBILES

Notice of 30-day Inquiry and Hearing [1]

Having received advice from the Treasury Department on August 7, 1975, that, during the course of determining whether to institute an investigation with respect to new, on-the-highway, four-wheeled, passenger automobiles from Belgium, Canada, France, Italy, Japan, Sweden, the United Kingdom, and West Germany in accordance with section 201(c) of the Antidumping Act, 1921 (19 U.S.C. 160(c)), it concludes from the information available to it that there is substantial doubt whether an industry in the United States is being or is likely to be injured, or is prevented from being established, by reason of importation of this merchandise into the United States, the United States International Trade Commission on August 8, 1975, instituted inquiry AA1921–Inq.–2, under section 201(c)(2) of the Act, to determine whether:

There is no reasonable indication that an industry in the United States is being or is likely to be injured, or is prevented from being established, by reason of the importation of such merchandise into the United States.

Relevant portions of the Treasury Department advice are as follows:

According to the preliminary information thus far available to us, the domestic industry's production of subcompact-compact automobiles, that merchandise generally most competitive with imports, appears to have increased by 36 percent from 1972–1974, and in 1973 and 1974 for the first time in recent years, exceeded imports in absolute numbers. During 1972–1974, imports of automobiles increased only by 3.6 percent.

During the 1972–1973 period, U.S. production of intermediate-full size autos increased 3.6 percent. However, from 1973 to 1974, U.S. production of such autos declined 40 percent. While this data poses some difficulties of interpretation, we do not feel that standing alone it creates the substantial doubt requiring referral to the Commission.

However, both Mr. William Eberle, President of the Motor Vehicle Manufacturer's Association, and Mr. Elliot M. Estes, President of General Motors, have recently testified before Congress that the U.S. auto industry's problems are not due to imports. In addition, an April 1975 Staff Economic Report, of the Office of Economic Research, U.S. Department of Commerce (not an official Commerce Department position), supports Mr. Eberle and Mr. Estes. The Department of Labor, in its August 1, 1975 adjustment assistance decision for Chrysler workers stated that imports have contributed relatively little to the decline in the U.S. automobile industry as a whole, finding in one particular class of automobile that imports contributed to the decline in U.S. production. For compact, standard, and luxury autos, the Department found that the recession and other non-import factors were sufficient to explain the decline in output and employment.

I therefore conclude that these views minimizing the effect of imports on the present state of the domestic industry create the substantial doubt which requires reference of this case to the Commission for appropriate consideration pursuant to section 201(c)(2) of the Act (19 U.S.C. 160(c)(2)).

Preliminarily, alleged margins of sales at less than fair value, from petitioners' information, appear to range as follows:

Belgium—up to 43 percent on 1974 imports valued at $216 million.

Canada—up to 20 percent on 1974 imports valued at $3 billion.

France—up to 24 percent on 1974 imports valued at $45.5 million.

Italy—up to 41 percent on 1974 imports valued at $240 million.

Japan—up to 24 percent on 1974 imports valued at $1.7 billion.

Sweden—up to 43 percent on 1974 imports valued at $227 million.

United Kingdom—up to 35 percent on 1974 imports valued at $156 million.

West Germany—up to 73 percent on 1974 imports valued at $1.9 billion.

Total automobile imports during 1974 were valued at roughly $7.5 billion with domestic production during the same period estimated $20.8 billion.

Hearing. A public hearing in connection with the inquiry will be held in the Commission's Hearing Room, International Trade Commission Building, 701 E Street, NW., Washington, D.C. 20436, beginning at 10:00 a.m., EDT, on Tuesday, August 19, 1975. All parties will be given an opportunity to be present, to produce evidence, and to be heard at such hearing. Requests to appear at the public hearing should be received by the Secretary of the Commission in writing, at its office in Washington, D.C., not later than noon Friday, August 15, 1975. It is suggested that parties who have a common interest endeavor whenever possible to arrange for a consolidated presentation of their views.

Requests to appear must contain:

a. The name and organization of the witness or witnesses who will testify, and the name, address, telephone number, and organization of the person filing the request.

b. An estimate of the aggregate time desired for presentation of oral testimony by all witnesses for whose appearance the request is filed.

Because of the limited time available under the statute, the Commission reserves the right to limit the time assigned to witnesses.

[1] This 30-day inquiry is being conducted under a new provision (section 201(c)) added to the Antidumping Act, 1921, by section 321 of the Trade Act of 1974 (88 Stat. 2043). If the determination to be made by the Commission under section 201(c) is negative, the current related antidumping investigations of the Department of Treasury will be permitted to continue; if, on the other hand, any determination to be made by the Commission is affirmative, the related Treasury investigations will be terminated.

Questioning of witnesses will be limited to members of the Commission and the Commission's staff.

Written statements. Interested parties may submit statements in writing in lieu of, and in addition to, appearance at the public hearing. A signed original and nineteen true copies of such statements should be submitted. To be assured of their being given due consideration by the Commission, such statements should be received no later than August 22, 1975.

Issued: August 8, 1975.

By order of the Commission.

NUCLEAR REGULATORY COMMISSION

ADVISORY COMMITTEE ON REACTOR SAFEGUARDS WORKING GROUP ON PLUTONIUM SHIPPING PACKAGES

Meeting

In accordance with the purposes of Sections 29 and 182b. of the Atomic Energy Act (42 U.S.C. 2039, 2232 b.), the Advisory Committee on Reactor Safeguards Working Group on Plutonium Shipping Packages will hold a meeting on August 28, 1975 in Parlors A and B of the O'Hare Hilton Hotel, O'Hare International Airport, Chicago, Illinois. The purpose of this meeting will be to develop information for consideration by the ACRS to evaluate the ability of the packages used for shipping plutonium and other comparably hazardous material to survive airplane crashes.

The agenda for the subject meeting shall be as follows:

Thursday, August 28, 1975, 9:00 a.m. until the conclusion of business. The Working Group will hear presentations by representatives of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) Staff and the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) Staff and their consultants and will hold discussions with these groups pertinent to its evaluation.

In connection with the above agenda item, the Working Group may hold Executive Sessions not open to the public, at 8:30 a.m. and at the end of the day to consider matters relating to the above evaluation. These sessions will involve an exchange of opinions and discussion of preliminary views and recommendations of Working Group members and internal deliberations for the purpose of formulating recommendations to the ACRS.

In addition to the Executive Sessions, the Working Group may hold closed sessions with representatives of the NRC and ERDA Staffs and their consultants for the purpose of discussing privileged information concerning proprietary information and physical security, if necessary.

I have determined, in accordance with Subsection 10(d) of Public Law 92-463, that the above-noted Executive Sessions will consist of an exchange of opinions and formulation of recommendations, the discussion of which, if written, would fall within exemption (5) of 5 U.S.C. 552(b) and that a closed session may be held, if necessary, to discuss certain documents and information which are privileged and fall within exemption (4) of 5 U.S.C. 552(b). Further, any non-exempt material that will be discussed during the above closed sessions will be inextricably intertwined with exempt material, and no further separation of this material is considered practical. It is essential to close such portions of the meeting to protect the free interchange of internal views, to avoid undue interference with agency or Working Group operation, and to avoid public disclosure of proprietary information.

Practical considerations may dictate alterations in the above agenda or schedule.

The Chairman of the Working Group is empowered to conduct the meeting in a manner that, in his judgment, will facilitate the orderly conduct of business, including provisions to carry over an incompleted open session from one day to the next.

With respect to public participation in the open portion of the meeting, the following requirements shall apply:

(a) Persons wishing to submit written statements regarding the agenda items may do so by mailing a readily reproducible copy thereof, postmarked no later than August 21, 1975 to the Executive Secretary, ACRS, NRC, Wash., D.C. 20555. Background information concerning items to be discussed at the meeting can be found in related documents on file and available for public inspection at the Nuclear Regulatory Commission Public Document Room, 1717 H St., N.W., Wash., D.C. 20555.

(b) Those persons submitting a written statement in accordance with paragraph (a) above may request an opportunity to make oral statements concerning the written statement. Such requests shall accompany the written statement so that appropriate arrangements can be made. To the extent that time available for the meeting permits, the Working Group will receive oral statements at an appropriate time chosen by the Chairman of the Working Group.

(c) Further information regarding topics to be discussed, whether the meeting has been cancelled or rescheduled, the Chairman's ruling on requests for opportunity to present oral statements, and the time allotted can be obtained by a prepaid telephone call on August 27th to the Office of the Executive Secretary of the Committee (telephone 202/634-1374, ATTN: Mr. Gary R. Quittschreiber) between 8:15 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., Eastern Daylight Time.

(d) Questions may be propounded only by members of the Working Group and its consultants.

(e) Seating for the public will be available on a first-come, first-served basis.

(f) The use of still, motion picture, and television cameras, the physical installation and presence of which will not interfere with the conduct of the meeting, will be permitted both before and after the meeting and during any recess. The use of such equipment will not, however, be allowed while the meeting is in session.

(g) A copy of the transcript of the open portion of the meeting will be available for inspection on or after September 4th, 1975 at the NRC Public Document Room, 1717 H St., N.W., Wash., D.C. 20555. Copies of the transcript may be reproduced in the Public Document Room or may be obtained from Ace Federal Reporters, Inc., 415 Second Street, N.E., Washington, D.C. 20555 (telephone 202/547-6222) upon payment of appropriate charges.

(h) On request, copies of the minutes of the meeting will be made available for inspection at the NRC Public Document Room, 1717 H St., N.W., Wash., D.C. 20555 after November 28th, 1975. Copies may be obtained upon payment of appropriate charges.

Date August 7, 1975.

DUKE POWER CO.

Proposed Issuance of Amendments to Facility Operating Licenses

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission (the Commission) is considering the issuance of amendments to Facility Operating Licenses No. DPR-38, DPR-47, and DPR-55 issued to Duke Power Company (the licensee) for operation of the Oconee Nuclear Station, Units 1, 2, and 3 (the facility), pressurized-water reactors located in Oconee County, South Carolina, and each currently authorized for operation at power levels up to 2568 MWt.

In accordance with the licensee's application for license amendments dated July 9, 1975, the amendments would modify operating limits in the Technical Specifications based upon an evaluation of ECCS performance calculated in accordance with an acceptable evaluation model that conforms to the requirements of the Commission's regulations in 10 CFR Section 50.46. The amendments would modify various limits established in accordance with the Commission's Interim Acceptance Criteria, and would, with respect to the Oconee Nuclear Station, Units 1, 2, and 3, terminate the further restrictions imposed by the Commission's December 27, 1974 Order for Modification of License, and would impose instead, limitations established in accordance with the Commission's Acceptance Criteria for Emergency Core Cooling Systems for Light Water Nuclear Power Reactors, 10 CFR Section 50.46.

Prior to issuance of the proposed license amendments, the Commission will have made the findings required by the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended (the Act), and the Commission's rules and regulations.

By 9-12-75, the licensee may file a request for a hearing and any person whose interest may be affected by this proceeding may file a request for a hearing in the form of a petition for leave to intervene with respect to the issuance of the amendments to the subject facility operating licenses. Petitions for leave to intervene must be filed under oath or affirmation in accordance with the provisions of Sectioin 2.714 of 10 CFR Part 2 of the Commission's regulations. A petition for leave to intervene must set forth the interest of the petitioner in the proceeding, how that interest may be affected by the results of the proceeding, and the petitioner's contentions with respect to the proposed licensing action. Such petitions must be filed in accordance with the provisions of this FEDERAL REGISTER Notice and Section 2.714, and must be filed with the Secretary of the Commission, U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, D.C. 20555, Attention: Docketing and Service Section, by the above date. A copy of the petition and/or request for a hearing should be sent to the Executive Legal Director, U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, D.C. 20555 and to Mr. Troy B. Conner, Conner, Hadlock & Knotts, 1747 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C. 20006, the attorney for the licensee.

A petition for leave to intervene must be accompanied by a supporting affidavit which identifies the specific aspect or aspects of the proceeding as to which intervention is desired and specifies with particularity the facts on which the petitioner relies as to both his interest and his contentions with regard to each aspect on which intervention is requested. Petitions stating contentions relating only to matters outside the Commission's jurisdiction will be denied.

All petitions will be acted upon by the Commission or licensing board designated by the Commission or by the Chairman of the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board Panel. Timely petitions will be considered to determine whether a hearing should be noticed or another appropriate order issued regarding the disposition of the petitions.

In the event that a hearing is held and a person is permitted to intervene, he becomes a party to the proceeding and has a right to participate fully in the conduct of the hearing. For example, he may present evidence and examine and cross-examine witnesses.

For further details with respect to this action, see (1) the application for amendments dated July 9, 1975, and (2) the Commission's Order for Modification of License and the documents referred to in the Order dated December 27, 1974 published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on January 9, 1975 (40 FR 1787), which are available for public inspection at the Commission's Public Document Room, 1717 H Street, NW., Washington, D.C., and at the Oconee County Library, 201 South Spring Street, Walhalla, South Carolina. The license amendments and the Safety Evaluation, when issued, may be inspected at the above locations, and a copy may be obtained upon request addressed to the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, D.C. 20555, Attention: Director, Division of Reactor Licensing.

REGULATORY GUIDE

Issuance and Availability

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has issued a guide in its Regulatory Guide

[1] The one major issue remaining unresolved under the Atomic Energy Act is compliance by the Applicant with the new Appendix I to 10 CFR Part 50.

Series. This series has been developed to describe and make available to the public methods acceptable to the NRC staff of implementing specific parts of the Commission's regulations and, in some cases, to delineate techniques used by the staff in evaluating specific problems or postulated accidents and to provide guidance to applicants concerning certain of the information needed by the staff in its review of applications for permits and licenses.

Regulatory Guide 1.14, Revision 1, "Reactor Coolant Pump Flywheel Integrity," describes a method acceptable to the NRC staff of implementing requirements with regard to minimizing the potential for failures of the flywheels of reactor coolant pump motors in light-water-cooled power reactors.

Comments and suggestions in connection with (1) items for inclusion in guides currently being developed (listed below) or (2) improvements in all published guides are encouraged at any time. Public comments on Regulatory Guide 1.14, Revision 1, will, however, be particularly useful in evaluating the need for an early revision if received by October 9, 1975.

Comments should be sent to the Secretary of the Commission, U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, D.C. 20555, Attention: Docketing and Service Section.

CONSUMERS POWER CO.

Proposed Issuance of Amendment to Provisional Operating License

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission (the Commission) is considering the issuance of an amendment to Provisional Operating License No. DPR-20 issued to Consumers Power Company (the licensee) for operation of the Palisades Plant (the facility), located in Van Buren County, Michigan.

The present license requires that at the end of no more than 90 effective full power days or no more than 9 calendar months of operation from the initial criticality after February 1975, (which occurred March 28, 1975) whichever occurs first, an inspection of the steam generator tubes will be conducted in accordance with the requirements of Regulatory Guide 1.83, 'Inservice Inspection of Pressurized Water Reactor Steam Generator Tubes' (issued June 1974) as that guide applies to inspections after the baseline inspection.

The proposed amendment would increase the allowable operation time to 135 effective full power days before the next inspection. The requirement to conduct an inspection at the end of 9 calendar months would be retained in its present form. The amendment is proposed by the licensee's application for amendment dated August 5, 1975, as supplemented by letter dated August 6, 1975.

Prior to issuance of the proposed license amendment, the Commission will have made the findings required by the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended (the Act), and the Commission's rules and regulations.

By September 12, 1975, the licensee may file a request for a hearing and any person whose interest may be affected by this proceeding may file a request for a hearing in the form of a petition for leave to intervene with respect to the issuance of the amendment to the subject provisional operating license. Petitions for leave to intervene must be filed under oath or affirmation in accordance with the provisions of § 2.714 of 10 CFR Part 2 of the Commission's regulations. A petition for leave to intervene must set forth the interest of the petitioner in the proceeding, how that interest may be affected by the results of the proceeding, and the petitioner's contentions with respect to the proposed licensing action. Such petitions must be filed in accordance with the provisions of this FEDERAL REGISTER Notice and § 2.714, and must be filed with the Secretary of the Commission, U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, D.C. 20555, Attention: Docketing and Service Section, by the above date. A copy of the petition and/or request for a hearing should be sent to the Executive Legal Director, U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, D.C. 20555 and to M. I. Miller, Esquire, Isham, Lincoln & Beale, Suite 4200, One First National Plaza, Chicago, Illinois 60670 and J. L. Bacon, Esquire, Consumers Power Company, 212 West Michigan Avenue, Jackson, Michigan 49201, the attorneys for the licensee.

A petition for leave to intervene must be accompanied by a supporting affidavit which identifies the specific aspect or aspects of the proceeding as to which intervention is desired and specifies with particularity the facts on which the petitioner relies as to both his interest and his contentions with regard to each aspect on which intervention is requested. Petitions stating contentions relating only to matters outside the Commission's jurisdiction will be denied.

All petitions will be acted upon by the Commission or licensing board designated by the Commission or by the Chairman of the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board Panel. Timely petitions will be considered to determine whether a hearing should be noticed or another appropriate order issued regarding the disposition of the petitions.

In the event that a hearing is held and a person is permitted to intervene, he becomes a party to the proceeding and has a right to participate fully in the conduct of the hearing. For example, he may present evidence and examine and cross-examine witnesses.

For further details with respect to this action, see the application for amendment dated August 5, 1975 as supplemented by letter dated August 6, 1975, which are available for public inspection at the Commission's Public Document Room, 1717 H Street, NW, Washington, D.C., and at the Kalamazoo Public Library, 315 South Rose Street, Kalamazoo, Michigan 49006. The Safety Evaluation, when issued, may be inspected at the above locations, and a copy may be obtained upon request addressed to the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Washington, D.C. 20555, Attention: Director, Division of Reactor Licensing.

Dated at Bethesda, Maryland, this eighth day of August, 1975.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE ON REACTOR SAFEGUARDS, SUBCOMMITTEE ON WESTINGHOUSE WATER REACTORS

Meeting

In accordance with the purposes of Sections 29 and 182 b. of the Atomic Energy Act (42 U.S.C. 2039, 2232 b.), the ACRS Subcommittee on Westinghouse Water Reactors will hold a meeting on August 28, 1975 at the Host Airport Hotel, Houston Intercontinental Airport, Houston, Texas 77060. The purpose of this meeting is to continue the review of the Westinghouse RESAR-41 reference system and standard safety analysis report.

The agenda for the subject meeting shall be as follows:

Thursday, August 28, 1975, 9:00 a.m. until the conclusion of business. The Subcommittee will meet with representatives of the NRC Staff and the Westinghouse Electric Corporation, the Applicant.

In connection with the above agenda item, the Subcommittee will hold Executive Sessions, not open to the public, at 8:30 a.m. and at the end of the day to consider matters relating to the above application. These sessions will involve an exchange of opinions and discussion of preliminary views and recommendations of Subcommittee members and internal deliberations for the purpose of formulating recommendations to the ACRS.

In addition to Executive Sessions, the Subcommittee may hold closed sessions with representatives of the NRC Staff and Applicant for the purpose of discussing privileged information concerning plant physical security and other matters related to plant design, construction, and operation, if necessary.

I have determined, in accordance with Subsection 10(d) of Public Law 92-463, that the above-noted Executive Sessions will consist of an exchange of opinions and formulation of recommendations, the discussion of which, if written, would fall within exemption (5) of 5 U.S.C. 552 (b) and that a closed session may be held, if necessary to discuss certain documents and information which are privileged and fall within exemption (4) of 5 U.S.C. 552 (b). Further, any non-exempt material that will be discussed during the above closed sessions will be inextricably intertwined with exempt material, and no further separation of this material is considered practical. It is essential to close such portions of the meeting to protect the free interchange of internal views, to avoid undue interference with agency or Subcommittee operation, and to avoid public disclosure of proprietary information.

Practical considerations may dictate alterations in the above agenda or schedule.

The Chairman of the Subcommittee is empowered to conduct the meeting in a manner that, in his judgment, will facilitate the orderly conduct of business, including provisions to carry over an incompleted open session from one day to the next.

With respect to public participation in the open portion of the meeting, the following requirements shall apply:

(a) Persons wishing to submit written statements regarding the agenda items may do so by mailing a readily reproducible copy thereof, postmarked no later than August 21, 1975 to the Executive Secretary, ACRS, NRC, Wash., D.C. 20555. Background information concerning items to be discussed at the meeting can be found in the Preliminary Safety Analysis Report for this project and related documents on file and available for public inspection at the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's Public Document Room, 1717 H St., NW., Wash. D.C. 20555. Comments which fail to meet the specified mailing date noted above will be considered to the extent practicable.

(b) Those persons submitting a written statement in accordance with paragraph (a) above may request an opportunity to make oral statements concerning the written statement. Such requests shall accompany the written statement so that appropriate arrangements can be made. To the extent that time available for the meeting permits, the Subcommittee will receive oral statements at an appropriate time chosen by the Chairman of the Subcommittee.

(c) Further information regarding topics to be discussed, whether the meeting has been cancelled or rescheduled, the Chairman's ruling on requests for opportunity to present oral statements and the time allotted, can be obtained by a prepaid telephone call on August 27, 1975 to the Office of the Executive Secretary of the Committee, (telephone 202/634-1371, ATTN: Mr. M. W. Libarkin) between 8:15 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., Eastern Daylight Time.

(d) Questions may be propounded only by members of the Subcommittee and its consultants.

(e) Seating for the public will be available on a first-come, first-served basis.

(f) The use of still, motion picture, and television cameras, the physical installation and presence of which will not interfere with the conduct of the meeting, will be permitted both before and after the meeting and during any recess. The use of such equipment will, not, however, be allowed while the meeting is in session.

(g) Persons desiring to attend portions of the meeting where proprietary information, other than plant security information, is to be discussed may do so by providing to the Executive Secretary, ACRS, NRC, Wash., D.C. 20555, seven days prior to the meeting a copy of an executed agreement with the owner of the proprietary information to safeguard this material.

(h) A copy of the transcript of the open portion of the meeting will be available for inspection on or after September 2, 1975 in the NRC Public Document Room, 1717 H St., N.W., Wash., D.C. 20555. Copies of the transcript may be reproduced in the Public Document Room or may be obtained from Ace Federal Reporters, Inc., 415 Second Street, N.E., Wash., D.C. 20002 (telephone 202/547-6222) upon payment of appropriate charges.

(i) On request, copies of the minutes of the meeting will be made available for inspection at the NRC Public Document Room, 1717 H St., N.W., Wash., D.C. 20555 after November 28, 1975. Copies may be obtained upon payment of appropriate charges.

Dated: August 11, 1975.

AUGUST 8, 1975.

The following publications include motor carrier, water carrier, broker, freight forwarder and rail proceedings indexed as follows: (1) grants of authority requiring republication prior to certification; (2) notices of filing of petitions for modification of existing authorities; (3) new operating right's applications directly related to and processed on a consolidated record with finance applications filed under Sections 5(2) and 212(b); (4) notices of filing of Sections 5(2) and 210a(b) finance applications; and (5) notices of filing of Section 212(b) transfer applications.

Each applicant (except as otherwise specifically noted) states that there will be no significant effect on the quality of the human environment resulting from approval of its application in compliance with the requirements of 49 C.F.R. § 1100.250.

Protests to the granting of the requested authority must be filed with the Commission within 30 days after the date of this FEDERAL REGISTER notice (unless otherwise specified). Failure seasonably to file a protest will be construed as a waiver of opposition and participation in the proceeding. A protest should comply with section 247(d) or section 240(c) as appropriate of the Commission's General Rules of Practice which requires that it set forth specifically the grounds upon which it is made, contain a detailed statement of protestant's interest in the proceeding (including a copy of the specific portions of its authority which protestant believes to be in conflict with that sought in the application, and a detailed description of the method—whether by joinder, interline, or other means—by which protestant would use such authority to provide all or part of the service proposed), and shall specify with particularity the facts, matters, and things relied upon, but shall not include issues or allegations phrased generally. Protests not in reasonable compliance with the requirements of the rules may be rejected. The original and one (1) copy of the protest (except for petitions and Finance Dockets under Rule 40 requiring the original and six (6) copies of the protest) shall be filed with the Commission, and a copy shall be served concurrently upon applicant's or petitioner's representative, or applicant or petitioner if no representative is named. If the protest includes a request for oral hearing, such requests shall meet the requirements of section 247(d)(4) or section 240(c)(4) of the special rules, and shall include the certification required therein.

No. MC 111812 (Sub-No. 509) (Republication), filed August 26, 1974, and published in the FEDERAL REGISTER issue of September 26, 1974, republished as amended in the FEDERAL REGISTER issue of March 20, 1975, and republished this issue. Applicant: MIDWEST COAST TRANSPORT, INC., 900 West Delaware, P.O. Box 1233, Sioux Falls, S. Dak. 57104. Applicant's representative: Ralph H. Jinks (same address as applicant). An Initial Decision of the Commission, Administrative Law Judge George P. Morin, served June 24, 1975, became the Order of the Commission on July 24, 1975, was served August 1, 1975, and finds that the present and future public convenience and necessity require operation by applicant as a common carrier, by motor vehicle, over irregular routes, of Frozen foods (except commodities in bulk), from the facilities of Terminal Ice and Cold Storage Co., at Clearfield, Utah, to points in Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and the District of Columbia, restricted to traffic having a prior movement by rail or originating at the facilities of Terminal Ice & Cold Storage Co., at Clearfield, Utah, and destined to points in the named destination States; that applicant is fit, willing and able properly to perform such service and to conform to the requirements of the Interstate Commerce Act and the Commission's rules and regulations thereunder.

The purpose of this republication is to indicate that Delaware and the District of Columbia have been added to the above destination territory. Because it is possible that other parties who have relied upon the notice of the application as published, may have an interest in and would be prejudiced by the lack of proper notice of the authority described above, issuance of a certificate in the proceeding will be withheld for a period of 30 days from the date of this publication of the authority actually granted, during which period any proper party in interest may file an appropriate petition for intervention or other relief in this proceeding setting forth in detail the precise manner in which it has been so prejudiced.

No. MC 112822 (Sub-No. 343) (Republication), filed August 8, 1974, and published in the FEDERAL REGISTER issue of September 12, 1974, and republished this issue. Morin, served June 24, 1975, became the Order of the Commission on July 24, 1975, was served August 1, 1975, and finds that the present and future public convenience and necessity require operation by applicant as a common carrier, by motor vehicle, over irregular routes, of Frozen foods (except commodities in bulk, in tank vehicles), (1) from points in Idaho to Clearfield, Utah, and (2) from Clearfield, Utah, to points in Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia, and Wisconsin, restricted in (1) to traffic originating at points in Idaho and to be stored in transit at Clearfield, Utah, and in (2) to traffic either originating at or moving from storage at the warehouse facilities of Terminal Ice & Cold Storage Co., at Clearfield, Utah; that applicant is fit, willing and able properly to perform such service and to conform to the requirements of the Interstate Commerce Act and the Commission's rules and regulations thereunder. The purpose of this republication is to indicate that Illinois has been added to the destination territory in (2) above, and to indicate that the restriction pertaining to (2) above has been modified to allow the transportation of traffic moving from storage at the named warehouse facilities.

Because it is possible that other parties who have relied upon the notice of the application as published, may have an interest in and would be prejudiced by the lack of proper notice of the authority described above, issuance of a certificate in this proceeding will be withheld for a period of 30 days from the date of this publication of the authority actually granted, during which period any proper party in interest may file an appropriate petition for intervention or other relief in this proceeding setting forth in detail the precise manner in which it has been so prejudiced.

The purpose of this republication is to indicate that points in New Jersey have been added as destination points.

Because it is possible that other parties who have relied upon the notice of the application as published, may have an interest in and would be prejudiced by the lack of proper notice of the authority described above, issuance of a Certificate in this proceeding will be withheld for a period of 30 days from the date of this publication of the authority actually granted, during which period any proper party in interest may file an appropriate petition for intervention or other relief in the proceeding setting forth in detail the precise manner in which it has been so prejudiced.

The purpose of this republication is to indicate that the restriction in the above authority has been modified to allow the transportation of traffic moving from storage at the named facility.

Because it is possible that other parties who have relied upon the notice of the application as published, may have an interest in and would be prejudiced by the lack of proper notice of the authority described above, issuance of a certificate in this proceeding will be withheld for a period of 30 days from the date of this publication of the authority actually granted, during which period any proper party in interest may file an appropriate petition for intervention or other relief in this proceeding setting forth in detail the precise manner in which it has been so prejudiced.

A Decision and Order of the Commission, Review Board Number 1, dated July 28, 1975, and served July 31, 1975, finds that the present and future public convenience and necessity require operation in interstate commerce by applicant, as a common carrier, by motor vehicle, over irregular routes, of pallets, shooks, and wood chips, from Cairo, Ga., to points in Florida; that applicant is fit, willing, and able properly to perform such service, and to conform to the requirements of the Interstate Commerce Act and the Commission's rules and regulations thereunder. The purpose of this republication is to indicate that the commodity description has been broadened to include wood chips. Because it is possible that other parties who have relied upon the notice of the application as published, may have an interest in and would be prejudiced by the lack of proper notice of the authority described above, issuance of a certificate in this proceeding will be withheld for a period of 30 days from the date of this publication of the authority actually granted, during which period any proper party in interest may file an appropriate petition for intervention or other relief in this proceeding setting forth in detail the precise manner in which it has been so prejudiced.

The purpose of this republication is to indicate that the territorial description has been modified to include Laredo, Tex. as the destination point in lieu of the port of entry on the International Boundary line between the United States and the Republic of Mexico located at or near Eagle Pass, Tex., as originally published. Because it is possible that other parties who have relied upon the notice of the application as published, may have an interest in and would be prejudiced by the lack of proper notice of the authority described above, issuance of a Certificate in this proceeding will be withheld for a period of 30 days from the date of this publication of the authority actually granted, during which period any proper party in interest may file an appropriate petition for intervention or other relief in this proceeding setting forth in detail the precise manner in which it has been so prejudiced.

The purpose of this republication is to indicate the addition of Pennsylvania as a destination point. Because it is possible that other parties who have relied upon the notice of the application as published, may have an interest in and would be prejudiced by the lack of proper notice of the authority described above, issuance of a Certificate in this proceeding will be withheld for a period of 30 days from the date of this publication of the authority actually granted, during which period any proper party in interest may file an appropriate petition for intervention or other relief in this proceeding setting forth in detail the precise manner in which it has been so prejudiced.

The purpose of this republication is to indicate that the correct origin point is located in Los Angeles County, Calif., instead of Orange County, Calif., as originally published. Because it is possible that other parties who have relied upon the notice of the application as published, may have an interest in and would be prejudiced by the lack of proper notice of the authority described above, issuance of a Certificate in this proceeding will be withheld for a period of 30 days from the date of this publication of the authority actually granted, during which period any proper party in interest may file an appropriate petition for intervention or other relief in this proceeding setting forth in detail the precise manner in which it has been so prejudiced.

CITIES SERVICE OIL CO.

Application

AUGUST 6, 1975.

Take notice that on July 28, 1975, Cities Service Oil Company (Applicant), P.O. Box 300, Tulsa, Oklahoma 74102, filed in Docket No. CI76-58 an application pursuant to Section 7(c) of the Natural Gas Act for a certificate of public convenience and necessity authorizing the sale of natural gas from the West Cameron Block 177, offshore Louisiana, to Tennessee Gas Pipeline Company, a Division of Tenneco Inc. (Tennessee), all as more fully set forth in the application on file with the Commission and open to public inspection.

Applicant states that it has entered into a gas purchase and sales agreement with Tennessee dated May 22, 1975, that provides for the sale of natural gas to Tenneco from 75 percent of Applicant's interest in gas produced in the West Cameron Block 177, in the interval between the subsea surface and the gas of the OC sand.

Applicant proposes to sell approximately 30,000 Mcf of gas per month at 52.53 cents per Mcf, at 15.025 psia including a gathering charge of 0.51 cent per Mcf of gas and subject to an upward and downward Btu adjustment from the base of 1,000 Btu per cubic foot. Applicant states that it would retain the remaining 25 percent interest in the gas for its own use under an option that must be exercised within 3 years. It is stated that the retained reserves would be transported ashore by Tennessee.

Any person desiring to be heard or to make any protest with reference to said application should on or before August 29, 1975, file with the Federal Power Commission, Washington, D.C. 20426, a petition to intervene or a protest in accordance with the requirements of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10). All protests filed with the Commission will be considered by it in determining the appropriate action to be taken but will not serve to make the protestants parties to the proceeding. Any person wishing to become a party to a proceeding or to participate as a party in any hearing therein must file a petition to intervene in accordance with the Commission's Rules.

Take further notice that, pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by Sections 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act and the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, a hearing will be held without further notice before the Commission on this application if no petition to intervene is filed within the time required herein, if the Commission on its own review of the matter finds that a grant of the certificate is required by the public convenience and necessity. If a petition for leave to intervene is timely filed, or if the Commission on its own motion believes that a formal hearing is required, further notice of such hearing will be duly given.

Under the procedure herein provided for, unless otherwise advised, it will be unnecessary for Applicant to appear or be represented at the hearing.

COLORADO INTERSTATE GAS CO.

Application

AUGUST 7, 1975.

Take notice that on July 29, 1975, Colorado Interstate Gas Company, a division of Colorado Interstate Corporation (Applicant), P.O. Box 1087, Colorado Springs, Colorado 80944, filed in Docket No. CP76-34 an application pursuant to Section 7(c) of the Natural Gas Act for a certificate of public convenience and necessity authorizing the consolidation of sales and deliveries of natural gas under its two service agreements with Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas Company, Inc. (Kansas-Nebraska), all as more fully set forth in the application on file with the Commission and open to public inspection.

Applicant states that it currently sells natural gas to Kansas-Nebraska under Applicant's Rate Schedule P-1 pursuant to two service agreements. Applicant further states that the first of these provides for a firm contract demand volume of 5,000 Mcf of gas daily to be delivered on a year-round basis at a sales meter station located in Finney County, Kansas, and for deliveries at six minor highline taps, with a total annual contract demand of 1,825,000 Mcf of gas. The second is stated to provide for a contract demand volume of 21,240 Mcf of gas daily to be delivered at Applicant's Weld County Sales Meter Station, and is stated to be effective for the months of March through November, with no delivery obligation during the months of December, January, or February. The total annual delivery demand under the second agreement is said to be 5,840,000 Mcf of gas.

Applicant requests authorization in the instant application to consolidate sales and deliveries under its two service agreements and would transfer the deliveries currently being made at the Finney County delivery point to the Weld County delivery point. Applicant states that such sales and deliveries would be made under a new service agreement effective October 1, 1975.

Applicant states that the proposed service would not change the total annual delivery obligation, but that it would reduce its daily delivery obligation to Kansas-Nebraska during the months of December, January and February from 5,000 Mcf of gas to 1,000 Mcf of gas and increase its daily delivery volumes through the remainder of the year from 26,240 Mcf to 27,545 Mcf of gas. The 1,000 Mcf daily winter delivery obligation would be used to supply the demands of the six highline taps covered under the service agreement it is stated. Applicant alleges that the proposed changes would allow Kansas-Nebraska to increase its takes from reserves that it controls in the Kansas area without having to change facilities or operations and would also benefit Applicant by reducing the volumes of gas to be delivered in the coldest months of the year.

The application states that the increase in deliveries to Kansas-Nebraska at Weld County would not substantially affect the total delivery capacity of Applicant's Wyoming pipeline, although less gas will be delivered to Denver from that system. Conversely, it is stated more gas would not available to Applicant's transmission system for delivery to Denver from its Southern System. Sufficient capacity is said to exist in the Southern System to accommodate the increased flow rate.

Any person desiring to be heard or to make any protest with reference to said application should on or before August 29, 1975, file with the Federal Power Commission, Washington, D.C. 20426, a petition to intervene or a protest in accordance with the requirements of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10) and the Regulations under the Natural Gas Act (18 CFR 157.10). All protests filed with the Commission will be considered by it in determining the appropriate action to be taken but will not serve to make the protestants parties to the proceeding. Any person wishing to become a party to a proceeding or to participate as a party in any hearing therein must file a petition to intervene in accordance with the Commission's Rules.

Take further notice that, pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by Sections 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act and the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, a hearing will be held without further notice before the Commission on this application if no petition to intervene is filed within the time required herein, if the Commission on its own review of the matter finds that a grant of the certificate is required by the public convenience and necessity. If a petition for leave to intervene is timely filed, or if the Commission on its own motion believes that a formal hearing is required, further notice of such hearing will be duly given.

Under the procedure herein provided for, unless otherwise advised, it will be unnecessary for Applicant to appear or be represented at the hearing.

INDIANA & MICHIGAN ELECTRIC CO.

Order Denying Petition for Rehearing

AUGUST 6, 1975.

On January 29, 1975, Indiana & Michigan Electric Company (I&M) tendered for filing, in three separate submittals, proposed changes in its wholesale for resale rates to the Cities of Anderson (E-9233), Richmond (E-9239), and Auburn (E-9258), Indiana. The rate increases proposed in such filings reflected a 15.22% surcharge upon all charges, exclusive of fuel cost adjustment, then being collected from the three customers. The proposed increases were intended to track the 15.22% increase in I&M's retail Tariff IP which was granted as interim emergency rate relief by a January 23, 1975, order of the Public Service Commission of Indiana (PSCI).

In letters transmitting the subject filings, I&M requested waiver of any and all of the filing requirements under Section 35 of our Regulations on grounds that (1) the service agreements between I&M and Anderson, Richmond and Auburn call for an automatic adjustment of the rates charged by I&M if charges in I&M's retail Tariff IP are approved by PSCI, and (2) the proposed increase to each of the three cities is supported by the cost of service study tendered by I&M in Docket No. E-7740. I&M also requested that the proposed increase be applicable to all bills rendered on and after January 23, 1975. Finally, I&M stated that the filing with respect to Auburn was merely "protective" since Auburn was then, as now, being served under Tariff WS.[1]

[1] I&M explained that the Auburn filing was "protective" in the event Auburn ultimately prevails in its contention that it has a contractual right to elect to remain on Tariff IP.

Upon review of I&M's three filings, we found that they were deficient with respect to certain filing requirements. Accordingly, by letter dated February 19, 1975, the Commission Secretary informed I&M that its filings were deficient under Section 35.13 of the Regulations. The Secretary further informed I&M that it should submit all data required by Section 35.13, including Period II if the amount of the increase is in excess of $1 million for the three customers. I&M was notified that a filing date would not be assigned its submittals until the deficiencies were cured.

On March 3, 1975, I&M filed an application for rehearing of the Commission Secretary's letter order of February 19, 1975. In said application, I&M renewed its contention that the E–7740 cost of service study supports the subject filings. As further support, I&M tendered material identical to that submitted to PSCI in the aforementioned Tariff IP proceedings before that commission. Finally, I&M asserted that it is not required to file Period II data in this proceeding, since none of the three filings exceeds $1 million. Moreover, I&M contended, even if the three filings were aggregated, they still would not exceed $1 million.

By order issued April 2, 1975, the Commission, finding that the proposed increases did not aggregate $1 million, granted, in part, I&M's application for rehearing, thereby relieving I&M from the requirement of filing Period II data. In all other respects, I&M's application for rehearing was denied.

On May 14, 1975, I&M tendered for filing cost of service data for calendar year 1974 for each of its three filings. I&M renewed its request that these filings, and the increases proposed thereby, be applicable to all bills rendered by I&M on and after January 23, 1975. I&M repeated its earlier statement that the filing with respect to Auburn was intended to be "protective" only. With respect to Anderson, I&M requested (1) that the filing be made effective only for the "locked in" period January 23, 1975, through April 16, 1975, and (2) that it remain as a "protective" filing thereafter, since I&M began service to Anderson under Tariff WS as of April 17, 1975.

By order issued June 13, 1975, we rejected each of the three filings. The Richmond filing was rejected because of its failure to substantially comply with the filing requirements of Section 35.13 of our Regulations. Rejection of the Auburn and Anderson "protective" filings was premised on our finding that under the Federal Power Act we have no authority to accept a rate for filing and hold it in abeyance, as we would be compelled to do if such "protective" filings were accepted.

On July 14, 1974, I&M filed a Petition for Rehearing of our June 13, 1975, order. In said petition, I&M contends that we erred in our June 13 order in the following respects:

(1) That our failure to waive certain of the filing requirements of our Regulations constitutes an abuse of discretion;

(2) That under the terms of our April 2, 1975, order, I&M was required to submit only cost of service support to cure the deficiencies in its January 29, 1975, filings;

(3) That our statement that the Richmond filing would not have been given a retroactive effective date was an "erroneous declaratory provision"; and

(4) That we erred in rejecting I&M's "protective" filings or, in the alternative, in not advising I&M in an earlier order that acceptance of such filings is beyond our authority.

We shall discuss each of these contentions separately.

I&M argues firstly that our refusal to waive compliance with that portion or our Regulations requiring testimony and exhibits supporting the proposed increase was an abuse of discretion, since the cost of service study is "self explanatory". Moreover, I&M contends, no testimony is required "to justify rates which result in a rate of return which is negative."

Our review of the Richmond filing indicated that, contrary to I&M's contention, the proposed increase would not have resulted in a negative rate of return. However, in making such contention, as well as in arguing that the cost of service study is "self-explanatory", I&M fails to understand the purpose of that portion of our Regulations here in question. As the Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit has stated, ". . . the purpose of . . . the regulations is to assure that the rate filing will provide the FPC with the necessary information from which it can reach an informed and equitable decision as to the necessity for an investigation, hearing, and suspension, and to permit the Commission and parties in interest with meaningful opportunity to prepare for any proceeding." (emphasis supplied).[3] Although the court in that instance was concerned with certain other requirements of our Regulations, we believe that the quoted language is applicable to our filing requirements in general. In the instant case, we believe that the type of preparation referred to by the court could not be undertaken by our Staff and other parties in interest without the testimony and exhibits which I&M failed to submit. It was this context in which we found that the Richmond filing did not substantially comply with our regulations. We fail to see how such finding, or our failure to waive the requirement in question, constitutes an abuse of discretion.

I&M also contends that the language of our April 2, 1975, order required that only cost of service support be submitted to cure the deficiencies in the subject filings. In making this argument, I&M chooses to ignore the clear and unambiguous portion of the order wherein we stated: ". . . we find that I&M has neither rendered substantial compliance with Section 35.13 of our Regulations, nor shown good cause for waiver of same. The filings in question remain deficient, therefore, and filing dates will not be assigned until such deficiencies have been cured in accordance with Section 35.13" (emphasis supplied).[3] We believe that the language of the order considered as a whole, and especially that portion of the order emphasized above, clearly and fairly apprised I&M that substantial compliance with Section 35.13 was required, and that cost of service support alone would not be sufficient.

I&M argues further that we erred in stating "[a]ssuming arguendo that the Richmond filing had substantially complied with our Regulations, I&M's request for a retroactive effective date would have been rejected . . . "[4] While admittedly not required to meet the issue of the proper effective date for the Richmond filing, since said filing had previously been rejected in that same order, we nevertheless made such finding in response to I&M's repeated requests for retroactive effective dates for each of its three filings. As noted in the June 13, 1975, order, our decision on this issue has been previously contested by I&M and such decision has been affirmed.[5] Under these circumstances, we fail to see how the "declaratory statement" in question constitutes error on our part.

The fourth and final error in our June 13, 1975, order, I&M submits, was our finding that aceptance of "protective" filings is beyond our authority under the Federal Power Act. In this regard, I&M contends that in an order issued December 28, 1973, in Docket No. E–7740, ". . . the Commission . . . stated that I&M could employ just such a separate filing as it here attempted to do." I&M further questions our failure to advise the Company in previous orders in these dockets that we are without authority to accept "protective filings.

I&M misconstrues our December 28, 1973, order in Docket No. E–7740. By no means did we intend to suggest therein that a utility, when faced with a decision as to what is a valid filing, may tender two filings and have one accepted as "protective". Rather, as we said in that order, "It is incumbent upon the Company to determine initially what it believes to be a valid action. Only after that initial action is taken may this Commission rule upon it."[6] Moreover, in our opinion, the mere possibility of reversal by a court of review cannot extend our authority to accept for filing more than one rate at any point in time.

As to our failure to state in previous orders that we could not accept "protective" filings, we simply had not yet determined that such action would be beyond our authority under the Act. It is for this reason, and none other, that we failed to advise I&M of our conclusions on this issue.

The Commission finds:

I&M's July 14, 1975, Petition for Rehearing of our June 13, 1975, order in these dockets presents no facts or principles of law which would provide an appropriate basis for modification or amendment of said order.

The Commission orders:

(A) I&M's Petition for Rehearing of our June 13, 1975, order in these dockets is hereby denied.

(B) The Secretary shall cause prompt publication of this order to be made in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

KANSAS GAS & ELECTRIC CO.

Order Accepting for Filing and Suspending Filing and Establishing Procedures

AUGUST 6, 1975.

On June 9, 1975, as completed on July 14, 1975, Kansas Gas and Electric Company (Kansas Gas) tendered for filing proposed changes in its FPC jurisdictional Electric Service Rate Schedule Nos. 87, 89, 98, 110, 113, 126, 128, 129, 131, 132 and 134. These are schedules to Electric Interconnection Contracts or Agreements affecting eleven wholesale customers.[1] The proposed amendments would increase revenues from jurisdictional sales and service to these wholesale customers by approximately $195,080 (11.45%) based on estimated sales for the year ending June 30, 1975. In addition, Kansas Gas has filed a fuel clause adjustment rider applicable to the abovementioned FPC Rate Schedules intended to conform with Section 35.14 of the Commission's Regulations, as amended by Order No. 517.

Public notice of Kansas Gas' filing was issued June 19, 1975, with protests or petitions to intervene due on or before July 10, 1975. To date no responses have been received.

We note that Kansas Gas states as support for its proposed increase in rates and charges that, "Its earnings must be increased to assure continued confidence in the financial integrity of the business which will enable it to maintain its credit and attract the necessary additional capital on reasonable terms to finance its approximate $545 million construction program through 1979"[2], and that its construction budget for the next ten years is $1.3 billion. All parties submitting evidence in this case should therefore address the issues raised by the company's statements, including but not limited to the reasonableness of Kansas Gas' alleged financing requirements, how their recommended rates of return will permit Kansas Gas to meet those requirements, and the meaning of the phrase "reasonable term". Rate of return witnesses in this proceeding should further address themselves to Kansas Gas' statements (1) that its earnings decreased from $2.60 in 1972 to $2.44 in the test year ended March 31, 1975, (2) that Kansas Gas will have to raise some $403 million from new investors in the next five years, (3) that Kansas Gas has plans that call for selling 800,000 shares of common stock (even though none has been sold since 1963) and $40,000,000 of first mortgage bonds during the latter part of June, 1975, (4) that the requested rate of return (7.75%) will provide the company less than a full rate of return (said to be in the range of 8.52% to 8.82%) on the property used and useful in serving its municipal wholesale customers, (5) that the requested return is basically the same as that approved with respect to Kansas Gas' Rural Electric Cooperative customers in Docket No. E–9260, and Public Utility Resale Customers in Docket No. E–9349, (6) that Kansas Gas was granted an $8.3 million rate increase in April, 1974, and a $5.2 million increase in November, 1974 by the State Corporation Commission of Kansas, and has another $12 million retail rate increase pending, (7) that the cost of first mortgage bonds increased from 3.85% in 1969 to 6.32% currently, (8) that the price/earnings ratio on common stock fell from about 20 times in 1965 to about the present 6¼ times, and (9) that bond coverage has dropped from 8.11 times in 1964 to 2.50 times in the test year.

Our review indicates that the proposed changes in its FPC Jurisdictional Electric Service Rate Schedule, tendered herein by Kansas Gas, have not been shown to be just and reasonable and may be unjust, unreasonable, unduly discriminatory or otherwise illegal. Our review further indicates that the design and format of Kansas Gas' proposed fuel adjustment clause rider is not in conformance with Order No. 517 in that it does not provide for a reduction in the total cost of fuel by the cost of fuel recovered through inter-system sales. Accordingly, we shall accept Kansas Gas' proposed changes for filing, suspend their effectiveness for a period of five months, and establish procedures.

The Commission finds:

It is necessary and proper in the public interest and to aid in the enforcement of the provisions of the Federal Power Act that the Commission enter upon a hearing concerning the lawfulness of the rates and charges contained in Kansas Gas' revised rate schedules proposed in this docket and that the tendered rate schedules be suspended as hereinafter provided.

The Commission orders:

(A) Pursuant to authority of the Federal Power Act, particularly Section 205 thereof, and the Commission's Rules and Regulations (18 CFR, Chapter I), a hearing for purposes of cross-examination concerning the lawfulness and reasonableness of the rates and charges in Kansas Gas' FPC Rate Schedules, as proposed to be amended herein shall be held commencing on December 9, 1975, at 10:00 A.M., EST, in a hearing room of the Federal Power Commission, 825 North Capitol Street, N.E., Washington, D.C. 20426.

(B) Pending a hearing and a decision thereon, Kansas Gas' proposed changes in its rates and charges, tendered on July 14, 1975, are accepted for filing, and suspended for five months, the full statutory term, the use thereof deferred until January 14, 1976, subject to refund.

(C) On or before October 29, 1975, the Commission Staff shall serve its prepared testimony and exhibits. Should any party petition for and be granted intervention in this proceeding, said intervenor's evidence will be filed on or before November 11, 1975. Any rebuttal evidence by Kansas Gas shall be served on or before November 25, 1975.

(D) A Presiding Administrative Law Judge to be designated by the Chief Administrative Law Judge for that purpose, (See Delegation of Authority, 18 CFR 3.5(d)), shall preside at the hearing in this proceeding, shall prescribe relevant procedural matters not herein provided, and shall control this proceeding in accordance with the policies expressed in the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure.

(E) Nothing contained herein shall be construed as limiting the rights of parties to this proceeding regarding the convening of conferences or offers of settlement.

(F) The Secretary shall cause prompt publication of this order to be made in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

By the Commission.

MICHIGAN WISCONSIN PIPE LINE CO.

Order Approving Refund Report and Requiring Further Refunds

AUGUST 6, 1975.

On September 30, 1968, Michigan Wisconsin Pipe Line Company (Michigan Wisconsin) filed in Docket No. RP64–38 a report showing refunds made to its customers in the amount of $852,462.97 covering the period September 1, 1966, through May 31, 1968. These refunds represent the flow-through by Michigan Wisconsin of refunds received from its suppliers.

Notice of the filing of the subject refund report was issued on May 25, 1973, providing for protests or petitions to intervene to be filed on or before June 5, 1973. No protests, petitions to intervene or other comments have been received in response to the notice.

In addition to the above refunds of $852,462.97, Michigan Wisconsin's refund report shows an amount of $100,639.66 received by Michigan Wisconsin from Northern Natural Gas Company (Northern Natural). This $100,639.66 was refunded to Michigan Wisconsin by Northern Natural in the form of billing credits and is comprised of (1) $75,489 representing the flow-through of the tax benefits derived from the use of literalized depreciation for the last six months of 1967, and (2) $25,151 resulting from the fact that Congress did not pass a federal income tax surcharge affecting the year 1967. These refunds were made by Northern Natural under the terms of its Commission-approved rate settlement agreement in Docket No. RP67–20. Michigan Wisconsin has not flowed this amount through to its customers.

Michigan Wisconsin, in a letter dated December 14, 1968, takes the position that the $100,639.66 received from Northern Natural represents a temporary rate reduction, the disposition of which is governed by the provisions of Article IV, entitled "Future Supplier Rate Reductions", of its settlement agreement in Docket No. RP64–38. That article provides for a reduction in Michigan Wisconsin's rates in the event that its overall weighted average base cost of purchased gas is reduced by at least one-tenth of a cent below the average cost of 21.55 cents per Mcf utilized in determining its rates in Docket No. RP64–38. Michigan Wisconsin claims that the alleged temporary rate reduction was more than offset by rate increases of producers as allowed by Article IV, and that the net effect was to reduce Michigan Wisconsin's average cost of gas by less than the one-tenth of a cent necessary to effectuate a rate reduction.

Unfortunately, we cannot agree with Michigan Wisconsin's interpretation. It seems clear beyond any doubt that there is little, if any, practical or legal distinction to be made between a refund in the form of billing credits or in cash. In either case, the result is a refund. (See e.g. 42 F.P.C. 964). In the circumstances disclosed by this case, we find that the provisions of Article V of Michigan Wisconsin's rate settlement, entitled "Future Supplier Refunds", govern the transaction, rather than Article IV. Article V provides for the flow-through by Michigan Wisconsin of supplier refunds relating to gas purchases on and after September 1, 1966. We therefore find that the refund of $100,639.66 received by Michigan Wisconsin from Northern Natural must be flowed through to Michigan Wisconsin's jurisdictional customers. Since we are separately ordering the additional flow-through of refunds, and since Michigan Wisconsin's refund report of September 30, 1968, showing the disbursement of $852,462.97 appears correct in all respects as to the refunds there reported, such refund report will be approved.

The Commission orders:

(A) Michigan Wisconsin shall, within 30 days from the date of this order, disburse to its jurisdictional customers the sum of $100,639.66 plus any accrued interest, and shall file a report thereof with the Commission.

(B) The refund report filed by Michigan Wisconsin on September 30, 1968, showing the disbursement of refunds totaling $852,462.97 is hereby accepted and approved, subject to the terms of this order.

(C) The Secretary shall cause prompt publication of this order in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

PACIFIC POWER & LIGHT CO.

Application

AUGUST 6, 1975.

Take notice that on July 31, 1975, Pacific Power & Light Company (Applicant), a corporation organized under the laws of the State of Maine and qualified to transact business in the States of Oregon, Wyoming, Washington, California, Montana and Idaho, with its principal business office at Portland, Oregon, filed an application with the Federal Power Commission, pursuant to Section 204 of the Federal Power Act, seeking an order authorizing borrowings in an aggregate principal amount not exceeding $50,000,000 at any one time outstanding under a Loan Facility with certain banks.

Under such Loan Facility, Applicant would have the right to make borrowings not exceeding $50,000,000 at any one time outstanding through drawings under a revolving stand-by Loan Facility evidenced by a Letter Agreement to be dated as of September 18, 1975, between Applicant and Credit Suisse White Weld Limited as Agent for the Banks listed in said Letter Agreement. The duration of the Loan Facility would be for a period of 18 months. Under the Loan Facility, Applicant would have the right to make drawings from time to time in the amount of $1,000,000, or multiples thereof, for a period of one, three or six months, at Applicant's option, which borrowings would mature and be repaid on the last day of the chosen period, but in no event later than the termination date of the Loan Facility. Each drawing would be advanced by the Banks in the proportions of their respective commitments as set forth in said Letter Agreement.

Interest would be payable on each drawing at a rate per annum equal to a margin of 1 and ¼ percent per annum plus the rate equal to the arithmetic mean (which, if not a whole multiple of ⅛ of 1 percent, would be increased to the nearest whole multiple of ⅛ of 1 percent) of the rates at which deposits in United States Dollars are offered by prime banks in the London interbank market for periods of one, three or six months, whichever is appropriate, and would be fixed at 11 a.m. (London Time) two business days prior to the date on which the drawing is made. The interest would be payable on each drawing from the date thereof until actual repayment and would be calculated on the basis of the actual number of days elapsed divided by 360. Applicant will be under no requirement or understanding to maintain compensating balances with the Banks.

Applicant would pay a commitment commission in United States Dollars at the rate of ½ of 1 percent per annum from September 18, 1975 until the termination of the Loan Facility calculated on the basis of the actual number of days elapsed divided by 360 and on the daily unused portion of the Loan Facility payable ninety days in arrears from the date of signing the Letter Agreement for the Loan Facility.

Proceeds from the borrowings to be made under the Loan Facility would be used, in part, to temporarily finance Applicant's construction expenditures for 1975–1976 presently estimated at $591,486,000. The balance of funds required to meet estimated 1975–1976 construction expenditures is expected to come, in part, from short-term borowings presently authorized by the Commission and as the Commission may further authorize, and from further permanent financing later in 1975 and in 1976 of a type and magnitude not yet finally determined.

Any person desiring to be heard or to make any protest with reference to this application should, on or before August 22, 1975, file with the Federal Power Commission, Washington, D.C. 20426, petitions to intervene or protest in accordance with the requirements of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10). All protests filed with the Commission will be considered by it in determining the appropriate action to be taken but will not serve to make the protestants parties to the proceeding. Persons wishing to become parties to a proceeding or to participate as a party in any hearing therein must file petitions to intervene in accordance with the Commission's Rules. The application is on file with the Commission and available for public inspection.

TEXAS EASTERN TRANSMISSION CORP.

Order Directing Release and Flow-Through of Refunds

AUGUST 5, 1975.

The refunds in question relate to the period May 15, 1969, through October 1, 1969, and total $1,067,225.56 plus accrued interest.

Following judicial determination of its flow-through obligation, Texas Gas Transmission Corp. v. FPC, 441 F. 2d. 1392 (6th Cir. 1971), Texas Gas advised the Commission by letter dated July 12, 1973, that it would flow the Texas Eastern refunds through to its jurisdictional customers.

There appears to be no reason why the subject refunds should not now be released and flowed-through. It will be so ordered.

The Commission orders: (A) Texas Eastern shall, within 30 days from the date of this order, release to Texas Gas all of the refunds owed to Texas Gas and heretofore retained by Texas Eastern pursuant to the Commission's order issued herein on October 31, 1969, as amended, and shall file a report thereof with the Commission.

(B) Texas Gas shall, within 30 days of their receipt, flow the subject refunds through to its jurisdictional customers, and shall file a report thereof with the Commission.

(C) The Secretary shall cause prompt publication of this order in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

PART II:

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, EDUCATION, AND WELFARE

Public Health Service

NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE CORPS

Title 42—Public Health

CHAPTER I—PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE, DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, EDUCATION, AND WELFARE

PART 23—NATIONAL HEALTH SERVICE CORPS

On January 6, 1975, a notice of proposed rulemaking was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (40 FR 1204–1206) proposing a new Part 23 to implement section 2 of the Emergency Health Personnel Act Amendments of 1972 (P.L. 92–585), which amended section 329 of the Public Health Act, authorizing the establishment of the National Health Service Corps. The major changes proposed were as follows: (1) the Secretary, without regard to the existence or absence of an application for assignment of NHSC personnel, will designate those areas which have a critical health manpower shortage and publish periodically in the FEDERAL REGISTER a list of such designated areas, as well as the criteria utilized in making such designation; (2) provision is made for 90-days written notice, published in the FEDERAL REGISTER, before the Secretary may withdraw his designation of an area as one having a critical health manpower shortage; (3) three options are set forth for the reimbursement of the National Health Service Corps by applicants whereby in accordance with the authorizing legislation the Corps can recover its reasonable costs of providing services; (4) the charge to any person for services from assigned personnel shall be in accordance with a schedule of charges determined in consultation with the local medical, dental or other appropriate health society; and (5) the Secretary may approve an application without the certification of need from the State and district medical, dental, or other appropriate health societies when he finds that such certification has been arbitrarily and capriciously withheld.

Interested persons were afforded the opportunity to submit written comments or suggestions thereon. Twenty-three letters of comment were received. Following are summaries of the recommendations, notations of changes in the regulations, and explanations of how the regulations as originally proposed can apply to given situations described in letters of comment received.

1. Four comments were made to amend the regulations to establish a sliding scale that would apply to those who earn income over the Social Security poverty index level. First, section 23.8 (d) of the proposed regulations provides that no charge or a reduced charge shall be made for services provided to any person from a family whose annual income is below the higher of the Social Security poverty index level or the State figures for the "medically needy" as determined in accordance with the Aid to Dependent Children figures calculated by the Assistance Payments Administration. Further, where individuals are charged for services received, the proposed regulations in section 23.8(b) thereof allow each sponsoring agency to propose an appropriate fee schedule (including a sliding fee schedule) insuring further flexibility to accommodate individual community needs. The recommended changes therefore are viewed as unnecessary and have not been included in the regulations as here revised.

2. A comment was received expressing concern that, under the regulations, local applicant agencies would bear too large a burden of providing services to medically indigent persons who cannot pay for these services. Section 329 of the Public Health Services Act, which authorizes the National Health Service Corps Program, mandates that any individual who is determined to be unable to pay for health care or services provided under the Program must be provided such services at a reduced rate or no charge. This requirement is reflected in section 23.8(d) of the proposed regulations as summarized above. In recognition of the burden of this requirement on sites in which the community is sharing in the cost of the project, the proposed regulations in section 23.8(a)(2) thereof provide for a reimbursement option by which the Corps is reimbursed on a shared percentage basis of the total receipts collected, after certain preferential costs are paid. This option should serve to reduce the economic burden on participating communities.

3. One comment expressed concern that the involvement of the health planning agencies required in the proposed regulations will place an undue burden on the resources of such agencies unless there is a corresponding increase in staffing and funding. The comment stated that the collection of data for validation of a critical health manpower shortage area would require at least two full days of staff time.

Under the regulations as proposed, the health planning agencies did not have any role in the designation process for critical health manpower shortage areas. In response to a number of comments however (see item #4) this provision in the regulations (section 23.4) has been revised to provide for a consultation with such agencies by the Secretary prior to any designation. Further, such agencies will be notified of any proposed withdrawal of designation prior to any such action. In our view this revision does not impose any additional requirements on the health planning agencies, but instead simply offers them an opportunity to make such recommendations with respect to the designation of critical health manpower shortage areas as is within their resources. Further we would point out that while such agencies are also given an opportunity to make recommendations with respect to a proposed assignment of National Health Service Corps personnel, the proposed regulations (Section 23.6(a)) do not require that such agencies certify that such assignment is needed for the area. Accordingly, no revision has been made in the proposed regulation in this regard.

4. Eight recommendations were made to provide greater involvement of the State and regional planning agencies in the designation and withdrawal of designation process for critical health manpower shortage areas. As indicated above, the proposed regulations (section 23.4) have been strengthened in this regard and as revised require the Secretary to consult specifically with comprehensive health planning agencies in determining whether an area covered in whole or part by comprehensive health plans meets the criteria utilized under this program. In addition, such agencies will be specifically notified where there is a proposed withdrawal of designation.

5. Two recommendations were made for the addition of two other professions (optometrists and podiatrists) to those included in the definition of "assigned personnel" in section 23.2. Such section however in providing that assigned personnel include but is not limited to the named categories already provides the needed flexibility to include all appropriate health or health-related personnel, including optometrists and podiatrists, in assignments under the Corps program. The suggested change has not, therefore, been included.

6. One recommendation was made to add a new paragraph to section 23.7, "Assignment of Personnel," which would recognize the need of NHSC recruits for professional development and opportunities for "quality of living." It was suggested that the willingness of communities, and appropriate governmental and nongovernmental agencies, to assist and cooperate with the Public Health Service in achieving these goals be a criteria for assignment of personnel.

Through an intensive process of recruitment and matching in the assignment of NHSC personnel with applicant communities the NHSC makes every reasonable effort to place personnel in communities which most clearly fit their mutual desires and goals. Further, the NHSC has established an extensive technical assistance and support network which provides recurring, special interaction with the assignees to assist them in meeting operational problems, in keeping abreast with changes in technology and, in general, facilitating their growth, development, and integration into the local community. In light of this ongoing NHSC activity, it was felt that the special provision suggested was unnecessary and therefore has not been accepted.

7. A recommendation was made to amend the regulations to provide for the applicant agency to initiate modification or termination of the Memorandum of Agreement with the NHSC before the two-year agreement ends. Section 23.10 has been revised to allow any Memorandum of Agreement under this Act to be terminated by either party on 30-days written notice, or to be modified with consent of both parties.

8. Six recommendations were made to revise the criteria used to designate critical health manpower shortage areas to cover populations with low incomes in urban areas. While NHSC manpower resources are primarily used where the fundamental problem facing the area is a critical shortage in the absolute number of health manpower in a geographical area, section 23.4(a)(3) of the proposed regulations does provide that in designating areas the Secretary shall take into consideration the inaccessibility of health care services in the community, taking into account such factors as transportation difficulties, utilization rates and other socio-economic, demographic and environmental factors of community life which significantly impair access to health services. The addition of the specific criteria suggested, therefore, has not been accepted.

9. One recommendation was made to require that an applicant agency enclose a completed NHSC application form with any request for certification of need to State and district health societies. Also recommended was a written notice to health societies of the certification or waiver of certification procedures. It would be premature for a completed NHSC application form to accompany a certification request, since such a request applies to "need" certification only, and such determination is based on this consideration alone. The procedural details of the certification and waiver of certification requirement procedures will be published shortly in the FEDERAL REGISTER. This publication will address specifically the issues involved in the applicant-agency/health-society relationship.

10. Two recommendations were made to modify the Secretary's responsibilities and the timeframes for the waiver of certification of need procedures. The regulations provide adequate time and processes for both the health societies and the Secretary to make judicious decisions and to consult with each other prior to any Secretarial decision to waive a local professional society's lack of certification of need. Section 23.6 of the regulations has been revised to require the applicant agency to submit more detailed information to the Secretary when an application is not accompanied by certification from appropriate health societies.

11. One recommendation was made to establish an appeals mechanism in the event a professional society fails to certify the need for assignment of NHSC personnel and the Secretary then waives the requirement for such a certification. The waiver procedures allow adequate administrative safeguards for all interested parties in any case of disagreement. That recommendation was not adopted.

12. A recommendation was made to provide for utilization of more than one reimbursement mechanism under certain conditions. The three reimbursement options available are designed to comport with the statutory requirement that the Secretary recover his reasonable cost of providing such care and services, provide a sufficiently wide choice to accommodate variations in applicant agencies' needs, especially when combined with the flexibility provided in the allowable methods of charging and collecting patient fees. Where the use of one reimbursement option by a community is no longer appropriate, section 23.10 of the regulations provides that the agreement with the community may be modified. The proposed change, therefore, has not been included in the regulations as revised.

13. A recommendation was made to add a fourth reimbursement option which would allow full Federal support of the cost of management expenses and which would also place the responsibility for collection of receipts with the applicant agency. Under the current reimbursement option III as set forth in section 23.8(a)(3), the NHSC assumes the total cost responsibility of a project including the cost of management support, and the program assumes the responsibility for physical collection of receipts. The fourth option suggested, therefore, is unnecessary.

14. A recommendation was made to revise section 23.8 of the proposed regulations to provide a method for excepting patient revenues provided from revenue sharing and other Federal funds allocated to States and counties from inclusion with other patient revenue and insurance payments for purposes of calculating National Health Service Corps reimbursement. While we share the concern about the circularity of the transaction, which circularity may also be observed with respect to certain third party reimbursements, such as medicare and medicaid, part of the legislative authority under which NHSC sites are supported mandates that any person receiving services, with limited exceptions, must be charged for such service so that the NHSC can recover its reasonable cost in providing such services. The statute goes on to provide that where third parties, including governmental agencies, would be responsible for payment, collection shall be made from such governmental agencies. Although we recognize that in one sense this may decrease the amount of money available to the site to support itself without outside NHSC assistance, it is at least as important that the practice of vigorous and comprehensive collection of third party funds be established. For these reasons the recommended change has not been made.

Accordingly, the present Part 23 of Title 42 of the Code of Federal Regulations is deleted and a new Part 23 is added as set out below.

shortages. In making such determination the Secretary shall take into consideration, among other pertinent factors:

(i) The latest reliable health resources, statistics available to him, such as numbers of primary care physicians, dentists, and other health manpower personnel; the range of primary care and other health services available; and the types of health facilities in the area.

(ii) Health status indicators, such as infant and maternal mortality rates, accident rates, morbidity rates, disability rates, life expectancy rates, and others.

(iii) Inaccessibility of health care services in the community, and the ability to obtain services when required on a timely and effective basis, taking into account transportation difficulty, travel times, utilization rates, ability of health resources to meet increased demands, and other socio-economic, demographic, and environmental factors of community life which significantly impair access.

(2) In determining whether an area meets the criteria utilized in paragraph (a)(1) of this section, the Secretary will consult with the appropriate health planning agencies responsible for the development under section 314(a) or (b) of the Act for comprehensive plans for all or any part of the area (or their successor agencies).

(b) The Secretary will publish periodically in the FEDERAL REGISTER a list of such designated areas together with the specific criteria used in determining such areas.

(c) Any State health agency or local public health agency or other public or nonprofit private health entity in an area which has not been designated by the Secretary pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section may request such designation. If upon review of the application and all other relevant facts it is determined that the area meets the criteria utilized under paragraph (a) of this section, the Secretary shall add the area to the list of areas designated.

(d) Upon determining that there has been a substantial change in the circumstances upon which the designation of an area was based, or that the data upon which the designation was based was inaccurate or incomplete and the data as revised indicates that the area does not meet the criteria utilized under paragraph (a)(1) of this section, the Secretary may, 90 days after publication of a notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER that such action is planned, withdraw his designation of an area as one having a critical health manpower shortage. The Secretary will notify the appropriate health planning agencies for the area in writing of the basis for such action prior to the withdrawal of designation.

§ 23.5 Information and Assistance.

The Secretary shall conduct information programs in the areas designated to inform public and nonprofit private health entities serving the designated areas of the technical and consultative services available from the Corps and to assist people in those areas who are seeking assignment of Corps personnel to their areas.

§ 23.6 Application for Assignment.

(a) An application for the assignment of Corps personnel under section 329 of the Act may be submitted to the Secretary by an eligible applicant in such form and manner and at such time as the Secretary may require.

(b) The application shall include, among other things, the certification to the Secretary of

(1) the local government of such area that such assignment is needed; and

(2) the State and district medical, dental or other appropriate health societies (as the case may be) that such assignment is needed for the area, provided, however, That where such certification has been withheld, a full explanation of the absence of such certification shall be submitted by the applicant, including a detailed description of the actions taken by the applicant to obtain such certification and the rational, if any, provided to the applicant by the State and district medical, dental or other appropriate health societies for their failure to certify that such assignment is needed for the area.

(c) The application shall also include, unless established to the satisfaction of the Secretary that such recommendations were not reasonably obtainable, the recommendations of (1) the appropriate State health planning agency established pursuant to section 314(a) of the Act (or its successor agency); (2) the appropriate Regional Medical Program established pursuant to Title IX of the Act; (3) where there has been such an agency established, the appropriate areawide health planning agency established pursuant to section 314(b) of the Act (or its successor agency); (4) the State medical, dental, and other health associations and (5) from other medical personnel of the area to be served.

(d) The application shall also include evidence satisfactory to the Secretary that the general public has been informed, through the published news media or other means of communication appropriate to local circumstances, of the actions of all certifying and recommending agencies, and has been afforded adequate opportunity to comment on such application. All such comments received shall be appended to the application.

(e) Such applications shall be executed by an individual authorized to act for the applicant and to assume on behalf of the applicant any obligations imposed by law, the statute, these regulations, or any additional conditions of assignment imposed pursuant thereto.

§ 23.7 Assignment of Personnel.

The Secretary may upon proper application, assign Corps personnel to such designated areas where he finds such assignment will best serve the purposes of section 329 of the Act and the regulations of this part, taking into account:

(a) The need of the area for the health services to be provided without regard to the area's ability to pay;

(b) The willingness of the area and the appropriate governmental agencies therein to assist and cooperate with the Public Health Service in providing effective health services to residents of the area;

(c) The recommendations of any agency or organization which may be responsible for the development, under section 314(a) or (b) of the Act, of a comprehensive plan covering all or any part of the area involved (or their successor agencies);

(d) Recommendations from the State medical, dental, and other health associations and from other medical personnel of the area considered for assistance. Provided, That with respect to any proposed assignment, where the Secretary has from all the facts available to him, found that certification required by section 329(b)(2)(A)(ii) of the Act was clearly arbitrarily and capriciously withheld by the State or district medical, dental or other appropriate health society, the Secretary may, after consultation with such society or societies, assign Corps personnel to the designated area. A certification may be considered to be arbitrarily and capriciously withheld when a State or district society:

(1) fails to acknowledge a request for certification within 30 days, or make a decision regarding certification within 90 days; or

(2) provides either no justification for its refusal to certify need or the data submitted in support of its justification clearly is not adequate as determined by the Secretary in light of the factors considered by the Secretary in designating areas.

§ 23.8 Costs and charges of services.

(a) The National Health Service Corps shall be reimbursed, subject to the approval of the Secretary, in accordance with one of the following mechanisms designed to recover the reasonable costs of providing services. Each agreement concluded with an applicant under § 23.10 shall identify the method of reimbursement selected from the following:

(1) The National Health Service Corps will be reimbursed a percentage of the total receipts collected (after certain preferential costs in the agreement concluded under § 23.10 agreed to are paid) which is equal to the percentage of the National Health Service Corps' contribution toward the cost of operation as determined under the agreement concluded with the applicant under § 23.10.

(2) The National Health Service Corps will be reimbursed its actual reasonable cost per annum, a fixed amount regardless of receipts collected; or

(3) The National Health Service Corps will provide the total cost of operation and will collect all receipts.

(b) Except as otherwise provided in paragraph (d) of this section, any person receiving services from assigned personnel shall be charged at a rate designed to recover reasonable costs, to be distributed according to one of the methods of reimbursement specified above. Such charges shall (except as provided in paragraph (c) of this section) be in accordance with a schedule of charges determined in consultation with the local medical, or dental, or other appropriate health society, and specified in the agreement concluded with the applicant under § 23.10; provided, however, That where assigned personnel are providing services within the framework of an established health services delivery system, the charges made shall be consistent with the charges made by such system.

(c) In lieu of being charged on a fee-for-services basis pursuant to paragraph (b) of this section, persons eligible to receive services from assigned personnel may be charged on a prepaid capitation basis or other reimbursement mechanism.

(d) No charge or a reduced charge shall be made for services provided by assigned personnel to any person from a family which has an annual income below the higher of (1) the State figures for the "medically needy" as determined in accordance with the Aid to Families with Dependent Children figures calculated by the Assistance Payments Administration, or (2) the Social Security Administration poverty index as set forth in the latest Social Security Bulletin, Annual Statistical Supplement, provided, however, That pursuant to paragraph (e) of this section, charges shall be made for services to such persons to the extent that payment will be made by a third party which is authorized or under legal obligation to pay such charges.

(e) If a Federal agency, an agency of a State or local government, or other third party would be responsible for all or part of the cost of the care or service provided under section 329 of the Act if such care or service had not been provided pursuant to section 329 of the Act, the Secretary shall collect from such agency or third-party the portion of such cost for which it would be so responsible.

(f) Any funds received by the Secretary pursuant to this section shall be deposited in the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

§ 23.9 Supervision of assigned personnel and termination of assignment.

Personnel assigned in accordance with the provisions of section 329 of the Act and the regulations in this part shall at all times remain under the direct supervision and control of the Secretary. Observance of institutional rules and regulations by assigned personnel are mere incidents of the performance of their Federal functions and do not alter their direct professional and administrative responsibility to the Secretary. The Secretary may terminate or modify any such assignment if he determines that such assignment is not being performed in accordance with section 329 of the Act, the regulations in this part, or any agreement entered into under § 23.10.

§ 23.10 Agreements with applicants.

The Secretary will, upon determining to assign personnel to an area, and consistent with section 329 of the Act and these regulations, enter into agreements with applicants setting forth such additional terms and conditions as he deems necessary to assure the furtherance of the purposes of section 329 of the Act, the regulations in this part, and interests of the public health, or the effective utilization of assigned personnel, including but not limited to:

(a) Number and type of personnel assigned;

(b) Duration of assignment;

(c) Fees and methods for charging for services of assigned personnel including the choice of option for reimbursing the Federal Government for its reasonable costs under section 23.8;

(d) Types of facilities or other assistance to be provided by applicant.

Any agreement entered into under this section may be terminated by either party on 30-days written notice, or modified by mutual consent.

§ 23.11 Use of facilities by assigned personnel.

The Secretary, to the extent feasible may make such arrangements as he determines necessary to enable assigned personnel to utilize the health facilities of the area to be served. If there are no health facilities in or serving such area, the Secretary may arrange to have such care and services provided in the nearest health facilities of the Public Health Service or the Secretary may lease or otherwise provide facilities in such area for the provision of care and services. ## FEDERAL ELECTION COMMISSION

[Notice 1975-23]

ADVISORY OPINION 1975-14

Contributions by Banks, Corporations, and Labor Unions to Defray Constituent Service Expenses

This advisory opinion is rendered under 2 U.S.C. § 437f in response to requests for advisory opinions submitted by Congressman M. Caldwell Butler, Congressman W. Henson Moore, and William J. Holayter, which were published together as AOR 1975-14 in the July 17, 1975, FEDERAL REGISTER (40 FR 30258). Interested parties were given an opportunity to submit written comments relating to the requests.

The requests generally ask the Commission whether, under the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 as amended (the Act), corporate, labor and banking contributions may be accepted for office account related purposes. Specifically, the following requests were made:

(a) Congressman W. Henson Moore states that he intends to send under the frank a questionnaire to his constituents in order to learn their feelings on various issues. Congressman Moore asks whether the Commission will treat as a corporate contribution to his campaign the donation by a corporation of the use of its computer to analyze the results of the questionnaire;

(b) William J. Holayter, Director of the Machinists Non-Partisan Political League, asks whether money in the League's educational fund, which is composed of dues money from various local lodges, may be donated to incumbent United States Senators and Representatives for their office accounts; and

(c) Congressman M. Caldwell Butler states that he intends to hold a Farm Conference for the purpose of allowing farmers and other agricultural interests in his district the opportunity to present their views to him and officials of Federal and State agricultural agencies. Congressman Butler asks whether the Commission will consider the conference to be official business so that contributions by incorporated state banks and bank holding companies will be permitted in order to defray expenses.

It is clear that the Federal Election Commission has the duty to formulate general policy with respect to the Act (2 U.S.C. § 437d(a)(9)), has the power to regulate amounts contributed to a holder of Federal office in order to defray expenses arising in connection with that office (2 U.S.C. § 439a), has the power to formulate general policy regarding contributions and expenditures (18 U.S.C. § 608), and has the power to formulate general policy regarding contributions or expenditures by national banks, corporations or labor organizations (18 U.S.C. § 610). Pursuant to these powers and duties, it is the determination of the Commission that contributions to and expenditures by an office account are to be treated as political contributions and expenditures, and are subject to the limitations and prohibitions on such transactions.

Further, Congress has recognized the political value and campaign-related nature of material mailed under the frank and has provided in § 3210(f) of Title 39, United States Code, that:

> The equivalent amount of postage • • • on franked mail mailed under the frank of the Vice President or a Member of Congress, and the cost of preparing or printing such franked matter for such mailing under the frank, shall not be considered as a contribution to, or an expenditure by, the Vice President or a Member of Congress for the purpose of determining any limitation on expenditures or contributions with respect to any such official, imposed by any Federal, State, or local law or regulation, in connection with any campaign of such official for election to any Federal office. (Emphasis added)

Accordingly, contributions to and expenditures by a separate segregated franking account are contributions and expenditures for the purposes of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, as amended, and Title 18, United States Code, except for the limitations contained in 18 U.S.C. § 608.

It is the opinion of the Commission that Congressional appropriations for staff salaries, newsletters, stationery, and travel are for legislative activities and, therefore are not subject to the limitations and prohibitions of the Act. It is the Commission's conclusion that these appropriations represent a Congressional determination of the amount necessary for the continued performance of the public duties of a Member of Congress, and that Congress has thus knowingly appropriated sufficient funds for the performance of these duties. Accordingly, additional money which is raised by a Member or his supporters shall be treated as a contribution made for purposes of influencing a Federal election and shall be governed by all appropriate limitations. Similarly, any expenditure from any office account shall be treated as an expenditure intended for purposes of influencing a Federal election and shall be controlled by all appropriate limitations. If Congress concludes that activities currently supported by an office account are in fact essential legislative functions, it remains the prerogative of Congress to appropriate additional funds necessary to fulfill these functions.

Support for the Commission's views may be found in United States v. Brewster, 408 U.S. 501, 92 S. Ct. 2531, 33 L.Ed 2d 507 (1972) in which the Supreme Court stated:

> It is well known, of course, that Members of Congress engage in many activities other than the purely legislative activities. • • • These include a wide range of legitimate "errands" performed for constituents, the making of appointments with Government agencies, assistance in securing Government contracts, preparing so-called "newsletters" to constituents, news releases, and speeches delivered outside the Congress. The range of these related activities has grown over the years. They are performed in part because they have come to be expected by constituents, and because "they are a means of developing continuing support for future elections." Although these are entirely legitimate activities, they are political in nature rather than legislative, in the sense that term has been used by the Court in prior cases.

As an office account will be conclusively presumed to be used solely for political purposes, contributions to, expenditures by, and the general operation of an office account should be reported and otherwise treated as provided in Notice 1975-18 of the Federal Election Commission "Office Accounts and Franking Accounts; Excess Campaign Contributions," as published in the Federal Register.

The Commission intends to apply its policy on office accounts as follows:

(a) It is the opinion of the Commission that a corporate donation of the use of a computer to analyze the results of a questionnaire would constitute a corporate contribution made for purposes to influencing a Federal election. The fact that the questionnaire was mailed under the frank would not extend the coverage of 39 U.S.C. § 3210(f) to the analysis of questionnaire results, and accordingly the donation of the services of the corporate computer would constitute a corporate contribution prohibited under 18 U.S.C. § 610.

(b) It is the opinion of the Commission that money from the "educational fund" of a labor union may not be donated to the office accounts of incumbent United States Senators and Representatives, if the fund is composed of dues money from various local lodges of the union. Since the money in the fund would be derived from dues, and not from separate voluntary donations by union members to support the office accounts of Congressmen, contributions of this money by a union would be prohibited under 18 U.S.C. § 610.

(c) It is the opinion of the Commission that contributions by incorporated state banks, or bank holding corporations, to an agricultural conference organized by a Member of Congress would constitute a direct or indirect contribution by these banking institutions in connection with a federal election. If the agricultural conference is not funded directly through a Congressional appropriation, it will be conclusively presumed to be funded from an office or constituent service account utilized by the member of Congress for political purposes. Accordingly, contributions by state bank corporations or bank holding corporations to the conference would be prohibited under 18 U.S.C. § 610.

The Commission does not wish to discourage conferences involving policy development of important economic and other issues, but will examine the particulars of each such proposed conference for any implications under 18 U.S.C. § 610.

The provisions of this opinion represent the opinion of the Commission as to the effect of 2 U.S.C. § 437d(a)(9), 2 U.S.C. § 439a, 18 U.S.C. § 608, and 18 U.S.C. § 610 on contributions and expenditures from the office account of a Federal officeholder. The provisions of this opinion are reflected in the proposed regulations which the Commission has submitted to Congress (see the FEDERAL REGISTER, Notice 1975-18 of 40 FR 32951, "Office Accounts and Franking Accounts; Excess Campaign Contributions"). However, in order to provide sufficient notice for orderly compliance with this opinion, the provisions of this opinion shall become effective on October 1, 1975, notwithstanding any contrary language in this opinion.

Dated: August 7, 1975.

Title 14—Aeronautics and Space

CHAPTER I—FEDERAL AVIATION ADMINISTRATION, DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION

[Airspace Docket No. 75-SW-16]

PART 71—DESIGNATION OF FEDERAL AIRWAYS, AREA LOW ROUTES, CONTROLLED AIRSPACE, AND REPORTING POINTS

Designation of Transition Area

The purpose of this amendment to Part 71 of the Federal Aviation Regulations is to designate the Muleshoe, Tex., transition area.

On April 8, 1975, a notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (40 FR 15907) stating the Federal Aviation Administration proposed to designate a transition area at Muleshoe, Tex.

Interested persons were afforded an opportunity to participate in the rule making through submission of comments. All comments received were favorable.

In consideration of the foregoing, Part 71 of the Federal Aviation Regulations is amended, effective 0901 G.m.t., October 9, 1975, as hereinafter set forth.

In § 71.181 (40 FR 441), the following transition area is added:

MULESHOE, TEX.

That airspace extending upward from 700 feet above the surface within a 9-statute-mile radius of Edward Warren Field (latitude 34°14'00" N., longitude 102°42'30" W.).

Concurrently with this action, Edward Warren Field will be changed from VFR to IFR status.

(Sec. 307(a), Federal Aviation Act of 1958 (49 U.S.C. 1348); sec. 6(c), Department of Transportation Act (40 U.S.C. 1655(c))

Issued in Fort Worth, Tex., on Aug. 5, 1975.

ALBERT H. THURBURN,
Acting Director, Southwest Region.

Revocation of Reporting Point and Renumbering of VOR Airways

The purpose of this amendment to Part 71 of the Federal Aviation Regulations is to revoke the BOGLE low altitude reporting point and to renumber existing airways in the vicinity of Myrtle Beach, S.C., Wilmington, N.C., Kinston, N.C., and Rocky Mount, N.C.

There is no longer a requirement for BOGLE to be designated as a compulsory reporting point because adequate radar coverage exists for the control of air traffic at that point. V-1 is redesignated to overlie the present V-213 from Myrtle Beach to the Wallace, N.C., INT and the present V-1W from there to Kinston. A segment of V-1E is redesignated to overlie the present V-1 from Myrtle Beach via Wilmington to Kinston. V-213 is redesignated to overlie the present V-1W from Wilmington to the Wallace INT.

Since revoking the BOGLE reporting point relieves a burden on the public and since numbering airways, without airspace or route changes is a minor matter upon which the public is not particularly interested, notice and public procedure thereon are unnecessary. However, since it is necessary that sufficient time be allowed to permit appropriate changes to be made to aeronautical charts, this amendment will become effective October 9, 1975.

In consideration of the foregoing, Part 71 of the Federal Aviation Regulations is amended, effective 0901 G.m.t., October 9, 1975, as hereinafter set forth.

1. Section 71.123 (40 FR 307) is amended as follows:

a. In V-1 all before "Cofield, N.C.;" is deleted and "From Jacksonville, Fla., via Charleston, S.C.; Myrtle Beach, S.C.; INT Myrtle Beach 031° and Kinston, N.C., 214° radials; Kinston, including an east alternate from Myrtle Beach to Kinston via Wilmington, N.C.;" is substituted therefor.

b. In V-213 all before "Hopewell, Va.;" is deleted and "From Myrtle Beach, S.C., via Wilmington, N.C.; INT Wilmington 352° and Rocky Mount, N.C., 191° radials; Rocky Mount;" is substituted therefor.

2. In § 71.203 (40 FR 621) "BOGLE: INT Myrtle Beach, S.C., 031°, Wilmington, N.C., 276° radials." is deleted.

(Sec. 307(a) Federal Aviation Act of 1958 (49 U.S.C. 1348(a)); sec. 6(c), Department of Transportation Act (49 U.S.C. 1655(c)))

Issued in Washington, D.C., on August 8, 1975.

PART 71—DESIGNATION OF FEDERAL AIRWAYS, AREA LOW ROUTES, CONTROLLED AIRSPACE, AND REPORTING POINTS

Designation of Transition Area

The purpose of this amendment to Part 71 of the Federal Aviation Regulations is to designate a 700-foot transition area at San Marcos, Tex.

On June 24, 1975, a notice of proposed rule making was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (40 FR 26543) stating the Federal Aviation Administration proposed to designate the San Marcos, Tex., transition area.

Interested persons were afforded an opportunity to participate in the rule making through submission of comments. All comments received were favorable.

In consideration of the foregoing, Part 71 of the Federal Aviation Regulations is amended, effective 0901 G.m.t., October 9, 1975, as hereinafter set forth.

In § 71.181 (40 FR 441), the following transition area is added:

SAN MARCOS, TEX.

That airspace extending upward from 700 feet above the surface within a 5-mile radius of the San Marcos Municipal Airport (latitude 29°53'38" N., longitude 97°51'45" W.).

Issued in Fort Worth, Tex., on August 5, 1975.

PART 71—DESIGNATION OF FEDERAL AIRWAYS, AREA LOW ROUTES, CONTROLLED AIRSPACE, AND REPORTING POINTS

PART 75—ESTABLISHMENT OF JET ROUTES AND AREA HIGH ROUTES

Establishment of Reporting Points, Extension of Jet Routes and Airways

On June 11, 1975, a notice of proposed rulemaking (NPRM) was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (40 FR 24914) stating that the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) was considering amendments to Parts 71 and 75 of the Federal Aviation Regulations that would establish reporting points and extend several airways and jet routes in the western part of Alaska.

Interested persons were afforded an opportunity to participate in the proposed rulemaking through the submission of comments. The only comment was from the Air Transport Association in which they endorsed the proposal.

The Anchorage Center has reevaluated the need for NIVAK INT and J-501 extension and has withdrawn their request for this action.

In consideration of the foregoing, Parts 71 and 75 of the Federal Aviation Regulations is amended, effective 0902 G.m.t., October 9, 1975, as hereinafter set forth.

1. In § 71.213 (40 FR 637):

a. The following reporting point is added: (1) Cape Newenham, Alaska, NDB.

2. In § 71.211 (40 FR 634):

a. The following reporting point is added: (1) Cape Newenham, Alaska, NDB.

3. In § 71.125 (40 FR 339 and 17007):

a. V–321 is rewritten to read as follows: V–321 From Cape Newenham, Alaska, NDB via King Salmon, Alaska; to Homer, Alaska.

b. V–462 is amended by deleting "From Dillingham, Alaska," and substituting "From Cape Newenham, Alaska, NDB via Dillingham, Alaska;" therefor.

4. In § 75.100 (40 FR 705 and 17007):

a. J–127 is rewritten to read as follows: J–127 From Cape Newenham, Alaska, NDB via King Salmon, Alaska; to INT King Salmon 042° and Anchorage, Alaska, 246° radials.

b. J–511 is amended by deleting "From Dillingham, Alaska, via," and substituting "From Cape Newenham, Alaska, NDB via Dillingham, Alaska;" therefor.

Issued in Washington, D.C., on August 8, 1975.

PART 378a—ONE-STOP-INCLUSIVE TOUR CHARTER

Adoption of Part

Adopted by the Civil Aeronautics Board at its office in Washington, D.C., August 7, 1975.

By notice of proposed rulemaking, EDR–281/SPDR–38/ODR–9, October 30, 1974 (Docket 27135) the Board gave notice that it had under consideration adoption of a new Special Regulation (14 CFR Part 378a) establishing a new class of charter designated as a One-stop-inclusive Tour Charter (OTC). Subsequently, on the basis of comments received in response to the Notice, the Board issued a Supplemental notice of proposed rulemaking, EDR–281B/SPDR–38B/ODR–9B, April 10, 1975, in which we indicated that we were considering various substantial modifications of the proposed OTC rule. Numerous comments have been received in response to both the original Notice and the Supplemental Notice.[1] A list of the comments is attached hereto as Appendix 1.

I. In the past twenty-five years charter traffic carried by the nation's certificated air carriers has increased more than twenty-fold, due in part to the Board's encouragement of charter services, as well as, of course, the efforts and imagination of airline management and technological change.[2] And in some markets—principally across the North Atlantic—charter traffic accounts for a substantial percentage of total passenger movements. Nonetheless, on an overall basis charter services do not constitute a significant portion of the air transportation system.[3]

The extent to which charter operations could under any circumstances attract a large proportion of overall airline traffic is unclear. But it is evident that to at least some degree the relatively small number of charter passengers (compared on a systemwide basis to passengers carried on scheduled services) has been a function of limitations imposed by the Board on the kinds of operations which would be deemed to be "charter trips" for purposes of the Act—limitations that have been thought to be necessary to preserve the statutorily mandated distinction between charter and individually ticketed services and, in addition, have been considered needed to protect the scheduled air transportation system. Consequently, large numbers of Americans have never had a real opportunity to express in the marketplace their attitudes toward charter services. Indeed, until recently the restrictions imposed in the Board's charter regulations had the practical effect of limiting the benefits of charter transportation almost entirely to persons who happened to be "bona fide" members of "bona fide" organizations which could lawfully charter aircraft under our so-called affinity rules, to persons willing to risk participation in unlawful charters operated in contravention of the "affinity" rules, and to persons willing and able to accommodate their travel plans to the rigorous conditions attached to our Inclusive Tour Charter rule (i.e., three-stop tour packages whose minimum price must exceed the lowest available scheduled air fare for the tour itinerary).

Beginning early in 1971 the Board, recognizing the need for charter rules that would more effectively encourage the development of the economics of planeload operations while preserving a reasonable balance between scheduled and charter services, started to reexamine the types of restrictions which had traditionally been regarded as essential to the charter concept.[4] As a result, in 1972 the Board's proposed "nonaffinity" charter rule culminated in the adoption of its Travel Group Charter (TGC) rule.

In adopting the TGC rule, the Board stated that it had been motivated by two principal factors: (1) The growing concern that the existing charter rules tended to be "inherently discriminatory," in that they limited charter travel for the most part to groups having a "prior affinity," thereby excluding those members of the general public who do not belong to qualified organizations large enough to successfully mount a charter program; and (2) continuing indications that the artificial and arbitrary "prior affinity" rules are difficult to enforce, so that an ever-increasing demand for low-cost charter travel was being met by the operation of illegal charter flights. As to ITC's, the only other type of charter which was then lawfully available to the general public, the multi-stop and minimum-price requirements which our rules prescribe for the ITC tour package had severely limited its popularity.

Thus the TGC rule authorized the provision of charter transportation without regard to participants' "prior affinity" status, or to their willingness to accept multi-stop tour packages whose minimum prices often must be higher than charter economics dictate. However, even in this new rule, the Board was constrained to circumscribe TGC's with types of restrictions designed to maintain the statutorily mandated requirement that charter services be distinguishable from individually ticketed services, and to protect the scheduled air transportation system from undue diversion.[5] Among the chief characteristics of the TGC rule has been the requirement that all participants bear a pro rata share of the charter costs (this being the requirement which gives rise to TGC's complicated formulae for "minimum," "maximum" and "adjusted" pro rata prices, as well as to its provisions for forfeiture of deposits). The net result has been that, even though the Board subsequently eased some of the original TGC restrictions,[6] the TGC rule has failed to provide either a satisfactory alternative to affinity charters, or the substantially increased charter availability that we had sought, as the figures in Appendix 3 [6a] illustrate.[7]

[1] By Supplemental notice of rulemaking EDR–276C/SPDR–37C/ODR–8C, April 21, 1975, the Board tentatively concluded that its previously proposed rulemaking concerning Special Event Charters (EDR–276/SPDR–37–ODR–8 dated June 18, 1974) sufficiently overlapped the proposed OTC rule so that it was no longer necessary to consider adoption of a separate set of rules to apply to Special Event Charters. Accordingly, the Board proposed to include within the OTC rule special provisions for those special event tour charters which cannot meet the terms of the OTC rule. As discussed infra at Section VII, the Board has determined to incorporate the SEC rule as a special section of the OTC rule.

[1a] Appendices 1–7 filed as part of the original document.

[2] Practically all of that growth occurred in the 1960's.

[3] See Appendix 2 for a comparison of charter activity with scheduled services.

[4] See e.g., SPDR–22, January 29, 1971.

[5] A number of carriers sought judicial review of the Board's decision to adopt the TGC rule. The legality of the rule was affirmed by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. See Saturn Airways, Inc. v. CAB, 483 F. 2d 1284 (D.C. Cir. 1973). See also Pan American World Airways, Inc. v. CAB No. 74–1646 2d Cir., May 22, 1975 affirming the Board's decision to modify the TGC rule to permit, under certain circumstances, operation of charters inbound to the U.S. organized under Advance-Booking Charter rules which may differ from our own TGC rule.

[6] See e.g., SPR–78 adopted August 12, 1974.

[7] On the other hand, several scheduled carriers contend that recent experience indicates that both TGC's and ITC's have grown significantly, and in combination with scheduled service promotional fares meet the public demand for low-cost air transportation. We do not agree. Promotional fares are generally considerably higher than charter prices, and, in any event, promotional fares are intended to be used as short-run marketing tools. In respect to the increase in TGC and ITC operations, they are at so low a level that on an overall basis, and in all but a very few markets, ITC and TGC traffic levels would remain essentially insignificant even if such traffic expanded several fold.

Accordingly, in EDR–281/SPDR–38/ODR–9, the Board, in recognition of the fact that TGC's had failed to achieve its objectives, proposed to adopt a One-stop-inclusive Tour Charter rule as a further step in the efforts to supplant the affinity rules with workable, nondiscriminatory, and enforceable alternatives.[8] The OTC as proposed in the Notice and Supplemental Notice, unlike the TGC rule, would not require that participants share fully in the charter costs, and thus it would permit indirect air carriers to assume the entrepreneurial risk entailed by a failure to resell all of the seats covered by the charter. On the other hand, unlike the TGC rule, the OTC rule, as proposed in the Notice and Supplemental Notice, would require that there be a tour package, consisting not only of round-trip air transportation, but in addition, at a minimum, accommodations for each night of the tour, and transfers and baggage handling. Another significant difference between the two types of charter would be that, while the TGC rule requires participants to make their travel plans at least sixty days in advance of the flight departures, OTC's could be sold up to fifteen days in advance of the departure for North American charters, and thirty days for all other charters.[9] Also, participants in an OTC would pay a specific price, which would be no less than the minimum required by the OTC rule.

As discussed in more detail infra, we have now concluded the restrictions on OTC's proposed in the Supplemental Notice, and as revised herein, although differing significantly from those applied in our TGC rule, are nonetheless sufficient to maintain the legally required distinction between charter and individually ticketed service and are adequate to protect against any undue diversion from scheduled services. Moreover, in view of the failure of the TGC rule to achieve its objective because of the overly restrictive conditions which we imposed on its availability, we have further determined that we should not risk dooming the new OTC rule to failure by rendering it unmarketable, as would be all too likely if the originally proposed set of restrictions were to be adopted. Accordingly, we have determined to adopt the revised OTC rule outlined in the Supplemental Notice, with the further modifications discussed hereinafter. In our judgment the OTC rule adopted herein will be of substantial benefit to the public by providing a viable, nondiscriminatory alternative to the Board's affinity rules,[10] and will, in addition, provide an important outlet for the ever-increasing demand for low-cost bulk air transportation.

II. The prices of many OTC's are likely to be considerably lower than scheduled air fares, notwithstanding that OTC prices will cover sleeping accommodations and other ground services as well as air transportation. For a listing comparing minimum OTC prices with scheduled air fares, see Appendix 4.[10a] It is these low prices that in our judgment will make OTC's a viable alternative to affinity charters. In addition, the low tour prices OTC operators can offer are bound to attract persons who would not otherwise have used air transportation. But it is also inevitable that OTC's will attract some persons who would otherwise have used scheduled air services. We have concluded, however, that the extent of diversion from scheduled services will be far too low to unduly impair either those services or the health of the airlines that provide them.

First, we are not persuaded, either on the basis of experience or the arguments and evidence presented in this proceeding, that the claims of ruinous diversion or overall financial harm are well founded. We note that substantially the same claims were advanced when the Board proposed to adopt the TGC rule (and indeed, on numerous other occasions), and that the experience under the TGC rule has shown that significant diversion did not in fact result, and indeed that TGC operations constitute only a minor fraction of the traffic in the best TGC markets and are entirely negligible in all others. The present rule is, of course, different, and thus the TGC experience is not conclusive, but it does serve to reduce the persuasive force of the diversion arguments.

Second, as also touched on earlier, charter traffic constitutes only a small part of the total traffic in the U.S. air transportation system. We are thus unpersuaded by arguments to the effect that charter operations will forthwith expand to levels that spell disaster for the scheduled air transportation system by reason of the OTC rule.

Third, scheduled carriers are certain to carry a fair proportion of OTC traffic, and are likely to carry the lion's share of it. Historically, scheduled carriers have outcarried the supplementals in respect to charter traffic (see Appendix 5[10a]), and we know of no reason why that pattern should change for OTC operations, particularly since the supplementals' capacity is so limited compared to the scheduled carriers (see Appendix 6[10a]). In fact, several scheduled carriers that serve vacation markets indicate that it is the OTC activity of other scheduled carriers that most concerns them. And a number of scheduled carriers favor adoption of an OTC rule. Accordingly, particularly if OTC's are successful, there is every reason to expect that on an overall basis OTC's will mean profits to the scheduled industry, not losses, in part because OTC's will provide an expanding traffic base for the industry at a time when it is faced with overcapacity.[11] Moreover, we are not convinced that OTC's will have an adverse impact even on those scheduled carriers that have traditionally focused on scheduled services in vacation markets. They too can provide OTC services if they choose, and will have the advantages of market identity, aircraft availability, and ground facilities that should make them formidable competitors for OTC business.

Fourth, we cannot help but be impressed by the fact that civic interests representing such vacation destinations as Miami, Las Vegas, and Puerto Rico urge the adoption of a liberal OTC rule. If scheduled service to any point is going to be adversely affected by OTC's, of course, it is service to places like Miami, Las Vegas, and Puerto Rico. Yet the civic interests representing those vacation destinations are convinced that OTC's will have a beneficial impact.

Fifth, the impact of OTC's on scheduled operations will be minimal if perceptible at all in a number of international markets by reason of the fact that some foreign governments authorize only limited charter operations, or entirely preclude them.[12]

Sixth, the OTC rule as adopted is, of course, designed with a view to balancing the need for a marketable new charter regime with our responsibility to maintain the health of the nation's scheduled air transportation system. Thus, as adopted, the rule contains numerous restrictions that will have the practical effect of precluding the use of OTC's by the kind of traveler upon whom scheduled service most depends and for whom scheduled air service is so important—persons who want or need the ability to make travel plans late and to change travel plans readily. The practical effect of the restrictions that are a part of the OTC rule will be to require travel plans to be made considerably in advance,[13] to preclude the use of OTC's by passengers who for any reason cannot be certain of their vacation plans,[14] and to preclude the use of OTC's by persons who cannot accommodate themselves to the decision of OTC operators in respect to departure date, length of stay, and return date.

Seventh, should OTC's, despite all the foregoing considerations, begin to threaten scheduled service in some market or the health of some segment of the scheduled air carrier industry (broader effects are entirely unlikely), the Board will have ample power to remedy the problem.

Indeed, it is for this reason we have adopted the rule on an experimental basis. Moreover, as an additional precautionary measure we have provided for post hoc procedures for control of OTC operations in individual markets should our initial judgment in this matter prove erroneous. Furthermore, to the extent it may be anticipated that difficulties might arise as a result of extensive OTC programs conducted by scheduled carriers causing serious diversion from the traffic base of those route carriers certificated to provide the primary service in a particular market, we can readily control those activities through amendment or revision of Part 207 of our Economic Regulations (see 14 CFR §§ 207.1, 207.5, 207.7a). And finally, we of course retain the ability to terminate the OTC experiment outright, and are prepared to do so should untoward consequences develop.

We are also urged to reject the OTC rule on the ground that OTC's will ultimately result in higher scheduled air fares. The higher fares would result, it is said, because a lessening of the traffic base to support scheduled services will occur in markets in which OTC's are operated, thereby producing an increase in unit costs for carrying the remaining traffic. Under the Board's established rate-making policy of basing fares on industry average costs, the higher unit-cost levels will then result in a higher overall fare level than would otherwise exist in the absence of OTC's. However, we know of no evidence to support the contention that a redistribution of traffic in individual markets as between charter and scheduled service will result in increases in unit-cost levels (presumably on an available seat-mile basis[15]) leading to corresponding fare-level increases. Indeed, that argument is logically indistinguishable from the one that has been made and reiterated by incumbent carriers whenever the Board considers adding a competitor in any scheduled market. We have not found it convincing in the past, and do not now. Also, because air transportation is not characterized by significant economies of scale, the fact that OTC's may mean a lower level of scheduled operations for any carrier or carriers than would obtain absent OTC's does not, in the long run point to higher levels of unit cost or reduced return on investment.

As indicated above, we have decided to adopt the post hoc review procedures discussed in the Supplemental Notice.[16] These procedures are set forth in § 378a.5 and represent one way that we intend to monitor OTC activity to assure that necessary scheduled services are not impaired. The procedures permit prompt action whenever it appears that OTC operations may be threatening the public interest. In addition, we have added a § 378a.51 to the final rule which provides for additional reporting of OTC activity. These reports will provide useful factual data on OTC operations during the experimental period the rule is to be in effect.

III. We originally proposed an OTC rule because of the need to find effective nondiscriminatory alternatives to the affinity rules and to provide a reasonable outlet for the ever-increasing demand for low cost charter services. The OTC rule we are here adopting is warranted on these bases alone. However we now find that in addition to those considerations, adoption of an OTC rule is warranted on additional grounds due to profound recent changes in the circumstances affecting air transportation. Those changes, which began to make themselves felt as the 1970's opened and which have now coalesced into patterns of considerable significance, are:

(1) While airline unit costs (per available ton-mile) decreased steadily throughout the 1960's (and, by and large, since at least as early as the late 1940's), since about 1970 ATM costs have been increasing.[17]

(2) Concomitantly, throughout the 1960's per capita income increased much faster than did air fares. I.e., on the average the cost of any given trip by air required an ever smaller part of the consumer's income. Moreover the year to year improvements in this ratio were considerable. By about 1973, however, this long-lived trend ended, and since then airline yields have increased faster than per capita income: it now takes a larger part of the consumer's income to pay for an airline ticket than it did a year ago.[18]

(3) For as far back as the Board has data on the subject, with only minor exception, passenger traffic increased rapidly on a year-to-year basis. (Traffic growth until the 1970's averaged over 14 percent per year.) Yet in the 1970's traffic has increased from one year to the next by more than 10 percent only once.[18] Traffic in the first half of 1975 appears to have below 1974's, and 1974's was barely above 1973's.

We see no sign that in the years immediately ahead there is likely to be any substantial change for the better in these post-1970 trends. Indeed the fuel cost situation is likely to get worse, not better. And we are not aware of any upcoming technological changes that will enable the airlines to reverse current unit-cost trends.

To us, all that adds up to a situation that calls for action on a variety of fronts.[20] But surely among the most important courses of action we can pursue in this respect is to encourage operations tailored to full planeload movements. Traditional scheduled services inherently must operate with substantial numbers of empty seats and, accordingly, at prices much higher than planeload services can offer. It is because of that that, with a few

[8] Under the original OTC proposal, charter organizers would be authorized to offer to the general public tour packages that would include at a minimum round-trip charter air transportation, sleeping accommodations for each night of the tour, at least two meals per day, and necessary transportation between all places on the itinerary. It was proposed to establish a minimum price to OTC participants for "North American" charters of at least $25 per day plus the pro rata charter air transportation costs, and for all other OTC's an amount not less than 110 percent of the lowest applicable scheduled air fare. A minimum trip duration of seven or ten days, depending upon the destination of the tour and the time of the year, with a proviso that would permit "long weekend" charters of any length in North American markets was also proposed. Finally, the Board proposed to establish a quota on the number of OTC's that could be operated by any direct air carrier in many domestic markets. cated that we were considering various sub- In issuing the Supplemental Notice we indistantial modifications to the proposed restrictions. In doing so, we explained that we had reached the tentative conclusion that the need to improve the rule's marketability outweighed the need to minimize its diversionary impact on scheduled services by circumscribing its availability with rigorous conditions.

[9] As discussed infra, we have decided to revise the advance-purchase requirement for North American charters from that proposed in the Supplemental Notice. The fifteen-day requirement will apply through September 1976, but thereafter, until the termination of the OTC experiment, a seven-day advance-purchase requirement will be applicable.

[10] British Airways claims that there is no showing that OTC's will be responsive to the needs of traffic now moving on affinity charters. The problem, says British Airways, is that many persons using affinities are not interested in the sleeping accommodations that will be part of the price of an OTC. We make no claim that OTC's alone will eliminate the attractiveness of the affinity charters. However, it is our experience that the price of a substantial percentage of affinity charters does include accommodations at a single destination, and we think it is sufficiently likely that OTC's will provide a real alternative to at least those affinity charters for the OTC rule to be given a trial experimental period, apart from the need for an OTC rule in order to increase the availability of low-cost transportation.

[11] See also, in this respect, Part III, infra.

[12] For example, Bermuda, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, and Israel accept no inclusive tour charters. Several European countries exercise "capacity surveillance" and "price surveillance" over inclusive tour charters. Others, such as Australia, Brazil, Ireland, and Japan, impose quotas or partial bans on charters generally.

[13] By the nature of charter marketing, it will only be a few fortunate travelers who will be able to find a place on an OTC as late as the cutoff date provided in § 378a.25(b).

[14] As Iberia Airlines points out, the OTC requirements (together with the direct air carriers' cancellation provisions) will have the effect of causing OTC operators to impose sizeable forfeiture requirements in the event the consumer is unable to depart as planned. By way of comparison, ITC operators generally provide that, notwithstanding that ITC packages can be sold up to day of departure, any cancellation within 60 days of departure date results in a substantial penalty (unless a substitute is found), and any cancellation within 30 days means a forfeiture of 50% or more of the ITC price. Moreover OTC participants must return on the specified return flight or forfeit at least the amount of the OTC price attributable to the return-trip costs.

[15] Increasing costs stemming from decreasing load factors need not affect fares. See Order 71–4–54.

[16] We take note at this point of the assertion by several scheduled carriers that the post hoc procedures are inadequate because the Board may only impose restrictions on their on-route charter authority after notice and hearing. Without passing upon the merits of the carriers' assertion, we are convinced that the post hoc procedures when coupled with our extensive rule-making authority to amend or revise Part 207 of our Economic Regulations, concerned with the charter trips and special services performed by route air carriers, are adequate regulatory tools to assure that the public interest is not threatened.

exceptions based on promotional fares, a charter passenger today can ride at far less cost than a scheduled passenger ever did. It is therefore our judgment that reducing the historical restrictions imposed by the Board on the operation of charter services is of particular importance if the dynamic growth of air travel that until recently characterized our air transportation system is to be resumed. It is our expectation and hope that the OTC rule we have adopted herein represents an important step in that direction.

IV. We turn now to consideration of the contention raised by most of the opponents of the OTC rule that the proposal is illegal in failing to maintain adequate distinctions between charter and individually ticketed travel. In support of this contention, the opponents variously argue that the rule's restrictions are inadequate; that the adoption of an "inclusive tour" rule which is based on a less-than-three-stop requirement strikes at the very essence of the concept of an "inclusive tour" as that term was understood by the Congress when it amended the Act so as to specifically authorize such charters; and that because some passengers now using scheduled services allegedly could readily comport with the restrictions resulting from the OTC rule's requirements, the restrictions cannot be said to meaningfully distinguish between the two types of service. We are not persuaded by any of the comments that the restrictions which we have decided to impose on OTC's do not adequately distinguish these services from individually ticketed service. To begin with, the fact that the travel and vacation plans of some passengers moving on scheduled services appear to fit within the requirements of the OTC rule is, in our judgment, not relevant to the basic issue of whether or not OTC's are distinguishable from individually ticketed service. In any event, statistics showing that a given percent of traffic needs commercial sleeping accommodations in the destination city, that a given percent makes plans well in advance, and so forth, do not indicate how many passengers' plans meet all of the OTC requirements. Moreover, scheduled passengers can revise their plans without substantial penalty, unlike OTC passengers. We have not been referred to any data showing the willingness of scheduled passengers who would otherwise meet OTC requirements to give up the flexibility that travel on scheduled services gives them.

Moreover, we do not agree with the contention that when the Congress amended section 101(34) of the Act to specifically include in the definition of "supplemental air transportation" inclusive tour charter trips it meant to limit tour-type charters to three-stop tours. Rather, the legislative history of the amendment indicates the purpose was to clarify the Board's existing authority to reasonably define the term "charter" so long as we preserve the distinction between charter and individually ticketed service.[21] Thus, in H. Rept. No. 1639, 90th Cong. 2d Sess. (1968), it was specifically noted:

> We think that shifting economic conditions and the public convenience and necessity may require modifications in the regulations. We do not undertake here to prescribe the usual rulemaking procedures of the CAB, and will leave the Board with its present flexibility, which must be exercised within the confines of the statute, due process, and full participation on the part of interested parties in the Board's rulemaking proceedings.

We believe the restrictions which we have chosen to apply to OTC's adequately distinguish these charters from the operation of what one would normally associate with individually ticketed service. These restrictions include that:

(1) OTC participants are limited to specific flight dates and times for both the departure and return. They must commit themselves to specific departure and return flights in advance of departure. The participant's ability to change plans, to cancel, or to obtain a refund will be subject to whatever additional terms the tour operator chooses to apply subject to the above limitations and others discussed below.

(2) All participants must go and return together as a group on both legs of the flight, and on all ground transfers between airports and hotels, and between destination points on the tour. There can be no intermingling of passengers from different groups, and no one-way passengers. Concomitantly, if the OTC participant uses the outbound flight there need not be a refund of that portion of the tour price attributable to the cost of the return flight, whatever prevents the participant from returning as planned.

(3) OTC participants are subject to the predetermined fixed restrictions on the tour length established by the tour operator, and these may in no event be less than prescribed minimums. The minimum duration for North American tours is 4 days, and for all other tours 7 days.

(4) OTC participants must purchase, as part of the OTC price, specific accommodations and specific ground services selected by the tour operator.

The Special Event Charter participant, while not subject to all of the above restrictions must contend with others. Thus:

(1) SEC's can only be operated in connection with a "special event," which must be specific and significant, and may in no case extend over 10 days in duration, nor be sponsored by a direct air carrier, nor be created for the purpose of generating SEC travel. SEC's can only be operated pursuant to a statement of authorization issued by the Board, thereby permitting the Board to scrutinize each proposed SEC to determine whether the event in question is truly "special" within the intendment of the SEC rule, and SEC practices must provide for documents (such as tickets) authorizing admission to the special event.

(2) The durational restrictions are even more severe than in ordinary OTC's. The maximum duration from day of departure is 3 days (2 nights) in North America, and 6 days (5 nights) elsewhere. Moreover, the flight may arrive no more than 36 hours before the scheduled attendance at the special event, and may depart no later than 36 hours after such attendance.

On the other hand, individually ticketed passengers may make reservations at any time; they are free to cancel, change, and rebook reservations without penalty;[22] they may purchase either a one-way or a round-trip ticket; and they may revise their plans or rearrange their itineraries at any time. In addition, they need not stay at their destination for any particular period of time, and may delay or accelerate their return plans at will. Further, there is no requirement that they purchase land accommodations in addition to air transportation, or that they stay at any particular hotel.

In view of the substantial restrictions and limitations imposed on OTC's described above,[23] none of which are applicable to normal individually ticketed service,[24] we conclude that the rule adequately maintains the necessary distinctions between the two types of service.[25]

[21] See American Airlines, Inc., v. C.A.B., 348 F.2d 349, 354 (D.C. Cir. 1965).

[22] The OTC rule does not in terms impose any cancellation requirements because, as we have said before, such provisions are inappropriate in situations in which the tour operator is an independent entrepreneur. We of course expect that tour operators will minimize their financial risks by imposing reasonable penalty conditions on canceling participants. See n. 14, supra.

[23] That these restrictions are real and substantial has been recognized in other contexts even by the opponents of the rule. Thus, in opposing imposition of emergency procedures such as ticketing time limits, advance-payment requirements, refund penalties, and restricted ticket use intended to reduce no-shows during the Arab oil embargo, several of the scheduled carriers argued that such rules were too vexing and cumbersome for air transportation to retain its appeal and seriously threatened to divert traffic to other modes of travel. See, e.g., Brief of Delta Air Lines, Inc. to the Administrative Law Judge in the Emergency Reservations Practices Investigation (Docket 26253) at 32. (Petitions for review of the initial decision in this proceeding are pending.)

[24] We note that scheduled carriers presently offer a variety of promotional fares which are limited in some respects along the same lines that our OTC rule is limited. The totality of these limitations is, however, not as severe as the restrictions imposed on OTC's, and, in any event, the fact that some discount traffic moving on scheduled services is subject to limitations designed to minimize diversion from full fares does not convert those restrictions into necessary attributes of individually ticketed service.

[25] The Board finds no merit to the arguments that the proposed regulation would impair rights granted under bilateral Air Transport Service Agreements. As recognized by these carriers, those agreements cover only "scheduled service." As detailed above, the services authorized by the OTC rule do not even constitute individually ticketed service, and we fail to perceive any basis on which they would be considered to constitute "scheduled service" as contemplated by the bilateral agreements. Nor do the scheduled service bilateral agreements afford carriers operating pursuant to the rights granted thereunder any right to operate their services free from the competition of charter or any other services not covered by such agreements.

V. Several of the respondents argue that a hearing is required before the Board can adopt the OTC charter rule. In support of this proposition they variously assert that the basic issue in this proceeding relates to airline pricing; the Board would reject out-of-hand a GIT fare filing which contained no more data than the Board has relied upon here; a hearing is needed to develop standards to determine the magnitude of diversion from scheduled services which is tolerable in the public interest; no evidence exists in the present record of what likely minimum OTC costs would be even though the Board has indicated that the minimum-price formula it has established is intended to relate directly to "likely minimum OTC costs"; and, the issues raised are genuine issues of "adjudicative" facts as opposed to "legislative" facts, and can only be resolved in an adjudicative hearing. We are not persuaded by any of these arguments that a hearing would be useful, let alone that one is legally required. To begin with, contrary to the respondents' basic premise, this proceeding simply has nothing to do with airline pricing. Rather, we are concerned here with traditional legislative issues as to what the Board's charter rules should be. One of our major concerns is, of course, the impact our proposed OTC rule will have on scheduled services. However, we do not believe a hearing is necessary to attempt to determine what amount of diversion might ultimately occur from charter operations that are not as yet being conducted, whose actual selling prices are as yet unknown, and more importantly, whose acceptance by the public, and conversely the extent of the operations, are also unknown. Although all of these issues are matters of speculation about which knowledgeable persons may hold differing opinions, we believe that the only intelligent way to gain meaningful information on these matters is from actual experience in the marketplace. Additionally, the carriers' reference to what the Board might do if a carrier filed a GIT fare tariff based upon the data available to the Board here is inapposite. As we have indicated, this proceeding is not concerned with the prescription of rates for air transportation. As such, reference to what the Board might or might not do with respect to tariff matters is of no relevance to the underlying premise of the respondents that a hearing is required because substantial "adjudicative" facts are at issue here.

In respect to the matters in dispute in this proceeding, we continue to believe that these are "legislative" concerns relating to the Board's well settled authority to evolve the definition of "charter trips,"[26] and these questions are perfectly capable of resolution through the rule-making procedures followed here. Finally, with reference to the contentions regarding likely minimum OTC prices, we determined to use $15 per day in our pricing formula on the basis of the numerous comments submitted in response to our original notice in this proceeding, in which we had proposed a minimum add-on of $25 per day. Nothing in the respondents' comments suggests that legitimate OTC charters could not be operated for this amount. The contention that there are hotels at various places in the world at which our minimum would be too low is discussed elsewhere, and we see no reason to belabor this point.[27] Moreover, it should be recognized that in selecting a pricing formula we are not engaged in ratemaking. We have not focused at all in this proceeding, and rightly so, on that element of OTC prices attributable to direct air carrier charter rates, which of course will be the major element of cost in many OTC charters. Nor are we attempting to regulate the selling prices of OTC's; our only concern in this proceeding has been the adoption of a pricing formula that adequately serves to insure that OTC's are operated as legitimate charters. We are convinced that the rule-making procedures we have followed are legally adequate for that purpose, and that all interested persons have been afforded due process in our development of this rule,[28] which, while we are hopeful will succeed in making charter travel more widely available to the traveling public, must nonetheless be recognized as but yet another innovative step whose actual impact on air travel cannot be accurately predicted, neither generally nor in particular markets.

VI. Filing of Passenger Lists

Our proposal to require advance filing of OTC passenger lists drew more comment than any other aspect of the proposed rule. In SPDR–38B we stated our tentative decision that a list of OTC participants should be filed 15 days before the flight for North American OTC's and 30 days before the flight for all others. We have now decided to adopt this proposal with certain modifications discussed hereinafter.[29]

A large number of comments have urged us to shorten the advance-filing requirement, or to eliminate it entirely. Upon consideration of these comments, we have decided that in view of the substantial uncertainty that surrounds the OTC experiment, a two-step time-phased approach to the advance-filing requirement is preferable to adoption of a single unchanging requirement. Thus, for North American charters, we will require the filing of passenger lists 15 days in advance of the flight departure until September 30, 1978. Thereafter, through the end of the OTC experiment, a 7-day advance-filing requirement will be applicable. In this way, we will gain necessary experience in the marketplace to evaluate differing advance-filing requirements, and should, therefore, have a more extensive and useful record on which to evaluate the overall impact of the OTC rule. Although it is our intention that the shift from a 15- to a 7-day requirement should be self-executing, we fully intend to review experience under the 15-day rule prior to its expiration, and are prepared to postpone or eliminate the second-step should the experience gained indicate that a 7-day advance-filing requirement would not adequately serve its intended purpose. Also, if after implementation of the 7-day requirement it appeared that the change might have an undue impact on scheduled operations, we are prepared to reimpose a longer filing requirement. Indeed, as previously indicated, we are prepared to terminate the experiment outright should that become necessary. On the other hand, we have decided to retain the proposed 30-day advance-filing rule for all other OTC's without modification. Our reasons in this respect are threefold:

First, intercontinental charter activity, particularly between the U.S. and Europe, already constitutes a far more significant segment of that market than do charter flights in domestic markets. For this reason, we believe the two-step approach to the advance-filing requirement for North American charters may be necessary to achieve substantial growth in domestic charter activity. Conversely, in view of the broader acceptance of charter flights in intercontinental markets an unchanging advance-filing requirement in these markets would not appear to detract from the marketability of OTC's.

Second, a number of comments have suggested that persons taking intercontinental trips generally make their travel plans further in advance of their departure than do persons planning trips within North America. As such, the longer unchanging advance-filing requirement for intercontinental OTC's would appear to be less burdensome to these travelers than it would be for North American OTC's.

Third, holding the advance-filing requirement for intercontinental OTC's constant while the North American OTC filing period is reduced will permit evaluation of the impact of the length of the advance-filing requirement on traffic growth.

We are not prepared to adopt at this time, however, the suggestion that the advance-filing requirement be completely eliminated. Our intention in this proceeding is to broaden the availability of low-cost vacation packages involving air transportation. We believe that OTC's will bring air travel vacations within [26] See e.g., Pan American World Airways v. Civil Aeronautics Board, No. 74–1646, 2d. Cir., May 22, 1975, at 3–4.

[27] See infra at 24.

[28] In any event, there being no statutory requirement for an "on the record" hearing (5 U.S.C. 553(c)) the rule-making procedures employed herein satisfy any hearing requirement which might be thought to be applicable. U.S. v. Allegheny-Ludlum Steel Corp., 406 U.S. 742 (1974); and U.S. v. Florida East Coast Railway Co., 410 U.S. 244 (1973).

[29] Similarly, we shall require OTC participants to make full payment of the total price of the tour by the date the passenger list must be filed: § 378a.25(b)(2).

the means of many people who could not otherwise afford them. Nevertheless, we are not unmindful of the possibility that too large a shift of OTC travel by passengers now moving on scheduled services could be injurious to scheduled services. This being so, we believe that it is the prudent course to design limitations on OTC's which will, to the extent possible, accommodate both our aims: The increased availability of low-cost bulk air transportation, and the avoidance of any undue impact on the scheduled air transportation system. In our view, the 15/7- and 30-day advance filing requirements are conducive to this dual objective.

We believe that the overwhelming percentage of prospective travelers who are willing to accept the inherent disadvantages of planeload travel in order to enjoy the low prices such transportation can offer will not find the advance-filing requirement an insurmountable obstacle. To state that under the existing charter modes many passengers book on less notice than will be required here is to miss the point. While it may be true that some charter passengers do not sign up until shortly before the departure date, we believe that most prospective passengers will not find it unduly inconvenient to book 15/7 or 30 days in advance (for North American and intercontinental OTC's respectively) in order to obtain the considerable advantages which OTC's offer.

On the other hand, we recognize that the passenger-list requirements may have some untoward effects on tour prices, the number of OTC's offered the public, and the number of OTC's that are canceled. Until more is known about the overall impact of OTC operations, however, it is our judgment that the public interest would be best served by retention in the OTC rule of the 30-day and 15/7 day advance-filing requirements.

The adoption of this rule should not be construed as a determination by the Board on issues which might have been presented if the Board had decided on no, or a different, advance filing requirement. While views differ as to whether various legal or policy considerations would be better served by lengthening, changing, or eliminating the advance filing requirement, the Board was unanimous in the desire to get an OTC program underway promptly.

British Airways would have us lengthen the advance-filing requirement to 60 days for transatlantic OTC's; TWA would require 60-day filing for both transatlantic and North American OTC's. Other comments, such as those of Certain Trunkline Carriers, seek a return to a uniform 30-day advance filing for all OTC's as proposed in SPDR-38. Our response to all these requests may be inferred from the discussion above: we do not regard a longer advance-filing requirement as necessary to prevent undue diversion from scheduled service, and the imposition of needless obstacles to the use of OTC's is inconsistent with our desire to make low-cost bulk air travel more available to the traveling public.

Some comments suggest we allow unlimited substitution of names on the passenger list, up to the time of the flight. But this would too easily defeat the purpose of the advance-filing requirement, and we must reject it. Others would allow tour operators to "fill up" otherwise empty seats, by permitting a specified percentage of seats to be sold after the filing deadline, in a manner similar to that permitted for Travel Group Charters under Part 372a. While we agree that this might lead to some reduction in OTC costs, we have determined not to accept this suggestion for the reason outlined above: the "fill up" proposal could unbalance the rule to the detriment of the nation's scheduled air transportation system, and the benefits to be derived from the proposal are not sufficient to compensate for that detriment. Moreover, the analogy to the TGC rule is not really apposite: the 60-day advance booking required there is a greater burden than we are imposing here.

We must also reject the suggestion, made by numerous parties, that we allow the filing of the passenger lists some time after the cut-off for passenger reservation and payment. The purpose would be to allow extra administrative and mailing time, and to eliminate the problem of filings by indirect air carriers in distant cities. We are sympathetic to all these arguments, but we believe that the enforcement difficulties that would be created by such a system outweigh any added convenience to the tour operator.

In respect to the advance filing of passenger lists, we have determined that it will be necessary to impose one additional requirement. Along with the names, addresses, and phone numbers of the OTC participants, we will require the air carrier and tour operator to give the address and phone number of the retail agent who sold the tour to the participant. We believe that this will greatly facilitate our prosecution of any violation of our regulations without imposing any substantial burdens.

Minimum Duration

We have determined to adopt the minimum-duration proposals of the Supplemental Notice. In proposing uniform minimums of 4 days for North American OTC's and 7 days for all others, we stated our belief that "the benefits to be derived from proposing minimum-stay restrictions that are compatible with effective marketing and charter economics outweigh the need to propose minimum periods of the kind least likely to have an undue impact on scheduled services." (SPDR-38B, mimeo pp. 7–8.) Nothing in the comments on the proposal alters that belief.

Most of the comments support our proposal, and agree that back-to-back operations, which provide the greatest operating efficiency, are greatly facilitated if flights are regularized on a per-week basis. Our original proposals, which would have required a (non-winter) minimum of 10 days for transatlantic OTC's and would have allowed "long weekend" OTC's in North America (but no other OTC of short duration) would be incompatible with this approach. The savings, in lower costs and greater flexibility, are substantial, and we believe that any additional impact on scheduled service as a result of this liberalization will be minor. The claims made by opponents of the revised proposal to the effect that the shortened minimum duration will substantially increase the risk of undue diversion of scheduled traffic are not persuasive: the number of additional scheduled service passengers who might use OTC's because of this modification is unlikely to be that large. Outside North America, this change merely allows 7-day OTC's year-round, instead of only during the winter. For North American OTC's, it sets a flat four-day minimum; under the original proposal, the minimum would have been 7 days, unless the return leg departed on a Sunday or Monday.[20]

Pan American, while endorsing our proposal to establish regulations making back-to-back charters feasible, believes that in practice an 8-day charter pattern in intercontinental OTC's will provide the maximum efficiencies. Whether or not this is so would seem not to matter here. We are only attempting to impose maximum durations; if the marketplace demonstrates that tour operators are able to offer more attractive vacation packages on an 8-day (7-night) pattern than on a 7-day (6-night) pattern, there will undoubtedly be competitive pressures to do so, and our rule will not inhibit this. We will therefore reject Pan Am's request to establish 8 days as the minimum duration for OTC's outside of North America.

A number of comments have urged us to reinstate some form of "long weekend" provision, such as we had in the original proposal. While we agree that there would appear to be a demand for relatively short vacations, we believe that the 4-day North American minimum adequately provides for the needs of most "long weekend" vacationers. Under our proposal, an OTC could be arranged to depart on a Friday evening and return on Monday, or to depart on a Thursday evening, with return as early as Sunday.

The Department of Commerce would allow foreign-originating OTC's to have a minimum duration of 4 days. We have decided, however, not to incorporate this idea within our regulations, and will deal with any request for such a program through the waiver process.

[20] Indeed, to the extent that we have now set a definite 4-day minimum in North America, our action may be regarded as more restrictive in one respect than the initial proposal. Previously an OTC of any length could be operated in North American markets, as long as the return flight was scheduled for Sunday or Monday.

Ground Accommodations and Services

Our proposal in SPDR–38B to modify the OTC ground package requirements by eliminating meals as a mandatory element has received widespread support, and we have decided to incorporate it in the final rule. The decision as to provision of some or all meals will be left to the tour organizer. The cost of providing the meals may be counted toward the total minimum price of the package, but no meals will be required in the rule. This approach, we believe, provides maximum flexibility to both the public and the tour organizer.

Only two comments directly oppose the elimination of the meal requirement. Pan Am states that OTC tour operators would "typically" arrange for breakfast and one other meal anyway. Whether or not this statement is correct, our rule will permit them to do so if they wish. We have merely determined that there is no compelling reason to require meals. We make the same response to American Express, which would have us require breakfast only. It states that most of its GIT passengers consider breakfast a desirable element on the tour. If American Express operates OTC's, it will be free to offer breakfast or any other meal as part of its OTC ground package. But we think that the decision as to what combination of ground elements will most likely attract participants should, where possible, be left to the individual tour operator.

Comment was more sharply divided on our other proposal, to allow rental cars and rail passes as part of an OTC package. We have determined that these forms of prepaid individual transportation should not be permitted to be made a part of OTC packages, whether on an optional, extra-cost, basis or otherwise. Our concern is that even if the charge for a rental car or rail pass were not permitted to be included in the $15-per-night minimum, authorizing the offering of such options could too easily lead to throwaway sleeping accommodations, with the real thrust of such OTC's amounting to point-to-point air transportation plus individual ground transportation at the destination point. And the only way this kind of subterfuge could be discovered, were the offering of rental cars and rail passes authorized, would be for the Board's staff to investigate into whether the price of the OTC package was sufficiently above the $15-per-night minimum to cover the costs to the tour operator of the rental car or rail passes. That, plainly, would pose nearly insuperable administrative burdens, apart from the fact that the Board claims no expertise in making cost determinations of that nature.

We have considered the comment of the Board's Office of the Consumer Advocate that because tour participants cannot be prohibited from obtaining individual transportation on their own, allowing the tour operator to coordinate the reservation of these services is merely a convenience to the participants. In our judgment, the slight inconvenience to the participants resulting from having to undertake individually to arrange for a rental car or rail pass is outweighed by the need to protect the integrity of the tour concept, as discussed above.

Several comments nevertheless have recommended that we allow free and unlimited use of rental cars and rail passes. These comments urge us not to be concerned about the possibility that allowing prepaid individual transportation will subvert the group tour nature of the OTC. For example, Quebecair would allow the use of rental cars with trailers as virtually the sole ground element. That kind of package may have a valid tourist appeal, but is quite outside the OTC concept.[21] Similarly, we have determined to reject the suggestions made by Vacation Ventures, Libtours International, Modern Air Transport, and some others that we allow fly-drive vacations with the tour operator supplying rental cars and a tour itinerary. We believe that to authorize such an operation would be to invite abuse, and precisely the sort of throwaway hotel package which has concerned us.

Total Minimum Cost of the Tour to Each Participant

Numerous commenting parties have addressed themselves to the formula we proposed for determining the minimum price to OTC participants. We proposed in the Supplemental Notice to abandon the originally proposed minimum of 110 percent of any air fare available on a scheduled carrier, and to instead establish the minimum as the charter price of the participant's seat plus $15 for each night of the tour.[22]

The concept of establishing the minimum tour price along the lines of the Supplemental Notice has received widespread support, and we have determined to make it final. Some comments, while favoring the idea of a price based on the charter seat cost plus a fixed amount per night, recommended per diem amounts different from our proposal. These range from the $25 per night recommended by Trade Winds Tours of Hawaii, to $10 per night, suggested by ACAP and others. But the arguments they present have not persuaded us to alter our proposal of $15 per night, which was also the amount most frequently recommended in the comments.

We specifically sought comment on the idea of basing the minimum OTC price on a percentage of the charter seat cost (such as 125 percent) plus a small per diem charge (perhaps $10). We expressed concern that a straight $15 per night "add-on" might tend to overprice those OTC's in which the air transportation costs are a smaller percentage of the OTC operator's total costs, and underprice those OTC's in which the air transportation costs are a larger percentage of the total costs. With few exceptions, however, the comments received evidence little support for this kind of pricing formula. Many parties stress the value of simplicity, and believe that a higher per diem charge is preferable to a lower charge in combination with a multiple of the charter seat cost. We are therefore rejecting this alternate pricing formula, as well as other comments seeking a tapering per diem (such as proposed by Holidair, Ltd. and American Express).

We must reject the suggestion made by a number of parties that we prescribe no fixed minimum OTC price, and that the minimum be the tour operator's actual costs for hotels, transfers, baggage and air transportation. Parties advocating this course state that we should allow the OTC price to be set by the natural forces of competition. While we are sympathetic to this argument, we believe that a price formula based on "actual" costs will create insuperable enforcement and administrative burdens for the Board's staff. The $15-per-night minimum is, we believe, a rational one, and will be far more simple to enforce than one based on the charges of a myriad of different suppliers of ground services. In addition, we believe that in any case where ground packages can be assembled for less than $15 per night, competition will still have its effect, by encouraging tour operators to offer better accommodations or added features, such as sightseeing trips or meals.

The Department of Commerce and the CAB's Office of the Consumer Advocate have proposed a lower minimum OTC price for children under 12 who sleep in the same room as their parents. ASTA has also indicated its support for the idea. We believe that there is substantial merit to this proposal, which recognizes the widespread practice in the hotel industry of making only a nominal additional charge for young children sharing their parents' room. No comments have been filed in opposition to the idea, and we have determined to adopt it. Therefore, we are modifying the rule to state that the minimum tour price for a child under the age of 12 will be the pro rata charter seat price plus $7.50 per night, provided he shares sleeping accommodations with one or more persons paying a full tour price.[23]

A number of scheduled air carriers have opposed the Board's basic $15-per-night formula, charging that it is unrealistically low. As evidence, Certain Trunkline Carriers cite the retail price of rooms at certain hotels in Miami, Acapulco, Bermuda and San Juan. However, the fact that particular hotels in a few fashionable areas have peak season charges higher than $15 per person is not really responsive to the question of [21] If a tour operator wished to organize such a vacation package, he could of course do so under our other charter regulations (such as the TGC rule).

[22] Thus, the minimum add-on for North American OTC's will be $45, and for all other OTC's $90.

[23] The minimum-charge provisions do not apply to children under 2 who do not occupy a seat on the charter flight.

the appropriate minimum OTC tour price. If tour operators must pay the rates quoted by the Trunklines [34] then it is clear that peak-season tours to these locations would be sold at prices higher than our minimum, or would involve accommodations at different hotels. But these considerations are not relevant to the determination of the proper price minimum.[35]

The most common suggestion of the scheduled carriers opposing our minimum-price formula is that we establish OTC minimums as a percentage of the scheduled air fare. Most would have us retain the 110 percent rule.[36]

The gravamen of the claim that a 110 percent rule is needed is that absent such a rule, substantial numbers of passengers uninterested in the land accommodations included in an OTC would nonetheless use the OTC and throw away the accommodations, since OTC's with a land package would, absent a 110 percent rule, in many cases be cheaper than point-to-point scheduled air fares.[37]

There is no doubt that under the OTC rule as adopted here some prospective scheduled airline passengers who can make plans well in advance and whose travel plans happen to coincide with the flight itinerary of an OTC will use OTC's even in circumstances in which the passengers cannot use the OTC's land accommodations. But we have opted not to follow the 110 percent approach for several reasons.

First, the 110 percent rule's deterrent influence is not merely against those passengers who might "throw away" the tour package, but rather against the operation of these tours at all. Tour operators clearly perceive this price restriction to be a virtual bar to the marketability of an inclusive tour program. If the Board is to achieve its objective of increasing the availability of charter service for the American public and of creating a viable charter regime which is not based on "prior affinity" charters, with all the problems inherent in them, then we must prescribe regulations which will enable tour operators to offer vacation packages at prices which will attract participants.

Second, the economies of planeload air transportation are such that tour-type charters, if not unduly restricted as to minimum price, can bring the benefits of air transportation within the financial reach of many people who otherwise might never have had the opportunity to travel by air to a vacation spot. And in view of our statutory responsibility to encourage and develop air transportation, we are not persuaded to forego this result simply because under some circumstances some travelers may elect to throw away the land portion of an OTC. Certainly, as discussed in detail supra, such a limitation is not necessary to preserve the viability of the scheduled air transport system, and in the absence of such a threat, we can perceive no reasonable basis for denying persons not now able to afford air transportation, but who are willing to accept the limitations inherent in group charter transportation, the opportunity to utilize an inclusive tour package priced on the economies of planeload operations.

Third, because of the many factors also discussed earlier, we are convinced that OTC's will pose no threat to scheduled air service or to the industry that provides that service, and that, concomitantly the numbers of prospective scheduled air passengers who would use OTC's for point-to-point transportation will be altogether insignificant, particularly when viewed in light of the considerable numbers of scheduled passengers carried by each of the nation's certificated route carriers.[38]

VII. Special Event Charters

The Board has determined to go forward with its proposal in SPDR–37C, to incorporate Special Event Charters within the OTC rule. While we have received some comments opposing the SEC concept entirely, virtually all commenting parties agreed that the substantial similarities between the two charter proposals justify our decision to deal with them jointly. Only NACA has recommended that SEC's be adopted as a separate Part, distinct from OTC's. NACA states that we should not "encumber" SEC's with restrictions designed for a different type of charter, and should instead adopt restrictions designed for its particular characteristics. While we do not disagree with this premise, the Board believes that SEC's do fit appropriately within the OTC concept, and that the interests of the public and administrative efficiency are both better served by incorporating the SEC and OTC regulations within a single Part.

(a) The Special event. We have received numerous comments on our proposed definition of "special event" for the purposes of this Part. We have had essentially no opposition to our proposal to eliminate restrictions on the eligibility of events whose primary purpose is the promotion of tourism or which are sponsored by persons in the tourist industry. We have therefore determined to adopt this modification. As we stated in the Supplemental Notice, we do not regard the status or goals of the event promoters as having any bearing on whether or not an event is "special." However, we will expressly prohibit SEC's to events which are sponsored by direct air carriers or which are created for the purpose of justifying charter travel.

In addition, further consideration and a review of the comments has led us to decide that some additional criteria should be established for determining which events will be deemed qualified for Special Event Charter traffic and which will not. Without some additional guidelines, there may be some persons who would be tempted to seek authorization to operate a 3-day SEC to an ostensible "special event" which is not in fact significant or special. While such requests would be denied, the resulting paperwork would unnecessarily burden the Board's staff, and might even lead to needless delays in the processing of legitimate SEC applications.[39]

We are therefore providing in our rule that one important element in determining whether an event will qualify for SEC travel is whether the details of the event—such as the date, the site, the participants, and the event's significance—were known substantially in advance of the date of the event.

Generally, if the date, significance, participants and site of an event are publicly known more than 60 days in advance, such an event would not ordinarily be deemed "special" for the purpose of the SEC rule. On the other hand, we recognize that there are events which, notwithstanding the fact that the particulars are known more than 60 days in advance, are nonetheless "special" within the basic concept of the SEC rule. It is not our intention to withhold authorization for SEC travel to these events and we are prepared to grant appropriate authorization for them. However, we believe the addition of this 60-day standard will discourage any attempt to misuse the SEC rule.

We find ourselves in agreement with the suggestion made by United, NACA and others that we periodically publish a list of SEC applications which have been approved or disapproved, in order to provide guidance for the industry and all other interested persons as to what sorts of events are deemed to qualify for SEC traffic. Accordingly, such lists will be compiled and made publicly available.

(b) Ground package and pricing. We will make final our proposals for the required SEC ground package elements. Baggage handling and all necessary ground transportation must be provided, and the package must include admission to the event for each day of the charter, unless scheduling obstacles make attendance unfeasible. For SEC's involving an overnight stay, sleeping accommodations must be furnished as well.

Comment was sharply divided on whether to require a minimum price for all SEC's, for those lasting longer than one day, or for none at all. We have determined to follow the middle course, and to impose a minimum price of $15 for each night of the charter except that in the case of SEC's which depart the event site on the same day as they arrive there will be no minimum price. In the latter case, the costliest element of the ground package will likely be the admission charge to the special event, which of course will vary widely from event to event, and even with respect to a given event.[40] An attempt to establish a rational minimum price for one-day SEC's would thus appear fruitless. On the other hand, the similarity between the ground packages of SEC's of more than one day and ordinary OTC's is obvious. We have therefore determined that the $15-per-night minimum should be made applicable to SEC's as well. This will have two beneficial effects. First, it will act as a further deterrent to those who would attempt to utilize the SEC format to engage in operations other than providing a tour package to persons desiring to attend a special event. And second, it will encourage SEC operators to keep their arrival and departure schedules as close as possible to the time of the event. Any unnecessary overnight stay would lead to higher participant costs and hence a competitive disadvantage.

(c) Duration of SEC's. We will adopt our proposals for maximum SEC duration without change. North American SEC's may not exceed 3 days (2 nights); elsewhere, SEC's may not exceed 6 days (5 nights). However, we have decided to modify the limitations on the maximum duration before and after the special event within which the departing and returning flights must be operated. Whereas we originally proposed that the departing flight shall arrive at the (destination no earlier than 36 hours prior to the commencement of the event and the returning flight depart no later than 36 hours after the termination of the event, we have now decided that the grace periods should correspond with the participants' attendance at the special event and the termination of the attendance rather than the starting and ending times of the event itself. This change will conform the limitation with the participants' actual plans, and will better serve to limit SEC's to their intended purpose than the original proposal.

NACA contends that these restrictions are too severe, and recommends a maximum stay of 14 days. Such a liberalized restriction, NACA suggests, would make it possible to operate SEC's to events such as the Olympic Games. However, while we do not dispute the idea that the Olympic Games are conceptually "special," we do not agree that our rule should be modified to permit SEC traffic to them. We believe that we have made adequate provision for those persons wishing to attend the Olympics under the general OTC rule we are adopting, and we see no valid reason to allow an overlap in our regulations. Travel to special events of extended duration is eminently suited to the OTC concept.

We have received some comments asking that we extend the 36-hour limitation on arrival and departure. We will not do so, because we feel that 36 hours will obviate virtually all scheduling difficulties.

(d) The statement of authorization. The Statement of Authorization remains at the heart of our rule. We must therefore reject NACA's proposal to require a simple prospectus filing rather than a formal statement of authorization. At least initially the prior approval procedure will be our primary tool to ensure that SEC's are used for attendance at special events, and not for other purposes.

We must also reject ASTA's request that we impose on ourselves a 15-day deadline for processing SEC applications, so that our failure to act upon such application within the 15-day period would be deemed approval of the application. Although we recognize the importance of prompt action on these applications because of the length of time needed to market the SEC after approval is obtained, we do not believe that we should commit ourselves and our staff to meeting an arbitrary deadline in acting upon applications that are often likely to raise some novel questions. Nevertheless, we do not wish our refusal to be bound here to be misconstrued—SEC applications will be acted upon as expeditiously as circumstances permit.

Pan American would require all applications for statements of authorization to be served upon scheduled carriers in the market for which an SEC is proposed. The carriers would then be given an opportunity to comment on the application. Such a procedure, we believe, would be unduly burdensome and create unnecessary and perhaps fatal delays in the approval procedure.

(e) Other issues. We must reject the proposal of Aerlinte that we require advance filing of passenger lists, as we do for regular OTC's. We do not see this as either practical or necessary. Under our modified rule, most SEC's will be operated on short notice. A passenger list filing requirement, cutting off sales before the departure, might make it impossible to effectively market the charter.

NACA would allow open-jaw and circle SEC's for events taking place in more than one city. In view of the durational limitations on SEC's, we frankly doubt that any otherwise-qualified charter would be eliminated by this restriction. We will consider a request for a waiver if the circumstance should arise, but we see no reason to make specific provisions for such an unlikely situation.

VIII. We turn now to consideration of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (42 U.S.C. 4321 et seq.) (NEPA), and the Board's responsibilities pursuant thereto.[41] In instituting this proceeding, the Board did not believe that it would result in a "major Federal action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment" within the meaning of Section 102(2)(C) of NEPA, and consequently no environmental procedures were initiated. In now determining to adopt an OTC rule along the lines proposed in the Supplemental Notice, as revised herein, we continue to believe that because the OTC rule is not likely to produce significant environmental consequences, no NEPA "environmental impact statement" is required at this time.

In reaching this conclusion, we have taken note of the fact that of the many comments received in this public proceeding, not one suggested any possible environmental issue nor has any Federal, State, or local agency, or other public body concerned with environmental issues—or any private "environmental action" group—participated herein to protect any perceived environmental concerns. This reflects, we believe, a consensus that any proposed OTC rule would be unlikely to have a substantial environmental impact. In any event, notwithstanding the absence of comments suggesting any such environmental consequences, we have given the matter consideration on our own initiative, and have concluded that the decision to substantially modify our existing charter regime

[34] In any event, we believe this unlikely since tour operators booking large numbers of rooms well in advance are customarily able to secure a discount.

[35] We would note that we understand the need to periodically reevaluate the appropriate per diem charge, in the light of inflation and currency fluctuations. While we are satisfied that $15 for each night is, today, in line with the likely minimum costs of a bona fide vacation package, we recognize that this may not be so in a year or two. We are therefore taking this opportunity to underscore our intention to monitor the situation, and to make any changes in the rule which are required by the public interest.

[36] TWA seeks a minimum price more restrictive in some ways than 110 percent of any scheduled air fare. It would impose a minimum of the lower of 110 percent of the basic economy fare, or 130 percent of any discount fare. Pan American, while not advocating the use of a formula that would require OTC's to be priced above scheduled fares, still believes that the OTC price should be tied in some manner to the scheduled fare structure. It suggests that we adopt a flat formula of 50 percent of the basic economy fare (60 percent in North America) plus $15 per night. We will not adopt this proposal, because we do not perceive it to have any benefits over our own formula. To the extent that it may produce OTC prices lower than scheduled fares, it offers no greater protection for scheduled services. And to the extent that it produces a minimum OTC price that is not meaningfully related to OTC costs, it offers no benefits to the public. We see no reason to force changes in OTC prices on the sole ground that the scheduled basic economy fare has changed. Yet this, of course, would necessarily result from Pan Am's proposal, or from any other percentage formula.

[37] See Appendix 4 infra. We note, in this connection, that comparable situations arise even in respect to fares charged by the scheduled carriers for service on scheduled flights. For example TWA, which (as indicated in n. 36) is among those raising the "throw-away" argument, has been vigorously advertising tour packages which, when combined with TWA's tour-basing fare undercut TWA's own normal coach prices.

[38] In 1974 United, the largest trunk carrier, enplaned 30,588,000 passengers (or 83,800 per day); the smallest trunk carrier enplanements were National's 4,812,000 (13,200 per day) (National was shut down by a strike during part of 1974); local service carriers enplane from about 2 million passengers per year (5,500 per day), on up to about 11 million (30,100 per day). The local service carriers' main interest in the rule, however, is to be able to use it to add to their traffic by operating more off-route charters than they are now permitted. To this effect, several of these carriers have proposed changes in the Board's off-route charter rules in Part 207. Other comments have suggested either clarification of Part 207 in certain respects or increased limitations on off-route charters. We consider all such requests beyond the scope of the present proceeding.

[39] See Appendix 8 for examples of events that do not constitute special events.

[40] For example, tickets to sports events often vary over a substantial price range.

[41] See also § 399.110 of the Board's Policy Statements (14 CFR Part 399).

is not a major Federal action likely to have a significant effect on the quality of the human environment.

At the outset, we believe the greatest difficulty in attempting to assess the OTC rule's likely environmental impact is caused by the substantial uncertainty that surrounds a determination of the rule's ultimate acceptance in the marketplace. Without knowing the extent to which the public will make use of OTC's it is not feasible at this time to make a realistic evaluation of the prospective actual consequences of this rule, in terms of either the number of new flights that will result, the number of passengers who will travel on OTC's, or the markets in which OTC flights will operate. In general, however, six different types of consequences appear theoretically possible:

(1) The public finds OTC's an unacceptable travel format, with the result that few if any OTC's are ever operated;

(2) Substantially all traffic moving on OTC's is diverted from scheduled services;

(3) Substantially all traffic moving on OTC's is diverted from other charter formats;

(4) The OTC rule results primarily in the generation of new traffic;

(5) A combination of (2) and (3) above occurs;

(6) The OTC rule results in some combination of (2), (3), and (4). Of these consequences, the first three and number (5) would engender essentially no significant environmental effects, for the reason that the number of flights and passengers would remain substantially at the status quo.[42] However, even under possibilities (4) and (6), there is no reason to believe that the extent of OTC operations would be so great, especially when consideration is given to the existing relationship between charter and scheduled services (see Appendix 2[42a]), as to constitute a major action having a significant impact on the quality of the human environment. Indeed, an offsetting environmental effect might be obtained to the extent passengers are diverted from automobile travel to charter flights.

Even under the most extreme assumption—namely, that every OTC participant is newly generated, rather than diverted from existing charter modes or scheduled services and that all existing charter and scheduled flights would continue to operate—there is still no reason to believe that the extent of the resultant additional flights, which would be dispersed throughout both the domestic and international air transportation systems, would have a significant impact on the quality of the human environment.

In reaching this conclusion, we have considered that the OTC rule is an experimental program with a limited duration and that the scheduled and supplemental carriers will therefore be unlikely to acquire new equipment solely for OTC operations even if it were possible to obtain additional aircraft during the short duration of the rule. The present extremely small size of the supplemental fleet (see Appendix 6) will inhibit any dramatic increase over their present level of charter activity. As to the scheduled carriers, a substantial portion of their fleets are presently required for the provision of certificated route services and would not be available to provide significant additional capacity assignable to OTC traffic.

Thus, under this worst-case hypothesis (that all OTC flights would be in addition to current charter and scheduled services) there will be little potential for a significantly greater number of flights. In addition, there are substantial regulatory and cost constraints on the use of jet fuel which would appear to limit any significant increase in the extent of the carriers' operations.

In fact, however, this "worst-case" result is not likely to occur. Some OTC participants will, of course, be diverted from existing charter services; indeed, a principal reason for adopting the rule is to provide an effective, non-discriminatory alternative to affinity charters. Others will undoubtedly be diverted from scheduled services.[43] On balance, although we do expect the rule to result in generation of new traffic, we are not persuaded either on the basis of experience or any factual presentation herein that significant environmental consequences will follow the adoption of the rule.

As previously indicated, the rule is being adopted on an experimental basis, and the Board will be continually monitoring the extent and effects of OTC operations, both generally and with regard to individual localities, so that we will be in a position to determine whether the environmental issues require further examination. Moreover, it should be emphasized that the adoption of the rule creates no irremediable environmental impact, as would the construction of a major highway or dam, and that the Board retains the ability to terminate the experiment in the event of untoward economic or environmental consequences.

IX. Miscellaneous Matters

We have determined that it will be necessary to institute certain changes and additions to our proposed reporting requirements. First, we are modifying § 378a.50 to require reports monthly during the course of the OTC program (rather than merely at the end of the series of tours), on whether proposed tours were in fact operated. The report will also be required to include a summary of the number of OTC passengers carried between each city-pair for each OTC program.

Similarly, we are adding a requirement that tour operators and direct air carriers file a monthly report on the number of OTC flights and seats for which they have contracted during each of the following six months.[44]

The purpose of all these changes is to provide the Board with better information on developing trends. They will be particularly useful in helping to determine the need for imposing additional restrictions on OTC operations under our post hoc review procedure, and with regard to evaluating the entire OTC experiment.

Several parties have urged that we require OTC tour operators to pay commissions to retail travel agents, and some have suggested a specific minimum commission level. We do not impose any such requirement on ITC or TGC organizers, and we see no purpose in requiring them here. For the same reason, we reject the proposals of ASTA, David Travels, American, Trade Wind Tours of Hawaii and others which would impose certain criteria for OTC organizers. There appears to be no reason to be more restrictive in granting OTC operating authority than we are under our other special charter rules. As to those comments which would have us license all tour operators or travel group organizers as indirect air carriers, we regard this question as going beyond the scope of this proceeding.

We have determined to make final our proposal to limit the effectiveness of any OTC prospectus filing to a maximum of 180 days. A number of tour operators have complained that this requirement will pose an inconvenience to them, because it will mean two filings per year instead of one. We appreciate the fact that this procedure may inconvenience certain tour operators, but we believe this consideration must take second place to the Board's need to maintain close supervision over the actual operation of the promptly to make any changes required by the public interest.

The comments of the Board's Consumer Advocate contain several consumer protection proposals. These include proposals to allow a tour participant to cancel his flight or receive a partial refund in case of an unplanned shortening of the trip and to preclude the tour participant's check from being made payable to the retail travel agent, in order to prevent any intermingling with agency funds. We believe that there may be substantial merit to these proposals. How-

[42] It should be noted, however, that to the extent some traffic is diverted to planeload OTC's from scheduled services, which ordinarily must operate at substantially lower load factors, fewer OTC flights would be required to carry the same number of passengers as had travelled on scheduled flights.

[43] In fact, the opponents of the rule assert that a substantial portion of OTC participants will in fact be diverted from scheduled services resulting in an undesirable diminution in the level of those services.

[44] The reporting requirements contained in our regulation herein, along with the forms on which the required information is to be reported, are being submitted to the General Accounting Office. (See Federal Reports Act of 1942, 44 U.S.C. 3512.) We are postponing the effective date of the reporting requirements and the issuance of the forms pending consideration of those matters by the GAO.

ever, we have determined that they should be dealt with in a separate rulemaking proceeding, where related changes to our other charter rules may be considered at the same time.

We are agreeable to the suggestion made by United, Quebecair, ASTA and the Incentive Companies, that carriers and tour operators be allowed to submit standard contract forms for Board approval, thus assuring the technical compliance of such forms with the regulations. Once approved, the form contract may be used for repeated filings, as long as the governing regulations and other circumstances remain unchanged.[45]

We will not adopt the proposals of Frontier and Texas International that a minimum mileage limitation be imposed on OTC operations. Arbitrary mileage limits such as these would be contrary to our purpose in adopting this charter rule. Frontier's reference to the minimum-mileage restrictions in the Bicentennial fares[46] is inapposite here. In that case we were concerned with the impact on scheduled carriers of promotional fares which are not fully compensatory. The bases for evaluating charter operations are of course wholly distinguishable.

We have determined not to adopt the proposals made by a number of tour operators that the surety bond requirements be increased. We believe that doing this would tend to make it difficult for smaller tour operators to be able to operate OTC's. Since there has been no evidence that the public interest is jeopardized by our present procedures, we see no need to take an action which might tend to lessen competition for OTC traffic.

Nationwide would allow advertising of an OTC program before it has received Board approval, as long as no money is accepted by the operator. We will not approve this proposal. The potential for abuse in such a scheme is, we feel, obvious. And the difficulties which would be raised when the Board is compelled to reject a filed prospectus are equally troublesome. AITS, Inc. suggests that we permit tour operators to advertise in trade publications before the prospectus is approved, although not in the public media. There may be some merit in this idea, but we believe that there are also potential difficulties (such as the prospect of a retail agent jumping the gun by selling a tour which is not approved). Therefore we have determined that it would be best not to deal with the question in the present context.

We will not adopt the varying proposals of Kuoni Travel, the Foreign Study League, and the Bahamas Ministry of Tourism and the Bahamas Hotel Association, to decrease the minimum OTC group size. These suggestions are either contrary to our intention to provide group travel, or are based on specialized situations which are better handled on a case-by-case basis through waivers, rather than in the general rule. Certain Trunkline Carriers request that we prohibit split OTC's altogether. However, split charters are authorized pursuant to our various other charter rules, and based on available information the authority to operate split charters has been, on balance, a benefit to the public. We have no reason to conclude that split OTC's would be less beneficial than others.

The Incentive Companies would also have us provide, in the general OTC rule, special provisions governing their particular operations. Here again we do not believe this would be appropriate. As to their claim that a separate Part should be adopted to provide regulations governing incentive charters, that is, of course, beyond the scope of the instant proceeding.

Similarly beyond the scope of this proceeding is the proposal of TWA, Certain Trunkline Carriers, American, and American Express that we allow part charters. Such a major regulatory change should not be considered as a side issue in a case of the present nature. The scheduled industry may be assured, however, that the Board will permit scheduled carriers to adopt economically feasible charter competitive fares.

American Express states that we should not require the tour operator to obtain the tour participant's signature on the tour participant's contract. We believe this is an important consumer protection requirement, and one we will not discard merely because of an assertion that it is a "source of consumer sales resistance."

The comment of Kuoni Travel asks that we authorize, in this proceeding, all foreign indirect air carriers holding ITC authorization to operate OTC's as well. This, says Kuoni, would save such tour operators the expense and inconvenience of applying for OTC authority. While we will not formally act here on OTC authorizations for foreign tour operators, we do announce that we intend to act, by show cause procedures, to consider the grant of OTC authority to those foreign indirect air carriers whose permits authorize the operation of ITC's.

Certain Trunkline Carriers believe that it is necessary to impose a 25 percent refund penalty for voluntary cancellation of a participant's reservation, as we do for TGC's under Part 372a. We do not agree. The fact that substitutions are allowed in TGC's but not in the OTC's renders comparison between the two inappropriate on this issue. In any event, we anticipate that tour operators will impose substantial refund penalties on their own initiative: See page 13, supra.

American believes that we should require direct air carriers to file tariffs with substantial cancellation charges: 25 percent of the charter price for cancellations within 60 days of departure; 50 percent for cancellations within 30 days of departure. American claims that this would encourage tour operators to cancel operations early. However, consideration of tariff matters here would be inappropriate. Rather, questions regarding cancellation fees will be considered in connection with normal tariff evaluation procedure.[47]

American would also have us relieve direct air carriers from any responsibility to verify that emplaning passengers appear on the passenger list filed by the Board. We cannot consent to this. The direct air carrier is a party to the filing of the charter documents and is in a unique position to ascertain the identity of persons boarding its aircraft. American's alternative suggestion—that the Board enforce its regulations by instituting a program of random observance of OTC charter flight check-ins by the CAB field staff—would in our judgment be unworkable. Both the indirect and direct air carriers benefit from OTC operations. It is not unduly burdensome to require that both work to assure their operations comply with our regulations.

We have determined that there will be no need to adopt the specific record-retention requirements of proposed § 378a.33, in view of our amendments herein to Part 249. We have therefore modified § 378a.33 to state simply that OTC tour operators must comply with the applicable provisions of Part 249 of the Economic Regulations.

We will not adopt any of the other proposals in the comments, such as David Travel's request that tour operators' hotel room contracts be filed with the Board or American Express suggestion for a technical amendment on computation of time (both of which we regard as unnecessary).[48]

Finally, we have considered authorizing OTC's in only specified markets, in order to test the OTC rule's impact on a limited scale. Upon consideration, however, we have determined that such an approval would cause considerably more problems than it would solve. Our first concern is that such an approach would cause tour operators to focus their energies in the limited number of authorized markets, which in turn could eventuate in harm to scheduled services in those markets that would not have come to [45] For example, a change in carrier tariffs might invalidate a previously approved contract form. In this regard, we would also note our specific rejection of the recommendation by Globus that we state that inconsistency between a carrier's tariff and the charter contract will not be grounds for rejecting a filing. In addition, we would point out that approval by the Board's staff of a charter document form will not bind the Board itself from subsequently reviewing the staff action, either at the time of the first use of the document, or at any subsequent time.

[47] See in this connection, Orders 74-3-39, 74-9-72, and 75-2-18, and the July 5, 1974 letter to the industry of the Directors of the Bureaus of Operating Rights and Economics on the subject cancellation provisions.

[48] On the other hand, we are requiring in § 378a.27, "Methods of Competition," that advertising of an OTC must include only the total tour price, without a breakdown into component parts. This provision was inadvertently omitted from our proposal for OTC's in EDR-281/SPDR-38/ODR-9, but was included in our proposal for SEC's, in SPDR-37. It seems obvious that the advertising for these types of "package" charters should be governed by the same requirements as for the advertisement of ITC's.

pass were tour operators free to pick markets freee from Board restraint. Further, a market-by-market test would be unlikely to provide persuasive data on the effects of OTC's If OTC's went unused, that might indicate only that the Board selected the wrong markets. And if they were so heavily used as to cause problems to scheduled services, a likely cause would be, as discussed above, that the Board's restrictions required tour operators to concentrate their operations in a limited number of markets. And lastly, we are most reluctant to substitute our judgment for that of the marketplace in the selection of permissible OTC markets, particularly, since the Board is ill equipped to make such decisions and because such decisions which necessarily would be arbitrary at least in part, could have such profound effects on the economies of the various vacation destinations.

To the extent that we have not expressly dealt with any particular comment or proposal, it has been considered and is denied.[4]

In consideration of the foregoing, the Civil Aeronautics Board adopts Part 378a of its Special Regulations (14 CFR Part 378a) effective September 13, 1975 as follows:[5]

Subpart A—General Provisions

§ 378a.1 Applicability.

This part establishes the terms and conditions governing the furnishing of "One-stop-inclusive Tour Charters" (OTC's) in air transportation by direct air carriers and foreign air carriers and by OTC tour operators. This part also relieves such tour operators (other than foreign tour operators) from various provisions of Title IV of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958, as amended, for the purpose of enabling them to provide OTC's utilizing aircraft chartered from such direct carriers. It also contains a limited declination of exercise of jurisdiction over foreign tour operators. The provisions of this regulation shall not be construed as limiting any other authority to engage in air transportation issued by the Board. Nothing contained in this part shall be construed as repealing or amending any provisions of any of the Board's regulations, unless the context so requires.

§ 378a.2 Definitions.

As used in this part, unless the context otherwise requires—

"Charter" means a one-stop-inclusive tour charter, including a special event charter operated pursuant to Subpart F of this part.

"Direct air carrier" means (1) an air carrier holding a certificate of public convenience and necessity issued pursuant to Section 401 of the Act, or (2) a foreign air carrier which holds a permit issued under Section 402 of the Act authorizing direct air transportation.

"Foreign tour operator" means any person not a citizen of the United States, as defined in Section 101(13) of the Act (other than a direct foreign air carrier), who is (1) engaged in the formation of groups for transportation on one-stop-inclusive tour charters which originate in a foreign country and over whom the Board has declined to exercise its jurisdiction, or (2) engaged in the formation of groups for transportation on one-stop-inclusive tour charters which originate in the United States and who holds a permit issued pursuant to Section 402 of the Act authorizing such transportation.

"Ground accommodations and services" include, but are not limited to, sleeping accommodations for each night of the tour as well as necessary surface transportation for tour participants traveling together between all places on the itinerary, including transportation to and from air and surface carrier terminals utilized at such places other than the point of origin, but may not include rental cars, rail passes or other types of prepaid individual transportation.

"North American Charter" means a charter between a point or points in any State of the United States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, or the U.S. Virgin Islands, on the one hand, and a point or points in any other State of the United States or in Canada, Mexico, or the "Islands of the Caribbean" (as defined in Part 207 (14 CFR Part 207)), on the other hand.

"One-stop-inclusive tour charter" (or "OTC") means a round-trip charter to be performed by one or more direct air carriers, which is arranged and sponsored by a tour operator organizer for a group and which meets the requirements set forth in Subpart B or Subpart F of this part.

"One-stop-inclusive tour operator" (or "OTC operator") means (1) any citizen of the United States, as defined in Section 101(13) of the Act (other than a direct air carrier), who is authorized hereunder to engage in the formation of groups for transportation on OTC's in accordance with the provisions of this part; or (2) a foreign tour operator.

"Round trip" refers to any round, open-jaw or circle trip which includes an inbound flight returning to a point no more than 50 air miles from the point of origin.

"Tour group" means an aggregate of persons who are assembled by a tour operator or a foreign tour operator for the purpose of participation as a single unit in a one-stop-inclusive tour charter.

"Tour operator" means an OTC operator.

"Tour participant" means a member of the tour group.

§ 378a.3 Waivers.

A waiver of any of the provisions of this part may be granted by the Board upon its own initiative, or upon the joint submission by a direct air carrier and a tour operator of a written request therefor not less than 30 days prior to the flight to which it relates, provided that such a waiver is in the public interest and it appears to the Board that special or unusual circumstances warrant a departure from the provisions set forth therein. Notwithstanding the foregoing, waiver applications filed less than 30 days prior to a flight may be accepted by the Board in emergency situations in which the circumstances warranting a waiver did not exist 30 days before the flight.

§ 378a.4 Enforcement.

In the case of any violation of the provisions of the Act, or of this part, or any other rule, regulation, or order issued under the Act, the violator may be subject to a proceeding pursuant to Sections 1002 and 1007 of the Act before the Board or a U.S. District Court, as the case may be, to compel compliance therewith, to civil penalties pursuant to the provisions of Section 901(a) of the Act, or to criminal penalties pursuant to the provisions of Section 902 of the Act; or other lawful sanctions.

§ 378a.5 Procedures for imposition of limitations and restrictions on OTC operations.

(a) Whenever in the opinion of the Board there are reasonable grounds to believe that the operation of OTC's to or from any point or points or in any city-pair or pairs may have a detrimental effect on the public interest, the Board may, on its own initiative or in response to a petition therefor, issue an order directing all interested persons to show cause why the Board should not impose a limitation on the number of OTC's that may be operated to or from the point or points, or in the city-pair or pairs, or should not impose other or additional restrictions on OTC operations in respect to the point or points or city-pair or pairs.

(b) Petitions seeking the issuance of such an order to show cause may be filed by any person. Answers to such petitions are permitted, but a failure to file an answer shall not prejudice anyone. Each such petition and any answer thereto shall conform to the requirements of § 302.3 of the Board's Procedural Rules. Copies of such petitions and answers shall be served on such persons as the Director, Bureau of Operating Rights, or his designee, shall direct.

(c) Comments in opposition to or in support of the issuance of an order as proposed in the order to show cause, and reply comments if authorized by the order to show cause, shall be filed with the Board by the date and served upon the persons specified in the order to show cause.

(d) A final order of the Board imposing such limitations or restrictions on the operations of OTC's as the public interest may require, or, if it would not be in the public interest to impose any limitation or restriction, terminating the proceeding, shall thereafter be issued: Provided, however, That the Board may from time to time conclude, in its discretion, that a hearing is warranted in order to best determine whether limitations or restrictions should be imposed on the operation of OTC's to or from any point or points or in any city-pair or pairs: And provided, further, That in the event a hearing is ordered, the Board may impose interim limitations or restrictions, pendente lite.

(e) Notwithstanding the foregoing, when in the judgment of the Board the public interest so requires, the Board shall by order forthwith impose a limitation on the number of OTC's that may be operated to or from a point or points, or in a city-pair or pairs, or impose other or additional limitations and restrictions on OTC operations in respect to the point or points or city-pair or pairs.

§ 378a.6 Computation of time.

In computing any period of time prescribed or allowed by this part, the day of the act, event, or default after which the designated period of time begins to run is not to be included. The last day of the period so computed is to be included, unless it is a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday for the Board, in which event the period runs until the end of the next day, which is neither a Saturday, Sunday, nor holiday.

§ 378a.7 Termination of part.

The exemption provided by this part shall terminate on March 31, 1980, and shall not apply to any charter whose originating flight is scheduled to be performed subsequent to such date of termination.

Subpart B—General Conditions and Limitations

§ 378a.10 One-stop-inclusive tour charter general requirements.

A one-stop-inclusive tour charter under this part shall meet the following requirements:

(a) The tour shall include ground accommodations and services for the duration of the tour and shall be arranged and sold by a tour operator as an independent principal with respect to the air transportation included in the tour and not as an agent for a direct air carrier.

(b) The charter contract must be for 40 or more seats.

(c) The charter must be on a round-trip basis, but the departing flight and the returning flight need not be performed by the same direct air carrier.

(d) The minimum duration of the charter must be seven (7) days: Provided, however, That the minimum duration of a North American charter shall be four (4) days. For purposes of computing number of days, as specified herein, the first day shall be the day the originating flight takes off; the last day shall be the day the returning flight lands.

(e) The air transportation portion thereof must be performed by direct air carriers which hold a certificate of public convenience and necessity under section 401 of the Act or a permit under section 402 of the Act.

(f) Passengers transported on the charter flight shall consist solely of persons whose names are set forth in a passenger list duly filed with the Board in accordance with § 378a.25(b), or persons authorized to occupy unused charter space in accordance with § 378a.13.

(g) (1) The total cost of the tour to each participant shall include the cost of ground accommodations and services for the duration of the tour and shall be an amount not less than the aggregate of the charter price of the participant's seat (i.e., the charter price specified in the charter contract divided by the total number of seats specified in the charter contract) and a sum representing $15 for each night of the tour.

(2) Notwithstanding the above, the total cost of the tour to participants who (i) will not have attained their twelfth birthday before the date of departure, and (ii) share their hotel room with one or more persons not subject to this exception, shall be an amount not less than the aggregate of the charter price of the participant's seat (i.e., the charter price specified in the charter contract divided by the total number of seats specified in the charter contract) and a sum representing $7.50 for each night of the tour.

§ 378a.11 Payment to direct air carrier(s).

The direct air carrier(s) shall be paid in full for the cost of the round-trip charter transportation prior to scheduled date of flight departure, as provided for in the basic charter regulations applicable to the direct air carriers under Parts 207, 208, 212, and 214 of this chapter, as the case may be.

§ 378a.12 No intermingling of passengers.

There shall be no intermingling of passengers and each planeload group, or less-than-planeload group, shall move together as a group, on both legs of the air transportation portion of the tour, except under emergency circumstances provided for in the basic charter regulations applicable to the direct air carrier under Parts 207, 208, 212, and 214 of this chapter, as the case may be.

§ 378a.13 Unused space.

Nothing contained in this part shall preclude a tour operator from utilizing any unused space on an aircraft chartered by it for an OTC for the transportation, on a free or reduced basis, of such tour operator's employees, directors, and officers, and the parents and immediate families of such persons, subject to the provisions of Part 223 of this chapter.

Subpart C—Requirements Applicable to Tour Operators

§ 378a.20 Exemption.

Subject to the provisions of this part and the conditions imposed herein, tour operators (other than foreign tour operators) are hereby relieved from the following provisions of Title IV of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958, as amended, to the extent necessary to permit them to organize and arrange OTC's:

Section 401.
Section 403.

Section 404(a), except the requirement to provide adequate service in connection with OTC's operated hereunder.

Section 405(b).
Section 407 (b) and (c).

Sections 408(a) and 409, except control or interlocking relationships with direct air carriers.

Section 412.

§ 378a.21 Approval of certain interlocking relationships.

To the extent that any officer or director of a tour operator would be in violation of any of the provisions of Section 409(a) (3) and (6) of the Act by participating in interlocking relationships covered by the exemption granted by § 378a.20, such participation is hereby approved by the Board.

§ 378a.22 Effect of exemption on antitrust laws.

The relief granted by § 378a.20 and § 378a.21 from Sections 408, 409 and 412 of the Act shall not constitute an order under such sections within the meaning of Section 414 of the Act and shall not confer any immunity or relief from operation of the "antitrust laws" or any other statute (except the Act) with respect to any transaction, interlocking relationship, or agreement otherwise within the purview of such sections.

§ 378.23 Jurisdiction over foreign tour operators.

The Board declines to exercise its jurisdiction over foreign tour operators with respect to OTC's which originate in a foreign country. The Board reserves the right to exercise its jurisdiction over any foreign tour operator at any time it finds that such action is in the public interest.

§ 378a.24 Suspension of exemption authority.

The Board reserves the power to suspend the exemption authority of any tour operator, without hearing, if it finds that such action is necessary in order to protect the rights of the traveling public.

§ 378a.25 Operating authorization of tour operators.

A tour operator is authorized hereunder to organize and operate an OTC only in accordance with the provisions of this part, and subject to the following conditions:

(a) (1) No tour or series of tours shall be operated, nor shall any tour operator or foreign tour operator sell, or offer to sell, or solicit persons to participate in, or otherwise advertise such tour or tours, or receive any money from any prospective participant in connection therewith, until at least 15 days after he and the direct air carrier have jointly filed with the Board (Supplementary Services Division, Bureau of Operating Rights), in duplicate, an OTC Tour Prospectus satisfying the requirements of § 378a.28: Provided, however, That if during the 15-day period following filing hereunder the tour operator or foreign tour operator has been notified that the Board has rejected such statement for noncompliance with this part, then he shall not sell, or offer to sell, solicit, or advertise such charter tour or tours until he has subsequently been notified by the Board that such filing has been accepted. If a series of tours is to be performed for one tour operator or foreign tour operator pursuant to one charter contract the Prospectus may cover the entire series, provided the elapsed time between the commencement of the first tour and the departure of the last tour shall not exceed 180 days.

(2) No change in the facts reflected in a filed Prospectus shall become effective until at least 15 days after the tour operator or foreign tour operator and the direct air carrier have jointly filed with the Board (Supplementary Services Division, Bureau of Operating Rights), in duplicate, an amended Prospectus reflecting such change, unless he has been notified by the Board that such change may become effective sooner: Provided, however, That if during the 15-day period following filing of an amended Prospectus hereunder, the tour operator or foreign tour operator has been notified that the Board has rejected such amended Prospectus for noncompliance with this part, then such change shall not become effective until he has subsequently been notified by the Board that such filing has been accepted: and Provided further, That the direct air carrier need not join in the filing of an amended Prospectus which reflects only such change or changes as do not involve air transportation or services in connection therewith which are to be provided by such direct air carrier. Deviations from the Prospectus may not be made except where they are beyond the control of the carrier or the operator, and there is insufficient time to file an amended Prospectus.

(b) No later than 15 days prior to the scheduled date of departure, in the case of North American OTC's, and no later than 30 days prior to the scheduled date of departure of all others, the tour operator and the direct air carrier(s) shall jointly file with the Board (Supplementary Services Division, Bureau of Operating Rights), in duplicate, the following information, except that the information required by paragraph (a) (1) of this section shall be filed in the manner prescribed in paragraph (c), of this section:

(1) A list setting forth the name of each passenger in alphabetical order, his address and telephone number, and the name, address, and telephone number of the travel agent (if any) who sold the tour to the passenger;

(2) A statement of the tour operator affirming that each participant (i) has entered into a contract with the operator as provided in this part, and (ii) has made full payment of the total price of the charter tour; and

(3) A statement of the depository bank, if any, affirming that it has received a deposit of the total charter price payable to the direct air carrier(s): Provided, however, That for North American OTC's where the outbound leg is scheduled to depart on or after October 1, 1978, the information required by this paragraph (b) shall be filed no later than 7 days prior to the scheduled date of departure.

(c) An original copy of the OTC passenger list, along with two photostatic or similarly reproduced copies (not carbons) and accompanied by a self-addressed and postage-prepaid return envelope, shall be filed with the Board (Supplementary Services Division, Bureau of Operating Rights). The Board will stamp the original and two photostatic or similarly reproduced copies of the OTC passenger list so as to verify their receipt and identify the tour to which they pertain, and will return the two stamped copies for use by the direct air carrier in complying with its obligations to identify enplaning OTC flight passengers, note the documentary source and number, and file required reports.

§ 378a.26 Discrimination.

No tour operator shall make, give, or cause any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to any particular persons, port, locality, or description of traffic in air transportation in any respect whatsoever, or subject any particular person, port, locality, or description of traffic in air transportation to any unjust discrimination or any undue or unreasonable prejudice or disadvantage in any respect whatsoever.

§ 378a.27 Methods of competition.

No tour operator shall engage in unfair or deceptive practices or unfair methods of competition in air transportation or the sale thereof. Advertising by tour operators or foreign tour operators shall be limited to the total tour price without a breakdown into component parts, except that additional charges for optional services or facilities may be reflected.

§ 378a.28 Tour Prospectus.

The Prospectus shall be filed in duplicate and shall include two copies of the following: The charter contract, the contract between the tour operator or foreign tour operator and tour participants, the tour operator's or foreign tour operator's surety bond (an original bond and a copy thereof), and, where applicable, two copies of the depository agreement with a bank as provided in § 378a.31. It shall also contain the following information:

(a) Name and address of the tour operator or the foreign tour operator;

(b) The proposed date and time of each flight;

(c) Equipment to be used, including the aggregate number of each type of aircraft and capacity;

(d) The tour itinerary, including hotels (name and length of stay at each), and other ground accommodations and services;

(e) The tour price per passenger;

(f) The number of persons expected to participate in the tour;

(g) Charter price of the aircraft;

(h) The charter price of each seat included in the charter contract;

(i) Samples of solicitation material proposed by the tour operator or foreign tour operator (all sales advertising and solicitation materials employed by the tour operator or foreign tour operator shall state the name of the direct air carrier to be utilized).

§ 378a.29 Charter contract.

The charter contract between the tour operator or foreign tour operator and the direct air carrier shall evidence a binding commitment on the part of the carrier to furnish the air transportation required for the trip or trips covered by the contract.

§ 378a.30 Contract between tour operator and tour participants.

Where each tour participant receives or is eligible to receive, the same ground accommodations and services, the contract between the tour operator and the tour participants shall be the same. Contracts between tour operators and tour participants shall include provisions specifically stating:

(a) Method of payment, e.g., installment payments;

(b) That trip health and accident insurance is available and that upon request the tour operator will furnish details thereof;

(c) That after the list of prospective charter passengers has been filed with the Board (pursuant to § 378a.25(b)) the tour operator shall have no further right to cancel the tour on grounds of inadequate participation, but describing the right to refunds in the event of the charter's cancellation on any other grounds or contingencies set forth in the contract, and the procedure for obtaining such refunds;

(d) The right to refunds in the event of the participant's change of plans and the procedure for obtaining such refunds;

(e) The right to refunds in the event of change in itinerary and the procedure for obtaining such refunds;

(f) The dollar amounts of the direct air carrier's liability limitations for participants' baggage, as set forth in the direct air carrier's tariffs;

(g) Conditions governing aircraft-equipment substitutions;

(h) The name and address of the surety company issuing the surety bond;

(i) That the charter operator is the principal and is responsible to the participants in making arrangements for all services and accommodations offered in connection with the tour: Provided, however, That this requirement shall not preclude the tour operator from expressly providing in such contract that, in the absence of negligence on the part of the tour operator, he is not responsible for personal injury or property damage arising out of the act or negligence of any direct air carrier, hotel or other person rendering any of the services being offered in connection with such tour;

(j) That unless the tour participant files a claim with the tour operator or, if he is unavailable, with the surety, within sixty (60) days after termination of the tour, the surety shall be released from all liability under the bond to such participant (see § 278a.31(d));

(k) That, when the combined surety bond-depository agreement, as provided in § 378a.31(b) is used in connection with the tour, all checks and money orders must be made payable to the escrow account at the depository bank (identifying bank) or, when the tour is sold to the participant by a retail travel agent, checks and money orders may be made payable to the agent, who must in turn make this check payable to the escrow account at the depository bank.

(a) Except as provided in paragraph (b) of this section, the tour operator or foreign tour operator shall furnish a surety bond in one of the following amounts dependent upon the length of the tour or series of tours: (1) For a tour or series of tours of 14 days or less, a bond in an amount of not less than the charter price for the air transportation to be furnished in connection with such tour or series of tours; (2) for a tour or series of tours of more than 14 days but less than 28 days a bond in an amount of not less than twice the charter price; and (3) for a tour or series of tours of 28 days or more, a bond in an amount of not less than three times the charter price: Provided, however, That the liability of the surety to any tour participant shall not exceed the participant's tour price.

(b) The direct air carrier and the prospective tour operator or foreign tour operator may elect, in lieu of furnishing a surety bond as provided under paragraph (a) of this section, to comply with the requirements of paragraphs (b) (1) and (2) of this section, as follows:

(1) The tour operator or foreign tour operator shall furnish a surety bond in a minimum amount of $10,000 per flight up to a maximum amount of $200,000 for a series of 20 or more flights, for the protection of the tour participants, the bond to continue in effect until completion of the tour or series of tours: Provided, however, That the liability of the surety to any tour participant shall not exceed the tour price.

(2) The direct air carrier and tour operator or foreign tour operator shall enter into an agreement with a designated bank, the terms of which shall provide that all deposits by tour participants paid to tour operators or foreign tour operators and their retail travel agents shall be deposited with and maintained by the bank subject to the following conditions:

(i) On sales made to tour participants by tour operators or foreign tour operators the participant shall pay by check or money order payable to the bank; on sales made to tour participants by retail travel agents, the retail travel agent may deduct his commission and remit the balance to the designated bank by check or money order: Provided, That the travel agent agrees in writing with the tour operator or foreign tour operator that if the tour is canceled the travel agent shall remit to the bank the full amount of commission previously deducted or received within 10 days after receipt of notification of cancellation of the tour;

(ii) The bank shall pay the direct air carrier the charter price for the transportation not earlier than 60 days (including day of departure) prior to the scheduled day of departure of the originating or returning flight, upon certification of the departure date by the air carrier: Provided, That in the case of a round-trip charter contract to be performed by one carrier, the total round-trip charter price shall be paid to the carrier not earlier than 60 days prior to the scheduled day of departure of the originating flight;

(iii) The bank shall reimburse the tour operator or foreign tour operator for refunds made by the latter to the tour participant upon written notification from the tour operator or foreign tour operator;

(iv) If the tour operator, foreign tour operator or the direct air carrier notifies the bank that a tour has been canceled, the bank shall make applicable refunds directly to the tour participants;

(v) After the charter price has been paid in full to the direct air carrier, the bank shall pay funds from the account directly to the hotels, sightseeing enterprises, or other persons or companies furnishing ground accommodations and services in connection with the tour or series of tours upon presentation to the bank of vendors' bills and upon certification by the tour operator or foreign tour operator of the amounts payable for such ground accommodations and services and the persons or companies to whom payment is to be made: Provided, however, That the total amounts paid by the bank pursuant to paragraphs (b) (2) (ii) and (v) of this section shall not exceed 80 percent of the total deposits received by the bank less any refunds made to tour participants pursuant to paragraphs (b) (2) (iii) and (iv) of this section;

(vi) As used in this section, the term "bank" includes a bank, savings and loan association, or other financial institution insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation;

(vii) The bank shall maintain a separate accounting for each tour;

(viii) Notwithstanding any provisions above, the amount of total deposits required to be maintained in the depository account of the bank may be reduced by one or both of the following: the amount of any surety bond in the form prescribed herein in excess of the minimum bond required by paragraph (b) (1) of this section; an escrow with the designated bank of Federal, State, or municipal bonds or other negotiable securities which are publicly traded on a securities exchange: Provided, That such other securities shall be substituted for cash in an amount no greater than 80 percent of their market value at time of deposit in escrow with the bank: And provided, further, That should the valuation of such other securities decrease in an amount in excess of 20 percent of the valuation at time of original deposit, additional securities shall be placed in escrow so as to compensate for such decrease in value below 20 percent;

(ix) Except as provided in paragraph (b) (2) (ii), (iv), (v), and (viii) of this section, the bank shall not pay out any funds from the account prior to two banking days after completion of each tour, when the balance in the account shall be paid the tour operator or foreign tour operator, upon certification of the completion date by the direct air carrier.

(c) The bond required under paragraph (a) and (b) of this section shall insure the financial responsibility of the tour operator or foreign tour operator and the supplying of the transportation and all other accommodations, services, and facilities in accordance with the contract between the tour operator or foreign tour operator and the tour participants. Such bond shall be issued by a bonding or surety company (1) whose surety bonds are accepted by the Interstate Commerce Commission under 49 CFR 1084.6; or (2) which is listed in Best's Insurance Reports (Fire and Casualty) with a general policyholders' rating of "A" or better. The bonding or surety company shall be one legally authorized to issue bonds of that type in the State in which the tour originates. For purposes of this section, the term "State" includes any territory or possession of the United States, or the District of Columbia. The bond shall be specifically identified by the issuing surety with a company bond numbering system so that the Board may identify the bond with the specific tour or tours to which it relates: Provided, however, That these data may be set forth in an addendum attached to the bond, which addendum must be signed by the tour operator or foreign tour operator and the surety company. It shall be effective on or before the date the tour Prospectus is filed with the Board. If the bond does not comply with the requirements of this section, or for any reason fails to provide satisfactory or adequate protection for the public, the Board will notify the direct air carrier and the tour operator or foreign tour operator, by registered or certified mail, stating the deficiencies of the bond. Unless such deficiencies are corrected within the time set forth in such notification, the subject tour or tours shall in no event be operated.

(d) The bond required by this section shall provide that unless the tour participant files a claim with the tour operator or foreign tour operator, or, if he is unavailable, with the surety, within sixty (60) days after termination of the tour, the surety shall be released from all liability under the bond to such tour participant. The contract between the tour operator or foreign tour operator and the tour participant shall contain notice of this provision.

§ 378a.32 Disbursements from depository account.

No tour operator shall cause its agents or the depository bank to make disbursements or payments from deposits except in accordance with the provisions of this part.

§ 378a.33 Record retention.

Every tour operator conducting a charter pursuant to this part shall comply with the applicable record-retention provisions of Part 249 of this chapter.

Subpart D—Requirements Applicable to Direct Air Carriers

§ 378a.40 Charter not to be performed unless compliance with part.

A direct air carrier shall not perform air transportation in connection with an OTC unless it has made a reasonable effort to verify that all provisions of this part have been complied with, and that the tour operator's authority under this part has not been suspended by the Board: Provided, however, That where an OTC is organized by a foreign tour operator over whom the Board has declined to exercise its jurisdiction, pursuant to § 378a.23, no direct air carrier may perform air transportation in connection with such OTC unless the tour is formed and implemented in accordance with the general conditions and limitations set forth in Subpart B or Subpart F of this part and the tour operator performs all acts and duties which this part requires to be performed by tour operators within the Board's jurisdiction, other than the provisions set forth in § 378a.31 and § 378a.33.

§ 378a.41 Direct air carrier to identify enplanements.

(a) A direct air carrier shall retain a true copy of each document which it has filed (jointly with the charter organizer) pursuant to § 378a.25, and shall make reasonable efforts to verify the identity of all enplaning passengers by use of a document bearing an identifying number, in order to insure that enplanements are limited to persons whose names appear on its stamped copy of the passenger list. For international flights, the identity of each enplaning passenger shall be verified by means of a passport, or if there be none, by means of any other travel identity document. For domestic flights a passport or other travel identity document should be used, if available, to identify enplaning passengers, but if no such document is available, then any other numbered document, preferably a Social Security card, may be used.

(b) The direct air carrier shall, at the time of enplanement, enter, on its stamped copy of the passenger list, the documentary source of the identification required by paragraph (a) of this section, including the number appearing on the document.

§ 378a.42 Tariffs to be on file for charter trips.

No direct air carrier shall perform any charter trips pursuant to this part unless such air carrier shall have on file with the Board a currently effective tariff showing all rates, fares and charges for such charter trips.

§ 378a.43 No commissions to be paid.

No commissions, fees, or other compensation shall be paid by the direct air carrier to the tour operator or any other person in connection with a charter trip.

Subpart E—Charter Trip Reporting Requirements

§ 378a.50 Charter trip reporting.

(a) The direct air carrier shall file with the Board's Bureau of Enforcement within seven days after performing each charter flight, whether departure or return, its stamped copy of the passenger list filed prior to the flight.

(b) The direct air carrier shall promptly notify the Board (Supplementary Services Division, Bureau of Operating Rights) regarding any charters covered by a Prospectus filed under § 378a.28 that are later canceled.

(c) Within 30 days after termination of a tour or series of tours, or, in the case of series of tours extending over a period longer than 30 days, every 30 days, the direct air carrier and tour operator or foreign tour operator shall jointly file a report with the Board (Supplementary Services Division, Bureau of Operating Rights). The report shall indicate whether or not the tours authorized hereunder were, in fact, performed. For each tour operated, the report shall indicate the origin, destination(s), and number of passengers carried. To the extent that the operations differed from those described in the Prospectus filed under § 378a.28, such differences shall be fully detailed, including the reasons therefor. However, the making of such an explanation shall not of itself operate as authority for or excuse any such deviations.

§ 378a.51 Reporting of OTC service under contract.

Each tour operator and direct air carrier shall jointly file, every calendar month, a summary of all OTC operations under contract. Such report shall state, for each city-pair, the number of round-trip flights and the number of passengers seats under contract during each of the following six (6) months.

Subpart F—Requirements Applicable to Special Event Charters

§ 378a.101 Applicability.

This subpart establishes the terms and conditions governing the furnishing of special event charters in air transportation by direct air carriers and foreign air carriers and by one-stop-inclusive tour operators. Except as modified herein or as required by the context, all terms, conditions, and requirements applicable to the operation of one-stop-inclusive tours under other subparts of this Part shall apply to operations pursuant to this subpart.

§ 378a.102 Definitions.

As used in this subpart, unless the context otherwise requires—

"Charter" means a special event charter.

"Charter participant" means a member of a group consisting solely of persons having the common purpose of attending a special event, who are assembled by a tour operator to participate as a single unit in a special event charter.

"Ground accommodations and services" include, but are not limited to, sleeping accommodations for each night of the tour, necessary surface transportation, and admission to the special event, through the furnishing of tickets or other documents necessary to enable a charter participant to attend the event for each day of the charter during which attendance is feasible, but may not include rental cars, rail passes, or other types of prepaid individual transportation.

"Special event" means a specific event, including events of a sporting, social, religious, educational, cultural, or political nature which (1) does not extend over ten (10) days in duration, and (2) is neither sponsored by a direct air carrier nor created for the purpose of justifying the operation of a charter under this rule.

In determining whether any given event shall be considered a special event for the purposes of receiving charter traffic under this subpart, the Board will consider, along with other relevant factors, how long in advance of the date of the event:

(1) The event was publicly known;

(2) The participants in the event could be ascertained;

(3) The significance of the event became publicly recognized.

§ 378a.103 Provisions not applicable to operations under this subpart.

The following provisions will not apply to Special Event Charters operated pursuant to this subpart:

(a) Section 378a.25;

(b) Section 378a.28;

(c) Section 378a.10(f);

(d) Section 378a.10(g), but only with regard to Special Event Charters in which the return flight departs the event site on the same day that the departing flight arrives.

§ 378a.104 Duration of special event charters.

(a) The maximum duration of a Special Event Charter shall be (6) days: Provided, however, That the maximum duration of a North American charter shall be three (3) days. For purposes of computing number of days, as specified herein, the first day shall be the day the originating flight takes off; the last day shall be the day the returning flight lands.

(b) The departing flight shall arrive at the destination no earlier than 36 hours prior to the commencement of attendance at the event by the charter participants and the returning flight shall take off no later than 36 hours after termination of such attendance.

§ 378a.105 Solicitation and advertising.

(a) A tour operator shall not sell or offer to sell, solicit or advertise a charter or charters until and unless a Statement of Authorization to conduct such charter or charters has been issued to the direct air carrier, as provided in § 378a.106.

(b) All sales, advertising and solicitation materials employed by the tour operator shall state the name of the direct air carrier or carriers utilized.

(c) Advertising by tour operators of charter trip prices shall be limited to the total trip price including all prepaid ground accommodations and services, without a breakdown into component parts, except that additional charges for optional services or facilities may be reflected.

(d) When the combined surety bond-depository agreement, as provided in § 378a.31(b), is used in connection with a special event charter, a statement as to whom checks and money orders are to be made payable, as provided in § 378a.30(k), shall be placed in all solicitation material, reservation coupons, etc.

§ 378a.106 Statement of Authorization.

A direct air carrier shall not operate a special event charter or charters unless specific authority in the form of a Statement of Authorization to operate such charter or charters has been issued by the Board.

§ 378a.107 Application for Statement of Authorization.

(a) Application for a Statement of Authorization shall be submitted by the direct air carrier or carriers, addressed to the attention of the Director, Bureau of Operating Rights. If a series of charters is to be operated for one tour operator pursuant to one charter contract, the application may cover the entire series.

(b) The application shall be filed at least 30 days before commencement of the charter or series of charters. Late filing of the application will not be permitted except for good cause shown.

(c) The application shall be filed in triplicate and shall include two copies of the following:

(1) The charter contract between the direct air carrier and the tour operator;

(2) The contract between the tour operator and the charter participants;

(3) Samples of solicitation material proposed to be used by the tour operator;

(4) The tour operator's surety bond (an original bond and a copy thereof) and, where applicable, the depository agreement with a bank, as provided in § 378a.31.

APPENDIX 8

EXAMPLES OF EVENTS NOT DEEMED TO BE "SPECIAL" FOR THE PURPOSES OF PART 378a, SUBPART F

The following list consists of a selection of events not deemed to be "special" for the purposes of Part 378a, Subpart F. It is intended as guidance for the public and the industry as to what kinds of events are deemed outside the scope of the Special Event Charter rule. The list is by no means exhaustive.

1. Conventions, Meetings, or Seminars:

a. Annual conventions of business firms, professional organizations, and other entities.

2. Regularly Scheduled Athletic Events:

a. Regular season games for baseball, basketball, football, soccer, etc.

b. Playoffs that are scheduled to last more than 10 days would be excluded from consideration as a Special Event. However, if a playoff series, were to be scheduled for a total of 11 days (including travel), then each set of games at the opposing teams' home cities will qualify as a separate special event.

c. The Olympics since the total number of days involved exceeds 10 days.

NOTE: The Super Bowl, College Bowl Games (Rose, Orange, etc.) NFL Playoffs, NCAA Basketball Regionals or semi-finals or finals, among others, would be considered Special since the participants would not normally be known more than a month in advance.

3. Annual Festivals, Jamborees or Revival Meetings:

a. Cherry Blossom Festival, Mardi Gras, and similar events, since these are normally recurring events on an annual basis.

b. Scout Jamborees, etc., since these are also recurring annual events.

4. Religious Pilgrimages:

The shrines which these persons visit can be visited at any time. In addition, there are usually no specific activities associated with such tours other than, for example, general prayer sessions.

Title 8—Aliens and Nationality

CHAPTER I—IMMIGRATION AND NATURALIZATION SERVICE, DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

PART 211—DOCUMENTARY REQUIREMENTS: IMMIGRANTS; WAIVERS

Alien Commuters

Reference is made to the notice of proposed rule making which was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER of March 28, 1975 (40 FR 14090) pursuant to section 553 of Title 5 of the United States Code (80 Stat. 383) and in which there were set forth the proposed amendments to Part 211 of Chapter I of Title 8 of the Code of Federal Regulations pertaining to alien commuters.

The representations which were received concerning the proposed rules of March 28, 1975 have been considered. For the purpose of clarity, proposed § 211.6(d) is amended in the following respect: the words "Form I–151 shall not be acceptable in lieu of an immigrant visa or reentry permit when presented by an alien commuter" are substituted in lieu of the words "Form I–151 shall be invalid when presented in lieu of an immigrant visa or reentry permit by an alien commuter". The amendment makes it clear that Form I–151 is not useable when the alien is reentering the United States to accept employment at a place prescribed by the Secretary of Labor or to continue employment which commenced subsequent to the proscription; however, Form I–151 would remain valid and could be accepted for reentry if the alien, after having been advised of the labor dispute rule, satisfied the immigration officer that the employment would be at a place which is not proscribed. Further, Form I–151, while unacceptable as an entry document during the time of the proscribed labor dispute, would be acceptable after termination of the dispute.

The proposed rules, as amended and as set forth below, are hereby adopted:

1. In Part 211, § 211.1(b)(1) is amended by deleting the existing last sentence thereof. As amended, § 211.1(b)(1) reads as follows:

§ 211.1 Visas. —

• • • • •

(b) Aliens returning to an unrelinquished lawful permanent residence—(1) Form I–151, Alien Registration Receipt Card. In lieu of an immigrant visa, an immigrant alien returning to an unrelinquished lawful permanent residence in the United States after a temporary absence abroad not exceeding one year may present Form I–151, Alien Registration Receipt Card, duly issued to him, provided that during such absence he did not travel to, in, or through any of the following places: Cuba and Communist portions of Korea or Viet-Nam, and, except for children who have not attained the age of 16 at the time they apply for admission into the United States, Albania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Estonia, Hungary, Latvia, Lithuania, Outer Mongolia, People's Republic of China, Poland, Romania, the Soviet Zone of Germany ("German Democratic Republic"), the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, or Yugoslavia. The foregoing restrictions shall not apply when the alien has passed in direct and continuous transit through the Soviet Zone of Germany to Berlin from West Germany by automobile, rail, or plane and returned to West Germany; or when the alien has passed in direct and continuous transit through Yugoslavia to or from Austria, Greece, or Italy. An alien regularly serving as a crewman in any capacity required for normal operations and services aboard an aircraft or vessel of American registry who is returning to an unrelinquished lawful permanent residence in the United States after a temporary absence abroad not exceeding one year may, in lieu of an immigrant visa, present Form I–151, duly issued to him, notwithstanding travel to, in, or through any of the restricted places named in this subparagraph pursuant to his employment as a crewman. An alien who proceeded abroad temporarily without a reentry permit and in whose case subsequent to his departure from the United States the Department of State has approved travel to, in, or through Cuba, or Communist portions of Korea or Viet-Nam, may, in lieu of an immigrant visa or reentry permit, present Form I–151 together with the letter from the Department of State approving his travel to, in, or through the place or places named in the letter, if he is returning to an unrelinquished lawful permanent residence in the United States after a temporary absence abroad not exceeding 1 year. An alien who proceeded abroad temporarily without a reentry permit and in whose case subsequent to his departure from and prior to his return to the United States the Service has approved travel to, in, or through any of the other place or places named in this subparagraph for which Form I–151 is not valid may, in lieu of an immigrant visa or reentry permit, present Form I-151 together with the letter from an officer of the Service approving his travel to, in, or through the place or places named in the letter, if he is returning to an unrelinquished lawful permanent residence in the United States after a temporary absence abroad not exceeding one year. When returning to an unrelinquished lawful permanent residence in the United States after a temporary absence abroad, a spouse or child of a member of the Armed Forces of the United States or of a civilian employee of the United States Government stationed foreign pursuant to official orders may, in lieu of an immigrant visa, present Form I–151, provided such spouse or child resided abroad while such member of the Armed Forces or such civilian employee was on overseas duty and is preceding or accompanying the member or employee, or is following to join the member or employee in the United States within 4 months of the member's or employee's return, and during the temporary absence did not travel to, in, or through any of the restricted places named in this subparagraph, except those named places concerning which the restrictions do not apply when an alien has passed in direct and continuous transit through such areas.

• • • • •

2. In Part 211, a new § 211.6 is added to read as follows:

§ 211.6 Alien commuters.

(a) General. Notwithstanding any other provision of this part, an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence may commence or continue to reside in foreign contiguous territory and commute as a special immigrant defined in section 101(a)(27)(B) of the Act to his place of employment in the United States to engage in daily or seasonal work which, on the whole, is regular and stable: Provided, That at the time of each reentry he presents a valid Form I–151 in lieu of an immigrant visa and passport. An alien commuter engaged in seasonal work would be presumed to have taken up residence in the United States if he is present in this country for more than six months, in the aggregate, during any continuous 12-month period. An alien commuter's address report under section 265 of the Act must show his actual residence address even though it is not in the United States.

(b) Loss of commuter status. An alien commuter who has been out of regular employment in the United States for a continuous period of six months shall be deemed to have lost his status as an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence, notwithstanding temporary entries in the interim for other than employment purposes, unless his employment in the United States was interrupted for reasons beyond his control other than lack of a job opportunity. Upon loss of status, Form I–151 shall become invalid and shall be surrendered to an immigration officer.

(c) Eligibility for benefits under the immigration and nationality laws. Until he has taken up residence in the United States, an alien commuter cannot satisfy the residence requirements of the naturalization laws and cannot qualify for any benefits under the immigration laws on his own behalf or on behalf of his relatives other than as specified in paragraph (a). When an alien commuter takes up residence in the United States, he shall no longer be regarded as a commuter. He may facilitate proof of having taken up such residence by notifying the Service as soon as possible, preferably at the time of his first reentry for that purpose. Application for issuance of a new alien registration receipt card to show that he has taken up residence in the United States shall be made on Form I–90.

(d) Labor disputes. When the Secretary of Labor determines and announces that a labor dispute involving a work stoppage or layoff of employees is in progress at a named place of employment, Form I–151 shall not be acceptable in lieu of an immigrant visa or reentry permit when presented by an alien commuter who has departed for and seeks reentry from any foreign place and who, prior to his departure or during his temporary absence abroad has in any manner entered into an arrangement to return to the United States for the primary purpose, or seeks reentry with the intention of accepting employment at the place where the Secretary of Labor has determined that a labor dispute exists, or of continuing employment which commenced at such place subsequent to the date of the Secretary of Labor's determination.

(Sec. 103, 66 Stat. 173; 8 U.S.C. 1103)

The basis and purpose of the above prescribed rules are to incorporate into the regulations a new section devoted exclusively to alien commuters.

Effective date. The amendments contained in this order shall become effective September 15, 1975.

Dated: August 11, 1975.

L. F. CHAPMAN, Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization.

Title 15—Commerce and Foreign Trade

CHAPTER XII—UNITED STATES TRAVEL SERVICE, DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

PART 1202—OFFICIAL U.S. GOVERNMENT RECOGNITION OF AND PARTICIPATION IN INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITIONS HELD IN THE UNITED STATES

On June 3, 1975, there was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (40 FR 23875) a notice that the Department of Commerce proposed to amend its regulations implementing the Secretary of Commerce's responsibilities under Public Law 91–269, which establishes an orderly procedure for Federal Government recognition of, and participation in, international expositions held in the United States.

Interested persons were given 30 days to file written views or comments. Only one comment was received in response to the notice. The comment expressed concern with § 1202.3(d)(4), Exhibit No. 4, which requires that an applicant must submit, as part of the exhibits to be reviewed, an organization chart of the exposition management structure (actual or proposed) of the applicant, including description of the functions, duties and responsibilities of each official position along with bibliographic material on principal officers, if available. The comment expressed the view that exposition management requires a high degree of professionalism in many fields, and that accordingly, bibliographic material submitted should specifically include, for individual members of the management group, professional experience in such fields as architecture, industrial design, engineering, labor relations, concession management, interpretative theme planning, exhibit development, etc. We agree with the substance of the comment, and, accordingly, have modified § 1202.3(d)(4) to incorporate this suggestion.

The comment also expressed the view that, with respect to § 1202.4(b)(3) which provides that, if necessary, a panel of tourism industry experts may be appointed to review competing applications in terms of their qualifications as tourism destination sites, the suggested panel is too heavily oriented toward tourism interests, and that a wider range of participation should be considered. We have not modified § 1202.4(b)(3) to incorporate this comment since the purpose of such panel is specifically aimed at providing guidance, when needed, with respect to the touristic qualifications of proposed exposition sites.

Accordingly, with the above modification, the proposed rules are adopted as set forth below. In addition, these regulations supersede the regulations governing United States Government procedures applicable to potential sponsors of international expositions held in the United States formerly found in Part 667 of Chapter VI of Title 15 (15 C.F.R. 667 of the Code of Federal Regulations)[1], which are hereby transferred to Chapter XII of Title 15 of the Code of Federal Regulations, and redesignated as Part 1202, as amended. This transfer is necessary to effectuate the redelegation of authority under P.L. 91–269 from the Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Domestic and International Business to the Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Tourism which became effective on March 14, 1974, pursuant to Department of Commerce Order 10–7. The regulations are to be effective on August 15, 1975.

A new Part 1202 is added to 15 CFR Chapter XII as follows:

Sec.
1202.1 Background and purpose.
1202.2 Definitions.
1202.3 Application for Federal recognition.
1202.4 Action on application.
1202.5 Report of the Secretary on Federal recognition.
1202.6 Recognition by the President.
1202.7 Statement for Federal participation.
1202.8 Proposed plan for Federal participation.
1202.9 Report of the Secretary on Federal participation.
1202.10 Approval by the President of Federal participation. [Reserved]

§ 1202.1 Background and purpose.

The regulations in this part are issued under the authority of Public Law 91–269 (84 Stat. 271, 22 U.S.C. 2801 et seq.) which establishes an orderly procedure for Federal Government recognition of, and participation in, international expositions to be held in the United States. The Act provides, inter alia, that Federal recognition of an exposition is to be granted upon a finding by the President that such recognition will be in the national interest. In making this finding, the President is directed to consider, among other factors, a report from the Secretary of Commerce as to the purposes and reasons for an exposition and the extent of financial and other support to be provided by the State and local officials and business and community leaders where the exposition is to be held, and a report by the Secretary of State to determine whether the exposition is qualified for registration under Bureau of International Expositions (BIE) rules. The BIE is an international organization established by the Paris Convention of 1928 (T.I.A.S. 6548 as amended by T.I.A.S. 6549) to regulate the conduct and scheduling of international expositions in which foreign nations are officially invited to participate. The BIE divides international expositions into different categories and types and requires each member nation to observe specified minimum time intervals in scheduling each of these categories and types of expositions.[1] Under BIE rules, member nations may not ordinarily participate in an international exposition unless such exposition has been approved by the BIE. The United States became a member of the BIE on April 30, 1968, upon ratification of the Paris Convention by the U.S. Senate (114 Cong. Rec. 11012).

Federal participation in a recognized international exposition requires a specific authorization by the Congress, upon a finding by the President that such participation would be in the national interest. The Act provides for the transmission to Congress of a participation proposal by the President. This proposal transmits to the Congress information regarding the exposition, including a statement that it has been registered by the BIE and a plan for Federal participation prepared by the Secretary of Commerce in cooperation with other interested Federal departments and agencies.

§ 1202.4 Action on application.

(a) Upon receipt of an application, the Director will analyze the application and all accompanying exhibits to insure compliance with the provisions of § 1202.3 and report his findings with respect thereto to the Secretary.

(b) If more than one applicant applies for Federal recognition for expositions to be held within three years or less of each other, the applications will be reviewed concurrently by the Director. The following standards will be considered in determining which if any of the competing applicants will be recommended for Federal recognition:

(1) The order of receipt of the applications by the Director, complete with all exhibits required by § 1202.3.

(2) The financial plans of the applications. Primary consideration will be given to those applications which do not require Federal financing for exposition development. This does not extend to funding for a Federal pavilion, if one is desired.

(3) The relative merit of the applications in terms of their qualifications as tourism destination sites, both with respect to existing facilities and those facilities planned for the proposed exposition. If necessary, to assist in making this determination, the Director will appoint a panel of travel industry experts representing tour developers, the transportation, entertainment and hotel/motel industries for the purpose of studying the competing applications and reporting to the Director its views as to which proposed site best meets the above criteria. If such a panel is deemed necessary, the provisions of the Federal Advisory Committee Act (86 Stat. 770, 5 U.S.C. App I) will be applicable.

(c) In analyzing the applications, the Director may hold public hearings with the objective of clarifying issues that might be raised by the application. If desired, the Director may utilize the services of an examiner.

(d) If the Director, in his discretion, decides to hold a public hearing, notice of such hearing shall be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER, and a copy of the notice shall be furnished to local newspapers. The notice shall state the subject to be considered and when and where the hearing will be held, specifically designating the date, hour, and place.

(e) The following general procedure shall govern the conduct of public hearings: (1) Stenographic minutes of the proceedings shall be made; (2) the names and addresses of all parties present or represented at the hearing shall be recorded; and (3) the Director or Examiner shall read aloud for the record and for the benefit of the public such parts of the Act and of these regulations as bear on the application. He shall also read aloud for the record and for the benefit of the public such other important papers, or extracts therefrom, as may be necessary for a full understanding of the issues which require clarification. The Director or Examiner shall impress upon the parties in attendance at the public hearing, and shall specifically state at the commencement of the hearing, that the hearing is not adversary in nature and that the sole objective thereof is to clarify issues that might have been raised by the application.

(f) Statements of interested parties may be presented orally at the hearing, or submitted in writing for the record.

(g) Within six months after receipt of a fully completed application and/or the adjournment of the public hearing, the Director shall submit his report containing his findings on the application to the Secretary.

§ 1202.5 Report of the Secretary on Federal recognition.

If the Director's report recommends Federal recognition, the Secretary, within a reasonable time, shall submit a report to the President.

(a) The Secretary's report shall include: (1) An evaluation of the purposes and reasons for the exposition; and (2) a determination as to whether guaranteed financial and other support has been secured by the exposition from affected State and local governments and from business and civic leaders of the region and others in amounts sufficient to assure the successful development and progress of the exposition.

(b) Based on information from, and coordination with the Department of Commerce the Secretary of State shall also file a report with the President that the exposition qualifies for recognition by the BIE.

§ 1202.6 Recognition by the President.

If the President concurs in the favorable reports from the Secretaries of State and Commerce, he may grant Federal recognition to the exposition by indicating his concurrence to the two Secretaries and authorizing them to seek BIE registration.

§ 1202.7 Statement for Federal participation.

If Federal participation in the exposition, as well as Federal recognition thereof is desired, the applicant shall in a statement to the Director outline the nature of the Federal participation envisioned, including whether construction of a Federal pavilion is contemplated. (It should be noted, however, that before Federal participation can be authorized by the Congress under the Act, the exposition must have (i) met the criteria for Federal recognition and be so recognized, and (ii) been registered by the BIE. Although applicants need not submit such a statement until these prerequisites are satisfied, they are encouraged to do so.) Where the desired Federal participation includes a request for construction of a Federal pavilion, the statement shall be accompanied by the following exhibits:

1. Exhibit No. 1. A survey drawing of the proposed Federal pavilion site, showing its area and boundaries, its grade elevations, and surface and subsoil conditions.

2. Exhibit No. 2. Evidence of resolutions, statutes, opinions, etc., as to the applicant's ability to convey by deed the real property comprising the proposed Federal pavilion site in fee-simple and free of liens and encumbrances to the Federal Government. The only consideration on the part of the Government for the conveyance of the property shall be the Government's commitment to participate in the exposition.

3. Exhibit No. 3. A certified copy of the building code which would be applicable should a pavilion be constructed.

4. Exhibit No. 4. An engineering drawing showing the accessibility of the proposed pavilion site to utilities (e.g., sewerage, water, gas, electricity, etc.).

[1] The BIE defines a General Exposition of the First Category as an exposition dealing with progress achieved in a particular field applying to several branches of human activity at which the invited countries are obligated to construct national pavilions. A General Exposition of the Second Category is a similar exposition at which invited countries are not authorized to construct national pavilions, but occupy space provided by the exposition sponsors. Special Category Expositions are those dealing only with one particular technique, raw material, or basic need.

The BIE frequency rules require that an interval of 15 years must elapse between General Expositions of the First Category held in one country. General Expositions of the Second Category require an interval of 10 years. An interval of 5 years must ordinarily elapse between Special Category Expositions of the same kind in one country or three months between Special Category Expositions of different kinds. These frequency intervals are computed from the date of the opening of the exposition.

More detailed BIE classification criteria and regulations are contained in the Paris Convention of 1928, as amended in 1948 and 1966. Applicants not having a copy of the text of this convention may obtain one by writing the Director. (The Convention may soon be amended by a Protocol which has been approved by the BIE and ratified by the United States. This amendment would increase authorized frequencies or intervals for BIE approved expositions.)

5. Exhibit No. 5. A statement setting forth the security and maintenance arrangements which the applicant would undertake (and an estimate of their cost) while a pavilion is under construction.

6. Exhibit No. 6. A study pursuant to Executive Order 11296 of August 10, 1966, entitled "Evaluation of flood hazard in locating Federally owned or financed buildings, roads and other facilities and in disposing of Federal land and properties."

§ 1202.8 Proposed plan for Federal participation.

(a) Upon receipt of the statement, and the exhibits referred to in § 1202.7, the Director shall prepare a proposed plan in cooperation with other interested departments and agencies of the Federal Government for Federal participation in the exposition.

(b) In preparing the proposed plan for Federal participation in the exposition, the Director shall conduct a feasibility study of Federal participation including cost estimates by utilizing the services within the Federal Government, professional consultants and private sources as required and in accordance with applicable laws and regulations.

(c) The Director, in the proposed plan for Federal participation in the exposition, shall determine whether or not a Federal pavilion should be constructed and, if so, whether or not the Government would have need for a permanent structure in the area of the exposition or whether a temporary structure would be more appropriate.

(d) The Director shall seek the advice of the Administrator of the General Services Administration to the extent necessary in carrying out the proposed plan for Federal participation in the exposition.

(e) Upon completion of the proposed plan for Federal participation in the exposition, the Director shall submit the plan to the Secretary.

§ 1202.9 Report of the Secretary on Federal participation.

Upon receipt of the Director's proposed plan for Federal participation, the Secretary, within a reasonable time, shall submit a report to the President including: (a) Evidence that the exposition has met the criteria for Federal recognition and has been so recognized; (b) a statement that the exposition has beeen registered by the BIE; and (c) a proposed plan for the Federal participation referred to in § 1202.8.

§ 1202.10 Approval by the President of Federal participation. [Reserved]

Title 21—Food and Drugs

CHAPTER I—FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION, DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, EDUCATION, AND WELFARE

SUBCHAPTER D—DRUGS FOR HUMAN USE

[Docket No. 75N-0145]

PART 310—NEW DRUGS

Methadone Maintenance of Pregnant Addicts

The Commissioner of Food and Drugs is amending the methadone regulations to provide for the maintenance treatment of all pregnant addicts regardless of age or prior addiction history, who are otherwise eligible for treatment, provided the Medical Director certifies the pregnancy and, in his judgment, such treatment is medically justified. This amendment is based on recent evidence that detoxification of a pregnant woman, especially in the last trimester of pregnancy, can be hazardous to the infant she bears.

In a notice of proposed rule making, published in the FEDERAL REGISTER of October 23, 1974 (39 FR 37649), the Commissioner proposed that Part 310 be amended in § 310.505 Conditions for use of methadone (21 CFR 310.505) by revising paragraph (d) (3) (iii) and by revising item VI C. in Form FD-2632 of paragraph (k) (1) and item III C. in Form FD-2633 of paragraph (k) (2), to read as follows:

§ 310.505 Conditions for use of methadone.

(iii) Exceptions to physiologic addiction standards and special age limitations; justification. An exception to the requirement for documented evidence and history of current physiologic dependence on heroin or other morphine-like drugs set forth in paragraph (d) (3) (ii) of this section or to the age limitations set forth in paragraph (d) (3) (iv) of this section will be allowed under the following exceptional circumstances. Justification for any of the exceptions shall be noted in the patient's record.

In the proposed regulation, the two circumstances, set forth in § 310.505(d) (3) (iii), as well as in § 310.505(k) (1) and (2), granting exceptions to the requirement for documented evidence and history of current physiologic dependence on heroin were indicated as "examples" of circumstances justifying exception to the physiologic addiction standards. Since these two circumstances are the only exceptions to the physiologic addiction standards that are provided for by this regulation, they are no longer referred to as "examples." This change does not preclude a program from submitting a request for an additional exception, along with the rationale for such an exemption, to the Division of Methadone Monitoring pursuant to the provisions of § 310.505(d) (12).

In the preamble to the proposal the Commissioner concluded that, pending final action on the proposal, it would be in the public interest to implement the new policy and permit maintenance treatment of pregnant women with methadone. This interim action was taken to protect the health and safety of pregnant methadone patients and their near-term and newborn children. In view of the public interest, and the fact that no comments were received on the proposal, this amendment, which relieves a previous restriction, will be effective August 14, 1975.

Therefore, under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (secs. 505, 701 (a), 52 Stat. 1052-1053, as amended, 1055 (21 U.S.C. 355, 371(a))); the Public Health Service Act (sec. 303(a), 70 Stat. 929, as amended (42 U.S.C. 242a(a))); the Comprehensive Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Act of 1970 (sec. 4, 84 Stat. 1241 (42 U.S.C. 257a)), and under authority delegated to the Commissioner (21 CFR 5.1), Part 310 is amended in § 310.505 by revising paragraph (d) (3) (iii) and by revising item VI C. in Form FD-2632 of paragraph (k) (1) and item III C. in Form FD-2633 of paragraph (k) (2), to read as follows:

§ 310.505 Conditions for use of methadone.

(3) * * *

(iii) Exceptions to physiologic addiction standards and special age limitations; justification. An exception to the requirement for documented evidence and history of current physiologic dependence on heroin or other morphine-like drugs at least 2 years prior to admission to the institution, or (2) pregnant patients, regardless of age or prior addiction history, but otherwise eligible for maintenance treatment, may be placed on a maintenance regimen if the Medical Director certifies the pregnancy and, in his judgment, such treatment is medically justified. Within 6 weeks after the termination of the pregnancy, the physician shall enter an evaluation of the patient's treatment state into the patient's records indicating whether the patient should remain in a maintenance program or be detoxified. Justification for any such exception shall be noted on the patient's record.

PART 558—NEW ANIMAL DRUGS FOR USE IN ANIMAL FEEDS

Ronnel

The Commissioner of Food and Drugs has evaluated a new animal drug application (48-956V), filed by the Dow Chemical Co., Midland, MI 48641, proposing safe and effective use of ronnel liquid feed supplement for the control of grubs in beef cattle and nonlactating dairy animals. The application is approved.

The Commissioner is amending Part 558 (formerly Part 135e prior to recodification published in the FEDERAL REGISTER of March 27, 1975 (40 FR 13802)) to reflect the approval as set forth below. This amendment shall become effective August 14, 1975.

Therefore, pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (sec. 512(i), 82 Stat. 347; 21 U.S.C. 360b(i)) and under authority delegated to the Commissioner (21 CFR 2.120), Part 558 is amended by adding a new section as follows:

§ 558.526 Ronnel liquid feed supplement.

(a) Approvals. To Sponsor No. 025700 in § 510.600(c) of this chapter, use of a 20 percent liquid premix for the manufacture of a 0.72 percent ronnel liquid feed supplement.

(b) Assay limits. Feed supplement 80-120 percent of labeled amount.

(c) Related tolerances. See 40 CFR 180.177.

(d) Conditions of use. (1) It is used as a 0.72 percent liquid feed supplement for the feed of beef cattle and nonlactating dairy animals for control of grubs.

(2) Both the 7 and 14-day feeding programs require 1.75 pounds of 0.72 percent ronnel liquid feed supplement for each 100 pounds of body weight.

(i) Feed for 7 days, 0.25 pound of 0.72 percent liquid feed supplement added to feed per 100 pounds of body weight per day.

(ii) Feed for 14 days, 0.25 pound of 0.72 percent liquid feed supplement added to feed per 200 pounds of body weight per day.

(3) Must be evenly top-dressed over the grain portion of the ration or over the mixed total ration.

(4) Treat cattle as soon as possible after heel fly activity ceases, and before grubs reach the backs of the animals. Ronnel is not fully effective during the latter stages of grub development, when grubs have reached the backs of animals.

(5) Treat southern area cattle July through September (7 or 14-day treatment). Treat northern area cattle August through October (7-day treatment) or August through December (14-day treatment).

(6) Dairy animals should be treated early in their dry period but only if the dry period occurs between the end of the adult heel fly season and before grubs reach the back of the animal.

(7) Withdraw from dairy animals 10 days before calving. If animals freshen during medication, or if medication has not been withdrawn 10 days prior to freshening, milk must not be used for food for 10 days after the last treatment.

(8) Withdraw 10 days prior to slaughter.

(9) Warning—Ronnel is a cholinesterase inhibitor. Do not use simultaneously or within a few days before or after treatment with or exposure to any cholinesterase inhibiting drugs, pesticides, or chemicals.

(10) Use as sole source of ronnel.

(11) Do not feed animals that are sick, under stress (shipping, dehorning, castration), or that have been weaned within the preceding 3 weeks.

(12) Wash hands with soap and water after handling. This material contains a cholinesterase inhibitor. Treat symptomatically. Atropine is an antidote.

(13) This drug is toxic to fish. Keep out of lakes, streams, and ponds. Do not contaminate water by cleaning of equipment or disposal of wastes. Do not reuse empty container; destroy it by burning or burying in noncroplands away from water supplies.

Effective date. This order shall be effective on August 14, 1975.

Title 22—Foreign Relations

CHAPTER II—AGENCY FOR INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT, DEPARTMENT OF STATE

[A.I.D. Reg. 1]

PART 201—RULES AND PROCEDURES APPLICABLE TO COMMODITY TRANSACTIONS FINANCED BY A.I.D.

Modification of A.I.D. Geographic Codes

The Agency for International Development, acting pursuant to authority contained in Section 604(a) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, has established a list of Free World Countries (A.I.D. Geographic Code 899) and a list of Selected Free World Countries (A.I.D. Geographic Code 941) in order to designate countries which would be eligible as sources of A.I.D.-financed procurement of commodities and services under agreements where procurement from these countries was authorized. These codes were intended to be updated from time to time as additions or deletions became necessary pursuant to established criteria governing inclusion on the list.

This amendment to A.I.D. Regulation 1 modifies both Codes 899 and 941. It deletes Israel from the listing of countries excluded as eligible sources under A.I.D. Geographic Code 941 and thus permits Israel to be an eligible source country for A.I.D.-financed commodities and services under agreements where Code 941 source procurement is authorized. This amendment also adds Saudi Arabia and the Republic of the Congo, Brazzaville, to the listing of countries excluded from eligibility under Code 941. With respect to Code 899, ("Free World") Cambodia and South Vietnam are now excluded from eligibility.

Section 201.11(b)(4) of Part 201 of Chapter II, Title 22 (A.I.D. Regulation 1), in particular, the subsection with the heading Code 941—"Selected Free World", and Code 899—"Free World" is amended to read as follows:

Code 941—"Selected Free World": Any independent country in the Free World, except Algeria, Andorra, Australia, Austria, Belgium, West Berlin, Canada, Congo (Brazzaville), Cyprus, Denmark, Finland, France, West Germany, Greece, Hong Kong, Iceland, Iraq, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Kuwait, Libya, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Malta, Monaco, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Portugal, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, Southern Rhodesia, San Marino, Somali Republic, South Africa, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, United Arab Emirates, United Kingdom, Vatican City, South Yemen, Yugoslavia, and the cooperating country itself.

Code 899—"Free World": Any area or country excluding the cooperating country itself and the following countries: Albania, Bulgaria, Cambodia, China (mainland) and other Chinese Communist-controlled areas, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Estonia, East Germany, Hungary, North Korea, Latvia, Lithuania, Outer Mongolia, Poland, Romania, North Vietnam, South Vietnam, and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republic (USSR).

All other portions of § 201.11(b)(4) shall remain in full force and effect.

Effective date: This amendment shall become effective on August 14, 1975.

Dated: July 29, 1975.

Title 7—Agriculture

CHAPTER IX—AGRICULTURAL MARKETING SERVICE (MARKETING AGREEMENTS AND ORDERS; FRUITS, VEGETABLES, NUTS), DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

[Valencia Orange Reg. 511]

PART 908—VALENCIA ORANGES GROWN IN ARIZONA AND DESIGNATED PART OF CALIFORNIA

Limitation of Handling

This regulation fixes the quantity of California-Arizona Valencia oranges that may be shipped to fresh market during the weekly regulation period August 15-21, 1975. It is issued pursuant to the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended, and Marketing Order No. 908. The quantity of Valencia oranges so fixed was arrived at after consideration of the total available supply of Valencia oranges, the quantity of Valencia oranges currently available for market, the fresh market demand for Valencia oranges, Valencia orange prices, and the relationship of season average returns to the parity price for Valencia oranges.

§ 908.811 Valencia Orange Regulation 511.

(a) Findings. (1) Pursuant to the marketing agreement, as amended, and Order No. 908, as amended (7 CFR Part 908), regulating the handling of Valencia oranges grown in Arizona and designated part of California, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601-674), and upon the basis of the recommendations and information submitted by the Valencia Orange Administrative Committee, established under the said amended marketing agreement and order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of handling of such Valencia oranges, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) The need for this regulation to limit the respective quantities of Valencia oranges that may be marketed from District 1, District 2, and District 3 during the ensuing week stems from the production and marketing situation confronting the Valencia orange industry.

(i) The committee has submitted its recommendation with respect to quantities of Valencia oranges that should be marketed during the next succeeding week. Such recommendation, designed to provide equity of marketing opportunity to handlers in all districts, resulted from consideration of the factors enumerated in the order. The committee further reports that the fresh market demand for Valencia oranges continued sluggish through last week with some improvement during the first part of this week. Prices f.o.b. averaged $3.26 per carton on a reported sales volume of 564,000 cartons last week compared with an average f.o.b. price of $3.28 per carton and sales of 629,000 cartons a week earlier. Track and rolling supplies at 215 cars were down 41 cars from last week.

(ii) Having considered the recommendation and information submitted by the committee, and other available information, the Secretary finds that the respective quantities of Valencia oranges which may be handled should be fixed as hereinafter set forth.

(3) It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule-making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this regulation until 30 days after publication hereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER (5 U.S.C. 553) because the time intervening between the date when information upon which this regulation is based became available and the time when this regulation must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient, and a reasonable time is permitted, under the circumstances, for preparation for such effective time; and good cause exists for making the provisions hereof effective as hereinafter set forth. The committee held an open meeting during the current week, after giving due notice thereof, to consider supply and market conditions for Valencia oranges and the need for regulation; interested persons were afforded an opportunity to submit information and views at this meeting; the recommendation and supporting information for regulation during the period specified herein were promptly submitted to the Department after such meeting was held; the provisions of this regulation, including its effective time, are identical with the aforesaid recommendation of the committee, and information concerning such provisions and effective time has been disseminated among handlers of such Valencia oranges; it is necessary, in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act, to make this regulation effective during the period herein specified; and compliance with this regulation will not require any special preparation on the part of persons subject hereto which cannot be completed on or before the effective date hereof. Such committees meeting was held on August 12, 1975.

(b) Order. (1) The respective quantities of Valencia oranges grown in Arizona and designated part of California which may be handled during the period August 15, 1975, through August 21, 1975, are hereby fixed as follows:

(i) District 1: 176,000 cartons;

(ii) District 2: 374,000 cartons;

(iii) District 3: Unlimited movement."

(2) As used in this section, "handled", "District 1", "District 2", "District 3", and "carton" have the same meaning as when used in said amended marketing agreement and order.

PART 948—IRISH POTATOES GROWN IN COLORADO

Expenses and Rate of Assessment

This document authorizes the Colorado Area No. 2 Potato Committee to spend $17,800 for its operations during the fiscal period ending June 30, 1976, and to collect $0.003 per hundredweight on assessable potatoes handled by each first handler to defray such expenses.

The committee is the administrative agency established under Marketing Agreement No. 97 and Order No. 948, both as amended (7 CFR Part 948), regulating the handling of Irish potatoes grown in Colorado. This program is effective under the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601-674).

Notice was published in the July 23 FEDERAL REGISTER (40 FR 30840) regarding the proposals. It afforded interested persons an opportunity to file written comments not later than August 7, 1975. None was received.

After consideration of all relevant matters, including the proposals in the notice, it is found that the following expenses and rate of assessment should be approved.

It is further found that good cause exists for not postponing the effective date of this section until 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER (5 U.S.C. 553) because this part requires that the rate of assessment for a particular fiscal period shall apply to all assessable potatoes from the beginning of such period.

The regulation follows:

§ 948.273 Expenses and rate of assessment.

(a) The reasonable expenses that are likely to be incurred during the fiscal period ending June 30, 1976, by the Colorado Area No. 2 Potato Committee for its maintenance and functioning, and for such other purposes as the Secretary may determine to be appropriate will amount to $17,800.

(b) The rate of assessment to be paid by each handler in accordance with this part shall be $0.003 per hundredweight or equivalent quantity of assessable potatoes handled by him as the first handler during the fiscal period.

(c) Unexpended income in excess of expenses for the fiscal period may be carried over as a reserve to the extent authorized in § 948.78.

(d) Terms used in this section have the same meaning as when used in the marketing agreement and this part.

(Secs. 1–19, 48 Stat. 31, as amended; 7 U.S.C. 601–674).

Expenses and Rate of Assessment

This document authorizes the Colorado Area No. 3 Potato Committee to spend $1,961 for its operations during the fiscal period ending June 30, 1976, and to collect $0.005 per hundredweight on assessable potatoes handled by each handler to defray such expenses.

The committee is the administrative agency established under Marketing Agreement No. 97 and Order No. 948, both as amended (7 CFR Part 948), regulating the handling of Irish potatoes grown in Colorado. This program is effective under the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U.S.C. 601–674).

Notice was published in the July 24 FEDERAL REGISTER (40 FR 30977) regarding the proposals. It afforded interested persons an opportunity to file written comments not later than August 7, 1975. None was received.

After consideration of all relevant matters, including the proposals in the notice, it is found that the following expenses and rate of assessment should be approved.

It is further found that good cause exists for not postponing the effective date of this section until 30 days after publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER (5 U.S.C. 553) because this part requires that the rate of assessment for a particular fiscal period shall apply to all assessable potatoes from the beginning of such period.

The regulation follows:

§ 948.274 Expenses and rate of assessment.

(a) The reasonable expenses that are likely to be incurred during the fiscal period ending June 30, 1976, by the Area No. 3 Committee for its maintenance and functioning, and for such purposes as the Secretary determines to be appropriate will amount to $1,961.

Title 45—Public Welfare

CHAPTER I—OFFICE OF EDUCATION, DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, EDUCATION, AND WELFARE

PART 166—STATE ADULT EDUCATION PROGRAMS

Miscellaneous Amendments

Regulations for State Adult Education Programs incorporating changes made in the Adult Education Act (20 U.S.C. 1201 et. seq.) by the Education Amendments of 1974, Pub. L. 93–380, were published after notice of proposed rule making and public comment thereon in the FEDERAL REGISTER for April 23, 1975, 40 FR 17950–17960 (Vol. 40, No. 79, Part II).

Pursuant to section 431(d) of the General Education Provisions Act, as amended (20 U.S.C. 1232(d)), the regulations were transmitted to the Congress concurrently with the publication of the regulations in the FEDERAL REGISTER for review by Congress. Staff of the Committee on Education and Labor noted that subpart D of the regulations (Special Experimental Demonstration Projects and Teacher Training) does not expressly make reference to the eligibility of bilingual adult education programs as set forth in section 604 and 607(b) (1) and (2) of Pub. L. 93–380. Such specific reference is now being added.

In addition errors of a clerical or typographical nature are being corrected. The phrase "annual program plan" should be substituted for "State plan" in §§ 166.4 and 166.6 in accordance with section 511 of Pub. L. 93–380. A period is being changed to a comma in §166.12 (and consequently a capital is being changed to a lower case).

Since the changes in § 166.22(a)(1) and (2) closely follow the Act and since the other changes are merely to correct minor clerical or typographical errors, no resubmission for public comment is deemed necessary. The regulations transmitted to Congress on April 17, 1975, and published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on April 23 became effective with the expiration of the forty-five-day period as set forth in section 431(d) of the General Education Provisions Act. It is hoped, however, that all States will make full provision for persons of limited English-speaking ability in their annual program plans.

Specifically, the regulations are amended as follows:

§ 166.4 [Amended]

1. Sec. 166.4(b) is amended to substitute the phrase "annual program plan" for "State plan" in the two places where the phrase "State plan" appears.

§ 166.6 [Amended]

2. Sec. 166.6 is amended to substitute the phrase "annual program plan" for "State plan."

§ 166.12 [Amended]

3. Sec. 166.12(e) is amended so that the period (.) between the two sentences is changed to a comma (,) and changing the capital B to lower case.

§ 166.22 [Amended]

4. Sec. 166.22(a)(1) is amended to add the phrase "including methods of educating persons of limited English-speaking ability", after the word "methods."

5. Sec. 166.22(a)(2) is amended to add the phrase ", including education for persons of limited English-speaking ability", after the phrase "adult education."

6. Sec. 166.52(d)(4) is amended to complete the sentence by adding after the word "fund-" the phrase "ing for each by fiscal year."

Effective date. Pursuant to section 431(d) of the General Education Provisions Act, as amended (20 U.S.C. 1232(d)) these regulations have been transmitted to the Congress concurrently with the publication of this document in the FEDERAL REGISTER. That section provides that regulations subject thereto shall become effective on the forty-fifth day following the date of such transmission, subject to the provisions therein concerning congressional action and adjournment.

It is hereby certified that the economic and inflationary impacts of these amendments have been carefully evaluated in accordance with OMB Circular A–107.

PART 177—FEDERAL, STATE AND PRIVATE PROGRAMS OF LOW-INTEREST LOANS TO VOCATIONAL STUDENTS AND STUDENTS IN INSTITUTIONS OF HIGHER EDUCATION

Special Allowances

Notice of proposed rulemaking was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on May 13, 1975 (40 FR 20824), setting forth proposed regulations governing the operation of the Guaranteed Student Loan Program (20 U.S.C. 1071 through 1087–2). Amendments were proposed to § 177.6 and § 177.12 of Title 45 of the Code of Federal Regulations to increase the amount of the insurance premium which may be charged by State and private nonprofit guarantee agencies in their operation of the Guaranteed Student Loan Program. Interested persons were invited to submit to the Office of Education written data, views or arguments concerning the proposed rule during the 30 day comment period which ended June 12, 1975.

Only two comments were received, both supportive of the proposed regulation. One commenter pointed to the escalation of salary and administrative costs as justification for the increase in the insurance premium. Another made reference to the increasing default rate and the financial inability of private and state guarantee agencies to meet the required payments to financial institutions for defaulted loans.

As no adverse comment was received, no changes have been made in the regulation, and it is republished as proposed.

Effective date. The notice of proposed rulemaking was transmitted to Congress on May 7, 1975, pursuant to Section 431 (d) of the General Education Provisions Act (20 U.S.C. 1232(d)). The time period set forth therein has expired without action having been taken. Therefore, these regulations shall become effective August 14, 1975.

It is hereby certified that the economic and inflationary impacts of this proposed regulation have been carefully evaluated in accordance with OMB Circular A–107.

Part 177 of Title 45 of the Code of Federal Regulations is amended as follows:

1. Paragraph 177.6(b) is revised, to read as follows:

§ 177.6 Permissible charges.

* * * * * *

(b) Insurance premiums. The maximum rate for insurance premiums which may be charged the lender and passed on to the borrower may not exceed, in the case of loans insured under State and private nonprivate loan insurance programs, the equivalent of one percent per year of the unpaid principal balance (excluding interest or other charges which may have been added to principal) or in the case of federally insured loans one-fourth percent per year of the unpaid principal balance of the loan (excluding interest or other charges which may have been added to principal). The term "insurance premium" covers only those charges made by the guarantee agency to be used to underwrite loans and to cover costs incurred in the administration of its loan insurance program. Such premiums may not be retained by the lender to cover the costs of making the loan.

2. Section 177.12(a)(1)(vi) is revised, to read as follows:

§ 177.12 Agreements for Federal payments to reduce student interest costs for insured loans.

(vi) Authorizes interest on the unpaid principal balance of the loan at a yearly rate not in excess of 7 percent per year exclusive of any premium for insurance which may be passed on to the borrower, but such insurance premium may not result in charges in excess of the equivalent of one percent per year of the unpaid principal.

CHAPTER I—FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION

[FCC 75-898]

PART 0—COMMISSION ORGANIZATION

Freedom of Information

1. Section 0.457(d)(1)(ii) of the Freedom of Information Rules deal with the availability for inspection of applications for equipment authorization. In accordance with an earlier Commission ruling (FCC 74–111, 45 FCC 2d 146), applications for advance approval of subscription television systems are being added to those now listed in the rule (type acceptance, type approval and certification).

2. In addition, §§ 0.457(d) and 0.455(a) are being amended to clarify the procedures applicable to inspection of applications for equipment authorization following the effective date of the authorization. After the effective date, applications are routinely available for public inspection. However, the last sentence of § 0.457(d)(1)(ii) provides that such applications will be made available "upon request pursuant to § 0.461." Since § 0.461 specifies procedures for inspecting records which are not routinely available, the reference is incorrect and is being deleted. Except as provided in § 0.460(d), a written request for inspection of these applications is not required after the effective date of an authorization. Applications for equipment authorizations (after the effective date) are being added to the materials listed in § 0.455(a) as being routinely available for inspection in the Office of Chief Engineer.

3. Authority for these amendments is contained in sections 4(i) and 303(r) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, 47 U.S.C. 154(i) and 303(r). The amendments do not alter the "routinely available" status of applications for equipment authorizations and are editorial and procedural in nature. The prior notice and effective date provisions of 5 U.S.C. 553 are therefore inapplicable.

4. In view of the foregoing, it is ordered, effective August 15, 1975 That the Freedom of Information rules are amended as set out below.

EMERGENCY BROADCAST SYSTEM

Attention Signal Requirement and Exemption

In the matter of amendment of Parts 1, 2, 15, and 73 of the Commission's rules to provide equipment type acceptance and certification for Emergency Broadcast System (EBS) Attention Signal equipment, and exempting 10-watt noncommercial educational FM broadcast licensees from the Attention Signal transmission requirement.

1. By Order released December 5, 1974, FCC Order 74-1285 (49 FCC 2d 1160), FR Vol. 39, No. 240, Dec. 12, 1974, § 73.906 of the Commission's rules was amended to substitute a two-tone Attention Signal for the carrier-break and 1000 H. Attention Signal presently used in the Emergency Broadcast System (EBS).

2. It is now apparent that without further specific requirements, the entire signalling arrangement could suffer severe degradation due to the use of inferior signalling equipment. For example, decoders could be designed to respond to only one of the two audio tones. This is similar to the problem with present EBS receivers that are designed to respond to either the carrier break or the 1000 H. tone but not the combination of the two inputs as intended. In addition, the present rules do not require the timing of the transmission of the two tones to be controlled automatically. These are but two of the more obvious examples of the possibilities that could occur in the absence of type acceptance and certification requirements.

3. Following the release of FCC Order 74-1285, many broadcasters informally expressed doubt as to the capability of presently available equipment to generate (encode) and detect (decode) the new two-tone Attention Signal in conformance with the rigid standards set by the Commission. After careful consideration the Commission shares this concern and therefore feels it is appropriate to amend the rules to require type acceptance of the encoder and certification of the decoder.

4. In its Report and Recommendations submitted to the Commission by the National Industry Advisory Committee, the Special NIAC Working Group on Emergency Alerting of the General Public recommended that the Commission take such measures as are necessary to insure that the responsive circuitry (two-tone decoder device) be held to close tolerances, otherwise the efficiency of the system would be jeopardized. Exact bandwidth specifications for the decoder device were not recommended by the NIAC. The original decoder incorporated a parallel-T active filter as the frequency-sensitive device. However, these filters were abandoned because the drift of the center frequency with temperature caused the filter to attenuate the desired signal to a point where the units would not function with a suitable input signal. The special working group then experimented with resonant reed relays of the contact type. These units proved unsatisfactory because of the high failure rate which was caused by a considerable increase in the contact resistance due to contamination of the contact surfaces. After a considerable amount of investigation, another resonant reed filter was selected as the frequency-sensitive element. The operation bandwidth of the decoders using the resonant reed filter when a signal of 1 volt RMS was applied to the input of the center frequency was within ±¼% (2.4 H.). Field testing of the devices proved to be extremely successful. However, even though the alert receivers performed as required by the specification, the NIAC recommended additional work should be done in order to reduce the cost of the alerting portion without changing performance. The major cost in the alert modification they said was the resonant reed switches and that a less expensive component could reduce the cost considerably. They recommended a tuning fork filter recently developed that has a cost of about 10 to 20% of the unit presently performing the frequency filtering function. Informal comments received from both the broadcast industry and manufacturing industry indicated that a stability of ±2.4 H. was too tight and unnecessary. The reasons given were that less controllable factors such as temperature variation and component aging can cause the center frequency to drift beyond the bandwidth limits thus resulting in non-activation during a two-tone transmission. They recommended that a wider bandwidth stability would alleviate the above problem. It is agreed by all parties concerned that the wider bandwidth can increase the possibility of false activation at the decoder, whereas, a more narrow bandwidth can decrease the possibility of a false response. Thus the problem at hand was to determine a suitable bandwidth that would not cause falsing and at the same time would account for temperature variation and component aging. Many values were informally recommended to the Commission ranging from a bandwidth stability as wide as ±40H. to as low as ±5 H.. The possibility of falsing with a wider bandwidth will not be significantly increased if the bandwidth is held to certain limits considering that an 8 to 16 seconds delay after initial tone reception is required before the decoder activates. In addition, designers and manufacturers of decoding devices will have less problem compensating for temperature variation and component aging with a wider bandwidth stability. Accordingly, after careful consideration and in view of the above, we have specified a decoder bandwidth stability of ±5 H. for the decoder device in our rules governing EBS Attention Signal equipment.

5. In view of the above, four new sections are being added to the rules under the heading "EBS Attention Signal Equipment". These sections will provide type acceptance and certification parameters which the EBS Attention Signal equipment must satisfy. These sections also make provision for those broadcasters who may wish to build their own equipment, for their own use and not for sale, to apply for type acceptance and certification of their devices without submission of application fees. In addition, editorial and clarifying changes have been made in section 73.906. To allow time for the authorization process, the deadline for installation of the new two-tone Attention Signal is extended three months (through April 15, 1976). Further, parts 2 and 15 of the Commission's rules are amended to provide for the various procedures necessary for type acceptance and certification of EBS Attention Signal equipment, and part 1 is changed to specify fees for equipment type acceptance and certification.

6. Finally, the University of North Carolina, Educational Television, has requested waiver of the requirements of section 73.961(c) to exempt WUAG(FM) and all noncommercial educational FM broadcast stations of 10 watts or less from the requirement of conducting weekly EBS test transmissions. By way of justification, WUAG(FM) contends that the cost of additional control lines and circuits would, in many instances, be prohibitive and that the conduct of EBS tests by this class of station does not serve any useful purpose due to the limited power and coverage involved.

7. Performance of weekly EBS test transmissions serves many purposes. It familiarizes station personnel with EBS procedures which would be followed in an actual emergency, and reminds the listening audience that in the event of such an emergency, it should either stay tuned to that station or to another station in the area for news and official information. Thus, the limited power and coverage of a station do not necessarily determine whether EBS tests serve a useful purpose. The listening audience, no matter how limited in numbers, must be able to receive the common emergency program material or be advised where to tune in the event of activation of the EBS. Accordingly, WUAG's request must be denied insofar as the weekly test announcements are concerned.

8. While we do not favor exempting WUAG-FM and other Educational FM stations of 10 watts or less from the requirements of Section 73.961(c) of the above reasons, we are in favor of exempting these stations from the requirement of transmitting the new two-tone Attention Signal, since it is essentially an interstation signalling arrangement and the limited power and coverage of 10 watt FM educational stations severely restrict their effectiveness for this purpose. Accordingly, the Commission's rules and the EBS Checklist will be amended to provide that non-commercial educational FM broadcast stations with authorized powers of 10 watts or less are exempt from the requirement for installing the new two-tone encoder.

9. This Order is responsive to requests by the broadcast industry and imposes no burdens of a substantial nature. Moreover, national security considerations require that EBS two-tone signalling equipment be designed, manufactured, and installed without unnecessary delay. We therefore find that prior notice of proposed rule making and submission of written comments thereon are unnecessary, impracticable, and contrary to the public interest (5 U.S.C. 553(b)).

10. Authority for adoption of the amendments herein ordered is contained in sections 1, 4(i), 4(o), and 303(r) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended.

11. In view of the foregoing considerations it is ordered, That effective August 20, 1975, Parts 1, 2, 15, and 73 of the Commission's rules and regulations is amended as set forth in the Appendix.

12. It is further ordered, That WUAG's above referenced request for waiver is granted to the extent indicated above, and in all other respects is denied.

(Secs. 4, 303, 48 Stat., as amended, 1066, 1082 (47 U.S.C. 154, 303))

Part 2 of Chapter I of Title 47 of the Code of Federal Regulations is amended as follows:

2. Add new paragraph (h) to § 2.983 as follows:

[11] If the decoder is included as an integral part of a receiver subject certification, the fee for certification of that category receiver shall apply, in lieu of this amount, for certification of the combination.

[12] Fees for type acceptance and certification of EBS Attention Signal encoders and decoders, respectively, are not required when the request for type acceptance or certification covers devices constructed by stations licensed under Part 73 for use only at their particular station. Marketing of such devices is prohibited.

§ 2.983 Application for type acceptance.

(h) An encoder device used for the generation of the EBS Attention Signal as defined in Section 73.906 need not comply with paragraphs (d)(1) through (d)(5) inclusive, (d)(9) through (d)(12) inclusive and paragraph (e) of this Section. In lieu of these requirements measurements must be submitted showing compliance with Section 73.940.

3. Modify the note to paragraph (b) of § 2.1003 as follows:

§ 2.1003 Identification label for type accepted equipment.

* * * * *

NOTE.—* * * certification. If the equipment is an encoder device used for generating the EBS Attention Signal as defined in Section 73.906, the words "FCC DATA", followed by the number assigned to the equipment by the grantee shall be used.

PART 15—RADIO FREQUENCY DEVICES

Part 15 of Chapter I of Title 47 of the Code of Federal Regulations is amended as follows:

4. Add new paragraph (d) to § 15.38 as follows:

§ 15.38 Description of measurement facilities.

(f) For a device used in decoding the Emergency Broadcast System Attention Signal as defined in § 73.906 the value of the necessary voltage (RMS) or range of voltages of the attention signal to be applied to the input terminals of the decoder which will cause the desired response of the device shall be submitted to the Commission with the certification data. In the event input signals other than the attention signal (excluding signals which can in combination form the attention signal), including signals at levels outside this voltage range, will cause false responses by the device, a description of such signals and their input voltage levels which cause such false responses shall be specified in the application and appropriate warnings shall be included in the instructions furnished to the user. The susceptibility of the device to false responses and any lack of reliability in responding to the attention signal at input voltage levels within the rated voltage range may be regarded by the Commission as cause to deny certification.

CHAPTER X—INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION

SUBCHAPTER A—GENERAL RULES AND REGULATIONS

[Ex Parte No. MC-19 (Sub-No. 27)]

PART 1056—TRANSPORTATION OF HOUSEHOLD GOODS IN INTERSTATE OR FOREIGN COMMERCE

Elimination of Quarterly Reporting Forms

● Purpose: The purpose of this document is to eliminate certain household goods carrier quarterly reporting forms. ●

The Interstate Commerce Commission has amended its General Rules and Regulations governing motor common carriers of household goods. The rule changes will eliminate the current requirement that household goods carriers file (1) a quarterly report of use of constructive weights, and (2) a quarterly report of split or divided shipments of household goods. It is the view of the Commission that said reports have ceased to be of further value. In actual practice, the split-shipment reports have yielded a minimum of information, and serve no further purpose. Commission data indicates that during an average quarter, only about 8 to 10 constructive-weight reports are filed nationwide, and that the information which they present is of minimal use. The use of constructive weights for first proviso household goods shipments have been found to be very infrequent. The Commission has determined that full notice and comment rulemaking procedures are unnecessary since the rule changes do not appear to give cause for objection.

This rule change is issued under the authority of 49 U.S.C. 304, 305, 306, 307, 309, and 311.

Issued in Washington, D.C., August 1, 1975.

[SEAL] ROBERT L. OSWALD,
Secretary.

Accordingly, this action modifies 49 CFR 1056.3(d) and 1056.6(a)(2) so that they now read as follows:

§ 1056.3 Accessorial or terminal services; tariffs providing therefor; containers, packing, and unpacking charges.

(d) Estimates and charges based on space reservation for a portion of a vehicle prohibited on first-proviso shipments. Carrier estimates and charges to shippers of first-proviso household goods as defined in 49 CFR 1056.1(a)(1), shall not be based upon specific reservation by a shipper of a portion of the capacity of a vehicle.

§ 1056.6 Determination of weights.

(2) If no certified scale is available at origin, at any point en route, or at destination, a constructive weight, based upon 7 pounds per cubic foot of properly loaded van space, may be used.

Title 24—Housing and Urban Development

CHAPTER X—FEDERAL INSURANCE ADMINISTRATION

SUBCHAPTER B—NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM

[Docket No. FI-659]

PART 1916—CONSULTATION WITH LOCAL OFFICIALS

Notice of Changes Made in Determinations of Jefferson Parish, La., Base Flood Elevations

On October 13, 1971, at 36 FR 19909, the Federal Insurance Administrator published a list of communities with Special Flood Hazard Areas and the map numbers and locations where Flood Insurance Rate Maps were available for public inspection. The list included Flood Insurance Rate Maps for portions of Jefferson Parish.

The Federal Insurance Administrator, after consultation with the Chief Executive Officer of Jefferson Parish, has determined that modification of the base (100-year) flood elevations of some locations in Jefferson Parish, Louisiana, is appropriate. These modified elevations are currently in effect and amend the Flood Insurance Rate Map. A revised rate map will be published as soon as possible. The modifications are made in accordance with section 206 of the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 (Pub. L. 93-234) and the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, as amended (Title XIII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 Pub. L. 90-448) 42 U.S.C. 4001-4128, and 24 CFR Part 1916.

For rating purposes, the new community number is 225199B and must be used for all new policies and renewals.

The changes in base flood elevations are as follows:

| Previous FIA zones (as on map) | Previous base flood elevations (as on map) (MSL) | New FIA zones | New base flood elevations (MSL) |
|---|---|---|---|
| Zone A19..... | 6.5 | Zone B..... | N/A |

The above change applies to the area described as follows: Orleans Village, Section 4, as recorded in Plan Book 72, Folio 13, in the office of the Clerk of Council, Parish of Jefferson, Louisiana.

Under the above mentioned Acts of 1968 and 1973 the Administrator must develop criteria for flood plain management. In order for the community to continue participation in the National Flood Insurance Program, the community must use the modified elevations to carry out the flood plain management measures of the Program. These modified elevations will also be used to calculate the appropriate flood insurance premium rates for new buildings and their contents and for the second layer of insurance on existing buildings and contents.

From the date of this notice, any person has 90 days in which he can request through the community that the Federal Insurance Administrator reconsider the changes. Any request for reconsideration must be based on knowledge of changed conditions or new scientific and technical data. All interested parties are on notice that until the 90-day period elapses, the Administrator's new determination of elevations may itself be changed.

Any person having knowledge or wishing to comment on these changes should immediately notify:

Director of Planning, Parish of Jefferson, 3300 Metairie Road, Metairie, Louisiana 70001.

DONALD C. ALEXANDER,
Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

This document contains proposed amendments to the Income Tax Regulations (26 CFR Part 1) in order to clarify the rules relating to reinsurance transactions in determining life insurance company taxable income.

Example (1) as set forth in § 1.817–4 (d)(3) of the existing regulations has given rise to conflicting judicial decisions. At issue in these judicial decisions is whether an insurance company which purchases insurance contracts from another insurance company must capitalize the purchase price and amortize it over the life of the contracts reinsured, or whether such amount may be excluded from income in the year of purchase. The notice makes it clear that such amount must be amortized.

The notice modifies example (1) and adds a new example (3) to make it clear that merely because money passes solely from the seller to the purchaser in a netting transaction, does not mean that the purchaser has paid nothing for the insurance contracts. The notice also contains rules for determining the purchase price in such transactions.

Proposed amendments to the regulations. In order to clarify the Income Tax Regulations (26 CFR Part 1) under section 817 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, relating to deduction for reinsurance transactions, such regulations are amended as follows:

Paragraph 1. Paragraph (d) of § 1.817–4 is amended as follows: Paragraph (d)(2) is revised by redesignating (iii) as (iv), amending (ii) and adding a new (iii); paragraph (d)(3) is revised by redesignating examples (3) and (4) as examples (4) and (5), respectively, revising example (1), and adding a new example (3). The revised and added provisions read as follows:

§ 1.817–4 Special rules.

* * * * *

(d) Certain other reinsurance transactions. * * *

(2) * * *

(ii) In connection with an assumption reinsurance (as defined in paragraph (a)(7)(ii) of § 1.809–5) transaction, a reinsurer shall in any taxable year beginning after December 31, 1957:

(A) Treat the consideration received from the reinsured in any such taxable year as an item of gross amount under section 809(c)(1), and

(B) Treat any amount paid to the reinsured for the purchase of such contracts, to the extent such amount meets the requirements of section 162, as a deferred expense that may be amortized over the reasonably estimated life (as defined in paragraph (d)(2)(iv) of this section) of the contracts reinsured and treat the portion of the expense so amortized in each taxable year as a deduction under section 809(d)(12) irrespective of the taxable year in which such amount was paid to the reinsured.

(iii) For purposes of paragraph (d)(2)(ii) of this section where the reinsured transfers to the reinsurer in connection with the assumption reinsurance transaction a net amount which is less than the increase in the reinsurer's reserves resulting from the transaction, the reinsurer shall be treated as:

(A) Having received from the reinsured consideration in an amount equal to the net amount of the increase in the reinsurer's reserves resulting from the transaction, and

(B) Having paid the reinsured an amount for the purchase of the contracts equal to the excess of the amount of such increase in the reinsurer's reserves over the net amount received from the reinsured.

(3) * * *

Example (1). On June 30, 1959, X, a life insurance company, reinsured a portion of its insurance contracts with Y, a life insurance company, under an agreement whereby Y agreed to assume and to become solely liable under the contracts reinsured. The reserves on the contracts reinsured by X were $100,000. Under the reinsurance agreement X agreed to pay Y $100,000 for assuming such contracts and Y agreed to pay X $17,000 for the right to receive future premium payments under this block of contracts. Rather than exchange payments of money, X agreed to pay Y a net amount of $83,000 in cash. Assuming that the reasonably estimated life of the contracts reinsured is 17 years, that there are no other insurance transactions by X or Y during the taxable year, and assuming that X and Y compute the reserves on the contracts reinsured on the same basis, X has income of $100,000 under section 809(c)(2) as a result of the net decrease in its reserves. X has a net deduction of $83,000 ($100,000–$17,000) under section 809(d)(7). For the taxable year 1959, Y has income of $100,000 under section 809(c)(1) as a result of the consideration received from X and a deduction of $100,000 under section 809(d)(2) for the net increase in reserves and $1,000 ($17,000 divided by 17, the reasonably estimated life of the contracts reinsured), under section 809(d)(12). The remaining $16,000 shall be amortized over the next 16 succeeding taxable years (16×$1,000=$16,000) under section 809(d)(12) at the rate of $1,000 for each such taxable year.

* * * * *

Example (3). The facts are the same as in Example (1), except that the reinsurance agreement does not specifically provide that X agreed to pay Y $100,000 for assuming the contracts reinsured and Y agreed to pay X $17,000 for the right to receive future premium payments under such contracts. Instead, X agreed to pay Y a net amount of $83,000 in cash for assuming such contracts. Nevertheless, Y is treated as having received from X consideration equal to $100,000, the amount of the increase in Y's reserves, and as having paid $17,000 ($100,000 less $83,000) for the purchase of such contracts. Therefore, for the taxable year 1959, Y has income of $100,000 under section 809(c)(1). Y also has a deduction of $100,000 under section 809(d)(2) for the net increase in its reserves and an amortization deduction under section 809(d)(12) of $1,000 ($17,000 divided by 17, the reasonably estimated life of the contracts reinsured). The remaining $16,000 shall be amortized by Y over the next 16 succeeding years at the rate of $1,000 for each such year. For 1959, X has income of $100,000 under section 809(c)(2) as a result of the net decrease in its reserves and a deduction of $83,000 under section 809(d)(7) for the net amount of consideration paid to Y for assuming the contracts reinsured.

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, EDUCATION, AND WELFARE

Office of the Secretary

[ 45 CFR Part 5b ]

PRIVACY ACT

Notice of Proposed Rulemaking

Notice is hereby given that the Secretary proposes regulations to implement the Privacy Act, Public Law 93–579, which becomes effective on September 27, 1975.

The regulation is designed to give information both to the general public and to Department employees concerning the procedures governing requests for information, and requests for the amendment of records. It also provides guidance on the disclosure of information.

The regulation attempts to balance equities between an individual's right to privacy and the rights of others to have access to personal information. The Privacy Act permits disclosure of personal information if the disclosure is required by the Freedom of Information Act. The Freedom of Information Act, as implemented in the Department's Freedom of Information Regulation in 45 CFR Part 5 and supplemental regulations promulgated by components of the Department, exempts from mandatory disclosure personnel and medical files and similar files, the disclosure of which would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. Those regulations currently contain some examples of records, which, if disclosed would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

The Privacy Act explicity confers a right upon an individual to gain access to information pertaining to him in Federal records. It does not limit an individual's right to gain access to Federal records under the Freedom of Information Act, but rather permits an individual to gain access to records pertaining to him which otherwise might not be available to the general public under the Freedom of Information Act.

For this reason, the Department intends to regard requests for records containing personal information as requests under the Privacy Act if an individual requests access directly or through a representative to records containing information pertaining to himself. A request for access to records containing personal information about someone other than the individual making the request will be viewed as a request under the Freedom of Information Act unless a routine use has been established for the record in accordance with the Privacy Act. Where an individual requests access to records containing information pertaining to himself as well as to others in a single request, the request will be viewed as being made under both Acts.

Determinations of whether a request should be treated as a request under the Privacy Act, the Freedom of Information Act or as a request under both Acts will be made on the basis of the substance of the request. In each case such determinations will be made by the employee in the Department to whom the request is referred or addressed.

Should a request be submitted to the responsible Department official in accordance with this Part, that official will review such request and transmit all requests under the Freedom of Information Act or those portions of a single request having Freedom of Information Act considerations to the appropriate Information Center officer in accordance with Subparts C and D of the Department's Freedom of Information Regulation, 45 CFR Part 5. Similarly, Information Center officers will review requests submitted in accordance with the Department's Freedom of Information Regulation and transmit all requests under the Privacy Act or those portions of a single request having Privacy Act considerations to the responsible Department official in accordance with the Department's Privacy Act implementing regulations.

The regulation is designed to prescribe overall procedures which will generally apply throughout the Department. However, given the large number of systems of records maintained by the Department and the various responsibilities of the components of the Department, no one procedure can be designed which will adequately apply to every request under the Act. Further, some components have procedures which are mandated by other statutes. Therefore, the regulation would permit supplementation by component's regulations, even to the extent that the components deviate from these procedures. Where a component chooses not to promulgate regulations, the procedures in the Department regulation will apply.

The procedures set forth in the proposed regulation are designed to keep paperwork and inconvenience to the requester at a minimum. However, it is necessary, particularly when considering that the Act provides both civil and criminal penalties for failure to comply with the Act, to ensure that a person requesting access to his own record is, in fact, the individual on whom the record is maintained. Therefore, minimal requirements must be put into effect regarding the verification of the identity of the subject individual. The individual requesting information from medical or other sensitive records may be required to produce greater proof of his identity than is required for records which are not of such a personal nature.

The Act provides that an individual may inquire of an agency whether it is maintaining records on him in systems of records which he states are likely to have information on him. Should the agency inform the individual that it is maintaining a record on him, the individual may also request access to that record. Individuals are encouraged to combine both the inquiry about the existence of a record and the request for access to the record in a single request, particularly if the individual knows in advance that he will want access to the record. Requests may be made in person or through the mail. Individuals requesting copies of their records will be charged for the copies in accordance with the fee schedule proposed in the regulation. The regulation also provides procedures by which an individual may give his consent for the disclosure of information concerning him to others where such disclosure is not otherwise permitted by the Act.

The Act also permits an individual to request that a record be amended or corrected when he believes, after having had access to the record, that the record being maintained is inaccurate. An initial request will be made to the official who is responsible for maintaining the system of records. If that official refuses to amend or correct the record, the individual may appeal the refusal.

It is the Department's intent that such appeals be determined at a high level. It is also understood, however, that the volume of appeals of this nature may be so great that the officially designated appeals authority cannot give his attention to each request, and so would likely delegate this authority.

The officials listed in the proposed regulation as appeal authorities are the same officials who have appellate authority with respect to denials of information under the Freedom of Information Act. This authority may be redelegated. Any delegation, however, must be in writing and published in the FEDERAL REGISTER as a part of Appendix C to the regulation. The proposed regulation will, however, restrict the delegation so that the appeal authority is at all times a person of higher rank than the employee who made the initial review of the request to correct or amend.

During the time a record is reviewed for possible corrections or amendments, no disclosure will normally be made of the record nor will any determination concerning the individual's rights, benefits, or privileges under a federal program be made on the basis of the record. It is recognized, however, that under certain circumstances this restriction may act to the detriment of the individual. In such cases, a disclosure or a determination may be made on the basis of the existing record. Such disclosure or determination will be corrected if the responsible Department official or the appeals authority agree to correct or amend the record.

The Department maintains many systems of records which contain medical information. In many cases, the disclosure of medical records could have an adverse effect on the individual. The Privacy Act permits special procedures to be instituted where an individual has requested medical records. The proposed regulation would put into effect such a special procedure. In certain instances, individuals will be required to designate, in writing, a representative to whom a medical record will be disclosed. Such representative will discuss the medical record with the individual and disclose to him such information as the representative deems appropriate.

The general intent of the Privacy Act is to protect the personal privacy of individuals. No individuals are exempted from this protection. The Act does provide, however, that parents may act on behalf of their minor children. This provision does not require parents to request information on their children, nor does it require that the Department disclose records concerning a minor to his parent where such disclosure would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy of the minor. Minors may gain access to all their records directly. It is recognized that minors may receive certain medical treatment without the consent of their parents. Therefore medical records of minors are considered more sensitive than medical records of other individuals. In order not to draw attention to any medical treatment without parental consent, all medical records will be treated in the same manner. Parents asking for medical records will be required to provide the responsible Department official with the name and address of the family physician or in the absence of a family physician of some other health professional. The medical record of the minor will be forwarded to such designated physician or health professional and, where appropriate, attention will be drawn to the fact that the minor has been given medical treatment without parental consent. The physician or health professional will be asked to consider the effect that disclosure of such information might have on the minor before making any disclosure of the record to the parent. In addition, the responsible Department official will make reasonable effort to inform the minor of such disclosure to a physician or health professional.

The Act provides that no agency shall disclose personal records, except pursuant to a written request by, or with the prior written consent of, the individual to whom the records pertain unless the disclosure falls within the confines of 11 specific conditions. (5 U.S.C. 552a(b)). The thrust of the section, entitled "Conditions of Disclosure", is to provide agencies with guidance on what disclosures may properly be made without affirmative action on the part of individuals. In fact, the individual will have no control over a disclosure under any of the circumstances listed therein. He will be told of the general uses which may be made, after the effective date of the Act, of the information which he supplies to the Government, including those uses designated as routine uses, as specifically identified in a notice of a system of records.

With certain exceptions, in order to apprise the individual of what disclosures have been made without his consent, the Act further provides inter alia that agencies shall make an accounting of disclosures and make such accounting available to the individual at his request. No accounting need be made for disclosures within the agency to those with a need for the information, or for disclosures which are required to be made under the Freedom of Information Act. An accounting must be made of disclosures of information for civil or criminal law enforcement activities but the individual need not be given access to such accounting.

The OMB guidelines, issued July 9, 1975, 40 FR 28948, would require, in addition to the accounting required by the statute, that an accounting be made of disclosures which are made at the request of, or with the consent of the individual (at p. 28955).

The Department believes that such accounting is unnecessary. The purposes for accounting of disclosures are:

1. To allow individuals to learn to whom records about themselves have been disclosed;

2. To provide a basis for subsequently advising recipients of records of any corrected records; and

3. To provide an audit trail for subsequent reviews of agency compliance with subsection (b) of the Act. The Department has determined that recording the instances of access by an individual to his own record would serve none of the above purposes, and does not believe that such a requirement reflects the intent of the Congress. While recording instances of disclosure to parties to whom the individual has given written consent might arguably be useful in achieving the second above-mentioned purpose, the individual can provide the Department with a list of those persons to whom records have been sent at his request or with his consent, if it is necessary to send notification of a correction of a record. Consequently, the Department does not believe that it should maintain an accounting of such authorized disclosures. To do otherwise, with respect to either access by the individual or authorized declosures, would work an unnecessary and undue burden on the Department. For example, the Social Security Administration alone annually discloses information from approximately 3.6 million records directly to the individuals involved and makes approximately 115 million other disclosures to authorized representatives of individuals. An illustration of the disclosures to authorized representatives include giving information to attorneys or other persons representing individuals in processing claims under the Social Security Act. The Department will, of course, adhere to the requirements of accounting for unconsented disclosures of personal information.

Under subsections (j) and (k) of the Privacy Act, agency heads may promulgate rules, in accordance with section 553 of the Administrative Procedure Act, exempting any system of records from certain provisions of the Privacy Act provided that the system falls within one of these subsections' categories of systems which are permitted to be exempted. As provided in section 553 of the Administrative Procedure Act, agency heads must publish a general notice of the proposed exemption and must include in that notice the specific provisions from which the system is proposed to be exempted and the rationale for the necessity of the exemption.

It is the policy of the Department to use this exemption authority sparingly. Requests for exemptions submitted to the Secretary must include full justification for exempting the system of records.

Those specific systems of records which the Secretary now proposes to exempt under the authority of subsections (j) and (k) of the Act are included in § 5b.9 of this Part. Additional exemptions may also be proposed in the near future.

The "Saint Elizabeths Hospital's Court-Ordered Forensic Investigatory Materials Files" is a system of records proposed to be exempted, as provided in subsection (j)(2) of the Act, from all subsections of the Act except subsections (b), (c) (1) and (2), (e)(4) (A) through (F), (e) (6), (7), (9), (10), and (11), and (i).

This system is maintained by the Division of Forensic Programs at Saint Elizabeths Hospital, an operating component of the Department, for the purpose of conducting Court-ordered examinations of alleged criminal offenders; to provide reports and testimony regarding the competency to stand trial and expert testimony concerning the validity of the insanity defense; and, to aid in the treatment of identified mental illness. It is maintained under the authority of section 212 of title 24, United States Code, and sections 301(a), 301(b), 301(d), and 302 of title 24, D.C. Code. The records of this system are those of past and present patients committed to Saint Elizabeths Hospital pursuant to the District of Columbia and United States Criminal Codes, and include those of alleged criminal offenders sent for pre-trial examination; persons committed after having been found not guilty by reason of insanity; and, mentally ill sentenced prisoners transferred from penal institutions.

The (j)(2) exemption is proposed for this system for three reasons. First, most of the material contained in this system of records is gathered from sources requiring complete confidentiality as a prerequisite for disclosure of information to Saint Elizabeths Hospital. If patients were given access to this information, Saint Elizabeths Hospital would no longer be able to acquire the information from its present sources. Second, the majority of this information is the result of investigatory efforts by local and federal law enforcement authorities. Such material is not generally discoverable by a defendant in criminal proceedings. Disclosure of this information to criminally committed patients would be violative of the Federal and local rules of criminal procedure. Third, Saint Elizabeths Hospital is not the primary source of any of the investigatory material contained in this system of records. Inasmuch as any permissible access to such material should be at the primary source, it is believed that it is inappropriate to disclose it directly to the Hospital's past and present patients. Saint Elizabeths Hospital is given access to the information contained in this system of records for the sole purpose of conducting informed investigations and to provide adequate psychiatric treatment pursuant to Court order. The Hospital cannot violate its extremely narrow mandate in this regard by jeopardizing the confidentiality of such law enforcement investigatory material.

The "Health and Demographic Surveys Conducted in Random Samples of the U.S. Population," the "Health Manpower Inventories and Surveys," and the "Vital Statistics for all Births, Deaths, marriages and Divorces Occuring in the U.S. During Each Year" are systems of records proposed to be exempted, as provided in subsection (k)(4) of the Act, from subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I) and (f) of the Act. These systems are maintained by the National Center for Health Statistics under the authority of sections 306(b)(1), 306(b)(1)(E), and 306(h) of Public Law 93-353, or the Health Services Research, Health Statistics, and Medical Libraries Act of 1974, respectively. Section 308(d) of that Act requires these systems of records to be maintained and used solely as statistical records. In addition to demographic and socioeconomic characteristics, these records contain individually identifiable information relating to incidence of illness and accidental injuries, prevalence of diseases and impairments, marital and childbearing histories, use of pre-natal care, educational statistics of individuals trained in specific health occupations, and vital statistics for births, deaths, marriages, and divorce. The information contained in these records is not used in whole or in part in making any determination about an identifiable individual, and as required by section 308(d) it is not published or released in a form which would identify the individual who supplies it or the individual who it is about.

The (k)(4) exemption is proposed for these systems of records to assure continued and uninterrupted activity in the area of health services statistical research and development. Currently, much of the information contained in these records is obtained through the voluntary cooperation of States, localities, hospitals, physicians, family planning agencies, and other organizations with the understanding that the National Center for Health Statistics will not disclose to anyone the personally identifiable information supplied by these sources. If these systems of records were not exempted from the access provisions of the Privacy Act, the continued cooperation to these sources would not be guaranteed, and therefore the health statistical activities and efforts of the National Center for Health Statistics would be severly disadvantaged.

Prior to the final adoption of the proposed regulation, consideration will be given to comments which are submitted in writing on or before September 15, 1975.

Comments should be addressed to the Director, Fair Information Practices Staff, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, 330 Independence Avenue, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20201. Comments received will be available for inspection in Room 4513, at the above address.

AUTHORITY: (5 U.S.C. 301, 5 U.S.C. 552a).

§ 5b.1 Purpose and scope.

This part implements the Privacy Act of 1974 (the Act) (5 U.S.C. 552a). It sets forth basic policy and procedures for the guidance of the general public and Department employees. All components of the Department, including the Office of the Secretary, advisory committees, and contractors performing agency functions (see 5b.3 infra) are to be governed by the provisions of this part. The policies and procedures set forth in this regulation may be supplemented by regulation as necessary by any component of the Department. Where other statutes mandate program procedures which are inconsistent with procedures set forth herein, such supplementary regulations shall adopt such procedures as are necessary to comply with such other statutes, notwithstanding the fact that they may be inconsistent with this Part. In addition, supplementary regulations may deviate from this regulation for the purpose of imposing stricter procedures for the protection of individual privacy.

§ 5b.2 Policy.

It is the general policy of the Department to protect the privacy of individuals to the fullest extent possible while nonetheless permitting the exchange of personal information on individuals which is required to fulfill the Department's administrative and program responsibilities and its responsibility for providing information which the general public is entitled to have under the Freedom of Information Act. The Freedom of Information regulation is set forth in Part 5 of this Title.

§ 5b.3 Definitions.

(a) Agency. As used in the Act, Agency means the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

(b) Department. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare includes all offices, components, and subdivisions thereof. It further includes:

(1) Certain non-federal components which operate as the Department's agents for purposes of carrying out Federal functions, such as intermediaries and carriers performing functions under contracts and agreements entered into pursuant to section 1816 and 1842 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395h and 1395u);

(2) Advisory committees and councils within the meaning of the Federal Advisory Committee Act which provide advice to (i) any official or component of the Department or (ii) the President and for which the Department has been delegated responsibility for providing services;

(3) Contractors performing a Department-mental function required by statute or Executive Order who maintain a system of records in connection therewith, for or on behalf of the Department where the contract is entered into or amended subsequent to September 27, 1975, and contains requirements that the Act and this regulation be complied with by the contractor.

It does not include grantees, including State and local governments or subdivisions thereof administering federally funded programs such as State Welfare, Rehabilitation, or Education agencies.

(c) Secretary. Secretary means the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, or his designee.

(d) Individual. Individual means a living person who is a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence. It does not include persons such as sole proprietorships, partnerships, or corporations. A business firm which is identified by the name of one or more persons is not an individual within the meaning of the Act.

(e) Record. Record means any item, collection, or grouping of information about an individual that is maintained by the Department, including, but not limited to, such individual's education, financial transactions, medical history, and criminal or employment history and that contains his name, or an identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual, such as a finger or voice print or a photograph. When used in this Part, record means only a record which is a part of a system of records.

(f) Systems of records. A system of records means any group of records under the control of the Department from which information about an individual is retrieved by a personal identifier such as the name of the individual, number, symbol or other unique retriever assigned to an individual. Single records or groups of records which contain personal information on an identifiable individual but which are not retrieved by a personal identifier are not part of a system of records. Papers maintained by individual employees of the Department which are prepared, maintained, or discarded in the discretion of the employee and not subject to the Federal Records Act (44 U.S.C. 2901) are not part of a system of records: Provided, That such personal papers are not used by the employee or the Department to determine the rights, benefits, or privileges of other individuals.

(g) Maintain.

(1) When used in connection with the term "record" maintain means maintain, collect, use, or disseminate.

(2) When used in connection with the term "system of records" maintain means have control over or responsibility for such system of records.

(h) Statistical Record. A statistical record is a record in a system of records maintained for statistical research or reporting purposes only and not used in whole or in part in making determinations about identifiable individuals.

(i) Routine use. A routine use means the disclosure outside the Department of a record, or information contained in a record, for a purpose which is compatible with the purpose for which the information in the record was collected. It includes disclosures required to be made by statute, other than the Freedom of Information Act (5 U.S.C. 552). It does not include disclosures listed at § 5b.7(a) (1), (2) and (4)–(11), or disclosures made with the consent of, or at the request of, the subject individual.

(j) Subject individual. Subject individual means that individual to whom information contained in a record pertains.

(k) Disclosure. Disclosure means the release of individually identifiable information to the subject individual, to employees of the Department, or to persons outside the Department.

(l) Responsible department official. Responsible Department Official is that officer who is listed in a notice of a system of records as the system manager for a given system of records or another person listed in the notice of systems of records to whom requests may be made.

§ 5b.4 Maintenance of personal information.

(a) No information shall be maintained in a system of records of the Department unless:

(1) It is relevant and necessary to accomplish a Departmental function, required to be accomplished by statute or Executive Order;

(2) It is collected to the greatest extent practicable from the subject individual when the information may result in a determination about an individual's rights, benefits or privileges under Federal programs; and

(3) The individual supplying the information is fully informed of the authority for and purpose of collecting the information (including whether the supplying of the information is mandatory or voluntary, how the information supplied may be used including routine uses, what effect his refusal to supply the information may have on him), and if the information is not required to be supplied by the individual, he consents to supplying the information.

(b) No information shall be maintained in a system of records which describes how an individual exercises rights guaranteed by the First Amendment unless expressly authorized (1) by statute, or (2) by the individual about whom the record is maintained, or unless pertinent to and within the scope of an authorized law enforcement activity.

(c) Notices of systems of records shall be published as prescribed in Appendix A, Item 1.

§ 5b.5 Procedures for requesting information contained in a system of records.

(a) Determining whether a system of records has information on an individual:

(1) Any individual may request the responsible Department official to inform him whether that system contains information on himself. The individual may at the same time request a copy of any information which is located in the system of records by using the procedures in paragraph (b) of this section. The responsible Department official shall normally notify an individual whether the system does contain information on the individual upon verification of the individual's identity as required under paragraph (a)(5)(i)(A) or (B) of this section. Where the mere disclosure of the fact that a system of records contains such information on the subject individual would be a clearly unwarranted invasion of privacy if disclosed to the wrong person, the Department official shall require further verification of the identity of the individual as provided in paragraph (a)(5)(i)(C) of this section.

(2) Requesters shall address separate requests to the responsible Department official and specify which system of records he wishes to have searched. Where an individual makes a request in person, he may leave with a Department employee requests for searches of records in other locations or under the control of other components of the Department, provided that such other requests are addressed to the appropriate responsible Department official. Employees receiving such requests shall forward them to the responsible Department official. If the requester has properly identified himself in accordance with paragraph (a)(5) of this section the employee receiving the request shall mark on the request that he has verified the identity of the requester and by what means. Any such forwarded requests shall be acknowledged within 10 working days of receipt by the responsible Department official.

(3) When a request is made in person, access to the subject individual's records, if found in the system of records specified by the individual, shall generally be granted immediately. If it is not possible to grant access, because of the number of requests being handled, breakdown of equipment, shortage of personnel, or otherwise, the requester shall be told when he may reasonably expect to gain access to the information.

(4) Times and places. Unless a notice of a system of records specifies otherwise, requests for access and/or disclosure may normally be made during regular business hours Monday through Friday except Federal holidays. An individual may apply personally at any listed location to request disclosure, subject to paragraph (a)(3) of this section.

(5) Verification of identity—(i) Requests in person. (A) A subject individual who appears in person at a specific location for disclosure of records relating to him shall disclose his name, current address, and at least one piece of tangible identification such as driver's license, passport, alien or voter registration card or union card. Identification papers with current photographs are preferred but not required. If a subject individual has no identification but is personally known to a Department employee, such employee shall make a written record verifying the subject individual's identity.

(B) Where the subject individual has no identification papers, the responsible Department official shall require that the subject individual certify in writing that he is the individual who he claims to be and that he understands that the knowing and willful request or acquisition of records concerning an individual under false pretenses is a criminal offense subject to a $5,000 fine.

(C) Under certain circumstances the identification provided under paragraph (a)(5)(i)(A) and (B) of this section may not be sufficient. Such circumstances include but are not limited to:

(1) The sensitive nature of records to be disclosed such as medical records;

(2) The inability of the responsible Department official to distinguish between records in the system of records on individuals with the same name; or

(3) The apparent discrepancy of the information with the identity of the individual, such as where the individual appears to be much younger than the individual whose record is in the system of records.

When any such circumstance exists, the responsible Department official shall solicit further information from the individual. He shall solicit only the minimum amount of information required to ensure that disclosure will be properly made. The information solicited shall parallel the information already contained in the system of records. Examples might be years of attendance at a particular educational institution, rank attained in the uniformed services, date and/or place of birth, names of parents, specific times treated for a particular medical situation, or an occupation.

(D) No verification of identity shall be required where the record is one which is required to be disclosed under the Freedom of Information Act.

(ii) Aliases. Where an individual is seeking to obtain information about himself which may be retrieved by a different name or identifier than his current name or identifier, he shall be required to produce evidence, similar to that required in paragraph (a)(5)(i) to verify that he is the person whose record he seeks.

(iii) Requests by mail. Written requests shall contain the full name, current address and signature of the individual. They shall also include a minimum of one piece of information which the appropriate notice indicates should be in the system to distinguish the requester's records from other individuals. Examples might be years of attendance at a particular educational institution, rank attained in the uniformed services, date and place of birth, names of parents, specific times treated for a particular medical situation, or an occupation. Where requests do not contain sufficient information to verify the identity of the individual requesting the information, the responsible Department official shall inform the requester in writing that no action can be taken without the submission and receipt of further information and he shall inform the requester what further information may be necessary to process the request.

(iv) Persons accompanying individual. When an individual makes a personal request for access to his record and is accompanied by another person, the responsible official shall ask the individual for a signed statement authorizing disclosure of or discussion of personal records in the presence of such person.

(v) Parents and legal guardians. Parents of minor children and legal guardians of legally incompetent individuals shall verify their own identification in the manner described above as well as their relationship to the individual whose record is sought. A copy of the child's birth certificate or court order shall be presented.

(vi) Consent to disclose information on subject individuals to other persons. Explicit consent by individuals for disclosure of their records to other persons may occur under several different circumstances. For example:

(A) An individual may give consent at the time that the information is collected for disclosures for specific purposes or to specific persons.

(B) An individual may give consent for disclosure of his records to a specific person.

(C) An individual may request the Department to provide all or a portion of a specific record for submission to another.

In each case the consent shall be in writing and specific with respect to whom the record may be released (or specific class such as providers of medical services), what information may be released, and if applicable, during what time frame (i.e. during the school year, while the individual is out of the country, whenever the individual is receiving specific services). A blanket consent to release all information to unspecified persons will not be honored. Verification of the individual and where applicable of the party to whom the record is to be released shall be made in accordance with paragraph (a)(5) of this section. The consent document shall be retained for a period of at least two years; except that if such document is used as a means of accounting for the disclosure, it shall be retained as provided in § 5b.7(b).

(vii) Signature. Where an individual is unable to sign his name wherever required by this part, he shall make his mark and have the mark verified in writing by two additional persons.

(b) Disclosure of records to individual.

(1) An individual is entitled to review and/or copy any record relating to him unless such record is exempt pursuant to § 5b.9 or is governed by the provisions of paragraph (c) of this section. He is also entitled to be accompanied at his request by another individual of his choice, subject to the provisions of paragraph (a)(5)(v).

(2) Any request made in person by an individual shall be processed immediately insofar as is feasible at the time of the request. (See paragraph (a)(3) of this section). If it is not possible to provide the individual with the information at such time, the individual shall be given a full explanation of why the request cannot be processed at that time and when the individual can reasonably expect the information will be available to him.

(3) Requests for information by mail shall be processed as promptly as possible. If a request cannot be processed within 10 working days, an interim response shall be made with a complete explanation why the request has not been processed and when the individual may expect a full response.

(c) Special procedures for medical records of individuals—(1) General Policy. An individual in general has a right to access his medical records as well as other records concerning him maintained by the Department. The Act permits agencies to establish special procedures for the disclosure of medical records. It is not possible for one procedure to meet the requirements of each component of the Department, inasmuch as medical records are maintained in different types of systems of records and for a wide variety of purposes. Therefore, it is expected that if the procedure set forth below is not suitable for specific systems of records of Department programs, substitute procedures will be promulgated pursuant to § 5b.1. In the absence of any supplementation of this Subsection, responsible Department officials may in their discretion, utilize the procedure set forth below, or provide the individual direct access to his medical record.

(2) Procedure for disclosure of medical records in general. Except as provided in paragraph (d) of this section the following procedures shall govern the disclosure of medical records to an individual. (i) If a physician is available at the site of access the responsible Department official shall consult with such physician to determine whether disclosure of the record to the subject individual might have an adverse effect on such individual. If it is determined that disclosure is not likely to have an adverse effect on the subject individual, the record shall be disclosed to him. If it is determined that disclosure might have an adverse effect on the subject individual, the record shall not be disclosed directly to him. He shall be requested to designate, in writing a representative to whom the record shall be disclosed. Such representative may be a physician, other health professional, a member of the subject individual's family, a member of the clergy, or other responsible person who would be willing to review the record and discuss it with the subject individual.

(ii) If no medical officer is available at the location of the system of record, the responsible Department official shall determine to the best of his ability whether the disclosure to the subject individual is likely to have an adverse effect on the subject individual. If he determines that disclosure will not be likely to have an adverse effect on the individual, he shall disclose the record to the individual. If he determines that disclosure might have an adverse effect on the subject individual, or if the responsible Department official does not believe himself qualified to make such a determination, the subject individual shall be requested to designate, in writing, a representative to whom the record shall be disclosed. Such representative may be a medical practitioner, a member of the subject individual's family, a member of the clergy, or other person who would be willing to review the record and inform the subject individual of its contents at the representative's discretion. In making such a determination, the responsible Department official may consult with other officials in the Department.

(iii) In any case, where a responsible Department official does not disclose the record to the subject individual, he shall document in writing his reason(s) for requesting the individual to designate a representative and how he disclosed the medical record to the representative.

(3) Procedures for disclosure of medical records of minors. (i) A minor may be granted access to his own medical record in accordance with the provisions of paragraph (c)(2) of this section.

(ii) In order to protect the privacy of a minor, no individual other than the minor shall be granted direct access to a minor's medical record. A parent or guardian authorized to act on behalf of a minor who asks for his child's medical record will be requested to designate, in writing, a family physician or other health professional to whom the minor's medical record may be sent. If the record contains information the disclosure of which would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of the personal privacy of the minor, such information shall be brought to the attention of the physician or health professional. He shall be requested to consider the effect that disclosure of such information to the parent would have on the minor. The responsible Department official shall make a reasonable effort to inform the minor that the medical record has been disclosed and the name and address of the recipient.

§ 5b.6 Requests for the correction or amendment of record.

(a) How made. Requests for correction or amendment of any record shall be made in writing to the responsible Department official. Any request shall specify:

(1) What record(s) or portions thereof are sought to be affected;

(2) Whether a deletion or substitution or addition of other information is sought;

(3) Why the Department record is inaccurate or incorrect;

(4) Evidence supporting the request.

(b) Department review. (1) Within 10 working days of the receipt of a request under (a) of this section, the responsible Department official shall acknowledge the request. If the responsible Department official agrees that the record should be corrected or amended, he shall cause the record to be so corrected or amended as promptly as possible and inform the individual of his action. Until the record is corrected or amended, no disclosure shall be made of the record to be amended nor shall any determination with respect to a right, benefit or privilege be made on the basis of the file, unless failure to make any such disclosure or determination would otherwise work to the detriment of the individual.

(2) If the official determines that the disputed material is not relevant or necessary for the purpose for which it was obtained, he shall cause the material to be deleted without regard to its accuracy.

(3) If the official does not deem it appropriate to correct or amend a record or any portion thereof, he shall promptly notify the requester of his refusal to comply with the request. The notification shall:

(i) Set forth the reasons for not correcting or amending the record;

(ii) Inform the requester that he may seek an appeal of such refusal; and

(iii) Identify the appropriate appeal authority by name, title and business address. (See paragraph (c) of this section).

(4) Where the records are subject to another agency's regulations, e.g. Civil Service Commission, Federal Bureau of Investigation, the request shall be submitted to such agency for processing.

(c) Appeals of refusals to correct or amend a record. (1) Appeal of a refusal to correct or amend a record pursuant to paragraph (b) of this section shall be requested in writing. Appeal shall be made to the appeal authorities listed below, or their designees, or successors in function:

(i) Assistant Secretary for Administration and Management for records of the Office of the Secretary, or where the initial refusal to amend or correct was made by another appeal authority. An initial refusal by the Assistant Secretary for Administration and Management shall be appealed to the Under Secretary.

(ii) Assistant Secretary for Health for records of the Public Health Service including Office of Assistant Secretary for Health; Health Resources Administration; Health Services Administration; Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration; Center for Disease Control; National Institutes of Health; and Food and Drug Administration.

(iii) Assistant Secretary for Education for the records of the Office of Assistant Secretary for Education, National Center for Educational Statistics, National Institute of Education and Office of Education.

(iv) Assistant Secretary for Human Development for the records of the Office of Human Development.

(v) Commissioner of Social Security for the records of the Social Security Administration.

(vi) Administrator, Social and Rehabilitation Service for the records of the Social and Rehabilitation Service.

Any delegation of authority by any of the above appeal authorities shall be in writing and shall be published in Appendix C of this Part. Delegations shall not be made to an official below the rank of Bureau Head or equivalent. No delegation shall be made to an official who is responsible for making the initial review.

(2) The appeal authority shall review the record, the request to correct or amend, the notification of refusal, and any other pertinent data. He need not conduct an independent investigation unless he deems such investigation appropriate. No hearing is required. The appeal authority will not normally discuss the appeal with the requester; however, the request for appeal may contain whatever information the requester deems appropriate to the appeal. Appeals must be completed within 30 working days from receipt by the appeal authority unless an extension, not to exceed 30 additional working days, is made for good cause by the appeal authority. Priority in appeal shall be given to those appeals where a determination on a right, benefit, or privilege under a Federal program on the basis of the disputed record is pending. The requester will be informed of any such extension of time and the reasons therefor.

(3) If the appeal authority agrees with the requester that the record should be corrected or amended, he shall cause the record to be so corrected or amended as promptly as possible.

(4) The appeal authority shall not deny the appeal in whole or in part without consultation with the Office of General Counsel. A denial shall be in writing and inform the requester that:

(i) He has a right to judicial review; and

(ii) He may submit a concise statement of disagreement with the Department's action which will be kept with the record and released with that record whenever it is disclosed. Such statement shall be sent to the responsible Department official to be associated with the record.

§ 5b.7 Disclosure of records to persons other than the subject individual.

(a) Generally, no record in a system of records under the control of the Department will be released to anyone other than the individual to whom it pertains, except at his request or with his consent. Certain disclosures provided in this section may be made without the consent of the individual. Such a disclosure may be:

(1) To those officers and employees of the Department who have a need for the record in the performance of their duties. The responsible Department official shall determine what constitutes a legitimate need, and may in his discretion refuse to disclose the record.

(2) Required under the Freedom of Information Act and the Department Regulation in 45 CFR Part 5.

(3) For a routine use as defined in § 5b.3(i). Routine uses will be listed in any notice of a system of records. Certain routine uses may be applicable to more than one system of records and published in Appendix B. Notices may contain references to any such routine uses in advising the public of what uses may be made of records. The Appendix shall be published with any compendium of notices of systems of records.

(4) To the Bureau of the Census for purposes of planning or carrying out a census or survey or related activity pursuant to the provisions of title 13 U.S.C.;

(5) To a recipient who has provided the agency with advance adequate written assurance that the record will be used solely as a statistical research or reporting record, and the record is to be transferred in a form that is not individually identifiable;

(6) To the National Archives of the United States as a record which has sufficient historical or other value to warrant its continued preservation by the United States Government, or for evaluation by the Administrator of General Services or his designee to determine whether the record has such value;

(7) To another agency or to an instrumentality of any governmental jurisdiction within or under the control of the United States for a civil or criminal law enforcement activity if the activity is authorized by law, and if the head of the agency or instrumentality has made a written request to the agency which maintains the record specifying the particular portion desired and the law enforcement activity for which the record is sought;

(8) To a person pursuant to a showing of compelling circumstances affecting the health or safety of an individual if upon such disclosure notification is transmitted to the last known address of such individual;

(9) To either House of Congress, or, to the extent of matter within its jurisdiction, any committee or subcommittee thereof, any joint committee of Congress or subcommittee of any such joint committee;

(10) To the Comptroller General, or any of his authorized representatives, in the course of the performance of the duties of the General Accounting Office; or

(11) Pursuant to the order of a court of competent jurisdiction.

(b) Accounting for disclosure. An accounting of all disclosures of personal records in a system of records other than those made (1) under paragraph 7(a)(1) and (2) of this section; (2) to the subject individual directly, or (3) at the request of, or with the consent of the subject individual, shall be kept in accordance with the provisions of Appendix A, Item 4. An individual is entitled to request and receive access to the accounting of disclosures of records concerning him. Procedures for requesting information in Systems of Records § 5b.5 shall be utilized for such purposes.

§ 5b.8 Fees.

(a) Policy. Where applicable, fees for copying records shall be made in accordance with the schedule set forth in this subsection. Fees may only be charged where an individual has requested that a copy be made. No fee may be charged for making a search of the system of records whether the search is manual, mechanical, or electronic. Where a copy of the record must be made in order to provide access to the record (i.e. computer printout where no screen reading is available), the copy shall be made available to the individual without cost. Where a medical record is made available to a person designated by the individual under the provisions of § 5b.5(c), no fee will be charged.

(b) Fee schedule. The fee schedule for the Department is as follows:

(1) Copying of records susceptible to photocopying—$.10 per page.

(2) Copying records not susceptible to photocopying (i.e., punch cards or magnetic tapes)—at actual cost to be

(3) No charge will be made if the total amount of copying from one system of records does not exceed $25.

(c) Procedures. When a fee is to be assessed, the individual shall be notified prior to the processing of duplication, and be given an opportunity to amend his request. Payment shall be made by check or money order made payable to the Department. The responsible Department official shall require advance deposit where the total amount exceeds $50.

§ 5b.9 Exemptions.

(a) General policy. The Act permits certain specific systems of records to be exempt from some of the requirements of the Act. Unless delegated in writing the Secretary reserves the authority to make determinations on exemptions. It is the policy of the Department to exercise authority to exempt systems of records only in compelling cases. Requests for exemptions will be made to the Secretary with a full justification for exempting the system of records.

(b) Systems of records exempted. (1) As provided in subsection (j)(2) of the Act, the Saint Elizabeths Hospital's Court-Ordered "Forensic Investigatory Materials Files", a system of records, is exempt from all subsections of the Act except subsections (b), (c)(1) and (2), (e)(4)(A) through (F), (e)(6), (7), (9), (10), and (11), and (i) which govern conditions of disclosing records contained in a system of records and criminal penalties for willful and knowing disclosure of records which are prohibited from disclosure under 552a; and which require each agency, with respect to each system of records under its control, to: make and keep an accounting of disclosures; annually publish the existence and character of the system of records; assure that records are accurate and relevant for agency purposes prior to disseminating any record about an individual; maintain no record describing how an individual exercises First Amendment rights; establish rules of conduct for persons maintaining systems of records; and, to establish safeguards to insure the security and confidentiality of records. This system of records is maintained under the authority of section 212 of title 24, United States Code, in order to permit the Division of Forensic Programs to conduct Court-ordered examinations of alleged criminal offenders; to provide reports and testimony regarding competency to stand trial and expert testimony concerning the validity of the insanity defense; and, to aid in the treatment of an identified mental illness.

(2) As provided in subsection (k)(4) of the Act, the following systems of records are exempt from subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H), and (I) and (f) of the Act which require each agency, with respect to each system of records under its control, to: make accountings of disclosures available to individuals named in records at their request; provide access to records; maintain in its records only such information about individuals which is relevant and necessary to accomplish an agency purpose; annually publish access procedures and categories of sources of records in the system; and, to promulgate rules establishing procedures whereby individuals can be notified of information in systems of records pertaining to the individual, requirements for verification of the identity of individuals requesting access to records, for reviewing requests for amending an individual's record, and procedures for establishing fees.

(i) The Health and Demographic Surveys Conduct in Random Samples of the U.S. Population, a system of records authorized under section 306(b)(1) of Public Law 93–353, the "Health Services Research, Health Statistics, and Medical Libraries Act of 1974," and required under section 308(d) of that Act to be maintained and used solely as statistical records.

(ii) The Health Manpower Inventories and Surveys, a system of records authorized under section 306(b)(1)(E) of Public Law 93–353, the "Health Services Research, Health Statistics, and Medical Libraries Act of 1974," and required under section 308(d) of that Act to be maintained and used solely as statistical records.

(iii) The Vital Statistics for all Births, Deaths, Fetal Deaths, Marriages and Divorces Occurring in the U.S. during each year, a system of records authorized under section 306(h) of Public Law 93–353, the "Health Services Research, Health Statistics, and Medical Libraries Act of 1974," and required under section 308(d) of that Act to be maintained and used solely as statistical records.

NOTE: The following material is designed to inform the public on basics concerning internal procedures to be established. Further discussion on internal procedures will be issued in appropriate staff manuals.

APPENDIX A

Item
1. Standards for Accuracy.
2. Publication of the Annual Notice of System of Records.
3. Standards for Physical Safeguards of Systems of Records.
4. Accounting of Certain Disclosures.
5. Standards of Conduct.
6. Reports Required Under the Privacy Act.

Item 1—Standards for accuracy. Any record which is used to make a determination about an individual's rights, benefits, or privileges under Federal programs must be maintained accurately. Provision shall be made prior to the making of any such determination to examine the record to ensure that it is as accurate, relevant, timely and complete as is reasonably necessary to ensure fairness to the individual. The responsible Department official shall update the record to the extent possible, by seeking new information in the same manner as the original information was obtained provided it was obtained in accordance with the Act and this Part.

Item 2—Publication of the annual notice of systems of records. (a) A public notice is required to be published for each system of records in operation on or before September 27, 1975. Such notice shall annually be republished, including any revisions, on or before August 30 of each year. A public notice is also required for each new system of records before the system becomes operational. Each change in a system which has the effect of expanding the categories of records maintained, the categories of individuals on whom records are maintained, or the potential recipients of the information, shall be published in a revised public notice before the change takes effect. Also, each change that alters the procedures by which individuals exercise their rights under the Act shall be published in a revised notice before the change takes effect.

(b) Contents of the notice.

The Department shall:

(1) Identify the system with a descriptive name.

(2) Specify each city, town, or other site at which a system of records is located or may be accessed. Each location shall be listed for a geographically dispersed system. A change in the list of locations need not be published in a revised public notice, unless it alters individuals' access or amendment rights. For certain systems of records such as medical records maintained at numerous locations, the Department may publish a single list of field stations or refer in the general notice of a generally available list of the locations.

(3) Identify the categories of individuals on whom records are maintained in the system. The description shall be sufficiently clear to enable an individual to determine if information pertaining to him might be contained in the system.

(4) Identify the authority to maintain or modify the system.

(5) Identify and describe the categories of records contained in the system using clear and concise terminology. If the categories of records are modified a change notice will be required.

(6) Identify and describe each routine use of the records contained in the system, including the categories of users and the purpose of such use. When additional agencies are proposed as routine uses a revised public notice must be published.

(7) Describe the type of storage being used for records.

(8) Describe how records are indexed.

(9) Describe how records are safeguarded or access controlled.

(10) Describe how long records are maintained and record disposal method. The notice shall indicate if and when the records are transferred to a Federal Records Center or the Archives and whether the records are on a records retention schedule and in what manner they may be destroyed. This description shall not describe security safeguards in such detail as to increase the potential risk of unauthorized access to records.

(11) Supply the title and business address of the responsible Department official. For geographically dispersed systems, the title and address of the responsible official at each location shall be listed in addition to the Department official responsible for the entire system of records. Each change in the address to which individuals may present themselves to inquire whether they are the subject of a record in the system or to seek access to a record or in the address to which individuals may mail inquiries shall be published in a revised public notice unless the responsible Department official is ensured that inquiries are dealt with in a timely manner.

(12) Specify the address of the Department office to which inquiries should be addressed or address(es) of the location(s) at which the individual may present a request in person if different from the list in subsection (11) of officials responsible for the system of records. The description shall also specify the information that must be supplied by the individual in order to determine whether the system contains a record pertaining to him.

(13) Describe the manner in which he can contest records content.

(14) Identify the categories of sources of records in the system. For systems of records which contain information obtained from sources other than the individual to whom the records pertain, the notice shall indicate the types of sources used such as previous employers, financial or educational institutions, or peer group reviewers. The description shall indicate if the individual to whom the records pertain is a source of information on the record.

Item 3—Standards for the physical safeguards of records systems. (a) Each system manager shall establish administrative, technical, and physical controls consistent with Departmental guidelines published in the General Administration Manual and, where applicable, the ADP Systems Manual to ensure the protection of records systems from unauthorized access or disclosure and from physical damage or destruction. The controls instituted shall be proportional to the degree of sensitivity of the records but, at a minimum, must insure that records are enclosed in a manner to protect them from public view, that the area in which the records are stored is supervised during all business hours to prevent unauthorized personnel from entering the area or obtaining access to the records, and that the records are inaccessible outside of business hours. Automated systems shall comply with the security guidelines promulgated by the National Bureau of Standards, as supplemented by Departmental standards contained in Information Processing Standards Publication 3.

(b) Each system manager shall adopt access restrictions to insure that only those individuals within the agency who have a need to have access to the records for the performance of their duties have access to them. Procedures shall also be adopted to prevent accidental access to, dissemination of, of modification of records.

Item 4—Accounting of certain disclosures. (a) Except for disclosures (1) within the Department; (2) required by the Freedom of Information Act; (3) directly to the subject individual; or (4) at the request or with the consent of the subject individual; the Department shall keep an accurate accounting of the date, nature and purpose of each disclosure of a record to any person or to another agency and the name and address of the person or agency to whom the disclosure is made. The Department need not make a notation on a single document of every disclosure of a particular record. The method used shall be adequate to retrieve a full accounting of disclosures of specific records or portions thereof.

(b) Where a disclosure may consist of a continuing exchange between the Department and another agency over a period of time, as in an investigation of criminal activity, or a continuing research project it is sufficient to make a general notation that, as of a specified date, such contact was initiated and will be maintained until the conclusion of the case or project. The Department shall retain the accounting made for at least five years or the life of the record, whichever is longer, after the disclosure for which the accounting is made. Except for disclosures made under § 5b.7(a)(7), the Department shall make the accounting available to the subject individual at his request.

Item 5—Standards of Conduct. (a) General. All employees are required to be aware of their responsibilities under the Privacy Act of 1974. Regulations implementing the Act are set forth in 45 CFR 5b. Instruction on the requirements of the Act and regulation shall be provided to all new employees of the Department. In addition, supervisors shall be responsible for assuring that employees who are working with systems of records or who undertake new duties which require the use of systems of records containing personal information on individuals are fully informed of their responsibilities. Supervisors shall also be responsible for assuring that all employees who work with such systems of records are periodically, but at least once annually, reminded of the requirements of the Act and are advised of any new provisions or interpretations of the Act.

(b) Penalties. (1) All employees must guard against improper disclosure of personal information which is governed by the Privacy Act of 1974 (5 U.S.C. 552a). Because of the serious consequences of improper invasions of personal privacy, employees may be subject to disciplinary action and criminal prosecution for knowing and willful violations of the Act and regulations. In addition, employees may also be subject to disciplinary action for unknowing or unwillful violations, where the employee had notice of the provisions of the Act and regulations and failed to inform himself sufficiently or to conduct himself in accordance with the requirements to avoid violations.

(2) The Department may be subjected to civil liability for the following actions undertaken by its employees:

(a) Making a determination under subsection 5b.6 of this section not to amend an individual's record in accordance with his request, or failing to make such review in conformity with that subsection;

(b) Refusing to comply with an individual's request for access to information concerning him;

(c) Failing to maintain any record concerning any individual with such accuracy, relevance, timeliness, and completeness as is necessary to assure fairness in any determination relating to the qualifications, character, rights, or opportunities of, or benefits to the individual that may be made on the basis of such a record, and consequently a determination is made which is adverse to the individual; or

(d) Failing to comply with any other provision of the Act or any rule promulgated thereunder, in such a way as to have an adverse effect on an individual.

(3) An employee may be personally subject to criminal liability as set forth below:

(a) Any officer or employee of an agency, who by virtue of his employment or official position, has possession of, or access to, agency records which contain individually identifiable information the disclosure of which is prohibited by the Act or by rules or regulations established thereunder, and who, knowing that disclosure of the specific material is so prohibited, willfully discloses the material in any manner to any person or agency not entitled to receive it, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $5,000.

(b) Any officer or employee of any agency who willfully maintains a system of records without meeting the notice requirements (See Item 2 of this Appendix) shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than $5,000.

(c) Rules Governing Employees Not Working With Systems of Records. Employees whose duties do not involve working with systems of records will not generally release to any person, without specific authorization from their supervisors, information concerning employees or other individuals in records to which they may have access by reason of their official duties. Notwithstanding the above, the following information concerning Federal employees is public information and no further authorization is necessary for disclosure:

(1) Name and title of individual.

(2) Grade classification or equivalent and annual rate of salary.

(3) Position description.

(4) Location of duty station, including room number and telephone number.

In addition, employees may disclose records which are listed in the Department's Freedom of Information Regulation as being available to the public. Requests for other information will be referred to the responsible Department official. This does not preclude employees from releasing information known to them personally, and without resort to a record, to official investigators of Federal agencies for official purposes such as suitability checks, Equal Employment Opportunity investigations, adverse action proceedings, grievance proceedings, etc.

(d) Rules governing employees whose duties require use or reference to systems of records. Employees whose official duties require that they use, refer to, maintain, service, or otherwise deal with systems of records (hereinafter referred to as "Systems Employees") are governed by the general provisions. In addition, extra precautions are required and systems employees are held to higher standards of conduct.

(1) Systems Employees shall:

(a) Be fully informed with respect to their responsibilities under the Act;

(b) Be alert to possible misuses of the system and report to their supervisors any potential or actual use of the system which they believe is not in compliance with the Act and regulations;

(c) Ensure that any disclosure made within the Department is in fact made to a Department employee and that such employee has a legitimate need to know the information in the course of his official duties;

(d) Ensure that records required by the Act and regulations (see Item 1 of this Appendix) are maintained accurately;

(e) Consuit with a supervisor prior to taking any action where they are in doubt whether such action is in conformance with the Act and regulations.

(2) Systems Employees shall not:

(a) Release in any form personal information about an individual from a system of records except (1) with the consent and request of the individual to whom it pertains (2) where its disclosure is permitted under § 5b.7 of the regulation.

(b) Permit unauthorized persons to be present in controlled areas. Any unauthorized persons observed in controlled areas shall be reported to a supervisor or to the guard force.

(c) Knowingly or willfully take action which might subject the Department to civil liability. (See paragraph (b)(2).)

(d) Make any arrangements for the design development, or operation of any system of records without assuring that the system can be maintained in accordance with the Act and regulations.

(e) Contracting officers. In addition to any applicable provisions set forth above, those employees whose official duties involve entering into contracts on behalf of the Department shall also be governed by the following provisions:

(1) Contracts for design, or development of systems and equipment. No contract for the design or development of a system of records, or for equipment which will be used to store, service or maintain a system of records shall be entered into unless the contracting officer has reasonably ensured that the product to be purchased is capable of being used without violation of the Act or regulations. Special attention shall be given to provision of physical safeguards.

(2) Contracts for the operation of systems of records. A review by the Contracting Officer, in conjunction with other officials whom he feels appropriate, of all proposed contracts providing for the operation of systems of records shall be made prior to execution of the contracts to determine whether operation of the system of records is for the purpose of accomplishing a Department function. If a determination is made that the operation of the system is to accomplish a Department function, the contracting officer shall be responsible for including in the contract appropriate provisions to apply the provisions of the Act and regulations to the system, including prohibitions against improper release by the contractor, his employees, or agents.

(3) Other service contracts. Contracting officers entering into general service contracts shall be responsible for determining the appropriateness of including provisions in the contract to insure against potential misuse (inadvertent or otherwise) by employees or agents of the contractor.

(f) Rules Governing Responsible Department Officials. In addition to the requirements for Systems Employees, supra, responsible Department officials shall:

(1) respond to all requests for access, disclosure, or amendment of records in a timely fashion in accordance with the Act and regulation;

(2) ensure that any amendment of records is made accurately and in a timely fashion;

(3) ensure that corrections are communicated to all persons whom the accounting records show have received copies of the record prior to the amendments; and

(4) assure that any statement of disagreement is associated promptly with the disputed record, and

(a) promptly transmit a copy of the statement to all persons whom the accounting records show have received a copy of the disputed record, and

(b) assure that the statement accompanies any future disclosure.

Item 6—Reports required under the Privacy Act. Each responsible Department official and each appeal authority shall keep such records as may be required in order to compile the reports required under the Act. In order to meet the OMB deadline for annual reports, such officials shall submit their reports to the Assistant Secretary for Administration and Management by March 15 of each year. Statistics shall be maintained on forms designated for such purpose by the National Archives and Record Service unless specific approval has been given to use other forms. In addition to the required statistics, such officials may, in their discretion, maintain and submit other records which they believe would be useful in the evaluation of the Department's implementation of the Act.

Reports must be submitted to the Assistant Secretary for Administration and Management whenever a new system of records is proposed to be established or whenever there is a change in an existing system of records. Other reports shall be submitted at the direction of the Assistant Secretary for Administration and Management.

PUBLIC ASSISTANCE

Deferral of Claims for Federal Financial Participation

Notice is hereby given that the regulations set forth in tentative form below are proposed by the Acting Administrator, Social and Rehabilitation Service, with the approval of the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare.

The purpose of the proposed regulations is to establish a uniform system whereby all HEW Regional Offices will apply similar criteria and procedures in identifying and processing claims for Federal financial participation under the public assistance titles of the Social Security Act, where the allowability of the claim is subject to question. The regulations also specify that it is the State's obligation to establish to the satisfaction of the Regional Office that the claim is allowable.

The basis for deferral of claims whose allowability is questionable may be found in various provisions of the public assistance titles of the Social Security Act. For example, section 403(a)(1) of the Act, 42 U.S.C. section 603(a)(1), authorizes payment of "an amount equal to the sum of the following proportions of the total amount expended during such quarter as aid to families with dependent children under the State plan • • •." (Emphasis added.) Identical or comparable provisions are found in each of the other public assistance titles of the Social Security Act, thus indicating that under the Act, the Secretary has no obligation to pay automatically all expenditure claims submitted (subject only to later disallowances as a result of an audit exception or financial management review) no matter how questionable the claims may appear. The Secretary must determine that the expenditures for which Federal matching is claimed by the State were properly made under the State plan. Concomitant with this responsibility is the authority to defer claims for a reasonable period of time pending a determination of their allowability or unallowability. Any other interpretation would require the Secretary to authorize Federal financial participation in potentially unallowable claims in violation of the statutory mandate.

Moreover, a serious anomaly would result if it were concluded that there was no deferral authority. If a State had previously estimated expenditures for a given quarter of $20 million, but claimed actual expenditures of $21 million, it is clear that the additional $1 million could not automatically be added to the next quarterly grant without an affirmative finding of allowability. 42 U.S.C. section 603(b)(2) (and its equivalents in the other public assistance titles) requires the Secretary to certify to the Secretary of the Treasury the amount he estimates the State will require in the ensuing quarter "reduced or increased • • • by any sum by which the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare finds that his estimate for any prior quarter was greater or less than the amount which should have been paid to the State for such quarter • • •." (Emphasis added.) It is thus clear from this statutory language that no increase in a subsequent quarterly grant award is authorized unless the required finding can be made on the basis of documentation provided by the State, since the statutorily required method of finalizing Federal financial participation (FFP) due to a State for a given quarter is always by an adjustment of a subsequent grant award. However, unless the Social Security Act is interpreted to give the Secretary equivalent deferral authority where the original State estimate (upon which the quarterly grant award was based) was equal to (or greater than) the expenditures ultimately claimed, there will be a substantial and anomalous incentive for States to overestimate future expenditures to the great detriment of the Federal fisc. The anomaly is created by operation of section 603(b)(2). As discussed above, under that provision, questionable claims in excess of expenditures estimated must be subject to deferral: they cannot be paid because of the Secretary's inability at the time they are submitted to affirmatively find that the increment results in a prior estimate being less than should have been paid to the State; they cannot be disallowed because the Secretary is unable at that time to "determine • • • that any item or class of items on account of which [FFP] is claimed • • • shall be disallowed • • •" (emphasis added), which is the standard for disallowance specified in section 1116(d) of the Act, 42 U.S.C. section 1316(d). This anomalous result cannot be extrapolated or inferred from any language or legislative history of the public assistance titles. The Department strongly believes that equivalent treatment and processing of all claims for reimbursement is required regardless of the claims' quantitive relationship to the anticipated amount of expenditures previously estimated by the State. Thus, the basis for the particular regulations proposed herein is the Department's belief that the Social Security Act does not require different methods of processing claims for FFP depending on the vagaries of the claims' relation to previously estimated expenditures. Accordingly, the regulations proposed herein treat all questionable claims for FFP in an identical manner, since in the Department's view the processing of deferred claims in a uniform manner throughout the country by all HEW Regional Offices would substantially improve both the Federal and State administration of their respective responsibilities under the public assistance titles of the Act.

The proposed regulations permit Regional Offices to identify specific claims and subject them to a deferral process within the time periods specified. Moreover, retroactive claims (i.e., claims for quarters for which final payment has already been made) are automatically subject to the deferral process. The regulations specify that it is the obligation of the State to establish the claim's allowability. Should the State fail to carry its burden at this stage, and the claim consequently be disallowed, the State will be afforded an opportunity to participate in a reconsideration proceeding pursuant to 45 CFR 201.14 at which time it will be afforded an additional opportunity, in the context of a more formalized procedure, to establish the allowability of the claim.

The Department intends that this section shall apply to all claims submitted within the scope of paragraph (a) subsequent to the date of publication of this section in final form.

Prior to the adoption of the proposed regulations, consideration will be given to any comments, suggestions, or objections thereto which are received in writing by the Acting Administrator, Social and Rehabilitation Service, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, P.O. Box 2372, Washington, D.C. 20013 on or before September 15, 1975. Comments will be available for public inspection, beginning approximately two weeks after publication, in Room 5225 of the Department's offices at 330 C St., SW., Washington, D.C. on Monday through Friday of each week from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. (area code 202/245-0950).

Part 201, Chapter II, Title 45 of the Code of Federal Regulations would be amended by adding a new § 201.15 to read as follows:

§ 201.15 Deferral of claims for Federal financial participation.

(a) Scope. Except as otherwise provided, this section applies to all claims for Federal financial participation submitted by States pursuant to titles I, IV, VI, X, XIV, XVI, XIX, or XX of the Social Security Act.

(b) Definitions. (1) "Deferral Action" means the process of suspending payment with respect to a claim within the scope of paragraph (a), pending the receipt and analysis of further information relating to the allowability of the claim, under the procedures specified in this section.

(2) "Deferred claim" means a claim within the scope of paragraph (a) upon which a deferral action has been taken.

(c) Procedures. (1) A claim for reimbursement for expenditures reported on the Quarterly Statement of Expenditures shall be deferred only when the Regional Commissioner identifies a specific portion of the claim which is of questionable allowability.

(2) When deferral action is taken on a claim, the Regional Commissioner will within 15 days send written notice to the State identifying the type and amount of the claim and the reason for deferral. In the written notice of the deferral action, the Regional Commissioner will request the State to make available for inspection all documents and materials which the Regional office then believes necessary to determine the allowability of the claim.

(3) Within 60 days of receipt of the Regional Commissioner's notice of deferral action described in paragraph (c)(2) of this section the State shall make available to the Regional office, in readily reviewable form, all requested documents and materials, or when necessary, shall identify those documents and items of information which are not available. If the State requires additional time to make the documents and material available, it shall upon request be given an additional 60 days. If the State has not made the documents and material available within the additional 60 days, the Regional Commissioner shall disallow the claim.

(4) The Regional office will normally initiate the review within 30 days of the date that materials become available for review.

(5) If the Regional Commissioner finds that the documents and materials are not in readily reviewable form or that supplemental information is required, he will promptly notify the State. The State will have 15 days from the date of notification to complete the action requested.

(6) The Regional Commissioner will have 90 days after all documentation is available in readily reviewable form to determine the allowability of the deferred claim. If the Regional Commissioner is unable to complete the review within the time period the claim will be paid subject to a later determination of allowability.

(7) It is the responsibility of the State agency to establish the allowability of a deferred claim.

(8) The Regional Office will notify the State in writing of the decision on the allowability of the deferred claim.

(9) If a deferred claim is disallowed, the Regional Commissioner shall advise the State of its right to reconsideration pursuant to § 201.14.

(10) A decision to pay a deferred claim shall not preclude a subsequent disallowance as a result of an audit exception or financial management review. If a subsequent disallowance should occur, the State, upon request shall be granted reconsideration pursuant to § 201.14.

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION

Federal Aviation Administration

[ 14 CFR Part 39 ]

[Docket No. 14912]

TRANSPORT CATEGORY AIRPLANES

Proposed Airworthiness Directive

The Federal Aviation Administration is considering amending Part 39 of the Federal Aviation Regulations by adding an airworthiness directive applicable to transport category airplanes, including, but not limited to, Boeing Models 707-300B, 707-300C, 727, 727-100 and 727-200; British Aircraft Corporation Models BAC 1-11-200/400; General Dynamics Convair CV-580 and CV-600; McDonnell Douglas Models DC-8-61/63; and Nihon Model YS-11 series airplanes. Service experience indicates that certain flight attendant seats that are side-facing, located in aisles and other access routes to emergency exits, located in or adjacent to galleys, located where the seated attendant is subject to being struck by items dislodged from closets, galleys or stowage compartments, or located where the attendant has no view of the cabin or passenger information signs can cause a restriction of the flight attendant's ability to perform required emergency duties, interference with the evacuation of the airplane under emergency conditions, and injury to flight attendants seated in those seats.

Since this condition is likely to exist or develop in airplanes of those type designs, the proposed airworthiness directive would require that certain flight attendant seats be removed and would provide standards for seats installed as replacements. All replacement seat installations must be approved by the Chief, Engineering and Manufacturing Branch, Flight Standards Division, of an FAA region, or the Chief, Aircraft Engineering Division, Western Region.

Interested persons are invited to participate in the making of the proposed rule by submitting such written data, views, or arguments as they may desire. Information on the economic impact that might result because of the adoption of the proposed rule is requested. Communications should identify the docket number and be submitted in duplicate to the Federal Aviation Administration, Office of the Chief Counsel, Attention: Rules Docket, AGC-24, 800 Independence Avenue, SW., Washington, D.C. 20591. All communications received on or before October 9, 1975, will be considered by the Administrator before taking action upon the proposed rule.

It should be noted that proposed rulemaking action affecting Parts 25 and 121 of the Federal Aviation Regulations concerning flight attendant (cabin) safety is under consideration as a part of the Airworthiness Review Program. This is contained in Notice No. 8: Aircraft, Engine, and Propeller Airworthiness and Procedural Proposals (Notice 75-31; 40 FR 29410; July 11, 1975). That Notice contains detailed proposals concerning flight attendant seat design, seat location, and related equipment.

This proposed AD contains seat standards similar to those contained in proposed §§ 25.785(h) and (j) in Notice 75-31. In that regard, however, paragraph (b)(5) of the proposed AD substantively differs from the similar proposal contained in the Notice. The comment period for Notice 75-31 extends until October 9, 1975, and, therefore, because of its similarity in subject matter, the comment period for this proposed AD has been set to also expire on that date. All comments received in response to Notice 75-31 dealing with proposals relating to flight attendant seats and comments received in response to this proposed AD will be considered by the Administrator before taking action upon the proposed rule. The proposals may be changed in the light of comments received. All comments will be available both before and after the closing date for comments in the Rules Docket (Docket Nos. 14779 and 14912) for examination by interested persons.

This amendment is proposed under the authority of sections 313(a), 601, and 603 of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958 (49 U.S.C. 1354(a), 1421, and 1423) and of section 6(c) of the Department of Transportation Act (49 U.S.C. 1655(c)).

In consideration of the foregoing, it is proposed to amend § 39.13 of Part 39 of the Federal Aviation Regulations by adding the following new airworthiness directive:

TRANSPORT CATEGORY AIRPLANES. Applies to all transport category airplanes having flight attendant seats including, but not limited to, the following: Boeing Models 707-300B, 707-300C, 727, 727-100, and 727-200; British Aircraft Corporation Model BAC 1-11-200/400; General Dynamics Convair Models CV-580 and CV-600; McDonnell Douglas Model DC-8-61/63; and Nihon Model YS-11 series airplanes.

Compliance required as indicated, unless already accomplished.

To prevent injuries to flight attendants, to insure their ability to perform required duties under emergency conditions, and to insure occupant access to emergency exits, comply with the following:

(a) Before (a date 30 days after the effective date of this AD) remove the following flight attendant seats from the airplane and comply with paragraph (b) of this AD with respect to replacement seats:

(1) For all airplanes:

(i) Side-facing seats; and

(ii) Seats mounted on cockpit doors.

(2) For McDonnell Douglas Model DC-8, Convair Model CV-600 and Nihon Model YS-11 airplanes, seats located in or attached to a galley.

(3) For British Aircraft Corporation Model BAC 1-11 airplanes, the forward and aft seats.

(b) If a seat is installed as a replacement for a seat removed under paragraph (a) of this AD, the seat installation must be approved by the Chief, Engineering and Manufacturing Branch, Flight Standards Division, of an FAA region, or the Chief, Aircraft Engineering Division, Western Region. In addition, the installation must:

(1) Be located near an approved floor level emergency exit;

(2) Be equipped with a restraint system consisting of a combined safety belt and shoulder harness unit with a single-point release;

(3) Have a means to secure each combined safety belt and shoulder harness, when not in use, to prevent interference with rapid egress in an emergency;

(4) Be located to provide a view of the cabin area for which the flight attendant is individually responsible and to provide access to the communications system when seated;

(5) Be forward facing or rearward facing. In either case, the installation must have an energy absorbing rest that is designed to support the arms, shoulders, head, and spine;

(6) Be positioned to prevent interference with the use of passageways and exits; and

(7) Be located to minimize the probability of its occupants suffering injury during any operation by being struck by items dislodged in a galley, or from a stowage compartment or serving cart. All items expected in these locations in service must be considered.

CONTROL ZONE AND TRANSITION AREA

Proposed Alteration

The Federal Aviation Administration is considering amending Part 71 of the Federal Aviation Regulations so as to alter the control zone and transition area at Mansfield, Ohio.

Interested persons may participate in the proposed rule making by submitting such written data, views or arguments as they may desire. Communications should be submitted in triplicate to the Director, Great Lakes Region, Attention: Chief, Air Traffic Division, Federal Aviation Administration, 2300 East Devon, Des Plains, Illinois 60018. All communications received on or before September 15, 1975, will be considered before action is taken on the proposed amendments. No public hearing is contemplated at this time, but arrangements for informal conferences with Federal Aviation Administration officials may be made by contacting the Regional Air Traffic Division Chief. Any data, views or arguments presented during such conferences must also be submitted in writing in accordance with this notice in order to become part of the record for consideration. The proposals contained in this notice may be changed in the light of comments received.

A public docket will be available for examination by interested persons in the Office of the Regional Counsel, Federal Aviation Administration, 2300 East Devon, Des Plaines, Illinois 60018.

Several instrument approach procedures serving the Mansfield-Lahm Airport have been revised. Additional airspace is required to protect these revised procedures. In reviewing the present airspace, it was found to be desirable to combine the Shelby and Willard, Ohio transition area citations with Mansfield, Ohio.

In consideration of the foregoing, the Federal Aviation Administration proposes to amend Part 71 of the Federal Aviation Regulations as hereinafter set forth:

1. In § 71.171 (40 FR 354), the following control zone is amended to read:

MANSFIELD, OHIO

Within a 5-mile radius of the Mansfield-Lahm Municipal Airport (latitude 40°49'17" N., longitude 82°31'00" W.); and within 2 miles each side of the Mansfield VORTAC 307° radial extending from the 5-mile radius zone to 5.5 miles NW of the airport.

92. In § 71.181 (40 FR 441), the following transition area is amended to read:

MANSFIELD, OHIO

That airspace extending upward from 700 feet above the surface within a 9-mile radius of Mansfield-Lahm Municipal Airport (latitude 40°49'17" N., longitude 82°31'00" W.); within a 5-mile radius of Galion Municipal Airport (latitude 40°45'15" N., longitude 82°43'30" W.); within a 5-mile radius of Shelby Community Airport (latitude 40°52'-23" N., longitude 82°41'48" W.); within a 7.5-mile radius of Willard Airport (latitude 41°-02'23" N., longitude 82°43'38" W.); within 7 miles each side of the Mansfield, Ohio VORTAC 307° radial extending from the 9-mile radius area to 17 miles NW of the VORTAC; and within 5 miles each side of the Mansfield VORTAC 130° radial extending from the 9-mile radius area to 22 miles SE of the VORTAC.

3. In § 71.181 (40 F.R. 441), the following transition areas are deleted:

Shelby, Ohio
Willard, Ohio

These amendments are proposed under the authority of section 307(a) of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958 (49 U.S.C. 1348), and of section 6(c) of the Department of Transportation Act [49 U.S.C. 1655(c)].

TRANSITION AREA

Proposed Alteration

The Federal Aviation Administration is considering an amendment to Part 71 of the Federal Aviation Regulations that would alter the Monroe, N.C., transition area.

Interested persons may submit such written data, views or arguments as they may desire. Communications should be submitted in triplicate to the Federal Aviation Administration, Southern Region, Air Traffic Division, P.O. Box 20636, Atlanta, Ga., 30320. All communications received on or before September 15, 1975, will be considered before action is taken on the proposed amendment. No hearing is contemplated at this time, but arrangements for informal conferences with Federal Aviation Administration officials may be made by contacting the Chief, Airspace and Procedures Branch. Any data, views or arguments presented during such conferences must also be submitted in writing in accordance with this notice in order to become part of the record for consideration. The proposal contained in this notice may be changed in light of comments received.

The official docket will be available for examination by interested persons at the Federal Aviation Administration, Southern Region, Room 645, 3400 Whipple Street, East Point, Ga.

The Monroe transition area described in § 71.181 (40 FR 441) would be amended by deleting the present description and substituting the following therefor:

That airspace extending upwards from 700 feet above the surface within a 6.5-mile radius of Monroe Airport (Lat. 35°01'15" N., Long. 80°38'00" W.); within 4.5 miles northwest and 9.5 miles southeast of the 217° bearing from the Wesley RBN (Lat. 34°58'17" N., Long. 80°40'55" W.), extending from the 6.5-mile radius area to 18.5 miles southwest of the RBN; excluding the portions that coincide with the Charlotte, N.C., and Lancaster, S.C., transition areas.

The proposed alteration is required to provide controlled airspace protection for IFR executing the proposed NDB RWY 5 instrument approach procedure, utilizing the Wesley (private) Nondirectional Radio Beacon, to Monroe Airport. The increase in the basic radius area from 5 to 6.5 miles is required to accommodate executive jet type aircraft on departure.

This amendment is proposed under the authority of sec. 307(a) of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958 (49 U.S.C. 1348(a)) and of sec. 6(c) of the Department of Transportation Act (49 U.S.C. 1655(c)).

Issued in East Point, Ga., on August 6, 1975.

Subpart D—Availability of Records

§ 10.31 Requests for records.

(a) Ordinarily, each person desiring to determine whether a record pertaining to him is contained in a system of records covered by this part or desiring access to a record covered by this part, or to obtain a copy of such a record, shall make his request in writing as provided in the pertinent appendix to this part. In exceptional cases oral requests will be accepted.

(b) Each request shall specify the name of the requesting individual and the system of records in which the subject record is located or thought to be located.

§ 10.33 Conditions of disclosure.

(a) No record which is contained within a system of records within the Department shall be disclosed by any means of communication to any person, or to another agency, except pursuant to a written request by, or with the prior written consent of, the individual to whom the record pertains, unless disclosure of the record would be:

(2) Required under Part 7 of this title which implements the Freedom of Information Act;

(3) For a routine use as defined in §10.5 and described pursuant to § 10.21 (d)(4);

No exemption contained in Subpart G of Part 7 of the Regulations of the Office of the Secretary shall be relied upon to withhold from an individual any record which is otherwise accessible to such individual under the provisions of this part. Any individual who is given access to a record or information pertaining to him shall be permitted to have a person of his own choosing accompany him and to have a copy made of all or any portion of the record or information in a form comprehensible to him. When deemed appropriate, the individual may be required to furnish a written statement authorizing discussion of his record in the accompanying person's presence. If the release of a record containing medical information (including psychological information furnished by a physician) directly to the individual to whom the record pertains may, in the judgment of the cognizant medical office and with the concurrence of the General Counsel, have an adverse effect on the health or well-being of the individual, the record will be released to the individual only through a physician designated by the individual and upon a written request by that physician for that record.

(c) Any person requesting access to records or to any information pertaining to other individuals shall not be granted such access unless he can show that he has obtained permission for such access from the individual to whom the record pertains, unless the request comes within one of the exceptions of § 10.33(a).

§ 10.35 Identification of individual making request.

No record or information contained in a system of records shall be disclosed to an individual nor shall any correction of a record in accordance with Subpart E be made at the request of an individual unless that individual demonstrates that he is who he claims to be. Normally, identity can be proven for individuals who appear in person by the presentation of an identifying document issued by recognized organization (e.g., a driver's license or a credit card) and which contains a means of verification such as a photograph or a signature. For requests by mail, the unique identifier used in the system should be included if known. Responses to mail requests will normally be sent only to the name and address listed in the system of records. In the case of particularly sensitive records, additional identification requirements may be imposed. In such cases, these additional requirements shall be listed in the public notice for the system and in the appropriate appendix to this part.

§ 10.37 Location of records.

Each record made available under this subpart is available for inspection and copying during regular working hours at the place where it is located or, upon reasonable notice, at the document inspection facilities of the Office of the Secretary or each administration as set forth in the appendix applicable to that office or administration. Original records may be copied but may not be released from custody. Upon payment of the appropriate fee, copies will be mailed to the requester.

Subpart E—Correction of Records

§ 10.41 Requests for correction of records.

Any person who desires to have a record pertaining to him corrected shall submit a written request detailing the correction and the reasons the record should be so corrected. Requests for correction of records shall be submitted in accordance with the procedures set forth in Appendices A through H to this part.

§ 10.43 Time limits.

Within ten days (excluding Saturday, Sunday, and legal holidays) of the receipt in accordance with § 10.41 of a request by an individual to amend a record pertaining to him, the receipt of the request shall be acknowledged in writing. If a determination is made to correct the record as requested, the correction shall be promptly made. If a determination is made not to correct a record the individual shall be informed promptly of his right to appeal in accordance with Subpart F. If an appeal of a refusal to correct a record is in accordance with Subpart F, a determination whether to correct the record shall be made within thirty days (excluding Saturday, Sunday and legal holidays) of the receipt of the appeal unless, for good cause shown, the head of the operating administration concerned, or in the case of the Office of the Secretary, the General Counsel, extends such period.

§ 10.45 Statement of disagreement.

If a determination is made not to amend a record, the requester shall be informed that he may file a concise statement setting forth the reasons for his disagreement with the refusal to amend. In any disclosure containing information about which an individual has filed such a statement of disagreement, the portions of the record which are disputed shall be noted clearly and copies of the statement of disagreement shall be provided. If the head of the operating administration concerned or his delegee, or in the case of the Office of the Secretary, the General Counsel or his delegee, deems it appropriate, copies of a concise statement of the reasons for not making the amendments requested may be provided along with the statement of disagreement.

Subpart F—Procedures for Reconsidering Decisions Not To Grant Access to or Amend Records

§ 10.51 General.

(a) Each officer or employee of the Department who, upon a request by a member of the public for a record under this part, makes a determination that access is not to be granted or who determines not to amend a record in a requested manner, shall give a written statement of the reasons for that determination to the person making the request and indicate the name and title or position of each person responsible for the denial of such request and the procedure for appeal within the Department.

(b) Any person:

(1) Who has been given a determination pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section, that access will not be granted; or

(2) Who has been informed that an amendment to a requested record will not be made.

may apply to the head of the operating administration concerned, or in the case of the Office of the Secretary, to the General Counsel of the Department, for reconsideration of the request. A determination that access will not be granted or a record amended is not administratively final for the purposes of judicial review unless it was made by the head of the operating administration concerned or his delegee, or the General Counsel or his delegee, as the case may be. Upon a determination that an appeal will be denied, the requester shall be informed in writing of the reasons for the determination, and the names and titles or positions of each person responsible for the determination, and that the determination may be appealed to the District Court of the United States in the district in which the complainant resides, or has his principal place of business, or in which the records are located, or in the District of Columbia.

(c) Each application for reconsideration must be made in writing within sixty days from the date of receipt of the initial denial and must include all information and arguments relied upon by the person making the request.

(d) Upon a determination that a request for the correction of a record will be denied, the requester shall be informed that he may file a concise statement in accordance with § 10.45.

(e) Each application for reconsideration must indicate that it is an appeal from a denial of a request made under the Privacy Act. The envelope in which the application is sent should be marked prominently with the words "Privacy Act". If these requirements are not met, the time limits described in § 10.43 will not begin to run until the application has been identified by an employee of the Department as an application under the Privacy Act and has been received by the appropriate office.

(f) The head of the operating administration concerned, or the General Counsel, as the case may be, may require the person making the request to furnish additional information, or proof of factual allegations, and may order other proceedings appropriate in the circumstances. The decision of the head of the operating administration concerned, or the General Counsel, as the case may be, as to the availability of the record or whether to amend the record is administratively final.

(g) The decision by the head of the operating administration concerned, or the General Counsel, as the case may be, not to disclose a record under this part is considered a determination for the purposes of section 552a(3)(g) of Title 5, United States Code.

(h) Any final decision by the head of an operating administration on his delegee identified in Appendices B through H of this part, not to grant access to or amend a record under this part, is subject to concurrence by the General Counsel or his delegee.

Subpart G—Exemptions

§ 10.61 General exemptions.

COMMODITY FUTURES TRADING COMMISSION

[ 17 CFR Part 145 ]

FREEDOM OF INFORMATION

Proposal To Adopt Rules Concerning Commission Records and Information

The Commodity Futures Trading Commission proposes to adopt rules concerning the availability of records and information from the Commission. If adopted, the rules will reflect the Commission's implementation of the requirements of the Freedom of Information Act, as amended, 5 U.S.C. 552, and will comprise a new Part 145 of Title 17 of the Code of Federal Regulations. The information and record disclosure rules of the Commodity Exchange Authority, 17 CFR 140.3 through 140.6, which have temporarily continued in effect, will be repealed.

The Commission has already begun generally to follow the policies and procedures set forth in these proposed rules. This presents no conflict with the Administrative Procedure Act; since these rules involve matters of interpretation, general policy, and agency organization and procedure, the Commission could have adopted them without soliciting public comments if it had chosen to do so.

As required by the Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(4)(A), the Commission is publishing for comment as part of these rules a proposed schedule of fees for search, duplication and other services performed in response to requests for records or information. In view of the Commission's existing obligation under law to collect fees when services are performed for any member of the public, 31 U.S.C. 483a, the Commission's authority under the Freedom of Information Act to adopt reasonable fees concerning services performed under the statute and the modest nature of the fees the Commission proposes to charge, the Commission has determined that good cause exists to implement its fee schedule immediately. It will accept comments concerning the fee schedule, however, and may be persuaded to alter or modify the schedule in response to those comments.

THE RULES' PROVISIONS

Section 145.1 of proposed Part 145 generally describes the information that the Commission will publish in the FEDERAL REGISTER for the guidance of the public. This will include a description of its organizational structure and functional responsibilities, as well as procedural and substantive requirements adopted by the Commission that affect members of the public.[1] Certain other records of the Commission having importance as legally authoritative documents, such as final opinions and orders of the Commission in adjudicated matters, will be available for public inspection and copying and will be indexed by the Commission. Those categories of records are described in § 145.2.

Section 145.3 emphasizes that the Commission will generally make all other records available to any person upon request. Moreover, consistent with the Commission's desire to permit the fullest possible public access to the records it maintains, § 145.4 describes circumstances in which identifying details may be deleted from a document in order to prevent a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, while permitting the document otherwise to be made public. That section also expresses the Commission's intention, where there is a public interest in disclosure of the substance of a document that cannot be disclosed in its original form, to make the material public in an abridged or summary form or with identifying details deleted.

Certain matters that are permitted by the Freedom of Information Act to be treated as nonpublic and which the Commission may find it necessary to withhold in particular situations are described in § 145.5. The introductory language of § 145.5 emphasizes, however, that any reasonably segregable portion of a record shall be provided upon request, even where it may be necessary to delete a part of the record.

The public reference facilities that the Commission will maintain are described in § 145.6 and the manner in which requests are to be made for access to Commission records or copies thereof are set forth in § 145.7. The fees that the Commission intends to charge are referred to in § 145.8, and the schedule of fees that the Commission has tentatively determined to charge are set forth in Appendix B to Part 145.

In certain circumstances, where there is a risk of disclosure of trade secrets or processes or of other sensitive commercial information, or where there is a risk of invasion of the personal privacy of any person, a person who has supplied information to the Commission in the course of an investigation, in an application or otherwise, may reasonably wish to have that information protected from public disclosure for a specified time or, in rare cases, for an indefinite period. Accordingly, in § 145.9 the Commission proposes to establish a procedure pursuant to which a petition may be filed seeking confidential treatment of information supplied to the Commission.

PROCEDURE TO BE FOLLOWED FOR REQUESTING COPIES OF COMMISSION RECORDS AND FOR OBTAINING ADMINISTRATIVE REVIEW OF A DENIAL OF ACCESS TO RECORDS

Consistent with the Freedom of Information Act, as amended, under proposed § 145.7(f) the Commission within 10 business days after a request for records has been received will make an initial decision whether to comply with the request. Where a request has been denied, the Commission will afford an administrative appeal of that determination, which will generally be decided by the Commission within 20 business days after receipt of the appeal. Of course, many records of the Commission have been and will continue to be routinely available to any person immediately upon request. The Commission intends ultimately to set forth in these rules those records which will be available immediately upon request both at the Commission's principal office in Washington, D.C., and at its regional offices. The present proposal, however, does not contain this detailed information.

In order to assure that the required prompt attention may be given to requests for records other than those which are routinely made available, the proposed rules generally require in § 145.7(c) that a request be made either in person during normal business hours at the Commission's principal office or by mail directed to the Office of Public Information at its principal office. Requests that are misdirected will promptly be forwarded to the Office of Public Information, but a failure to address a request properly may impair the ability of the Commission to provide a timely or satisfactory response, and may make it impossible for the Commission to entertain an administrative appeal from an alleged failure of its staff to comply with a request. The 10-day period within which the Commission will normally respond to a request will begin only upon actual receipt of the request by the Office of Public Information. § 145.7(j)(2).

The provisions of § 145.5 implement the exemptions from disclosure that are contained in the Freedom of Information Act. That subsection constitutes an instruction by the Commission to its staff concerning those records that the Commission believes are not required to be disclosed under the Freedom of Information Act and which it has decided should generally not be disclosed.

Under the Commission's rules, it will be the responsibility of the Director of the Commission's Office of Public Information to determine whether a request concerns a record that the Commission by its rules has decided is generally to be treated as nonpublic. In making that decision, it is contemplated that he will consult with members of the Commission's staff whose area of responsibility relates to the requested record. Moreover, the Commission's rules explicitly provide that the Director shall not deny access to any record without first having consulted with the Office of the Commission's General Counsel and may consult with the Office of the General Counsel as to other matters as well.

Provisions for administrative review by the Commission of a denial of any request for a record are contained in § 145.7(g). All appeals are required to be made in writing and to be delivered or mailed to the Office of Public Information of the Commission. Since the Commission may determine to disclose records that it might lawfully withhold, it is significant that an application for administrative review of a denial may state such facts and cite such authorities as the applicant may consider appropriate, not only on the question of the applicant's right to have access to the record, but also on why access should be granted even if no right to access exists.

[1] The Commission is still in its organizational stage. For that reason, it may be some time before the Commission fully describes its organization and sets forth the manner in which its functions will be channeled and the procedures to be followed by members of the public in dealing with the Commission. Every effort is being made, however, consistent with the Commission's performance of its basic responsibilities under the Commodity Exchange Act, as amended, to prepare and publish information within these categories.

The Commission will generally make a determination with respect to an appeal within 20 business days after receipt of the appeal. If the denial of a request should be upheld, the Commission will notify the person making the request of the names and titles of the members of the Commission who voted to deny the request and will advise the requesting person of those provisions of the Freedom of Information Act that provide for judicial review of the Commission's determination.

REQUEST FOR CONFIDENTIAL TREATMENT BY PERSONS FILING DOCUMENTS WITH, SUBMITTING DOCUMENTS OR GIVING TESTIMONY TO THE COMMISSION

The Commission does not intend publicly to disclose the trade secrets or processes of any registrant or other person who may have to submitted that information to the Commission in an application, in the course of an investigation or otherwise. Nor does the Commission wish, through inadvertence, to diclose other sensitive business information, or information the disclosure of which would invade the personal privacy of any person, except in circumstances where the public interest in access to such information clearly outweighs the business or personal interests of any person that might be adversely affected by the disclosure. Accordingly, the Commission proposes to adopt a procedure pursuant to which persons who have supplied sensitive business or personal information to the Commission may petition the Commission to grant it confidential treatment.

Under the proposed procedure, which is set forth in § 145.9 of the proposed rules, a petition for confidential treatment will generally be made at the time or shortly after the time when sensitive information is supplied to the Commission. Information for which confidential treatment may be requested is limited to that which involves a trade secret or process or other sensitive commercial or financial information or, if disclosed, would constitute an invasion of personal privacy. Whenever possible, the information for which confidential treatment is sought should be provided in a document separate from documents for which confidential treatment is not being sought.

Although the information that is the subject of a petition will be identified as such among the records of the Commission, under proposed § 145.9(c) no decision on the petition will be made unless and until a member of the public should request to inspect or to obtain a copy of the document containing the information. At that time, the Director of the Commission's Office of Public Information is authorized to grant confidential treatment to the extent that the information appears to be exempt from the disclosure requirements of the Freedom of Information Act under exemptions relating to sensitive business information and to unwarranted invasions of personal privacy, 5 U.S.C. 552(b)(4) and 552(b)(6).

A person who has requested a record that is granted confidential treatment under this provision may, of course, seek administrative review by the Commission in the same manner as when access to any record has been denied. A person who has petitioned for confidential treatment which has been denied will be notified by telegram on the day of denial and he will have a right to appeal the denial to the Commission within five business days. For this purpose, a brief written statement that review of the denial is sought will be sufficient when filed with the Office of Public Information.

In order to permit the Commission to decide the question of confidential treatment, the Commission's rule invokes the provision of the Freedom of Information Act that allows an extension for up to ten business days of the time in which an initial determination must be made whether or not to grant access to the record. During that period the Commission will determine whether confidential treatment is appropriate under law and whether, in any event, it might be appropriate to disclose the record.

§ 145.4 Records available with identifying details deleted.

To the extent required to prevent a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, identifying details may be deleted from materials made public as set forth in §§ 145.1, 145.2 and 145.3, e.g., apparently defamatory statements made about any person, information received by or given to the Commission in confidence, or any contents of personel and medical and similar files. In addition, certain materials which are considered to be nonpublic, as described in § 145.5, may, as authorized by the Commission from time to time, be made available for public inspection and copying in an abridged or summary form or with identifying details deleted.

§ 145.5 Nonpublic matters.

Certain records may be treated as nonpublic, but any reasonably segregable portion of a record shall be provided to a person who has requested the record after deletion of the portions which are considered nonpublic under this section. Except for such reasonably segregable portions of records, the Commission may decline to publish or make available to any person matters that are:

(a)(1) Specifically authorized under criteria established by an executive order to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy, and (2) are in fact properly classified pursuant to such executive order.

(b) Related solely to the internal personnel rules and practices of the Commission or any other agency of the Government of the United States, including operation rules, guidelines, and manuals of procedure for investigators, auditors, and other employees (other than those rules and practices which establish legal requirements to which members of the public are expected to conform);

(c) Specifically exempted from disclosure by statute, including data and information which would separately disclose the business transactions of any person and trade secrets or names of customers that have been obtained by the Commission in an investigation conducted pursuant to section 8 or section 16 of the Commodity Exchange Act, as amended, 7 U.S.C. 12 to 12–3 and 20(d), for the efficient execution of the provisions of the Act or in order to provide information for the use of Congress;

(d) Trade secrets and commercial or financial information obtained from a person and privileged or confidential, including:

(1) Information contained in any document submitted to or required to be filed with the Commission where the Commission has undertaken formally or informally to receive such submission or filing for its use or the use of specified persons only, and the information is of a kind not normally disclosed by the person from whom it was obtained;

(2) Information contained in reports, summaries, analyses, transcripts, letters or memoranda arising out of, in anticipation of or in connection with an examination or inspection of the books and records of any person or any other formal or informal inquiry or investigation; and

(3) Information for which confidential treatment has been requested and granted in accordance with § 145.9.

(1) Records which reflect discussions between or consideration by members of the Commission or members of its staff, or both, of any action taken or proposed to be taken by the Commission or by any member of its staff; and

(2) Reports, summaries, analyses, conclusions, or any other work product of members of the Commission or of attorneys, accountants, economists, analysts, or other members of the Commission's staff, prepared in the course of an inspection of the books or records of any person whose affairs are regulated by the Commission, or prepared otherwise in the course of any formal or informal inquiry, examination or investigation or related litigation conducted by or on behalf of the Commission.

(f) Personnel files, medical files and similar files the disclosure of which would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, including (1) files concerning all employees of the Commission; (2) files concerning persons subject to regulation by the Commission, and (3) files containing information for which confidential treatment has been requested and granted in accordance with § 145.9.

(g) Investigatory records compiled for law enforcement purposes to the extent that production of such records would interfere with enforcement proceedings, deprive a person of a right to a fair trial or an impartial adjudication, or disclose the identity of a confidential source. In a particular case the Commission may also withhold investigatory records that would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, disclose investigative techniques and procedures or endanger the life or physical safety of law enforcement personnel. Investigatory records include all documents, records, transcripts, correspondence and related memoranda and work product concerning examinations and other inquiries or investigations and related litigation as authorized by law, which pertain to or may disclose the possible violations by any person of any provision of law including the Commodity Exchange Act, as amended, or of any rule or regulation adopted by the Commission or which pertain to the qualifications of any person registered or seeking registration under that Act or of any person affiliated with such person; and all written communications from or to any person who has confidentially complained or otherwise furnished information respecting such possible violations, as well as all correspondence and memoranda in connection with such confidential complaints or information; and

(h) contained in or related to examinations, operating, or condition reports prepared by, on behalf of, or for the use of the Commission or any other agency responsible for the regulation or supervision of financial institutions; and

(i) geological and geophysical information and data, including maps, concerning wells.

§ 145.6 Public reference facilities.

The Commission shall have public reference facilities at its principal offices at 1120 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036, telephone (202) 254–8630 and at its regional offices:

(a) The public reference room in Washington shall have available for public examination all of the publicly-available records of the Commission as described in §§ 145.1, 145.2 and 145.3.

(b) Each regional office shall have available for public examination the materials set forth in § 145.2, and the following materials with respect to persons and companies who have their principal offices within the geographic area it serves (as described in § 140.2):

(1) All applications for designation as contract markets or for registration with the Commission as a futures commission merchant, associated person, floor broker, commodity trading advisor, commodity pool operator or a registered future association, as well as all supplemental material filed with or submitted to the Commission by the applicant;

(2) [Reserved]

§ 145.7 Requests for Commission records and copies thereof.

(a) Public reference inquiries. Inquiries concerning the nature and extent of records available at the Commission's principal office in Washington or at its regional offices may be made in person, by mail or by telephone. The addresses and telephone numbers of all Commission regional offices are set forth at § 145.6. Written inquiries may be addressed to the Office of Public Information, Commodity Futures Trading Commission, 1120 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036, telephone (202) 254–8630, or to a particular regional office.

(b) Time and place of request for inspection of records. Requests for inspection of Commission records may be made in person during normal business hours at the principal office of the Commission, second floor, 1120 Connecticut Ave., Washington, D.C. 20036. Requests for inspection of Commission records located in a regional office may be made in person during normal business hours at that regional office.

(c) Requests for copies of records. Requests for copies of Commission records may be made either in person at the principal office of the Commission or by mail addressed to the Office of Public Information, Commodity Futures Trading Commission, 1120 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036. With respect to records described in § 145.6 (b), a request may be addressed to the appropriate regional office.

(d) Description of requested records. Each request for inspection of Commission records or copies thereof shall reasonably describe the records sought with sufficient specificity with respect to names, dates and subject matter to permit the records to be located among the records maintained by or for the Commission. A person who has requested Commission records or copies thereof will be promptly advised if the records cannot be located on the basis of the description given and that further identifying information must be provided before his request can be satisfied.

(e) Normal availability. Records or copies will normally be made available at the Office of the Commission at which the records are maintained either immediately upon receipt of a request or within ten days thereafter, unless the request relates to matters that may be treated as nonpublic as described in § 145.5. Records may be made available, upon request, at another office of the Commission, if the Commission determines that transmittal of the records to that office will not significantly interfere with the effective performance of any Commission function, and if the requesting person has undertaken to pay the cost of transportation of the records to that office in accordance with the Commission's schedule of fees set forth in Appendix B to this Part (§ 146b). An estimate of costs under the schedule of fees shall be given to the requesting person before any action is taken to transmit requested records, and he may elect to withdraw his request and examine the records at the office at which they are normally maintained.

(f) Initial determinations, denials. With respect to any record that may be treated as nonpublic as described in § 145.5, the Director of the Commission's Office of Public Information will determine within ten days (excepting Saturdays, (Sundays, and legal public holidays) after the receipt of a request for inspection of the record or for a copy (or within such extended periods as may be permitted in accordance with paragraph (h) of this section) whether to comply with such request, and shall immediately notify the person making such request of his determination. Where it is determined not to comply, the Director will also notify him of the reasons therefor, and of his right to appeal to the Commission an adverse determination. No request shall be denied without the Director first having consulted with the Office of the Commission's General Counsel, and the Director may consult with the Office of General Counsel as to other matters as well.

(g) Administrative review. Any person who has been notified pursuant to paragraph (f) of this section that his request for inspection of a record or for a copy has been denied in whole or in part, or who has received no response to a request for a record or copy within ten days (or within such extended period as may be permitted in accordance with paragraph (h) of this section) after his request was received by the Commission's staff, may appeal the adverse determination or the failure to respond by applying for an order of the Commission determining and directing that the record be made available.

(1) The application to the Commission shall be in writing and shall identify the record in the form in which it was originally requested.

(2) The application should be delivered to the Office of Public Information or sent by mail to the Office of Public Information, Commodity Futures Trading Commission, 1120 Connecticut Avenue NW., Washington, D.C. 20036.

(3) The applicant may, if he wishes, state such facts and cite such legal or other authorities as the applicant may consider appropriate.

(4) The Commission may determine to withhold any record that it finds to be exempt from the disclosure requirements of the Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C. 552, although it may disclose a record, even if exempt, if good cause why it should do so is either shown by the application or otherwise appears.

(5) The Commission will make a determination with respect to any appeal within twenty days (excepting Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) after the receipt by the Office of Public Information of such appeal or within such extended period as may be permitted in accordance with paragraph (h) of this section.

(6) If on appeal the denial of the request for a record or a copy is in whole or in part upheld, the Commission shall (i) advise the person who made the request of the denial, (ii) notify him of the names and positions of the members of the Commission responsible for the denial, and (iii) notify him of the provisions for judicial review of that determination that are set forth at 5 U.S.C. 552(a)(4).

(h) Extension of time to consider requests and to consider administrative appeals. In unusual circumstances, as defined in this paragraph, the time limits proscribed in either paragraph (f) or (g) of this section may be extended by written notice to the person making a request for a record or a copy. The notice shall set forth the reasons for the extension and the date on which a determination is expected to be dispatched. No such notice shall specify a date that would result in an extension for more than ten working days. As used in this paragraph, "unusual circumstances" means, but only to the extent reasonably necessary to the proper processing of a particular request—

(1) The need to search for and collect the requested records from field facilities or other establishments that are separate from the office processing the request. Many records of the Commission are stored in Federal Record Centers in accordance with law and cannot be made available for several days after a request has been made. Other records may be located at a regional office of the Commission. Any person who has requested for personal examination a record stored at the Federal Record Center or located in a regional office of the Commission (other than the office at which the request was made) will be notified when the record will be made available to him. Any person who has ordered a copy of such record will be provided with a copy as soon as practicable.

(2) The need to search for, collect, and appropriately examine a voluminous amount of separate and distinct records which are demanded in a single request. While every reasonable effort will be made fully to comply with each request as promptly as possible on a first-come, first-served basis, work done to search for, collect and appropriately examine records in response to a request for a large number of records will be contingent upon the availability of processing personnel in accordance with an equitable allocation of time to all members of the public who have requested or wish to request records.

(3) The need for consultation, which shall be conducted with all practicable speed, with another agency having a substantial interest in the determination of the request or among two or more components within the Commission having substantial subject matter interest therein.

(i) Inability to comply with time requirements. If the Commission should be unable to comply with the applicable time limits contained in this section in responding to a request for records, it shall give written notice of the reason for delay to the person who made the request and shall be prepared to demonstrate to a court, if need be, the existence of exceptional circumstances and that the Commission is exercising due diligence in responding to the request for records.

(1) Records in use by another member of the public. Any record being inspected by or copied for another member of the public will be made available as soon as practicable.

(2) Records in use by a member of the Commission or its staff. Although every effort will be made to make a record in use by a member of the Commission or its staff available when requested, it may occasionally be necessary to delay making such a record available when doing so at the time the request is made would seriously interfere with the work of the Commission or its staff.

(3) Missing or lost records. Any person who has requested a record or copy will be notified if the record sought cannot be found. If he so requests, he will be notified if it should subsequently be located.

(j) Oral requests; misdirected written requests—(1) Telephone and other oral requests. While the Commission's staff will attempt in good faith to comply with requests for copies of records made orally, by telephone or otherwise, the Commission cannot assure a timely or satisfactory response to such requests due to the risk of misunderstanding inherent in the use or oral communication. The Commission will not entertain any appeal under paragraph (g) of this section from an alleged denial or failure to comply with an oral request. Any person who has orally requested a copy of a record that he believes to have been improperly denied to him should resubmit his request in appropriate written form in order to obtain proper consideration and, if need be, administrative review.

(2) Misdirected written requests. The Commission cannot assure that a timely or satisfactory response will be given to written requests for inspection or copies of records that are directed to the Commission other than in the manner prescribed in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section. Any staff member who receives a written request for records should promptly forward the request to the Office of Public Information. Misdirected requests for records will be considered to have been received for purposes of this section only when they have been actually received by the Office of Information. The Commission will not entertain any appeal from an alleged denial or failure to comply with a misdirected request, unless it is shown that the request was in fact received by the Office of Public Information.

§ 145.8 Fees for records services.

A schedule of fees for record services, including locating, and making records available, attestations and copying, appears in Appendix B to this Part 145 (17 CFR 145b). Copies of the schedule of fees may also be obtained upon request made in person, by telephone or by mail from the Office of Public Information or at any regional office of the Commission.

§ 145.9 Petition for confidential treatment of certain information submitted to the Commission.

(a) A petition may be made that specific information be accepted or retained in confidence by the Commission where the information is contained in an application, supplemental submission, transcript or other document that has been filed with the Commission or has been submitted to or created by the Commission in the course of an investigation or otherwise, and the information either (1) involves a trade secret or process or other sensitive commercial or financial information or (2) if disclosed would constitute an invasion of personal privacy.

(b) (1) A petition for confidential treatment shall contain a concise statement of the reasons why the information should be accepted or retained in confidence, shall state the length of time for which confidential treatment is required, and may state on what basis, if any, the petition itself should be afforded confidential treatment. The petition shall also set forth an address at which the petitioner may promptly be reached by telegram and by mail, and it shall be the obligation of the petitioner to advise the Commission of any change in its address.

(2) Information for which confidential treatment is being sought shall be supplied, whenever possible, in a document separate from documents containing information for which confidential treatment is not being sought.

(3) Information that is the subject of a petition for confidential treatment shall be identified as such among the records of the Commission.

(c) When any person has made a request, pursuant to § 145.7, for inspection or for a copy of any record containing information for which confidential treatment has been sought, the Director of the Office of Public Information shall determine within five days (except Saturdays, Sundays and legal public holidays) whether confidential treatment may and should be granted. Where a proper showing has been made, the petition for confidential treatment will normally be granted by the Director to the extent that Sections 552(b)(4) (relating to sensitive business information) and 552(b)(6) (relating to invasions of personal privacy) of Title 5 of the United States Code appear to permit the information supplied to be withheld from public disclosure.

(d) Any person who has made a request, pursuant to § 145.7, for inspection or for a copy of any record containing information that has been granted confidential treatment by the Director of the Office of Public Information, may, to the extent that he has been denied access to requested records, seek administrative review by the Commission of the denial in accordance with the procedure set forth in § 145.7(g). If administrative review is sought, the person who petitioned for confidential treatment shall promptly be notified and provided with a copy of the application for administrative review.

(e) A person who has petitioned for confidential treatment which has been denied shall be notified by telegram on the day of denial. The telegram shall advise him of the denial and that the information will be publicly disclosed unless an appeal to the Commission should be taken within five business days in accordance with paragraph (f) of § 145.8.

(f) (1) Any person who has been denied confidential treatment for specific information may seek Commission review of that denial by filing with the Office of Public Information, within five business days after the denial, a brief written statement that review of the denial is sought.

(2) When Commission review of a denial of confidential treatment is sought, the time in which the Director of the Office of Public Information must initially determine whether to grant or deny the request for access to the record containing the information, as prescribed in § 145.7(f), shall be extended for ten business days by written notice to the person making the request. This will enable the Commission to consult with the Office of its General Counsel and other components within the Commission having substantial interest in the subject matter. Within that ten-business-day period the Commission shall determine whether the request for records shall be granted to include the information for which confidential treatment has been sought. If confidential treatment of a record should be granted, the person who had requested access to that record and has, accordingly, been denied access to the record will be notified in the manner prescribed in § 145.7(g)(6).

(3) Except with respect to trade secrets and processes, which shall in no event be publicly disclosed, and except with respect to matters the disclosure of which would violate the Privacy Act of 1974, 5 U.S.C. 552a, or the rules of the Commission thereunder, which are contained in Part 146, nothing in this section shall be interpreted to prevent the Commission from publicly disclosing information or records. The Commission may deny confidential treatment to a document that might lawfully be withheld from the public or may limit the length of time for which confidential treatment shall be accorded, if the public interest in access to the information appears to the Commission to outweigh the business or personal interest of any person that might be adversely affected by the disclosure.

(g) Neither the Director of the Office of Public Information nor the Commission will (1) honor oral requests for confidential treatment of information or requests made otherwise than in conformity to this rule, (2) honor requests that are unnecessarily broad in scope or where inadequate explanation is given, or (3) permit the Commission's staff to devote its time to remedy deficiencies in the request.

(h) No request for confidential treatment of information should be made by any person who does not intend in good faith to aid the Commission in the defense of any proceeding that might thereafter be brought to compel the Commission to disclose the information. Unless such information was submitted for the convenience and at the request of the Commission or its staff, the Commission will make available to the public any information it has previously retained in confidence under paragraph (c) of this section if the person who requested and obtained confidential treatment of that information (or those on whose behalf he acted) is unwilling, upon request, to aid in the defense of an action brought against the Commission to compel the Commission to disclose the information.

In such circumstances, no work will be done that will result in fees beyond the stated limit without further written authorization. If no limit is initially stated by the person requesting records or copies, services in locating and making available the requested records will not be done so as to exceed fees of $25.00, and copying services will not be provided in excess of $25.00, without the express written authorization by the requesting person, and he will be so advised. ## ARBITRATION OR OTHER DISPUTE SETTLEMENT PROCEDURES

Proposed Provisions

On July 10, 1975, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission published an interpretative statement setting forth the Commission's responses to six questions by exchanges, boards of trade, and other interested persons, which concerned the requirements of Section 5a(11) of the Commodity Exchange Act, 7 U.S.C. § 7a (11), as added by Section 209 of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission Act of 1974, Pub. L. 93-463, § 209, 88 Stat. 1401 (1974). See 40 FR 29121 (July 10, 1975). In order to assure prompt compliance with the Commission's interpretative statement and other requirements of Section 5a(11), the Commission has determined to propose rules setting forth affirmative provisions to be followed by contract markets. If adopted, the rules will comprise a new Part 200 of Title 17 of the Code of Federal Regulations.

The Commission invites public comment on the proposed rules. The Commission will consider comments received with respect to its prior interpretative statement as a part of this rulemaking proceeding.

Statute and Summary. Section 5a(11) requires each contract market to:

> Provide a fair and equitable procedure through arbitration or otherwise for the settlement of customers' claims and grievances against any member or employee thereof: Provided, That (i) the use of such procedure by a customer shall be voluntary, (ii) the procedure shall not be applicable to any claim in excess of $15,000, (iii) the procedure shall not result in any compulsory payment except as agreed upon between the parties, and (iv) the term 'customer' as used in this subsection shall not include a futures commission merchant or a floor broker. * * *

The following is a summary of the rules proposed by the Commission:

1. Proposed new Rule § 200.1 defines the terms "customer" and "customers" as used in Section 5a(11). In summary, the definition describes a customer as a person engaging in a transaction through the facilities of a contract market other than in the capacity of a futures commission merchant or a floor broker.

2. Proposed new Rule § 200.2 sets forth the procedural requirements that must be contained in the rules of a contract market to establish, as required by Section 5a(11), a "fair and equitable procedure" for settlement of customers' claims and grievances. For the most part, the procedures required by this rule are those set forth in the Commission's response to Question 1 in the interpretative statement previously published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. See 40 FR 29121. The proposed rule requires that customers be provided an "impartial" arbitration panel or other decision-making body ("panel"). Such a panel may be composed entirely of exchange members, but the customer must be given an election to submit the claim or grievance to a panel composed of at least a majority of persons who are not associated with any member of the contract market or employee thereof, and who are not otherwise associated with the contract market. The proposed rule also would prohibit a contract market from requiring a transcript unless agreed to by the customer or unless the customer is not assessed with the expense of the transcript. This requirement is designed to assure that customers with claims under $15,000 are not discouraged from using the settlement procedure required by Section 5a(11) because of possibly expensive transcript costs. Also, the proposed rule provides that there shall be no right of contract-market related appeal as, for example, an appeal to the Board of Governors of the contract market or to any other entity; the only right of appeal being as provided under applicable law. One brokerage firm has commented that procedural protections should be extended to all participants in any proceeding brought under Section 5a(11). The Commission believes such a requirement is implicit in its proposed rules, but requests additional comment on the need for more explicit protections for participants other than customers, as well as customers. The proposed rule further requires adequate notice of the amount or nature of any fees or costs which may be assessed against customers utilizing the procedure and requires that any such costs be reasonable in relation to the claim or grievance. The Commission requests comment on the manner in which costs should be allocated and how costs for small claims or grievances should be dealt with.

3. Proposed new Rule § 200.3 sets forth the views expressed by the Commission in response to Question 3 in its prior interpretative statement and imposes additional requirements, cf., 40 FR 29121. Among other things, the proposed rule prohibits any agreement between persons registered under the Commodity Exchange Act and a customer, in which the customer agrees to submit claims or grievances pertaining to any matter or transaction subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission to any settlement procedure, prior to the time a claim arises. The proposed rule would authorize a settlement procedure in which customers would agree, prior to the time of an award, to be bound by the award, so long as the agreement to be bound was made after the claim or grievance arose. In addition, any agreement by a customer to submit a claim or grievance to a settlement procedure must be voluntary and must not be subject to any unreasonably short limitation period. For example, a limitation period foreclosing customers' claims and grievances from submission to the procedure unless submitted within 90 days after the claim or grievance arose is not, in the Commission's view, reasonable. On the other hand, a limitation period of two years from the time a claim or grievance arose would appear reasonable.

4. Proposed new Rule § 200.4 sets forth the circumstances under which a counterclaim by a member of a contract market or employee thereof, could be made against a customer under a settlement procedure established pursuant to Section 5a(11). The proposed rule adopts the views expressed by the Commission in response to Question 2 in its prior interpretative statement. See 40 FR 29121. Briefly, contract market rules could permit a member's counterclaim where the counterclaim arises out of the transaction or occurrence that is the subject of a customer's claim and does not require for adjudication the presence of third parties over whom the contract market does not have jurisdiction. Also, such counterclaims must not be for an amount in excess of $15,000. The Commission has received comments from one board of trade, which urged that counterclaims be allowed beyond indebtedness arising out of the same transaction or occurrence on which a customer's claim or grievance is based. In this connection, the proposed rule would permit such other counterclaims only if the customer agrees to arbitrate the counterclaim after the counterclaim has arisen, and if the counterclaim is less than $15,000. The Commission requests additional comment on whether the consent of the customer should be required for counterclaims that do not arise out of the same transaction or occurrence as the customer's claim or grievance.

5. Proposed new Rule § 200.5 sets forth the views expressed by the Commission in its responses to Questions 4 and 5 contained in its prior interpretative statement. See 40 FR 29121. The proposed rule would permit a contract market to establish a procedure for settlement of customers' claims and grievances which are not covered by Section 5a(11) (e.g., claims for amounts involving more than $15,000). Such a procedure would be required to be independent of and could not interfere with or delay the resolution of customers' claims submitted under the procedure required by Section 5a(11). Also, the proposed rule states that the procedure must be fair and equitable and voluntary. The Commission has received comments from one board of trade which expressed the view that Section 5a(11) should not be expanded to permit contract markets to establish a procedure for the settlement of customers' claims or grievances in amounts in excess of $15,000, since, in the view of the board of trade, claims over $15,000 are significant enough to require all formal safeguards available in a court of law. The Commission requests additional comment on this question, but has added to this rule a requirement that where a claim or grievance exceeds $15,000 the customer must be warned in writing in advance of submission to the procedure that all procedures applicable in a court of law may not be available; and the contract market must be able to establish that, notwithstanding such formal warning, the customer voluntarily submitted the dispute to the procedure.

6. Proposed new Rule § 200.6 sets forth the views expressed by the Commission in its response to Question 6 in its prior interpretative statement. See 40 FR 29121. Specifically, the proposed rule would permit a contract market to establish a dispute resolution procedure for claims in which a customer is not involved (e.g., the resolution of a dispute involving only futures commission merchants or floor brokers). This procedure would also be required to be independent of, and could not interfere with or delay the resolution of customers' claims or grievances submitted under the procedure required by Section 5a(11). This proposed rule would provide that the procedure must establish safeguards conforming to traditional concepts of due process and would include the formal warning set forth in paragraph 5 above.

The following rules are proposed by the Commodity Futures Trading Commission pursuant to authority contained in Sections 5a(11) and 8a of the Commodity Exchange Act, as amended, 7 U.S.C. 7a(11) and 12a.

PART 200—ARBITRATION OR OTHER DISPUTE SETTLEMENT PROCEDURES

Sec.
200.1 Definition of customer.
200.2 Fair and equitable procedure.
200.3 Voluntary procedure and compulsory payments.
200.4 Counterclaims.
200.5 Other customer claims and grievances.
200.6 Member-to-member settlement procedures.

AUTHORITY: Secs. 5a(11), 8a, Commodity Exchange Act, as amended, 7 U.S.C. 7A(11), 12a.

§ 200.1 Definition of customer.

The terms "customer" and "customers" as used in Section 5a(11) of the Commodity Exchange Act, 7 U.S.C. § 7a(11), as amended, shall mean any person engaging in any transaction executed through the facilities of a contract market. The terms "customer" and "customers" do not include a futures commission merchant or floor broker as defined in the Commodity Exchange Act, 7 U.S.C. § 1, et seq., unless such persons were not acting in the capacity of a floor broker or futures commission merchant in connection with a claim or grievance they seek to submit to a settlement procedure required by Section 5a(11).

§ 200.2 Fair and equitable procedure.

Every contract market shall, in conformance with section 5a(11) of the Commodity Exchange Act, 7 U.S.C. 7a (11), as amended, adopt rules which provide for a fair and equitable procedure through arbitration or otherwise for the settlement of customers' claims and grievances against any member or employee thereof, which arise on or after the effective date of section 5a(11). The procedure shall not be applicable to any claim or grievance in excess of $15,000. The rules shall include at least the following as minimum requirements for a fair and equitable procedure:

(a) The procedure shall be impartial. Customers must be provided the option of having a majority of any panel or decision-making body acting as arbitrators or otherwise acting to settle customers' claims and grievances to be composed of persons who are not members or associated with any member of the contract market or employee thereof and who are not otherwise associated with the contract market.

(b) The procedure shall grant customers the right to be represented by counsel in any aspect of the procedure.

(c) The procedure shall provide for prompt settlement of customer claims and grievances and shall not allow unnecessary or unreasonable delay.

(d) The procedure shall require adequate notice to customers and opportunity for a prompt hearing as follows:

(1) Customers shall be entitled personally to appear at such hearings.

(2) The formal rules of evidence need not apply at the hearing. Nevertheless, the procedures established may not be so informal as to deny due process. Customers must be given adequate opportunity to prepare and present all relevant facts in support of their claims or grievances, and to present rebuttal evidence to any defenses made by the person against whom the claim or grievance has been brought.

(3) Customers shall be entitled to cross-examine persons against whom a claim or grievance is brought and any witnesses appearing at the hearing and to examine all relevant documents presented in connection with the claim or grievance.

(4) A transcript shall not be required, unless the customer making the claim or grievance so agrees or unless the customer is not assessed with the cost of the transcript.

(5) Provision may be made for customers to waive the right of personal appearance at the hearing through a submission on the basis of written documents. Such a waiver must be voluntary and may be made only after the claim or grievance arose.

(e) The procedure shall provide adequate notice to customers, in advance of submission of a claim or grievance to the procedure, of the amount of any fees or costs and the nature of any fees or costs which may be assessed against customers utilizing the procedure. Fees or costs shall be reasonable, particularly in relation to the claim or grievance presented.

(f) The procedure shall provide that the settlement award shall be rendered promptly in writing and be final. There shall be no right of contract market related appeal; the only right of appeal being as provided under applicable law.

(g) The procedure shall not impose any restrictions on the jurisdiction or venue of any court to enforce an award so rendered.

§ 200.3 Voluntary procedure and compulsory payments.

(a) The use by a customer of the procedure established by a contract market pursuant to section 5a(11) of the Commodity Exchange Act, 7 U.S.C. 7a(11), as amended, for settlement of customers' claims and grievances against any member or employee thereof, shall be voluntary.

(b) The procedure established by a contract market pursuant to section 5a(11), of the Commodity Exchange Act, 7 U.S.C. 7a(11), as amended, for settlement of customers' claims and grievances against a member or employee thereof, shall prohibit any agreement or understanding pursuant to which customers agree to submit claims or grievances for settlement under the procedure so established, prior to the time when the claim or grievance arose.

(c) No futures commission merchant, floor broker, associated person or any other person registered with the Commodity Futures Trading Commission under the Commodity Exchange Act, 7 U.S.C. 1, et seq., shall enter into any agreement or understanding with a customer in which a customer agrees to submit claims or grievances pertaining to any matters or transactions subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission to any settlement procedure prior to the time the claim or grievance arose.

(d) The procedure established by a contract market pursuant to section 5a(11) of the Commodity Exchange Act, 7 U.S.C. 7a(11), as amended, for settlement of customers' claims and grievances against any member or employee thereof, may require customers utilizing such procedure to agree under applicable state law, submission agreement or otherwise to be bound by an award rendered in the procedure, before such award is rendered. However, the customer's agreement to submit the claim or grievance to the procedure must have, in any case, been made after the claim or grievance arose. Any award so rendered shall be enforceable in accordance with applicable law.

(e) The procedure established by a contract market pursuant to section 5a(11) of the Commodity Exchange Act, 7 U.S.C. 7a(11), as amended, for the settlement of customers' claims and grievances against any member or employee thereof, shall not establish any unreasonably short limitation period foreclosing submission of customers' claims or grievances to the procedure.

§ 200.4 Counterclaims.

A procedure established by a contract market under section 5a(11) of the Commodity Exchange Act, 7 U.S.C. 7a(11), as amended, for the settlement of customers' claims or grievances against a member or employee thereof may permit the submission of a counterclaim in the procedure by a person against whom a claim is brought. The contract market may permit such a counterclaim where the counterclaim arises out of the transaction or occurrence that is the subject of the customer's claim or grievance and does not require for adjudication the presence of third parties over whom the contract market does not have jurisdiction. Such a counterclaim may not be for an amount in excess of $15,000. Other counterclaims are permissible only if the customer agrees to their submission after the counterclaim has arisen, and if the aggregate monetary value of the counterclaim is capable of calculation and is not in excess of $15,000.

§ 200.5 Other customer claims and grievances.

A contract market may establish a procedure for settlement of customers' claims and grievances against any member or employee thereof, which are not covered by section 5a(11) of the Commodity Exchange Act, 7 U.S.C. 7a(11), as amended. The procedure shall be independent of, and shall not interfere with or delay the resolution of, customers' claims or grievances submitted for resolution under the procedure of a contract market established pursuant to the requirements of section 5a(11). Customers must be warned in writing in advance of the submission of the claim or grievance to this procedure that all formal legal safeguards provided in a court of law may not be available to the parties. This warning shall list, to the extent practicable, those safeguards which will be unavailable. If after receipt of such warning, the customer voluntarily agrees to submit the claim or grievance to the procedure, the procedure may go forward; but the procedure must be shown to be voluntary, and must be fair and equitable as defined by rules §§ 200.2 and 200.3 of this chapter.

§ 200.6 Member-to-member settlement procedures.

A contract market may establish a procedure for settlement of claims and grievances which do not involve customers. If adopted, the procedure shall be independent of, and shall not interfere with or delay the resolution of, customers' claims and grievances submitted for resolution under the procedure established pursuant to section 5a(11) of the Commodity Exchange Act, 7 U.S.C. 7a (11), as amended. Submission of such claims to such a procedure must be accompanied by a written warning, in advance of the submission, that all formal legal safeguards provided in a court of law may not be available to the parties, listing, to the extent practicable, those safeguards which will be unavailable. After receipt of such warning, the parties may voluntarily agree to go forward, but the procedure in such arbitration shall provide sufficient due process safeguards which include, at a minimum, fair and equitable procedures as defined by Rules §§ 200.2 and 200.3 of this chapter, except that the election of panel members contained in Rule § 200.2(a) need not be required.

Interested persons may participate in this proposed rulemaking by submitting comments in written form to the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, 1120 Connecticut Avenue, NW., Washington, D.C. 20036. All comments received on or before September 18, 1975, will be considered before the Commission takes final action on these proposed rules. Copies of all comments received respecting these proposed rules will be available for inspection at the Commission's office in Washington, D.C.

Issued in Washington, D.C., on August 11, 1975.

For the Commission.

2. It appears that good cause has been shown and that the public interest would be served by granting the additional period asked in order to afford the petitioner and other interested parties a full opportunity for the preparation and presentation of their views in this proceeding.

3. Accordingly, it is ordered, Pursuant to §§ 0.331 and 1.46 of the Commission's rules, That the time for filing statements in the above captioned proceeding is extended from August 21, 1975, to September 9, 1975, and for filing reply comments from September 1, 1975, to September 23, 1975.

CABLE TV SYSTEM, CHANNEL CAPACITY, AND ACCESS CHANNEL REQUIREMENTS

Extension of Comment Period

In the matter of amendment of part 76 of the Commission's rules and regulations to modify or eliminate the use of signal strength contours for purposes of cable television system regulation and amendment Concerning the Cable Television Channel Capacity and Access Channel Requirements of § 76.251.

1. Storer Broadcasting Company has requested a change in the comment dates in Docket 20496 from August 11 to October 11, 1975, and in Docket 20508 from August 18 to October 18, 1975.[1] In support of this request Storer states that there are twenty-eight comment or reply comment deadlines in significant broadcast and cable rule makings between July 25 and October 1 and that it is wholly unrealistic to expect that licensees, law firms, engineering firms, citizens groups or the general public can prepare meaningful and helpful comments within such a schedule.

2. In view of the number of proceedings in which comments are scheduled to be filed during August and September some rescheduling of the filing dates appears to be appropriate. The dates for filing comments and reply comments in Docket 20496 will accordingly be changed to October 8 and October 24, 1975. Comments and reply comments in Docket 20508 will be changed to October 3 and November 6, 1975. While this is not the full extension requested, it should provide an adequate opportunity for the preparation of comments and reply comments. Further delay would not appear to be in order in Docket 20508 in view of the Commission's statement in the Report and Order in Docket 20363, FCC 75-821, para. 22, (released July 22, 1975) that it expects "to expeditiously resolve and finalize the proceedings in Docket 20508 in the very near future."

Accordingly, it is ordered, That the dates for filing comments and replies in Docket 20496 are extended to October 8 and October 24, 1975, respectively, and the dates for filing comments in Docket 20508 are extended to October 3 and November 6, 1975, respectively.

This action is taken by the Chief, Cable Television Bureau pursuant to the authority delegated by § 0.288 of the Commission's Rules.

Adopted: July 29, 1975.

Released: August 5, 1975.

CABLE TELEVISION

Definition of Cable Television System; Creation of Classes of Systems

I. BACKGROUND AND SCOPE OF PROCEEDING

1. Notice is hereby given of proposed rule making in the above-entitled matter concerning various portions of § 76.5(a) of the Commission's rules, which defines a "Cable Television System." That definition is as follows:

Cable television system (or CATV system). Any facility that, in whole or in part, receives directly, or indirectly over the air, and amplifies or otherwise modifies the signals transmitting programs broadcast by one or more television or radio stations and distributes such signals by wire or cable to subscribing members of the public who pay for such service, but such term shall not include (1) any such facility that serves fewer than 50 subscribers, or (2) any such facility that serves only the residents of one or more apartment dwellings under common ownership, control, or management, and commercial establishments located on the premises of such an apartment house.

NOTE: In general, each separate and distinct community or municipal entity (including unincorporated communities within unincorporated areas and single, discrete, unincorporated areas) served by cable television facilities constitutes a separate cable television system, even if there is a single headend and identical ownership of facilities extending into several communities, See e.g., Telerama, Inc., 3 FCC 2d 585 (1966); Mission Cable TV, Inc., 4 FCC 2d 236 (1966).

2. This definition has remained essentially unchanged since its first adoption in 1965,[1] with the only significant subsequent changes thereto being the addition of "who pay for such service" in 1966,[2] and the explanatory "NOTE" and reference to the carriage of radio signals in the 1972 Cable Television Report and Order.[3]

3. It has been the subject of numerous requests for interpretations and a clarification of the most troublesome aspects thereof appears warranted. Many state and local authorities have adopted the language of our definition verbatim, and this consideration should also prove valuable for their assistance and guidance. More importantly, however, we believe, as the result of recommendations from our Cable Television Re-Regulation Task Force, that some significant changes in the definition may be in order. The mission of the Task Force is to bring to the Commission various proposals to alleviate undue industry burdens and to eliminate unnecessary regulatory requirements. As stated in the Public Notice of May 15, 1974 (Mimeo 21786) establishing the Task Force:

> It shall be the function of this Task Force to review the Commission's experience to date with each and every one of the cable television rules and forms, seeking to eliminate unnecessary regulations, procedures, and paperwork and to simplify the complicated provisions of Parts 76 and 78 of the Commission's Rules. Each such rule will be analyzed to determine its continuing validity and whether it should be continued, modified or deleted. Particular attention shall be directed toward relief for the small cable television system operator.

The Task Force has suggested that some of the burdens of our cable television rules may be removed from small systems either through a change in the definition or through the adoption of a separately defined class of small systems to which only limited parts of the rules would apply.

4. Discussed below are the following four principal areas of concern relating to the definition:

a. A clarification of the scope of the existing definition particularly as to its application to various types of multiple dwelling unit systems and insofar as the [1] Storer has also sought an extension of time for filing comments in Dockets 20499-501. That request will be acted on in a separate Order. A supporting statement was filed by the law firm of Fletcher, Heald, Rowell, Kenehan and Hildreth.

definition requires that service be paid for;

b. A proposed change in the rules to relieve small system operators from burdens imposed by the rules either by raising the 50 subscriber exemption to a higher figure or by establishing an abbreviated set of rules that would be applied only to a defined class of small systems, or some combination of these; and a related consideration of the possible creation of a "reception only" class of cable system.

c. A proposed change in the definition to include within its scope certain large apartment building "master antenna systems" that perform the same functions as cable television systems;

d. A consideration of certain problems created by the "NOTE" to the rule, which requires that if cable plant crosses several community boundaries, plant within each political subdivision be treated as a separate "cable television system."

5. At the outset, it is important to note that we are concerned with what exclusions and exceptions should be applied to our jurisdiction as a matter of administrative discretion. While legal limits on our jurisdiction are, of course, always relevant, the primary question with which we are concerned here is with the proper parameters of our regulatory scheme as a matter of policy rather than to determine the scope of our jurisdiction as a matter of law.

II. Scope of Existing Definition

6. Before considering possible changes in the cable television system definition, it is important to know the scope of the existing definition. Although the rule would seem to be fairly clear on its face, we have received numerous requests for rulings as to whether particular types of wired television signal distribution systems fall within its limits.

7. Mobile Home Park Systems. For some time arguments have been made that facilities serving mobile home parks are akin to those serving apartment buildings and are not intended to be covered by the cable television system definition. We ruled on one such contention in Bayhead Mobile Home Park, Leon County, Florida,[4] and believe, for the sake of completeness, that it is worth restating our conclusion here. There the Bayhead Mobile Home Park proposed to construct a system totally upon its own premises which would serve only its potential 250 residents. Bayhead owned the land and leased lots to tenants who owned their own mobile homes. Bayhead sought an interpretative ruling that it would not be within the scope of our rules because it would maintain common management and control of the development. We there concluded:

> We find that Bayhead's proposed facility is a "cable television system" as defined by § 76.5(a) and that Bayhead is consequentially subject to our cable television regulations. We cannot agree that mobile homes can be considered "apartment dwellings." There is a real and effectual difference between a single structure that has been wired to provide antenna services to its component residences, and an externally wired community of individual mobile homes. Moreover, in this particular case Bayhead admits that the individual mobile homes will be owned by the subscribers themselves, and that only the land upon which these residences will rest will be owned by Bayhead. This circumstance must weigh heavily against any attempt to equate these mobile homes with "apartment dwellings" or to show true "common ownership, control, or management."[5]

8. Planned and Resort Communities. Similarly, "planned" and resort communities have been held to fall within our definition, despite the fact that they often operate on private land and utilize no public rights-of-way, and serve only residents of the private community rather than the general public. See, e.g., Citizens Development Corporation, supra; Sanwick Cablevision, Inc., FCC 74–888, 48 FCC 2d 563 (1974); Big Canoe Television System, FCC 74–623, 47 FCC 2d 455 (1974); Leacom, Inc., FCC 74–903, 48 FCC 2d 533 (1974).

9. Military Installations. Another broad category of multiple housing units consists of those located on federal land, including, but not limited to, military installations, Indian reservations, and federal housing units. To date, the Commission has only had experience with military installations. The general pattern there has been for private cable television systems to negotiate with the military installation, as the quasi-franchising authority, for authorization to construct and operate a cable system to serve the residents. In such situations, we consistently have determined that such units are encompassed by our definition and rules, but, because of the unusual nature of military operations and contract procedures, have waived the public proceeding requirements of Section 76.31(a)(1) and (4) of our rules. See, e.g., Robert D. Lewis d/b/a Cable Antenna Systems, FCC 75–604, —— FCC 2d —— (1975); Cable Antenna Systems, FCC 75–646, —— FCC 2d —— (1974). Significantly, we have attached no importance to the fact that such systems are constructed and operated on federal property. Should questions arise in the future with respect to multiple housing units, other than military installations, located in federal land, we shall apply our general regulatory approach to such situations. We note, in this connection, that because of the nature of their construction and operation, certain public housing units might be exempt from our rules as an apartment house complex under common ownership and control.

10. Condominium, co-operative apartment, hotel, and motel systems. Excluded from the scope of the definition are systems serving "apartment dwellings under common ownership, control, or management, and commercial establishments located on the premises of such an apartment house." Questions have arisen from time to time as to whether the nature of the leasehold on the dwelling unit where the subscribers are located is determinative as to the application of this exclusion. That is, it might be argued that the term "apartment dwellings" as used in the definition covers only rental apartments and not those owned individually or on a co-operative basis by their residents or occupied by transients as in a hotel or motel. It is our preliminary view that there is no reason to make such distinctions (for they serve no regulatory purpose) and we propose to interpret the terms "apartment dwellings" and "apartment house" as essentially synonymous with multiple family dwelling; however, because of the important ramifications of such a clarification, we seek comments on the appropriateness of this interpretation. Thus, should our tentative approach be utilized, we would not follow interpretations from real estate law that, for example, a hotel is not an apartment house. Nor would we find within the definition a high rise condominium "apartment house" simply because each resident owned rather than rented his particular portion of the structure. Even with this explanation, gray areas continue to exist, especially as the facility in question starts to service garden apartments, garden condominium apartment complexes, garden apartment communities, townhouse duplex condominium communities and other similar situations which differ significantly from the traditional high rise apartment building. Hopefully, at the conclusion of this proceeding we will be in a better position to make meaningful distinctions based on the intended purpose of the definition adopted. In the meantime, judgments will have to be made based on comparing particular fact situations to the definition as it now exists.

11. "Payment." For definitional purposes, a cable facility is not subject to regulation unless it has subscribers who "pay" for cable service. Issues have arisen as to whether a particular facility, typically a mobile home park installation or a system installed in a new housing development, comes within the scope of the definition when there is no specific monthly subscription fee but rather some form of less direct payment.

12. In our Memorandum Opinion and Order in Docket 18397, FCC 71–258, 28 FCC 2d 13, 15 (1971), we stated:

> Whether payment is on a periodic or occasional basis, and whether it is a separate payment or only an unspecified element of a dwelling, rental charge is immaterial • • •

In short, we have not found the manner of payment to be of jurisdictional significance. For definitional purposes, it does not matter whether the payment is separate or combined with a general service, recreational, or rental fee, whether the payment is made directly or through some intermediary such as a homeowners' association, whether the payment is in the form of a capital contribution or service fee, or whether the bulk payment is made for a number of subscribers rather than an individual payment for each subscriber.

[4] FCC 74–589, —— FCC 2d —— (1974).

[5] In this connection, see also Pacific Western Mobile Estates, Inc., FCC 74–1058, —— FCC 2d —— (1974).

13. Illustrative of our holding that payment of any nature triggers our definition is our recent action in Citizens Development Corporation, FCC 75–506, —— FCC 2d —— (1975). There a corporation providing cable television service to some 700 homes in a privately owned development in Lake San Marcos, California petitioned for relief from the applicability of our definition, asserting that it should be considered a "master antenna system" rather than a cable television system stating, inter alia, that with respect to the element of payment there was no installation fee and that for operating costs the homeowners paid only $48 annually to a non-profit corporation which was losing money. We concluded that the subject controversy involved a cable television system as defined by Section 76.5(a) of the rules and further denied a requested waiver thereof. With respect to the element of payment, we noted that ". . . we attach little significance to the fact that Citizens' subscribers pay only an annual fee for its services."

14. The situation of truly free service is illustrated by our proceeding in California Antenna T-V, Inc., FCC 74–208, —— FCC 2d —— (1974). There in 1958, a cable television company gave notice that it intended to operate a system to serve a Stockton, California residential development. This application was opposed by a local television station, thus triggering the mandatory stay provisions of former Section 74.1105(c) of the rules. The cable company, however, commenced operations by providing free service, thus placing it outside our definition. In 1972, it requested a certificate of compliance, urging that it had been a cable television system all along and requested grandfather rights. We rejected that argument, holding that it had not maintained an operating cable television system within the meaning of our definition and that it thus was not entitled to any grandfather status. And in our recent reconsideration of this same proceeding, we affirmed this basic holding, and noted that the "free" service occurred here because the developer absorbed all the construction costs and the cable company had absorbed all the operating costs.

15. It follows that under our established interpretation of "payment," it is extremely difficult for non-apartment developments to avoid coming within the scope of our definition when providing television service to 50 or more residents. For example, even if there were no direct installation and/or operating charges and a developer merely included the costs thereof in the computation of basic charges, this nevertheless would constitute an "unspecified" element of a dwelling rental charge. The Commission's Re-Regulation Task Force has received comments from the Western Mobilehome Association and others who urge that we should not interpret our definition so strictly and should, for example, permit an exemption where cable service is only an unspecified portion of a management or rental fee, or where payment is made to a non-profit corporation. The rationale of such comments is that such parties do not intend to engage in the "cable television business," often do not seek to make a profit from such service, and often furnish only an off-the-air reception service. While we understand the desire not to be subject to our regulations, we believe that should be accomplished through a rule change rather than through a rule interpretation. The possibility of such a change is appropriate for comment in connection with the matters discussed below.

16. Subscriber count. Questions have arisen from time to time as to how a cable system operator should count bulk-rate subscribers in multiple dwelling units. In view of the 50 subscriber exemption, this has definitional consequences. It is also important because several of our rules, including those relating to network nonduplication protection and cablecasting equipment requirements, are triggered by subscriber count.

17. Section 1.1116(b) of the rules relating to fees paid by cable system operators and the instructions for completing our FCC Form 325 "Annual Report of Cable Television Systems" provide a means of making the appropriate calculation. The Form 325 instructions provide:

> In determining the number of subscribers to a cable television system (Question 5), where the system offers bulk rates to multiple-outlet subscribers, such as apartment house or motel operators, each bulk-rate contract is viewed as a number of subscriptions to be calculated by dividing the total annual charge for the bulk-rate contract by the system's basic annual subscription rate for an individual household. (Thus, for example, if a cable television system charges an apartment house operator $1000 a year for a bulk-rate contract and charges individual households a basic rate of $50 per year, the bulk-rate contract is counted as 20 subscriptions (i.e., 1000÷50=20)). Where a variety of "annual subscription rates" for individual households exists (e.g., $50 per year, if paid in one sum, or $60 per year, if paid on a per-month basis), the rate used in the subscriber formula should be the lowest annual rate which is offered to individual subscribers ($50 here). Likewise, if the bulk-rate contract is on a monthly basis, it should be divided by the lowest monthly rate which is offered. In the preceding example, a $50 per year charge should be viewed as a charge of $4.17 per month.

18. This formula is one also utilized by many cable television systems for internal purposes and is commonly referred to as the "comparable" approach—i.e., how many comparable individual subscribers are represented by each bulk-rate unit served. The "comparable" approach would appear to be a useful economic tool for system operators, functioning as a common denominator for all systems. It is not, however, a precisely accurate method of calculating the exact number of subscribing households. For example, continued usage of our present approach creates anomalous results in counting "subscribers" who live in apartment buildings, depending upon whether they are billed individually or on a bulk-rate. An apartment house with 50 units and individual billing of $5 each per month would have 50 "subscribers"; if, however, the same apartment building made a single point tie-in to the cable system and had a bulk-rate billing of $1000 per year, according to the above formula there would be only 17 subscribers ($1000 annually ÷ $60 annual individual rate = 17 subscribers).

19. While this method of calculating subscribers has certain drawbacks, it has been commonly used both in our rules and by the industry and is, we believe, an acceptable method under the existing definition.[6] And it is our preliminary view that the "comparable" formula should be retained because it appears to be the best available solution to a difficult problem and broadly aids in reflecting a system's financial ability to comply with our respective rules. We do, however, seek to devise a means of obtaining more accurate statistics, but perhaps an amendment to our reporting forms would be the most appropriate means. In any event, we seek the comments of interested parties in this area.

III. Changes in Exemption Level and Classes of Systems

20. As preivously indicated, since our initial exercise of jurisdiction over cable television systems we have provided a specific exemption for those facilities which serve fewer than 50 subscribers. Among the most numerous and urgent suggestions made to the Re-Regulation Task Force has been the suggestion that small cable operators be relieved from regulatory burdens by raising this exemption to some higher level. In response to these suggestions, we propose for consideration several possible courses of action which could be adopted as a response to these suggestions. The first would be to raise the exemption level. The second would be to establish a separate class or category of small cable systems that would be subject only to limited regulation. A third would be the possible creation of a "reception only" class of cable system.

21. The following factors prompt us to consider these first two proposals. First, functions performed by systems of small size may differ considerably from those of larger systems. Small systems are typically passive and perform antenna functions alone without engaging in program origination or the provision of access services. Second, the cost of compliance with particular rules may fall disproportionately heavily on small systems. With a large subscriber base such costs, on a per subscriber basis, may be negligible. With a small subscriber base they are likely to be of far greater consequence. Third, small systems in performing their broadcast signal distribution functions may, even in the aggregate, have sufficiently few subscribers so that their operations are unlikely to impact significantly on over-the-air television broadcast service to the public. Finally, in terms of our own limited administrative resources, we may accomplish more by focusing our energies on larger operations than by attempting to regulate all systems regardless of size. These, and related considerations, have resulted in our recent decision to exempt from compliance with our non-duplication rules, systems and conglomerates of systems serving fewer than 1000 subscribers.[7]

22. We believe it appropriate to now consider, on a general basis, whether further across-the-board or specific exemptions from our rules are not appropriate.

23. While we have heretofore from our rules systems with fewer than 50 subscribers, we believe it might be appropriate to totally exempt systems with as many as 250 subscribers.[8] In the main, it is not anticipated that a change upward in the system size to be exempt would have an adverse impact, either upon broadcasters or upon our broad regulatory program. And it would lift a potentially heavy burden of regulation from these small operations. Indeed it seems reasonable to assume, as comments to the Re-Regulation Task Force have suggested, that this exemption may permit some systems to come into being where that would not otherwise have been possible. The systems with which we are here concerned already are exempt from our network exclusivity rules and are proposed for exemption from our syndicated exclusivity and access and channel capacity requirements.[9] Insofar as signal carriage is concerned, these systems overwhelmingly function as off-the-air reception services only. Systems under 250 subscribers, for example, do not generally use microwave services. With respect to the regulatory importance of such systems, it would appear that collectively they neither affect a substantial portion of nationwide subscribers nor, even when there are direct charges, do their revenues have substantial impact. Rather, with the administrative burden of regulating systems of smaller size put aside, we could better concentrate our regulatory efforts on the emerging aspects of this technology.

24. As an alternative or as a supplement to this approach, we solicit comments upon whether we should consider the establishment of a defined class of small cable or "community antenna television" systems to which only limited regulation would apply. As indicated above, we have already exempted systems with under 1000 subscribers from compliance with the network nonduplication rules and have proposed this as a cut-off for application of other parts of the rules. We believe it appropriate to look at all systems of under 1000 subscribers as a class for the purpose of determining whether there are other parts of the rules, procedural and substantive, from which they might be exempted,[10]; however, we specifically solicit comments directed to this point.

25. For purposes of this consideration, our rules may roughly be broken into the following areas:

a. Mandatory signal carriage.
b. Distant signal carriage limitations.
c. Network nonduplication and syndicated program exclusivity.
d. Franchise standards.
e. Technical standards.
f. Ownership restrictions.
g. Equal employment opportunity rules.
h. Subscription television rules.
i. Access and program origination rules.
j. Reporting requirements.
k. Record keeping and public inspection file obligations.
l. Certificate of compliance requirement.
m. Fee payment.

26. While the sum of these rules may appear to impose an onerous burden on a small system operation, the selection of those which are non-essential is not an easy task, for each of the rules was originally adopted to serve some public purpose. However, as mentioned above we have already eliminated compliance with network nonduplication rules and have proposed a like step with respect to the syndicated program exclusivity rules. Moreover, whether or not the full requirements of our access, channel capacity, and two-way capacity rules should apply to such systems is under review in Docket 20508. Once a small system is in operation, these might well be considered the most onerous of the rules because they change a passive facility into one which is active and begins to require tending by full time employees. To some extent, record keeping and public inspection file requirements also fall in this category and may be among the burden smaller systems should not have to bear.

27. Technical standards represent another area in which we have received complaints of undue regulatory burden from small system operators. Because we believe it so basic that subscribers receive acceptable picture quality from the systems they subscribe to, we are hesitant to suggest any changes in this area. These standards represent a justifiable minimum set of specifications which must be met in order for the subscribing public to be assured of a satisfactory signal. The standards are not onerous. However, the Task Force has received comments from a few small systems which indicate that in order to meet our technical standards by the 1977 date, they will have to rebuild their entire system, and cannot do so in so short a time frame. This, however, appears to be a very unusual circumstance and, accordingly, it is our view that such a problem should be treated upon an ad hoc basis rather than as a rule modification for smaller systems. A broader area of complaint by smaller systems is that the equipment necessary for tests to show compliance with our technical standards is particularly expensive for smaller systems. In this connection we note preliminarily that many systems either have initiated cooperative ventures for the temporary use of such equipment or employed outside consultants to conduct the tests; further, and by way of potential future relief, the Cable Television Technical Advisory Committee (CTAC) recently submitted recommendations, which we now have under consideration, for simplified testing procedures utilizing much less expensive equipment. While we are not prepared in this proceeding to review the use of such procedures by systems generally, we do propose to consider whether there are means of simplifying the test procedures for small systems, bearing in mind that while such tests may suffer from some defects, they may still be the most cost effective to the subscribing public when used by the class of systems here under consideration.[11]

28. Another area in which we propose to consider changes in the rules is in our application of franchise standards in small system communities. Without denigrating in any way the general importance of these standards, it is probably fair to say that strict compliance with them is less consequential in situations where program origination and access services are not likely to be taking place. Moreover, because our standards generally require only what a reasonable franchising authority would undertake on its own, our experience has been that small systems are not troubled by complying with the spirit of those regulations so much as with providing proof of compliance with the letter of the rules in the Certificate of Compliance process. Accordingly, we propose for consideration a simplification of the franchise standards as they apply to small systems. We specifically solicit comments as to which of our franchise standards—public proceeding, construction, franchise period, rates, complaint procedures, modifications, fees, etc.—could be eliminated or modified with respect to these smaller systems and the rationale therefore. We also seek comments upon the possible use of an alternative approach whereunder smaller systems would be exempted from any certificate of compliance filings with the Commission other than a listing of signals proposed to be carried, which would be reviewed and approved unless inconsistent with applicable signal carriage provisions.

29. Finally, it may be possible to apply to these smaller cable systems a simplified set of signal carriage rules so that systems of this size carrying only signals picked up off-the-air would not be subject to the complications of our general signal carriage rules.

30. In sum, we seek for small cable systems a simplified, streamlined version of the rules consistent with the size and functions performed by these systems, the needs of the public, and an appropriate allocation of our limited administrative and enforcement resources. Depending upon the nature of any substantial rule changes adopted, it may be possible to eliminate or significantly simplify the Certificate of Compliance procedure applicable to these systems.

31. Lastly, we wish to explore the possible creation of a "reception only" class of cable system. Our Re-Regulation Task Force has received numerous comments asserting that traditional "reception only" systems are totally different from the emerging municipal broadband systems and should be treated differently. Many of the above arguments made for lesser regulation of smaller systems under 1,000 subscribers are equally applicable in this consideration. We note, at the outset, that some systems in this category are quite large and furnish the only television service available to numerous subscribers. Nevertheless, this rule making proceeding affords the opportunity for a thorough review of this proposal and we solicit comments upon all aspects thereof, including whether a size limitation is appropriate. Thus, we think it appropriate to consider whether the fact that a system utilizes only off-air signals and does not receive microwave service and distributes no cablecast programming should be grounds for the application of no rules or a different type of rules. If program origination or the provision of access services is used as one criteria for any general application of rules, rather than only those limited aspects specifically pertaining to such services, we are concerned that systems may to some extent be discouraged from initiating these services. Commenting parties are encouraged to address the question of how this can be avoided.

IV. Application of Rules to Systems in Large Multiple Family Dwelling Units

32. Under the existing definition, and assuming the adoption of the clarification we are proposing to make (Para. 10, supra), no highrise apartment building or commonly owned apartment building complex MATV or cable television communications facility would be subject to the Commission's cable television regulations. We raise for discussion here the question of whether this should continue to be the situation regardless of the size or functions performed by the facilities in question and whether some or all of the Commission cable rules ought not be applied. The question is, we think, not one of jurisdiction but one of policy. We regulate cable television systems for a number of reasons. Rules mandating local signal carriage, limiting distant signal carriage, providing network nonduplication protection and syndicated program exclusivity, and anti-siphoning rules applicable to subscription programming have been adopted for the purpose of protecting the quality and quantity of conventional broadcast service available to the public. We have adopted rules relating to system ownership, program originations, and access channels and have pre-empted various state or local regulations, such as those prohibiting subscription operations, with the general objective of promoting first amendment values in diversity of programming. We have adopted technical standards, franchise standards, and various other rules felt necessary as consumer (subscriber) protections in areas where it was felt normal market forces might not be adequate to provide a sufficient balance of protection. The question we now raise is to what extent these same policies ought to be applied to systems serving large (500 or 1000 unit?) multiple family dwellings. It appears particularly appropriate to consider this step at the same time we consider relief from regulation for small cable systems since each proposal involves a consideration of the proper application of all or a particular portion of our rules.

33. Arguments will, of course, be made as to why systems of this type should not be regulated. It might be felt that such systems are too small to originate programming, and thus not potentially the subject of rules intended to promote diversity of programming and that they carry generally all local signals and no distant signals and are not engaged in the delivery of subscription programming and thus not in need of regulation to protect conventional broadcast service to the public. Moreover, because service is generally offered to all residents, without direct charge, in a protected environment, rate controls, technical standards and other consumer protections are not needed. And that, in the aggregate, there are a sufficiently limited number of "subscribers" to such systems with limited problems that it would not be an efficient use of the Commission's resources to attempt their regulation.

34. Although these arguments may be persuasive as to why some of our rules ought not be applied to all MATV type systems, it is clear that some such systems do carry distant television broadcast signals as that concept is defined in our cable television rules and that some such systems suffer from poor technical quality. Moreover, such systems, generally through interconnection via multipoint distribution common carrier service, are increasingly involved in the distribution of pay television programming. Also, there would appear to be no reason why large systems of this type could not engage in access, leased channel, or other types of program origination.

35. The same reasons that have compelled us to regulate cable television systems in these areas would seem equally applicable to similar facilities serving large apartment houses or apartment house complexes.

36. There are, of course, differences as well as similarities which would have to be recognized in any rules adopted. Because no use is made of local rights-of-way, for example, such systems would rarely be required by local laws to obtain a franchise before commencing operation. This fact would have to be recognized in any regulations we might apply to such systems. Likewise different construction standards would have to be recognized in any technical standards applied.[12]

37. Because of these differences, we believe it appropriate to consider these facilities as a separate class of system and, in contrast with our consideration of what rules ought not apply to small cable systems, to consider which, if any, of our rules ought be applied. Initially, it would appear that the most likely rules to be applied would include the signal carriage rules, the subscription cablecasting rules, technical standards, and, perhaps, modified access channel rules.

V. "Separate and Distinct Community" and "Headend" Concepts

39. The "NOTE" portion of our definition was added in 1972 to reflect the Commission's previous rulings, such as the two cited therein, that for our definitional purposes each separate and distinct community shall be considered as a separate cable system, irrespective of technical system configuration. In the Telerama proceeding, the issue was one of unauthorized extension of service into new, incorporated areas; in the Mission proceeding, the issue was one of unauthorized extension of service to a separate and distinct community within an unincorporated area. In both instances we concluded that separate cable systems had been created and needed to be treated as such.

40. Several purposes are served by the use of our "separate and distinct community" approach—compliance with our signal carriage rules, the prevention of the expansion of "grandfathered" signals from a small community to a newly served large neighboring metropolitan area, compliance with our franchising requirements concerning local participation and approval, and the application of our "access" rules in major market situations upon a community by community basis. In principle, we feel that these objectives are both meritorious and are served by our "separate and distinct community" policy. However, our Re-Regulation Task Force has received numerous comments concerning both practical and philosophical problems therewith. Since this proceeding is the first review of all

[7] First Report and Order in Docket 19995, FCC 75-413, —— FCC 2d —— (1975).

[8] We would not propose the inclusion here of such systems which are technically connected with other systems.

[9] Notice of Proposed Rule Making in Docket 20482, FCC 75-541, —— FCC 2d —— (1975); Notice of Proposed Rule Making in Docket 20508, FCC 75-644, —— FCC 2d —— (1975). And to the extent such systems are located outside of television markets, they are not limited by our rules in the number of television signals they may distribute.

[10] Some of the following discussion might more aptly apply to systems in small communities than to small systems since subscriber numbers are not known until a system is fully constructed. We believe it would be possible to reasonably accurately predict the size of community that would be likely to support a 1000 or less subscriber system, and, recognize that such a conversion may be necessary, depending on the type rules adopted. We use the 1000 subscriber number in the following discussion for the sake of simplicity.

[11] We note in this context that Canadian regulatory authorities have recently adopted test procedures for cable systems that depend in their application on the size and potential size of the system in question.

[12] For example, some MATV systems distribute UHF television on UHF channels rather than converting them to VHF channels as cable systems do. Technical standards applied would have to recognize this difference.

aspects of our definition, it is appropriate to open the "separate and distinct community" doctrine for review, comment, and possible modification. More particularly, we inquire as to how the use of a "headend" or "conglomerate system" approach, as contrasted with the present "community" approach, should be reflected in any amended definition.

41. In our recent network program nonduplication proceeding,[13] in raising the exclusionary number of subscribers from 500 to 1000, we amended the rule so as to provide a calculation based upon a headend concept. Specifically, the new rule (Section 76.95(b)) provides for an exemption "to a cable television system serving fewer than 1000 subscribers or to a conglomerate of commonly owned and techically integrated systems serving fewer than 1000 subscribers • • • ." (Emphasis supplied). Similarly, in our action deleting the mandatory program origination rule but requiring cablecasting equipment availability,[14] we utilized the number of 3,500 subscribers, again calculated upon the same headend basis. Another related action where a headend criteria is permitted to be utilized, as opposed to each separate community, is in our pending amendment of the Cable Television Annual Financial Report (FCC Form 326)[15] where we propose to delete the existing "five community" filing limitation and to permit a consolidated filing for a single operating entity "keeping a consolidated set of bookkeeping records, and technologically connected either by private microwave or cable." Our most recent utilization of the headend concept is in our proposal to modify our syndicated program exclusivity rules[16] to parallel the 1000 subscriber exemption now applicable to network program exclusivity. We further note that in the recent report of the Steering Committee of the Cable Television Technical Advisory Committee (CTAC), a recommendation is made to permit measurements for compliance with our technical standards upon the basis of a conglomerate system's technical configuration rather than the present community by community requirement. The above described actions are a recognition by the Commission, via official rule changes, of the practcal functioning of the cable television industry.

42. Our interest here is how to further expand the utilization of the headend concept for broader, basic definitional purposes, such as the CTAC proposal. Is it possible, for example, to redefine a cable system upon a headend basis and to utilize the separate community standard only within the context of the franchising process? Could there then be a single Certificate of Compliance issued for each headend entity, with the application therefor merely attaching a compliant franchise from each community within which operations are conducted? Another possible use of the headend concept has been proposed to the Re-Regulation Task Force in connection with the undertaking of "significant viewing" surveys pursuant to § 76.54(b) of our rules. That is, we presently require a separate survey for each individual community where a cable system seeks to demonstrate that a television signal is significantly viewed. Thus, in areas where several communities are served by a common headend, a separate survey must be conducted for each community. Parties who have conducted such tests have complained to the Task Force that such a requirement is unduly costly and have suggested that a system-wide survey is less expensive and more logical. Lastly, we wish to explore the possible use of a headend concept in connection with the extension of existing cable television service into smaller adjacent communities. One principal purpose of declaring each separate community to be a separate cable system was to prevent the extension of grandfathered signals from an older, smaller community into a new and larger community. This basic premise still is valid—but, what of extending existing service from a larger headend complex to a smaller new area? The Task Force has received numerous comments from older system operators who report that this aspect of our definition often prevents them from extending service from their existing headend into nearby communities. They explain that where the nearby community is small, as is often the case, the construction of a separate headend cannot be justified, and yet a line extension is not possible because the older systems generally carry signals not permissible in new areas, and the costs of signal trapping, etc. are prohibitive. The net result is that such areas, which often are rural in nature and underserved by off-air signals, will, absent a change in our approach, remain without cable service. Specific comments on these or other possible uses of the "headend" or "conglomerate" cable system definition are requested.

VI. Grandfathering

43. Our various proposals for modifying the present definition of a cable system, whether by changing the exemption criteria or by establishing different classes of systems with varying regulatory obligations, raise grandfathering issues. For instance, should multiple housing units lose any existing television service as a result of classification under a revised rule? Our general intention is to adopt a provision that will grandfather any service provided by a multiple housing unit on the effective date of any rule changes. Although it is unlikely that any of the proposed rule changes would require any existing cable facilities to be rebuilt in order to meet any of our regulatory requirements (carriage, access, technical standards), comments are requested on whether rebuilding should be required and, if so, under what circumstances and over what time frame. Could rebuilding in certain instances be so costly as to become prohibitive, or are we primarily faced wtih the addition of converters in order to provide additional channels?

44. A more complex grandfathering problem concerns the transition of cable-like facilities from exempt "MATV" status to treatment as a regulated cable television system or from one class of cable regulation to another class. For instance, the persent rules (Section 76.11(a)) prohibit a cable system from commencing operations until it receives a certificate of compliance. Does a system "commence operations" when it becomes non-exempt? If so, what regulatory requirements must be met at that time or thereafter? (Certainly, suspension of operations pending certification is not contemplated.) How soon after changing regulatory classes must a cable system meet the requirements of that class, or should it be permanently grandfathered? One approach might be to allow a fixed period of time after transition, say 6 months, for compliance to occur, absent special relief granting a longer period of time or total grandfathering. Another approach would give the system until March 31, 1977, to obtain a certificate and meet all regulatory requirements; however, annual reporting requirements would begin immediately. If the transition occurred after March 31, 1977, a fixed period would be allowed for transition. Comments are solicited on these and other approaches to grandfathering.

VII. Conclusion

45. In sum we propose for consideration in this proceeding:

a. Relief for small cable television systems from inappropriate and burdensome regulation through either a change in the existing 50 subscriber exemption or the creation of a category of small cable television systems to which only limited regulation applies or some combination of both of these;

b. The adoption of appropriate regulation for master antenna type facilities in large multi-unit buildings including rules designed to assure residents of such buildings access to cable television service;

c. Recognition in the rules that cable television systems as technical and economic units do not stop at precise political community boundaries;

d. The adoption of appropriate grandfathering rules to ease the burdens of any displacements that may result in the change in application of our rules.

46. Comments are requested not only on the broad philosophical questions here involved but also on the precise particulars of how the rules in question may be appropriately revised. Because the questions raised are far reaching in their consequences and are particularly complex in many respects, we are providing a comment period considerably longer than that usually provided.

47. Authority for the proposed rule making instituted herein is contained in sections 4(i), 303 and 403 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended.

[Docket No. 20560; RM-2522; FCC 75-945]

NATIONWIDE POLICE EMERGENCY COMMUNICATIONS CHANNEL

Proposed Designation

In the matter of amendment of part 89 of the Commission's rules and regulations to designate the frequency 155.475 MHz as a common, nationwide police emergency communications channel.

1. The Commission has before it the Petition for Rule Making filed by the Associated Public-Safety Communications Officers, Inc. (APCO) (RM-2522), requesting the Commission to designate the frequency 155.475 MHz for use, on a nationwide basis, in police emergency communications networks operated under state-wide law enforcement emergency communication plans.

2. The present rules allow the use of police frequencies for inter-system communication in the Police Radio Service; however, these rules do not provide for a national, common emergency channel.[1]

3. APCO cites wide interest among police officials in the designation of such a nationwide police emergency channel. Additionally, the International Association of Chiefs of Police, Inc. (IACP) have supported the proposal.

4. Several states employ such a common emergency channel on a state-wide basis,[2] and have demonstrated that police response to a wide variety of emergency situations requiring multi-jurisdictional action can be enhanced through the use of such facilities. However, APCO points out that the development of such emergency communications networks has been hampered by the difficulty in finding a single Police Radio Service channel available throughout a state which can be set aside for use as an emergency channel. Additionally, since adjacent states do not always select the same channels for their emergency radio networks, the inherent benefits of such systems has not been realized. Accordingly, APCO believes that the reservation of a frequency in the Police Radio Service for use as a national police emergency channel would be beneficial.

5. APCO suggests 155.475 MHz as the most plausible frequency for the common emergency channel. The frequency is limited now to use in state police systems; and, because of this, APCO feels the number of licensees involved in possible shifts to other frequencies would be minimized.

6. It is also urged that similar nationwide emergency frequencies be designated in both the 450 MHz and 900 MHz bands to preclude "rechannelization" in the future when those bands reach the level of loading now experienced in the VHF high band. Comments are invited concerning the designation of frequencies in these bands for nationwide emergency service.

7. In view of the foregoing, we propose to amend § 89.309(h) of the Rules to designate the frequency 155.475 MHz for use in police emergency communications networks operated under statewide law enforcement emergency communications plans. In addition, comments are requested as to whether there is a further need for similar channel allocations in the 450 MHz and 900 MHz bands.

8. To avoid unnecessary hardship that may be imposed on existing licensees on this channel, we propose to allow existing operations on 155.475 MHz to continue until January 1, 1980. This should provide adequate time for these licenses to amortize the costs of existing equipment and to plan alternative means for meeting their communication requirements.

9. The proposed rule amendment is issued under §§ 4(i) and 303(r) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended. Pursuant to applicable procedures set forth in § 1.415 of the Commission's Rules, interested persons may file comments on or before September 22, 1975, and reply comments on or before September 30, 1975. All relevant and timely comments will be considered by the Commission before final action is taken in this proceeding. In reaching its decision, the Commission may also take into account other relevant information before it, in addition to the specific comments invited by this notice.

10. In accordance with the provisions of § 1.419 of the Commission's Rules, an original and fourteen copies of all statements, briefs, or comments filed shall be furnished the Commission. Responses will be available for public inspection during regular business hours in the Commission's Public Reference Room at its headquarters in Washington, D.C.

Adopted: August 1, 1975.

Released: August 7, 1975.

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION,
[SEAL] VINCENT J. MULLINS,
Secretary.

It is proposed that the Commission's rules and regulations be amended as follows:

Section 89.309(g) is amended by the addition of a new limitation (20) to the frequency 155.475 MHz, and paragraph (h) is amended to read as follows:

§ 89.309 Frequencies available to the police radio service.

(g) • • •

| Frequency or band | Class of stations(s) | Limitations |
|---|---|---|
| • • • • • | | |
| MHz | | |
| • • • • • | | |
| 155.475 | do | 20 |

(h) • • •

(20) The frequency 155.475 MHz shall be available on a nationwide basis and shall be assigned for use in police emergency communications networks operated under statewide law enforcement emergency communication plans. Operations presently authorized on 155.475 MHz which are not in accordance with this limitation may continue until January 1, 1980.

OLD OIL DECONTROL PROGRAM

Congressional Action

In the revised amendment to phase out old oil price ceilings over a 39-month period which the FEA issued on July 25, 1975 (40 FR 31741, July 29, 1975) the FEA, noting that the program was subject to disapproval by either house of Congress under § 4(g)(2) of the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973, stated that it planned to issue a notice stating what congressional action, if any, was taken under § 4(g)(2) on the decontrol program.

The revised amendment was submitted to the Congress on July 25, and on July 30, 1975, the House of Representatives adopted a resolution disapproving that amendment.

In accordance with § 4(g)(2) of the Act, therefore, the amendment adopted by FEA on July 25, 1975, shall not take effect.

[1] Section 89.307(c) of the Commission's Rules authorizes inter-zone use in the Police Radio Service. A zone is normally considered to be a single state.

[2] The Illinois State Police Emergency Radio Network (ISPERN), using 154.680 MHz, and the Wisconsin Police Emergency Radio Network, using 155.475 MHz, are two such states having successful emergency (state-wide) radio networks.

FEDERAL SAVINGS AND LOAN SYSTEM

Proposed Amendments Relating to Satellite Offices

AUGUST 6, 1975.

The following summary of the amendment proposed by this resolution is provided for the reader's convenience and is subject to the specific provisions of the regulations.

I. Existing and proposed regulations. The present limitations concerning satellite offices would be changed by:

A. Deleting the limitations concerning the following:

(1) the number of applications which the same association may file in any 12-month period (the present limitation is 2);

(2) the number of satellite offices which the same association may operate at any one time (the present limitation is 5); and

(3) the maximum operating period which will be approved as to an initial application (the present limitation is 5 years as to an initial application; a renewal application may presently be approved without a time limit).

The Board proposes also to delete any limitation on the maximum operating period as to all applications approved by the Board prior to the date of any final regulation adopted pursuant to this proposal and to provide that such approvals shall be deemed to have been made without a time limit on the future operation of such satellite offices. However, a time limit may be specified in a future approval of a particular application.

B. Increasing the permissible maximum floor space per office from 500 to 1000 square feet.

C. Clarifying that the "primary service area" of an applicant will be determined as of the time of the filing of the application for permission to establish the new facility.

II. Reason for the proposal. Experience under the present regulations indicates that certain present limitations as to satellite offices may not be needed at this time.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board considers it desirable to propose amendments to § 545.14–5 of the Rules and Regulations for the Federal Savings and Loan System (12 CFR 545.14–5) for the purpose of deleting, liberalizing or clarifying certain provisions as stated in the above summary of the amendments proposed by this resolution and as provided in the regulations set forth below.

Interested persons are invited to submit written data, views and arguments to the Office of the Secretary, Federal Home Loan Bank Board, 320 First Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20552, by September 16, 1975, as to whether this proposal should be adopted, rejected or modified. Written material submitted will be available for public inspection at the above address unless confidential treatment is requested or the material would not be made available to the public or otherwise disclosed under § 505.5 of the General Regulations of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board (12 CFR 505.5).

The Board hereby proposes to amend said § 545.14–5 by (1) rescinding paragraphs (c)(5) and (g)(5) thereof and (2) revising paragraphs (a), (c)(1)(i) and (c)(4) and the last three sentences of paragraph (g) of said section to read as set forth below.

§ 545.14–5 Satellite office.

(a) Nature of a satellite office. An office of a Federal association which is not its home office or a branch office approved pursuant to § 545.14 shall be deemed to be a satellite office if it meets the requirements of a satellite office as described in this section and if it is a satellite of the association's home office or a branch office in that it is located in the primary service area of such home office or branch office, as determined by the Board or its Supervisory Agent as of the time of the filing of the application for permission to establish a satellite office. Any business of a Federal association, as authorized by the association's board of directors, may be transacted at a satellite office.

• • • • •

(c) Specific provisions. Each application for permission to establish a satellite office will be considered or processed pursuant to the provisions of this section. Approval of such an application pursuant to this section will be subject to the following provisions and any other conditions, requirements, and limitations the Board may specify in a particular case:

(1) A satellite office may be, but is not required to be, located within premises principally occupied by a retail sales establishment or any other business organization. A satellite office shall be operated in conformity with the following physical requirements:

(i) The satellite office shall not occupy more than 1,000 square feet of floor space; and

• • • • •

(4) Except as may be otherwise prescribed by the Board at the time of approval, an approved satellite office may operate without limitation as to time. Any satellite office approved prior to (the effective date of this amendment) shall be deemed to have been approved without a time limit on its operation and may operate or continue to operate without limitation as to time.

• • • • •

The Supervisory Agent shall forward to the Board for its consideration, together with his recommendation, any application which does not meet the requirements of this paragraph. In addition, the Supervisory Agent shall forward to the Board an application, which, in his opinion, should be approved with a time limit on the future operation of the satellite office, together with his recommendation as to the period for which the application should be approved. The Supervisory Agent is not required, in approving an application under this section, to obtain assurance that the applicable requirements of paragraphs (c)(1)(i) and (ii) of this section will be met, since such requirements are continuing requirements to be observed by the Federal association.

PRIVACY ACT

Notice of Proposed Rulemaking

The Commission proposes to adopt the following rules to implement the Privacy Act of 1974 (Pub. L. 93–579, 5 U.S.C. 552a). Interested persons may participate in the proposed rulemaking through submission of written data, views, or arguments pertaining to these proposed rules. Comments on the proposed rules received by the Commission on or before August 21, 1975, will be considered by the Commission before taking final action on the proposed rules. Such comments should be addressed to the Secretary, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580. It is intended that final rules will be published to become effective on September 27, 1975. Comments received by the Commission on or before September 27, 1975, will be considered by the Commission for the promulgation of any proposed revisions of the rules.

The Privacy Act is intended to promote governmental respect for the privacy of individuals by, among other ways, permitting an individual to determine whether personal information pertaining to him, which is retrieved by use of his name or some identifying particular, is collected, maintained, used, or disseminated by a federal agency, and by imposing certain safeguards and restraints upon any such activity. To that end, agencies are required to publish notices of any "systems of records" which fall within the coverage of the Privacy Act and to establish procedures by which an individual may: (1) ascertain whether there is a record pertaining to him in any system of records named by him; (2) gain access to that record; (3) request correction of that record; and (4) dispute the agency's refusal to make a correction.

The Commission's proposed notices of systems of records which it maintains is being published separately in the FEDERAL REGISTER. These notices will describe the existence and character of all systems of records maintained by the Commission. Upon publication of these notices, comments will be invited to the "routine use" portion of each notice.

The Commission proposes to exempt investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes from the provisions of §§ 552a (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4) (G), (H), and (I), and (f) of the Act, as permitted by § 552a(k)(2). Those sections would otherwise require the Commission to notify an individual of investigatory material contained in a record pertaining to him, permit access to such record, and permit requests for its correction (§§ 552a (d), (e)(4) (G) and (H), and (f)); make available to him any required accounting of disclosures made of the record (§ 552a(c)(3)); publish the sources of the records in the system (§ 552a(e)(4)(I)); and screen records to insure that there is maintained only such information about an individual as is relevant to accomplish a required purpose of the Commission (§ 522a(e)(1)).[1]

[1] It should be noted, however, that under § 552a(k)(2), when exemption is provided for investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes, if any individual is denied any right, privilege, or benefit that he would otherwise be entitled by Federal law, or for which he would otherwise be eligible, as a result of the maintenance of such material, such material shall be provided to such individual, except to the extent that the disclosure of such material would reveal the identity of a source who furnished information to the Government under an express promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence, or, prior to the effective date of this section, under an implied promise that the identity of the source would be held in confidence.

The systems of records maintained by the Commission which consist of investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes are listed in section 4.13.14 of these proposed rules, and are described in the notices of systems of records.

The Commission proposes to exempt those systems of records from the above-referenced provisions of the Privacy Act for the following reasons. Premature disclosure of the results of an investigation would interfere with the Commission's law enforcement activities by making public information not known by parties whose acts or practices may be subject to Commission regulation. The effective discharge of the Commission's statutory responsibility to prevent unfair methods of competition and unfair or deceptive acts or practices, by means of regulatory proceedings and court actions, necessitates protection from premature disclosure of evidence gathered during an investigation which might be used in a law enforcement proceeding, including analysis of its strengths and weaknesses; legal strategy, tactics, and theories of a case; and investigative and negotiating objectives and priorities. Making known the existence of an investigation could result in the destruction of evidence. Disclosure of the precise identity of confidential sources of information or information they provided which would identify them could deter them from providing information in the future. This would impair the Commission's ability to obtain this type of information in the future. Access to an accounting of disclosures would have similar detrimental effects on law enforcement. In addition, screening for relevancy to Commission purposes, and correction or attempted correction of such materials, could require excessive amounts of time and effort on the part of all concerned. Accordingly, the Commission tentatively finds that the public interest and public policy in maintaining an effective enforcement program requires exemption from the stated sections of the Act with respect to investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes and from the requirements of § 4.13.

The Commission proposes to adopt a new § 4.13 to its rules of practice, as hereinafter set forth.

PART 4—MISCELLANEOUS RULES

§ 4.13.1 Purpose and Scope.

(a) This section is promulgated to implement the Privacy Act of 1974 (Public Law 93–579, 5 U.S.C. 552a) by establishing procedures whereby an individual can, as to all systems of records maintained by the Commission except those set forth in § 4.13.14 as exempt from disclosure, (i) request notification of whether the Commission maintains a record pertaining to him in any system of records, (ii) request access to such a record or to an accounting of its disclosure, (iii) request that the record be amended or corrected, and (iv) appeal an initial adverse determination of any such request. This section also establishes those systems of records that are specifically exempt from disclosure and from other requirements.

(b) The procedures of this section apply only to requests by an individual as defined in § 4.13.2. Except as otherwise provided, they govern only records containing personal information in systems of records for which notice has been published by the Commission in the Federal Register pursuant to section 552a (e)(4) of the Privacy Act of 1974 and which are neither exempt from the provisions of this section nor contained in government-wide systems of personnel records for which notice has been published in the Federal Register by the Civil Service Commission. Requests for notification, access, and amendment of personnel records which are contained in a system of records for which notice has been given by the Civil Service Commission are governed by the Civil Service Commission's notices, 5 CFR Part 297. Access to records which are not subject to the requirements of the Privacy Act are governed by §§ 4.8–4.11 of this part.

§ 4.13.2 Definitions.

The following definitions apply to this section only:

"Individual" means a natural person who is a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence.

"Record" means any item, collection, or grouping of personal information about an individual that is maintained by the Commission, including, but not limited to, his education, financial transactions, medical history, and criminal or employment history and that contains his name, or the identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual, such as a finger or voice print or a photograph, but does not include information concerning proprietorships, businesses, or corporations.

"System of records" means a group of any records under the control of the Commission from which information is retrieved by the name of the individual or by some identifying number, symbol, or other identifying particular assigned to the individual, for which notice has been published by the Commission in the FEDERAL REGISTER pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4).

§ 4.13.3 Procedures for requests pertaining to individual records in a record system.

An individual may request access to his records or any information pertaining to him in a system of records, and notification of whether and to whom the Commission has disclosed a record for which an accounting of disclosures is required to be kept and made available to him, using the procedures of this subsection. Requests for the disclosure of records under this subsection or to determine whether a system of records contains records pertaining to an individual or to obtain an accounting of disclosures, shall be in writing and if mailed, addressed as follows:

VOL 40 NO 158 AUG 14 75 XU

Privacy Act Request, Office of the Secretary, Federal Trade Commission, 6th Street and Pennsylvania Avenue N.W., Washington, D.C. 20580.

If requests are presented in person at the Office of the Secretary, the individual shall be required to execute a written request. The request must name the system of records which is the subject of the request. If the requestor desires to permit a person to accompany him to review his record, the request shall so state. Nothing in this section shall allow an individual access to any information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceeding.

§ 4.13.4 Times, places, and requirements for identification of individuals making requests.

Verification of identity of persons making written requests to the Secretary ordinarily will not be required. The signature upon such requests shall be deemed to be a certification by the person signing that he is the individual to whom the record pertains or the parent of a minor or the duly appointed legal guardian of the individual to whom the record pertains. The Secretary may require additional verification of identity as specified by him when necessary reasonably to assure that records are not improperty disclosed; provided however, that no verification of identity will be required where the records sought are publicly available under the Freedom of Information Act.

§ 4.13.5 Disclosure of requested information to individuals.

Within ten (10) working days of receipt of a request under § 4.13.3, the Secretary shall acknowledge receipt of the request. Within thirty (30) working days of the receipt of a request under § 4.13.3, the Secretary shall inform the requestor whether a system of records containing retrievable information pertaining to the requester exists, and if so, either that his request has been granted or that the requested records or information is exempt from disclosure pursuant to § 4.13.14 of this Part. When, for good cause shown, the Secretary is unable to respond within thirty (30) working days of the receipt of the request, he shall notify the requestor of that fact and approximately when it is anticipated that a response will be made.

§ 4.13.6 Special procedures: Medical records.

When the Secretary determines that disclosure of a medical or psychological record directly to a requesting individual could have an adverse effect on the individual, he shall require the individual to designate a medical doctor to whom the record will be transmitted.

§ 4.13.7 Request for correction or amendment of record.

An individual to whom access to his records or any information pertaining to him in a system of records has been granted may request that any portion thereof be amended or corrected because he believes it is not accurate, relevant, timely, or complete. An initial request for correction or amendment of a record shall be in writing whether presented in person or by mail, and if by mail, addressed as in § 4.13.3(a). In making a request under this subsection, the requesting party shall state the nature of the information in the record the individual believes to be inaccurate, irrelevant, untimely, or incomplete, the correction or amendment desired, and the reasons therefore.

§ 4.13.8 Agency review of request for correction or amendment of record.

Whether presented in person or by mail, requests under § 4.13.7 shall be acknowledged by the Secretary within ten (10) working days of the receipt of the request if action on the request cannot be completed and the individual notified of the results within that time. Thereafter, the Secretary shall promptly either make the requested amendment or correction or inform the requestor of his refusal to make the amendment or correction, the reasons for the refusal, and the requestor's right to appeal that determination in accordance with § 4.13.9.

§ 4.13.9 Appeal of initial adverse agency determination.

(a) If the Secretary denies an initial request under §§ 4.13.3 or 4.13.7, the requestor may appeal that determination to the Commission. The appeal shall be in writing and addressed as follows:

Privacy Act Appeal, Office of the General Counsel, Federal Trade Commission, 6th Street and Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20580.

The Commission shall notify the requestor within thirty (30) working days of the receipt of his appeal of the disposition of that appeal, except that the thirty (30) day period may be extended for good cause, in which case the requestor will be advised of the approximate date on which review will be completed.

(b) (1) If the Commission refuses to amend or correct the record in accordance with a request under § 4.13.7, it shall notify the requestor of that determination and inform him of his right to file with the Secretary of the Commission a concise statement setting forth the reasons for his disagreement with that determination and the fact that such a statement will be treated as set forth in paragraph (b)(2) of this section. The Commission shall also inform the requestor that judicial review of the determination is available by a civil suit in the district in which the requestor resides, or has his principal place of business, or in which the agency records are situated, or in the District of Columbia.

(2) If the individual files a statement disagreeing with the Commission's determination not to amend or correct a record, it shall be clearly noted in the record involved and made available to anyone to whom the record has been disclosed after September 27, 1975, or is subsequently disclosed together with, if the Commission deems it appropriate, a brief statement of the reasons for refusing to amend the record.

§ 4.13.10 Disclosure of record to person other than the individual to whom it pertains.

Except as provided by 5 U.S.C. 552a (b), the written request or prior written consent of the individual to whom a record pertains, or of his parent if a minor, or legal guardian if incompetent, shall be required before such record is disclosed. If the individual elects to inspect a record in person and desires to be accompanied by another person, the Secretary may require the individual to furnish a signed statement authorizing his record to be disclosed in the presence of the accompanying named person.

§ 4.13.11 Fees.

No fees shall be charged for searching for a record, reviewing it, or for copies of records made by the Commission for its own purposes incident to granting access to a requestor. Copies of records to which access has been granted under this section may be obtained by the requestor from the Secretary upon payment of the reproduction fees provided in § 4.8(c)(2) of this Part.

§ 4.13.12 Penalties.

Section 552a(i)(3) of the Privacy Act, 5 U.S.C. 552a(i)(3), makes it a misdemeanor, subject to a maximum fine of $5,000, to knowingly and willfully request or obtain any record concerning an individual under false pretenses. Section 552a(i)(1) and (2) of the Privacy Act, 5 U.S.C. 552a(i)(1) and (2), provide penalties for violations by agency employees of the Privacy Act or regulations established thereunder. Title 18 U.S.C. 1001, Crimes and Criminal Procedures, makes it a criminal offense, subject to a maximum fine of $10,000 or imprisonment for not more than 5 years or both, to knowingly and willfully make or cause to be made any false or fraudulent statements or representations in any matter within the jurisdiction of any agency of the United States.

§ 4.13.13 [Reserved]

§ 4.13.14 Specific exemptions.

Pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(k)(2), investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes in the following systems of records is exempt from subsections (c)(3), (d), (e)(1), (e)(4)(G), (H), and (I), and (f) of 5 U.S.C. 552a, and from the provisions of this section, except as otherwise provided in 552a (K)(2):

OFFICE OF MANAGEMENT AND BUDGET

[5 CFR Part 1302]

PRIVACY ACT PROCEDURES

Proposed Regulations

Notice is hereby given that the Office of Management and Budget (sometimes hereinafter referred to as OMB) is considering promulgating Chapter III, Part 1302 of Title 5, Code of Federal Regulations. The proposed regulations implement the provisions of section 5 U.S.C. 552a(f), Public Law 93-579 of December 31, 1974 (the Privacy Act of 1974) (88 Stat. 1896).

Interested persons are invited to submit written comments, suggestions, or objections regarding these proposed rules to the Assistant to the Director for Administration, Office of Management and Budget, Washington, D.C. 20503. All relevant material received before September 12, 1975, will be considered. All written comments received will be available, upon request, for public inspection at the above address only between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday (excluding legal Federal holidays), during the 30-day period described above, and for 10 days thereafter.

The proposed new Part 1302 would read as follows:

PART 1302—PRIVACY ACT PROCEDURES

Sec.
1302.1 Rules for determining if an individual is the subject of a record.
1302.2 Requests for access.
1302.3 Access to the accounting of disclosures from records.
1302.4 Requests for copies of records.
1302.5 Requests to amend records.
1302.6 Request for review.
1302.7 Schedule of fees.

AUTHORITY: Pub. L. 93-579, 88 Stat. 1896 (5 U.S.C. 552a(f).

1302.1 Rules for determining if an individual is the subject of a record.

(a) Individuals desiring to know if a specific system of records maintained by the Office of Management and Budget contains a record pertaining to them should address their inquiries to the Assistant to the Director for Administration, Office of Management and Budget, Washington, D.C. 20503. The written inquiry should contain a specific reference to the system of records maintained by OMB listed in the OMB Notices of Systems of Records or it should describe the type of record in sufficient detail to reasonably identify the system of records. Notice of OMB systems of records subject to the Privacy Act will be made in the Federal Register and copies of the notices will be available upon request to the Assistant to the Director for Administration when so published. A compilation of such notices will also be made and published by the Office of Federal Register, in accordance with section 5 U.S.C. 552 a(f).

(b) At a minimum, the request should also contain sufficient identifying information to allow OMB to determine if there is a record pertaining to the individual making the request in a particular system of records. In instances when the identification is insufficient to insure disclosure to the individual to whom the information pertains in view of the sensitivity of the information, OMB reserves the right to solicit from the requester additional identifying information.

(c) Ordinarily the requester will be informed whether the named system of records contains a record pertaining to the requester within 10 days of receipt of such a request (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal Federal holidays). Such a response will also contain or reference the procedures which must be followed by the individual making the request in order to gain access to the record.

(d) Whenever a response cannot be made within the 10 days, the Assistant to the Director for Administration will inform the requester of the reasons for the delay and the date by which a response may be anticipated.

1302.2 Requests for access.

(a) Requirement for written requests. Individuals desiring to gain access to a record pertaining to them in a system of records maintained by OMB must submit their request in writing in accordance with the procedures set forth in subsection b, below. Due to security measures in effect in both the Old and New Executive Office Buildings, requests made in person (walk-ins) cannot be accepted, except that individuals who are employed by the Office of Management and Budget may make their request on a regularly scheduled workday (Monday through Friday, excluding legal Federal holidays) between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Such requests for access by individuals employed by OMB need not be made in writing.

(b) Procedures. (1) Content of the request. The request for access to a record in a system of records shall be addressed to the Assistant to the Director for Administration, at the address cited above, and shall name the system of records or contain a description (as concise as possible) of such system of records. The request should state that the request is pursuant to the Privacy Act of 1974. In the absence of such a statement, if the request is for a record pertaining to the requester maintained by OMB in a system of records, the request will be presumed to be made under the Privacy Act of 1974. The request should contain necessary information to verify the identity of the requester (see paragraph b (2)(vi), below). In addition, the requester should include any other information which may assist in the rapid identification of the record for which access is being requested (e.g., maiden name, dates of employment, etc.) as well as any other identifying information contained in and required by the OMB Notice of Systems of Records.

If the request for access follows a prior request under § 1302.1, above, the same identifying information need not be included in the request for access if a reference is made to that prior correspondence, or a copy of the OMB response to that request is attached. If the individual specifically desires a copy of the record, the request should so specify. § 1302.4.

(2) OMB action on request. A request for access will ordinarily be answered within 10 days, except when the Assistant to the Director for Administration determines otherwise, in which case the requester will be informed of the reason for the delay and an estimated date by which the request will be answered. When the request can be answered within 10 days, it shall include the following:

(i) A statement that there is a record as requested or a statement that there is not a record in the system of records maintained by OMB;

(ii) a statement as to whether access will be granted only by providing a copy of the record through the mail; or the address of the location and the date and time at which the record may be examined. In the event the requester is unable to meet the specified date and time, alternative arrangements may be made with the official specified in paragraph (b)(1) above;

(iii) a statement, when appropriate, that examination in person will be the sole means of granting access only when the Assistant to the Director for Administration has determined that it would not unduly impede the requester's right of access.

(iv) the amount of fees charged, if any (see §§ 1302.4 and 1302.7). (Fees are applicable only to requests for copies.);

(v) the name, title, and telephone number of the OMB official having operational control over the record; and

(vi) the documentation required by OMB to verify the identity of the requester. At a minimum, OMB's verification standards include the following:

(A) Current or former OMB Employees. Current or former OMB employees requesting access to a record pertaining to them in a system of records maintained by OMB may, in addition to the other requirements of this section, and at the sole discretion of the official having operational control over the record, have his or her identity verified by visual observation. If the current or former OMB employee cannot be so identified by the official having operational control over the records, identification documentation will be required. Employee identification cards, annuitant identification, driver licenses, or the "employee copy" of any official personnel document in the record are examples of acceptable identification validation.

(B) Other than current or former OMB employees. Individuals other than current or former OMB employees requesting access to a record pertaining to them in a system of records maintained by OMB must produce identification documentation of the type described in paragraph (b)(2)(vi)(A), above, prior to being granted access. The extent of the identification documentation required will depend on the type of record to be accessed. In most cases, identification verification will be accomplished by the presentation of two forms of identification. Any additional requirements will be specified in the system notices published pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552a(e)(4).

(C) Access granted by mail. For records to be accessed by mail, the Assistant to the Director for Administration shall, to the extent possible, establish identity by a comparison of signatures in situations where the data in the record is not so sensitive that unauthorized access could cause harm or embarrassment to the individual to whom they pertain. No identification documentation will be required for the disclosure to the requester of information required to be made available to the public by 5 U.S.C. 552. When, in the opinion of the Assistant to the Director for Administration, the granting of access through the mail could reasonably be expected to result in harm or embarrassment if disclosed to a person other than the individual to whom the record pertains, a notarized statement of identity or some similar assurance of identity will be required.

(D) Unavailability of identification documentation. If an individual is unable to produce adequate identification documentation the individual will be required to sign a statement asserting identity and acknowledging that knowingly or willfully seeking or obtaining access to records about another person under false pretenses may result in a fine of up to $5,000. In addition, depending upon the sensitivity of the records sought to be accessed, the official having operational control over the records may require such further reasonable assurances as may be considered appropriate; e.g., statements of other individuals who can attest to the identity of the requester.

(E) Access by the parent of a minor, or legal guardian. A parent of a minor, upon presenting suitable personal identification, may access on behalf of the minor any record pertaining to the minor maintained by OMB in a system of records. A legal guardian may similarly act on behalf of an individual declared to be incompetent due to physical or mental incapacity or age by a court of competent jurisdiction, upon the presentation of the documents authorizing the legal guardian to so act, and upon suitable personal identification of the guardian.

(F) Granting access when accompanied by another individual. When an individual requesting access to his or her record in a system of records maintained by OMB wishes to be accompanied by another individual during the course of the examination of the record, the individual making the request shall submit to the official having operational control of the record, a signed statement authorizing that person access to the record.

(G) Denial of access for inadequate identification documentation. If the official having operation control over the records in a system of records maintained by OMB determines that an individual seeking access has not provided sufficient identification documentation to permit access, the official shall consult with the Assistant to the Director for Administration prior to finally denying the individual access.

(vii) Medical records. The records in a system of records which are medical records shall be disclosed to the individual to whom they pertain in such manner and following such procedures as the Assistant to the Director for Administration shall direct. When OMB, in consultation with a physician, determines that the disclosure of medical information could have an adverse effect upon the individual to whom it pertains, OMB may transmit such information to a physician named by the individual.

(viii) Exceptions. Nothing in this section shall be construed to entitle an individual the right to access to any information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action or proceedings.

§ 1302.3. Access to the accounting of disclosures from records.

Rules governing the granting of access to the accounting of disclosures are the same as those for granting access to the records (including verification of identity) outlined in § 1302.2, above.

§ 1302.4. Requests for copies of records.

Rules governing requests for copies of records are the same as those for the granting of access to the records (including verification of identity) outlined in § 1302.2, above. (See also § 1302.7 for rules regarding fees.)

§ 1302.5. Requests to amend records.

(a) Requirement for written requests. Individuals desiring to amend a record that pertain to them in a system of records maintained by OMB, must submit their request in writing in accordance with the procedures set forth herein unless this requirement is waived by the official having responsibility for the system of records. Records not subject to the Privacy Act of 1974 will not be amended in accordance with these provisions, however, individuals who believe that such records are inaccurate may bring this to the attention of OMB.

(b) Procedures. (1) (i) The request to amend a record in a system of records shall be addressed to the Assistant to the Director for Administration. Included in the request shall be the name of the system and a brief description of the record proposed for amendment. In the event the request to amend the record is the result of the individual's having gained access to the record in accordance with the provisions concerning access to records as set forth above, copies of previous correspondence between the requester and OMB will serve in lieu of a separate description of the record.

(ii) When the individual's identity has been previously verified pursuant to § 1302.2(b)(2)(vi) herein, further verification of identity is not required as long as the communication does not suggest that a need for verification has reappeared. If the individual's identity has not been previously verified, OMB may require identification validation as described in § 1302.2(b)(2)(vi). Individuals desiring assistance in the preparation of a request to amend a record should contact the Assistant to the Director for Administration at the address cited above.

(iii) The exact portion of the record the individual seeks to have amended should be clearly indicated. If possible, the proposed alternative language should also be set forth, or at a minimum, the facts which the individual believes are not accurate, relevant, timely, or complete should be set forth with such particularity as to permit OMB not only to understand the individual's basis for the request, but also to make an appropriate amendment to the record.

(iv) The request must also set forth the reasons why the individual believes his record is not accurate, relevant, timely, or complete. In order to avoid the retention by OMB of personal information merely to permit verification of records, the burden of persuading OMB to amend a record will be upon the individual. The individual must furnish sufficient facts to persuade the official in charge of the system of the inaccuracy, irrelevancy, timeliness, or incompleteness of the record.

(2) OMB action on the request. To the extent possible, a decision upon a request to amend a record will be made within 10 days, excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal Federal holidays. In the event a decision cannot be made within this time frame, the individual making the request will be informed within 10 days of the expected date for a decision. The decision upon a request for amendment will include the following:

(i) The decision of the Office of Management and Budget whether to grant in whole, or deny any part of the request to amend the record.

(ii) The reasons for the determination for any portion of the request which is denied.

(iii) The name and address of the official with whom an appeal of the denial may be lodged.

(iv) The name and address of the official designated to assist, as necessary, and upon request of, the individual making the request in the preparation of the appeal.

(v) A description of the review of the appeal within OMB (see § 1302.6).

(vi) A description of any other procedures which may be required of the individual in order to process the appeal.

§ 1302.6. Request for review.

(a) Individuals wishing to request a review of the decision by OMB with regard to an initial request to amend a record in accordance with the provisions of § 1302.5 above, should submit the request for review in writing and, to the extent possible, include the information specified in paragraph (a) of this section. Individuals desiring assistance in the preparation of their request for review should contact the Assistant to the Director for Administration at the address provided herein.

(b) The request for review should contain a brief description of the record involved or in lieu thereof, copies of the correspondence from OMB in which the request to amend was denied and also the reasons why the requester believes that the disputed information should be amended. The request for review should make reference to the information furnished by the individual in support of his claim and the reasons as required by § 1302.5 above set forth by OMB in its decision denying the amendment. Appeals filed without a complete statement by the requester setting forth the reasons for the review will, of course, be processed. However, in order to make the appellate process as meaningful as possible, the requester's disagreement should be understandably set forth. In order to avoid the unnecessary retention of personal information, OMB reserves the right to dispose of the material concerning the request to amend a record if no request for review in accordance with this section is received by OMB within 180 days of the mailing by OMB of its decision upon an initial request. A request for review received after the 180 day period may, at the discretion of the Assistant to the Director for Administration, be treated as an initial request to amend a record.

(c) The request for review should be addressed to the Assistant to the Director for Administration.

(d) Upon receipt of a request for review, the Assistant to the Director for Administration will convene a review group composed of the Assistant to the Director for Administration, the General Counsel, or their designees, and the official having operational control over the record. This group will review the basis for the requested review and will develop a recommended course of action to the Office's Committee on Freedom of Information and Privacy (hereinafter referred to as the Committee). If at any time additional information is required from the requester, the Assistant to the Director for Administration is authorized to acquire it or authorize its acquisition from the requester.

(e) The Committee is composed of:

(1) Deputy Director.

(2) Assistant to the Director for Administration.

(3) General Counsel.

(4) Assistant Director for Budget Review.

(5) Assistant Director for Legislative Reference.

(6) Assistant to the Director for Public Affairs.

(7) Deputy Associate Director for Information Systems.

(8) Deputy Associate Director for Statistical Policy.

(9) Deputy Associate Director for National Security.

(10) Budget and Management Officer.

(11) Personnel Officer.

(f) The Committee will review the request for review and the recommended course of action and will recommend a decision on the request for review to the Deputy Director, who has the final authority regarding appeals.

(g) The Deputy Director will inform the requester in writing of the decision on the request for review within 30 days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal public holidays) from the date of receipt by OMB of the individual's request for review unless the Deputy Director extends the 30 day period for good cause. The extension and the reasons therefor will be sent by OMB to the requester within the initial 30 day period. Included in the notice of a decision being reviewed, if the decision does not grant in full the request for review, will be a description of the steps the individual may take to obtain judicial review of such a decision, and a statement that the individual may file a concise statement with OMB setting forth the individual's reasons for his disagreement with the decision upon the request for review. The Assistant to the Director for Administration has the authority to determine the "conciseness" of the statement, taking into account the scope of the disagreement and the complexity of the issues. Upon the filing of a proper concise statement by the individual, any subsequent disclosure of the information in dispute will have the information in dispute clearly noted and a copy of the concise statement furnished, as well as a concise statement by OMB setting forth its reasons for not making the requested changes, if OMB chooses to file such a statement. A copy of the individual's statement, and if it chooses, OMB's statement will be sent to any prior transferee of the disputed information who is listed on the accounting required by 5 U.S.C. 552a(c).

§ 1302.7. Schedule of fees.

(a) Prohibitions against charging fees. Individuals will not be charged for:

(1) the search and review of the record,

(2) any copies of the record produced as a necessary part of the process of making the record available for access, or

(3) any copies of the requested record when it has been determined that access can only be accomplished by providing a copy of the record through the mail.

(b) Waiver. The Assistant to the Director for Administration may at no charge, provide copies of a record if it is determined the production of the copies is in the interest of the Government.

(c) Fee schedule and method of payment. Fees will be charged as provided below except as provided in paragraphs (a) and (b) above.

(1) Duplication of records. Records will be duplicated at a rate of $.10 per page for all copying of 4 pages or more. There is no charge for duplicating 3 or fewer pages.

(2) Where it is anticipated that the fees chargeable under this section will amount to more than $25.00, the requester shall be promptly notified of the amount of the anticipated fee or such portion thereof as can readily be estimated. In instances where the estimated fees will greatly exceed $25.00, an advance deposit may be required. The notice or request for an advance deposit shall extend an offer to the requester to consult with Office personnel in order to reformulate the request in a manner which will reduce the fees, yet still meet the needs of the requester.

(3) Fees must be paid in full prior to issuance of requested copies. In the event the requester is in arrears for previous requests copies will not be provided for any subsequent request until the arrears have been paid in full.

(4) Remittances shall be in the form either of a personal check or bank draft drawn on a bank in the United States, or a postal money order. Remittances shall be made payable to the order of the Treasury of the United States and mailed or delivered to the Assistant to the Director for Administration, Office of Management and Budget, Washington, D.C. 20503.

(5) A receipt for fees paid will be given upon request.

Assistant to the Director for Administration.

PART 261—RECORDS AND INFORMATION MANAGEMENT

Sec.
261.1 Purpose and scope.
261.2 Authority.
261.3 Policy.
261.4 Responsibility.

§ 261.1 Purpose and scope.

As a result of the Postal Reorganization Act, 39 U.S.C. 410, the United States Postal Service is no longer subject to the provisions of the Federal Records Act, 44 U.S.C., or any of its supporting regulations which provide for the conduct of records management in Federal agencies. The objective of Parts 261 through 267 is to provide the basis for a Postal Service-wide records and information management program affecting all organizational components having the custody of any form of information and records.

§ 261.2 Authority.

(a) 39 U.S.C. 401(5) states that the Postal Service has the power to acquire property it deems necessary or convenient in the transaction of its business and to hold, maintain, sell, lease or otherwise dispose of such property.

(b) 39 CFR 224.3(b)(3) assigns to the Management Information Systems Department responsibility for the management of records and to the Postal Service Records Officer located within that Department responsibility for retention, security and privacy of Postal Service records and the power to authorize the disclosure of such records and their disposal by destruction or transfer. Included is the authority to issue records management policy and to delegate or take appropriate action if the policy is not adhered to or if questions of interpretation of procedure arise.

§ 261.3 Policy.

It is the policy of the Postal Service:

(a) To, as appropriate, create, preserve, protect and disclose records which contain adequate and proper documentation of the organization, functions, policies, decisions, operations, procedures, activities and transactions of the Postal Service,

(b) To reduce to an absolute minimum the records holdings of the Postal Service by strict adherence to established records retention schedules,

(c) To transfer records to appropriate storage areas as soon as they become inactive or are no longer of value to the Postal Service.

§ 261.4 Responsibility.

(a) The Records Officer administers the Postal Service Records and Information Management program through a headquarters organizational component and through contacts in each headquarters department, Postal Service region, district, data processing center, and other major Postal Service installations.

(b) Postal Service managers are responsible for administering records and information management policies and for complying with all handbooks, directives, and instructions in support of this policy.

PART 263—RECORDS RETENTION AND DISPOSITION

Sec.
263.1 Purpose and acope.
263.2 Policy.
263.3 Responsibility.
263.4 Records retention schedules.
263.5 Records disposal.

AUTHORITY: 39 U.S.C. 401

§ 263.1 Purpose and scope.

This part contains the policy and general regulations pertaining to the retention and disposition of records and information throughout all organizational levels and components.

§ 263.2 Policy.

It is the policy of the United States Postal Service to establish and maintain schedules specifying the retention periods required for all official and duplicate record copies. Furthermore, it is the policy that all duplicate record copies and non-record material will be disposed of as soon as they have served their purpose.

§ 263.3 Responsibility.

(a) Records Officer. The Records Officer has the responsibility for providing for the establishment of retention schedules and has the authority to approve them. Furthermore, he has the authority to dispose of Postal Service records by transfer or destruction.

(b) Custodians. Custodians are responsible for the retention and prompt disposal of records in their custody and for delegating in writing, persons to perform these duties.

§ 263.4 Records retention schedules.

The following retention schedules will be maintained within the Postal Service:

(a) General schedule.
(b) Headquarters schedule.
(c) Regional schedule.
(c) District schedule.
(d) Inspection service schedule.
(e) Postal data centers schedule.
(f) Automatic data processing centers schedule.
(g) Post Office schedule.
(h) Other facility schedules.

§ 263.5 Records disposal.

All disposals of records containing sensitive information, i.e. transfers to records storage centers, destruction, transfers external to the USPS, and maintenance of accounting records regarding such disposal, must be accomplished in accordance with procedures issued by the Records Officer.

PART 264—VITAL RECORDS

Sec.
264.1 Purpose and scope.
264.2 Policy.
264.3 Responsibility.
264.4 Protection of vital records.

AUTHORITY: 39 U.S.C. 401.

§ 264.1 Purpose and scope.

The reconstruction costs of certain necessary information would be financially prohibitive and certain records are so critical to the continuity of operations of the Postal Service that their loss could paralyze operations. Therefore, to protest this information from loss, specific controls are required which affect all organizational components having the custody of information and records defined as being "vital".

§ 264.2 Policy.

It is the policy of the United States Postal Service to maintain duplicate record copies of all records and information considered vital to the continuity of its operations and the protection of its interests and those of its employees, contractors, and the general public. Vital record copies will be maintained at protected locations accessible to management and operating personnel in times of emergency.

§ 264.3 Responsibility.

(a) Records Officer. The Records Officer, in cooperation with the Chief Inspector, is responsible for the establishment of the vital records program, has the authority to categorize records as vital, and to ensure Postal Service-wide compliance with supportive procedures.

(b) Custodians. Custodians have the responsibility to ensure that vital records procedures are followed and that vital record copies are deposited at the designated emergency relocation centers.

§ 264.4 Protection of vital records.

Complete procedures concerning the identification, processing, protection, and transfer of vital records are provided by the Records Officer.

Deputy General Counsel.

The Hardware Subcommittee was formed to continue the work of the Performance Characteristics and Performance Measurements Subcommittee, pertaining to (a) maintenance of the processor performance tables and further investigation of total system performance; and (b) investigation of array processors in terms of establishing the significance of these devices and determining the differences in characteristics of various types of these devices.

The Subcommittee meeting agenda has four parts:

All materials to be reviewed and discussed by the Subcommittee during the Executive Session of the meeting have been properly classified under the Executive Order. All Subcommittee members have appropriate security clearances.

Copies of the minutes of the open portion of the meeting will be made available upon written request addressed to the Freedom of Information Officer, Room 3100, Domestic and International

The Agreement will expire on December 31, 1975, unless further extended. Each voyage under the Agreement must be approved for subsidy before commencement of the voyage. The Board will act on each request for a subsidized voyage as an administrative matter under the terms of the Agreement, for which there is no requirement for further notices under section 605(c) of the Act.

Any person having an interest in the granting of the application and who would contest a finding of the Board that the service now provided by vessels of U.S. registry for the carriage of cargoes as previously specified is inadequate, must on or before August 26, 1975, notify the Board's Secretary, in writing, of his interest and of his position, and file a petition for leave to intervene in accordance with the Board's rules of practice and procedure (46 CFR Part 201). Each statement of interest and petition to intervene shall state whether a hearing is requested under section 605(c) of the Act and, with as much specificity as possible, the facts that the intervenor would undertake to prove at such hearing.

In the event a hearing under section 605(c) of the Act is ordered to be held with respect to the subject application, the purpose of such hearing will be to receive evidence relevant to (1) whether the application herein above described is one with respect to the vessel to be operated in an essential service, served by citizens of the United States, which would be in addition to the existing service, or services, and if so, whether the service already provided by vessels of U.S. registry is inadequate and (2) whether in the accomplishment of the purposes and policy of the Act additional vessels should be operated thereon.

If no request for hearing and petition for leave to intervene is received within the specified time, or if the Board determines that petitions for leave to intervene filed within the specified time do not demonstrate sufficient interest to warrant a hearing, the Board will take such action as may be deemed appropriate.

VOLUNTARY LABELING PROGRAM FOR HOUSEHOLD APPLIANCES AND EQUIPMENT TO EFFECT ENERGY CONSERVATION

Proposed Specifications

Notice is hereby given that the Department of Commerce proposes to issue a Voluntary Energy Conservation Specification for water heaters in accordance with § 9.4 of the Procedures for a Voluntary Labeling Program for Household Appliances and Equipment to Effect Energy Conservation, 15 CFR Part 9. The proposed Specification describes procedures for testing and labeling water heaters in compliance with the above mentioned procedures, and contains instructions for participation by manufacturers in the Voluntary Labeling Program with regard to these products.

It is intended that Appendix A to the Specification shall contain values for the ranges of cost of energy for all models of water heaters now on the market. Such information is not yet available. Therefore, the cost of energy range values contained in Appendix A of the proposed Specification are hypothetical and are used for the purpose of example only. The final version of the Specification will also be issued without cost of energy range values. At the time the final Specification is published, manufacturers wishing to participate in the initial period of water heater labeling will be requested to provide, within 60 days, the data and calculations necessary to complete Appendix A. Upon receipt of the information from manufacturers, the Department of Commerce will prepare a completed Appendix A and publish it in the FEDERAL REGISTER in final form, under the provisions of 2.3 and 10.0 of the Specification. This procedure will not prevent other manufacturers, who may not wish to participate in the initial period of labeling, from becoming participants in the Program at a later date.

When the completed Appendix A is prepared, gas and electric utility rates used to calculate cost of energy may be changed from the values now shown in Appendix A. Such changes will be based on actual changes in average utility rates that might occur before that time.

Interested persons are invited to participate in development of a final Specification covering water heaters, or comment on the intended procedure for completion of Appendix A, by submitting written comments or suggestions in four copies to the Assistant Secretary for Science and Technology, U.S. Department of Commerce, Room 3862, Washington, D.C. 20230, on or before September 29, 1975. Interested persons desiring to express their views in an informal hearing may do so, if within fifteen days after publication of this notice, they submit a request to the Assistant Secretary for Science and Technology that such a hearing be held.

A public docket of correspondence and transcripts of hearings will be available for examination by interested persons at the Central Reference and Records Inspection Facility of the Department of Commerce, Room 7043, Main Commerce Building, 14th Street between E Street and Constitution Avenue NW., Washington, D.C. 20230.

Issued: August 7, 1975.

This appendix shall be updated and published in the Federal Register on an annual basis. Copies of this appendix or updated versions thereof shall be provided by the Secretary to any interested party upon request.

3.0 Definitions.

3.1 The term "Secretary" means the Secretary of Commerce.

3.2 The term "manufacturer" means any person engaged in the manufacturing or assembling of water heaters in the United States, or in the importing of such products for sale or resale, or any person whose brand or trademark appears on such products who owns such brand or trademark and has authorized its use on such products, if the brand or trademark of the person actually manufacturing or assembling the product does not appear on the products.

3.3 The term "Procedures" means Procedures for a Voluntary Labeling Program for Household Appliances and Equipment to Effect Energy Conservation (15 CFR Part 9).

3.4 The term "gas" means either natural gas or propane gas.

3.5 The term "water heater" means an automatically controlled thermally insulated vessel designed for heating water and storage of heated water, utilizing either gas or electricity as the energy source for heating water, and intended for residential installation.

3.5.1. The term "gas water heater" means a water heater utilizing gas as the energy source and having a manufacturer's specified energy input of 75,000 Btu per hour or less, a manufacturer's specified storage capacity of not less than 20 gallons nor more than 100 gallons, and designed for an outlet water temperature of less than 180°F.

3.5.2 The term "electric water heater" means a water heater utilizing electricity as the energy source and having a manufacturer's specified energy input of 12,000 watts or less at a voltage of 250 volts or less, a manufacturer's specified storage capacity of not less than 30 gallons nor more than 120 gallons, and designed for an outlet water temperature of less than 180°F.

3.7 The term "basic model group" means all water heaters actually manufactured or assembled by one manufacturer and having the same rated storage capacity, storage vessel dimensions, and overall jacket dimensions, utilizing the same energy source for heating water and having the same energy input rating. A basic model group may contain one or more members. Members of a basic model group may differ in details that do not effect performance as measured by the methods described in 4.1 through 4.5. Subject to the foregoing, acceptable differences include, but are not limited to, variations in trim, color, sales model number, or brand name, or the presence of some special features.

3.8 The term "sales representation" means any printed advertising, offering, catalog, or the like that pertains to the retail sale of a water heater.

3.9 The term "primary thermostat" means the thermostat which controls the primary heating unit. The primary heating unit is the heating unit so positioned as to heat the entire quantity of water within the tank.

3.10 The term "cost of energy" means the approximate cost of the energy used in a year as determined under 4.7.3.

4.0 Product Testing and Rating.

4.1 Samples of gas and electric water heaters shall be tested by manufacturers or their agents in accordance with the methods described in 4.1 through 4.4, which were adapted from methods described in American National Standards Z21.10.1-1974, "Gas Water Heaters," and C72.1-1972, "Household Automatic Electric Storage-Type Water Heaters."

The following preparations shall be made prior to the testing described in 4.2 through 4.4:

The water heater shall be installed according to instructions provided by the manufacturer. Thermometers shall be installed in the cold water inlet line and the hot water outlet line, and thermocouples shall be placed in the tank at the level of the center of six sections of equal volume from top to bottom of the tank. When average tank water temperature is specified, it shall be the average of the readings of these six thermocouples.

A gas/watt-hour (as appropriate) meter shall be installed in the gas/electric supply line. Provisions shall be made for shutting off the cold water inlet line and hot water outlet line, and the gas/electric supply line. For the hot water supply rating test, provisions shall be made for accurately determining the flow rate and volume of water withdrawn from the tank.

The gas/electric input rate to the water heater shall be adjusted to be within plus or minus five percent of the manufacturer's rating.

The thermostat(s) shall be adjusted to a setting of 160°F, plus or minus 5°F. The thermostat setting shall be determined by starting water into the system at 70°F, plus or minus 2°F, putting the water heater into operation, and noting the maximum temperature of water drawn from the water heater outlet immediately after the primary thermostat cuts out. This maximum temperature shall be considered the thermostat setting.

Water heaters shall be operated for at least 24 hours to attain thermal equilibrium before testing.

4.2 The test for recovery efficiency of gas and electric water heaters shall be as follows:

After thermal equilibrium has been attained and immediately after a primary thermostat cut-out, the inlet water valve shall be closed, the gas/electric supply interrupted, and the water drained. After the system has been emptied, the drain valve shall be closed, the inlet water valve opened, and the system filled at once with water at 70°F, plus or minus 2°F. The gas/watt-hour meter reading shall be taken and the water heater put into operation. When the primary thermostat again cuts out, the gas/watt-hour meter reading shall be taken and the average tank water temperature recorded.

Recovery efficiency shall be calculated by means of the following equation:

$$E_r = \frac{W(\theta_2 - \theta_1)}{M} \times 100$$

where:

$E_r$ = recovery efficiency, percent
$W$ = weight of water heated, lbs.
$\theta_2$ = average tank water temperature, °F
$\theta_1$ = average inlet water temperature, °F
$M$ = measured energy consumption, Btu (1 watt-hour = 3.413 Btu)

4.3 The test for standby loss of gas and electric water heaters shall be as follows:

During pre-test operation and after a primary thermostat cut-out, accumulated air shall be eliminated from the tank. Room temperature shall be recorded at least once every hour during the test and these readings shall be averaged to obtain average room temperature.

After thermal equilibrium has been attained and immediately after a primary thermostat cut-out, the initial gas/watt-hour meter reading shall be taken and recording of the average tank water temperature started. The average tank water temperature shall be recorded continuously until the primary thermostat again cuts out, and during every subsequent cut-in and cut-out of the primary thermostat during the test. The test shall continue for at least 48 hours and at least two cycles of the primary thermostat. The test shall be terminated and the final gas/watt-hour meter reading taken immediately after a primary thermostat cut-out.

Standby loss shall be calculated by means of the following equation:

$$S = \left[\frac{W(T_1 - T_2)/E_r + M}{tW(\theta_2 - \theta)}\right] \times \left[\frac{90}{\theta_2 - \theta}\right] \times 100$$

where:

$S$ = standby loss, percent per hour, expressed as a percentage of the total heat content of the stored water above room temperature
$M$ = total measured energy consumption, Btu (1 watt-hour = 3.413 Btu)
$t$ = duration of test, hours
$W$ = weight of stored water, lbs.
$\theta_2$ = average tank water temperature during the test, °F
$\theta$ = average room temperature during the test, °F
$T_1$ = average tank water temperature at start of test
$T_2$ = average tank water temperature at finish of test
$E_r$ = recovery efficiency as determined in 4.2

4.4 The test for hot water supply rating of gas and electric water heaters shall be as follows:

After thermal equilibrium has been attained and immediately after a primary thermostat cut-out, water withdrawal at a rate of five gallons per minute shall be initiated and the temperature of the water being withdrawn shall be observed. When the temperature of the water being withdrawn drops to 40°F below the initial water temperature, the withdrawal shall be stopped and the volume of the water withdrawn recorded.

The above withdrawal procedure shall be repeated each time the top tank water temperature as measured by the thermometer in the hot water outlet line reaches the initial top tank temperature, until one hour has elapsed from the time the test was begun. At the end of the one hour test period, the gas/electric supply shall be interrupted and, if the top tank water temperature is greater than the initial temparature minus 40° F, water shall be withdrawn at the prescribed flow rate until the temperature of the water being withdrawn drops to 40°F below the initial water temperature. This volume of water (if any) shall also be recorded.

Hot water supply rating shall equal the sum of the initial quantity of water withdrawn and all subsequent quantities of water withdrawn, the subsequent quantities being multiplied by 0.9.

4.5 The test for storage capacity of gas and electric water heaters shall be as described in Section 2.24 of American National Standard Z21.10.1–1974, "Gas Water Heaters."

4.6 Samples of water heaters shall be tested by manufacturers or their agents in accordance with the following requirements:

4.6.1 Unless otherwise required by the Secretary under 4.6.4, test results obtained in the testing of one member of a basic model group of water heaters may be accepted as applicable to all members of that basic model group.

4.6.2 Sufficient units from each basic model group, that are representative of units to be produced, shall be tested according to the methods and conditions specified in 4.1 through 4.5 to provide a valid basis for determining ratings. Results of tests and calculations shall be retained as required under 7.5.

4.6.3 Manufacturers shall maintain such quality control programs, including testing, as are necessary to insure that the performance of units shipped is within the tolerances specified in 4.9. Results of tests and calculations shall be retained as required under 7.5.

4.6.4 Certification programs that are open to all manufacturers and that pertain to the performance characteristics listed on the label may be used by manufacturers as a means of verifying that the performance level of water heaters is within the tolerances specified in 4.9. Results of tests and calculations shall be retained as required under 7.5.

4.6.5 In addition to the testing required under 4.6.2 and 4.6.3, the Secretary may upon acquisition of evidence of possible mislabeling request that one or more units of any specified model, selected at random from among recent production units, be tested by the manufacturer or his agent according to the methods and conditions specified in 4.1 through 4.5. Such testing shall be performed at the manufacturer's expense and the resulting test data and calculations shall be provided to the Secretary within 30 days of receipt by the manufacturer of such a request. This requirement does not preclude the Department of Commerce from testing or having tested at its own expense any water heater.

4.7 Water heaters shall be rated as follows:

4.7.1 Hot water supply rating shall be expressed in gallons and shall be determined by the test procedure specified in 4.4.

4.7.2 Tank capacity shall be expressed in gallons and shall be determined by the test specified in 4.5.

4.7.3 Cost of energy shall be expressed in dollars per year and shall be computed by multiplying the annual energy consumption as calculated below by the currently specified energy rates as shown in Appendix A, the results being rounded to the nearest dollar per year. Energy consumption shall be based on a hot water usage rate of 450 gallons per week (64.3 gallons per day) and a water temperature rise of 90°F and shall be calculated by means of the following equation:

$C$ = energy consumption, Btu per day
$E_r$ = recovery efficiency, percent, as determined in 4.2.
$S$ = standby loss, percent per hour, as determined in 4.3.
$V$ = measured storage capacity, gallons, as determined in 4.5.
$q$ = manufacturer's specified energy input, Btu per hour (1 watt = 3.413 Btu per hour)

4.7.3.1 For natural gas water heaters, energy consumption shall be expressed in therms per year and shall be based on the result of the computation called for in 4.7.3, expressed in Btu per day, divided by 100,000 Btu per therm, multiplied by 365 days per year, and rounded to the nearest therm per year.

4.7.3.2 For propane gas water heaters, energy consumption shall be expressed in gallons per year and shall be based on the results of the computation called for in 4.7.3, expressed in Btu per day, divided by 91,500 Btu per gallon of propane, multiplied by 365 days per year, and rounded to the nearest gallon per year.

4.7.3.3 For electric water heaters, energy consumption shall be expressed in kilowatt-hours per year and shall be based on the result of the computation called for in 4.7.3, expressed in Btu per day, divided by 3413 Btu per kilowatt-hour, multiplied by 365 days per year, and rounded to the nearest ten kilowatt-hours per year.

4.8 Ranges of hot water supply rating and cost of energy shown on labels shall be as follows:

4.8.1 Ranges shall be taken from the version of Appendix A in effect at the time the labels are applied, except that labels applied within a 90-day period following a revision of Appendix A need not be replaced with labels showing the new ranges.

4.8.2 Ranges shall be taken from the appropriate line and column of Appendix A as determined by the hot water supply rating and energy source of the model to be labeled. For example, if the model to be labeled has a hot water supply rating of 55 gallons, the hot water supply rating range shown on the label for that model shall be 52 to 58 gallons. The cost of energy range shall be taken from the same line and from the column for the appropriate energy source.

4.9 All members of a basic model group shall be held to be improperly rated and labeled if two units of that group, randomly selected, are tested and rated under 4.6.4 or 4.6.5, and for both units, the ratings based on the results of such tests fall outside the following limits:

4.9.1 The value for tank capacity shall not be less than 95% of the value shown on the label.

4.9.2 The value for hot water supply rating shall not be less than 95% of the value shown on the label.

4.9.3 The value for cost of energy shall not be greater than 105% of the value shown on the label.

4.9.4 The values for cost of energy shall be accurate to the nearest dollar per year.

5.0 Product Labeling.

5.1 The design of labels shall be as follows:

5.1.1 The design of labels shall be as shown in Figures 1 and 4 for electric gas water heaters, Figures 2 and 4 for natural gas water heaters, and Figures 3 and 4 for propane gas water heaters. Except as provided in 5.1.2 through 5.1.4, no marks or information other than that indicated in Figures 1 through 4 shall be placed within the border of the label. The size of labels and sizes of type shall be as shown or a proportional enlargement of the sizes indicated.

5.1.2 Minor variations in the appearance of labels, that may be required for computerized printing techniques, may be requested by application to the Assistant Secretary for Science and Technology, U.S. Department of Commerce, Room 3862, Washington, D.C. 20230. Such variations shall be limited to changes in the type style or type size used to indicate values of ratings or ranges, model numbers, or other label elements that change from model to model. Applications for change shall include an example of the proposed change.

5.1.3 When two or more models having the same brand name have identical ratings, more than one model number may be shown on the label. The size of the label may be increased to accommodate such additional model number listings.

5.1.4 Labels shall be printed on both sides of white stock. The areas so indicated in Figures 1 through 4 shall be printed in Pantone Super Warm Red. The seal or logotype of the certifying agency shall be printed in any legible color or colors. All other printing shall be in black.

5.1.5 Camera-ready art suitable for printing the labels, but not including numerical ratings, model numbers, or the seal, logotype, or other designation of the certifying agency, shall be provided by the Secretary to any manufacturer upon request. Actual labels shall be accurate reproductions of this art.

5.2 Water heaters shall be labeled as follows:

5.2.1 Labels shall be folded as indicated in Figures 1, 2, and 3 and shall either be hung as a tag on the front of the water heater at a height of four feet or as close to four feet as is practicable, or shall be hung as a tag from the top of the water heater. Labels on water heaters less than four feet in height shall be affixed to the top of the water heater. Labels shall be hung or affixed in such a manner as to insure that they can be read in their entirety.

5.2.2 When labels are shown with other information, they shall appear clearly distinct from any other information supplied or displayed by the manufacturer so that the Department of Commerce Energy Conservation Mark on the label cannot reasonably be associated with such other information.

5.2.3 If any model of a given brand of water heater is labeled, then every model of that brand shall be labeled. However, these requirements shall not apply to units intended for export or units manufactured prior to the manufacturer's entry into the Program.

5.2.4 For individual units manufactured and packaged prior to a manufacturer's entry into this Program, manufacturers are encouraged to attach appropriate labels, distribute appropriate labels to retailers to be attached to floor display models or other models, or provide point-of-purchase displays as described in 6.4. Manufacturers shall encourage retention of labels on labeled units until such units are delivered to consumers. Manufacturers shall also encourage the use of any point-of-purchase displays that will enhance the usefulness of the labels to consumers.

6.1 For each labeled model for which sales representations are made that present cost of energy information, the listing shall either include a reproduction of the label for that model, or shall in some other format indicate the hot water supply rating, cost of energy, and the ranges of hot water supply rating and cost of energy appropriate to the listed model. The required information for one or more models may be presented in a table or tables.

6.2 For each labeled model for which sales representations are made that present quantitative cost of energy information, the ranges of cost of energy shown in the representation shall be determined as follows:

6.2.1 The ranges shall be taken from the version of Appendix A in effect 90 days before the press date of the sales representation or from a later version of Appendix A if it can be utilized before the press date of such sales representation.

6.2.2 The ranges shall be taken from the appropriate version of Appendix A using the procedure described in 4.8.2.

6.3 When labeled models with accompanying quantitative cost of energy information are listed in sales representations, the section in which the models are listed may contain a reproduction of the Department of Commerce Energy Conservation Mark, accompanied by the words "Tested in accordance with."

6.4 Legible reproductions of that portion of the label shown in Figures 1, 2, or 3, in any size, may be used on the product, on packaging, in point-of-purchase displays, or in other advertising applications, but such use shall not be a substitute for required labeling.

6.5 When for a given model the cost of energy rating as determined in 4.7 is less than the lower limit of the appropriate cost of energy range as determined in 4.8 for use on labels or 6.2 for use in sales representations, manufacturers are encouraged to utilize this fact in their advertising of that model. This condition could result from introduction of a new or improved model, and in such case would persist until a new cost of energy range had been issued.

7.0 Participation in the Program.

7.1 Manufacturers wishing to participate in the Voluntary Labeling Program for Household Appliances and Equipment to Effect Energy Conservation with respect to water heaters shall notify the Department of Commerce of intended participation. Unless otherwise ruled by the Secretary, approval for participation by any manufacturer shall automatically be granted upon this notification to the Department. Receipt of this notification will be acknowledged.

7.2 A manufacturer's notice of intent to participate in the Program with respect to water heaters shall be in a form substantially like that shown in Appendix B and shall include all points addressed in the form shown in Appendix B.

7.3 Manufacturers shall provide the Department of Commerce, not later than their stated effective date of entry into the Program with respect to water heaters, a listing of all models to be labeled. Such listing shall include the sales model designation, hot water supply rating, tank capacity, and cost of energy rating for each model and an indication of the grouping of sales models into basic model groups. All appropriate sales models as defined in 5.2.3 shall be included. This listing may be included with the notice of intended participation and shall be addressed to the Assistant Secretary for Science and Technology, U.S. Department of Commerce, Room 3862, Washington, D.C. 20230. This requirement for a listing of models to be labeled may be met by reference to a publicly available directory or listing of water heaters if such directory or listing contains the required information.

7.4 When a manufacturer's listing of water heater models to be labeled, or his listing of hot water supply ratings, tank capacities, and cost of energy ratings as required under 7.3, is changed by the addition of models or by changes in model designations or ratings, the manufacturer or his agent shall notify the Secretary no later than 30 days after the first shipment of the newly listed or rated production models from his factory. When models are deleted or if the manufacturer terminates his participation in the Program with respect to water heaters of a given brand name, the manufacturer or his agent shall notify the Secretary no later than 30 days after such a decision is effective. Such notification shall be addressed to the Secretary of Commerce, U.S. Department of Commerce, Room 5851, Washington, D.C. 20230

7.5 Manufacturers or their agents shall maintain files of test results and calculations on which ratings are based and files of test results and calculations used to verify that the performance of manufactured units is within the tolerances specified in 4.9. Data relating to a given model shall be preserved for a period of two years after production of that model has been terminated and, if requested, shall be provided to the Secretary within 30 days of such request.

7.6 Manufacturers or their agents shall transmit required information to the Secretary in concise and readily understandable form. For this purpose copies of appropriate lists and reports used for other purposes, as for example reports submitted by a manufacturer to the sponsor of a nationally recognized certification program, or reports submitted by an independent testing laboratory to such a sponsor or a manufacturer, shall be acceptable.

7.7 Should any water heater be tested and found to be improperly rated and labeled as in 4.9, the manufacturer shall within 30 days of such a finding give notice of noncompliance and a statement of revised ratings in writing to the Secretary and to all distributors or others in the line of distribution who are responsible for sales to dealers or other retail outlets. He shall also, within 60 days after such a finding, arrange to have corrected labels available for substitution on models currently on display at retail outlets and for those placed on display at a later date and shall see that such outlets are notified through his normal channels of distribution.

8.0 Termination of Participation.

8.1 A manufacturer may at any time terminate his participation and responsibilities under the Program with respect to water heaters of a given brand name by giving written notice to the Secretary that he will discontinue or has discontinued use of the labels on all water heaters of that brand name. Such notice shall state the effective date of the manufacturer's termination of participation.

8.2 The Department of Commerce upon finding that a manufacturer is not complying with the conditions for participation set

Office for Civil Rights

NONDISCRIMINATION IN EMPLOYMENT BY GOVERNMENT CONTRACTORS AND SUBCONTRACTORS AND BY FEDERALLY ASSISTED CONSTRUCTION CONTRACTORS AND SUBCONTRACTORS

Chapter 27-10 of the General Administration Manual of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, as published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on January 25, 1969, 34 FR 1276, is hereby amended as follows: The word "may" is substituted for the word "shall" in the first sentence of the last paragraph of subsection 27-10-60D, "Resolution and disposition of complaints." That sentence will now read as follows:

If the above specified informal procedures fail to achieve adjustment of a violation, the contractor may be afforded an opportunity for an informal hearing to determine whether a violation of the equal opportunity clause has taken place.

This revision gives the Office for Civil Rights the discretion to make informal hearing procedures available to a contractor and takes away from the contractor the absolute right to such procedures. This revision is deemed necessary in order to facilitate an orderly process of seeking compliance with Executive Order 11246. Chapter 27-10 continues to provide for mandatory efforts on the part of the Office for Civil Rights to secure voluntary compliance (including the mandatory scheduling of a compliance conference which greatly resembles an informal hearing) and adequately protects the contractor's right of due process by continuing to mandate that the contractor be offered a formal hearing before any sanctions for violation of Executive Order 11246 and any implementing regulations are imposed. The Office for Civil Rights will continue to make informal hearing procedures available in those situations where they might produce an adequate resolution of the dispute in question without undue delay.

The Department intends to make more extensive changes in Chapter 27-10 in the near future. Such changes will be issued in proposed form and public comment will be solicited. Since the present amendment does not affect the due process of contractors and since there continues to be adequate opportunity for voluntary compliance, its issuance in proposed form was viewed as unnecessary.

Dated: August 8, 1975.

CASPAR W. WEINBERGER,
Secretary.

Food and Drug Administration

[Docket Nos. 75N-0106; FDC-D-667]

ACME SCIENTIFIC CO. ET AL.

New Animal Drug Applications; Notice of Withdrawal of Approval

The Commissioner of Food and Drugs is withdrawing approval of new animal drug applications for drugs no longer marketed and for which no hearings were requested, effective August 14, 1975.

A notice of opportunity for hearing proposing to withdraw approval of new animal drug applications (NADA's) was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER of March 6, 1974 (39 FR 8648). This action was proposed because the sponsors of the NADA's had failed to make reports required under section 512(l) of the act for each new animal drug listed therein. The reports were: (1) The report required by the notice on drug effectiveness published in the FEDERAL REGISTER of July 9, 1966 (31 FR 9426). It required holders of new drug applications approved between 1938 and October 10, 1962, to submit certain data, including data supporting efficacy of the products, to facilitate review of the data by the National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council (NAS-NRS). The purpose of that review was to determine whether there may be grounds for withdrawing approval of the application; and (2) the report required by § 135.35 Records and reports on new animal drugs and antibiotics for use in animals for which applications or certification Forms 5 and 6 became effective, or were approved prior to June 20, 1963, published in the FEDERAL REGISTER of September 14, 1971 (36 FR 18378). (Section 135.35 has subsequently been recodified as § 510.310 (40 FR 13802, Mar. 27, 1975).) The regulation required submission of a report from the application holder for each new animal drug or antibiotic approved prior to June 20, 1963.

Fifteen written responses to the notice of opportunity for hearing were received, 13 of which either chose not to request a hearing or disclaimed knowledge of the application. I. D. Russell Co. requested that the approval of three of their applications not be withdrawn; they stated that they have obtained authorization for the Commissioner to refer to data that purports to establish that the drugs are safe and effective. Accordingly, NADA's 6-019V (Ruco Poultry Tablets), 6-081V (Korum), and 6-860V (Zuco Tablets) are not being withdrawn at this time. U.S. Vitamin Pharmaceutical Corp. has advised the Commissioner that they no longer market the product Chevinal, covered by NADA 2-924V. [Docket No. 75P-0014]

GENERAL ELECTRIC CO.

Approval of Variance for Diagnostic X-ray Systems and Their Major Components

Notice is hereby given that a variance from certain performance standards applicable to the MMX-II Mammographic X-ray System has been approved by the Director, Bureau of Radiological Health, Food and Drug Administration. The General Electric Co., Medical Systems Division, P.O. Box 414, Milwaukee, WI 53201, is the manufacturer.

The variance is approved under § 1010.4 (21 CFR 1010.4) of the regulations governing granting of variances for electronic products for which there are performance standards promulgated under section 358 of the Public Health Service Act, as added by the Radiation Control for Health and Safety Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 263f).

The variance will apply to the x-ray beam quality of the model MMX-II Mammographic X-ray System, which is a diagnostic system marketed by the applicant. This system will deviate from the requirements of § 1020.30(m)(1) (21 CFR 1020.30(m)(1)) of the performance standard, in that the minimum half-value layer (HVL) of the useful beam for the kilovoltage range between 50 and 60 kVp (kilovolts peak) will be less than required by § 1020.30(m)(1).

The MMX-II Mammographic X-ray System is an x-ray system designed for radiographic examination of the breast, utilizing either film or the Xerox system as the image receptor. The applicant has stated that this system is designed to provide the maximum amount of useful low energy x rays for the maximum contrast and minimum exposure during mammographic studies. The applicant also has stated that the edge enhancement characteristic of the Xerox process of image production requires increased filtration and kVp compared to film mammography.

Typical x-ray techniques employ kilovoltages in the 40 to 49 kVp range with 1.0 millimeter of aluminum filtration. The applicant has stated that for patients with dense or thick breasts it is sometimes desirable to exceed 49 kVp; and when a molybdenum target tube is used, there is an increased need for kilovoltages in excess of 49 kVp since the radiation output of these tubes has a lower effective energy.

The beam quality requirements of § 1020.30(m)(1) require that filtration be increased when x-ray systems are operated at kilovoltages above 50 kVp. This increased filtration, which is necessary to produce the HVL required by § 1020.30(m)(1), when used with an x-ray tube having a molybdenum target, requires increased exposure times and results in increased loading on the x-ray tube. The increased exposure time also increases the chance that the patient will move during the exposure, resulting in poor quality radiographs.

The applicant has stated that exposure measurements using patients and phantoms indicate that tungsten or molybdenum target x-ray tubes give equivalent skin exposure to the patient when the beam quality is adjusted to give the same image contrast. The applicant further stated that when molybdenum target x-ray tubes are used, higher kilovoltages are required to obtain a given image contrast than when tungsten target tubes are used. The added filtration required for the molybdenum target tubes, when operated at or above 50 kVp under the beam quality requirements of the standard, results in decreased radiation output and can require as much as a 60-percent increase in the milliampere-seconds required for the exposure.

The applicant has requested that, in lieu of the requirements in § 1020.30(m)(1) on beam quality for x-ray systems operated with x-ray tube potentials between 50 and 60 kVp, that the minimum HVL be equivalent to the HVL obtained when a filter equivalent to 1.0 millimeter of aluminum total filteration is used.

The beam quality requirements in § 1020.30(m)(1) are based on the desirability of limiting the low-energy components contained in the useful beam of an x-ray system because they normally contribute only to patient dose. In mammography, however, lower energy components are required in the beam to produce an adequate image of the soft tissues of the breast. The beam quality requirements in § 1020.30(m)(1) are based on the recommendations of various voluntary standard-setting groups. The recommendations were adopted prior to the general availability of x-ray tubes containing targets of materials other than tungsten. In addition, several of the voluntary standards that provided the basis for the beam quality requirements of § 1020.30(m)(1) excluded equipment designed for special procedures like mammography. For mammography, to obtain the required beam quality, a minimum of 0.5 millimeter of aluminum filtration was recommended. This exception was not written into § 1020.30(m)(1). Therefore, the Director has approved the requested variance under the following conditions:

1. In lieu of the provisions of table I in § 1020.30(m)(1) where a measured potential of 50 kVp requires a minimum HVL of 1.2 millimeters of aluminum and a measured potential of 60kVp requires a minimum HVL of 1.3 millimeters of aluminum, the MMX-II Mammographic X-ray System shall provide a beam quality so that for a measured potential of 50 kVp the HVL shall be not less than 0.7 millimeter of aluminum and for a measured potential of 60 kVp the HVL shall not be less than 0.8 millimeter of aluminum.

2. The MMX-II Mammographic X-ray System shall be provided with positive means to ensure that at least the minimum filtration needed to achieve the beam quality specified in § 1020.30(m)(1), and in paragraph 1. above, is in the useful beam during each exposure.

The Director has concluded that under the conditions provided for in paragraphs 1. and 2. above, the MMX-II Mammographic X-ray System will utilize suitable means for providing radiation protection, and is therefore granting the variance in accordance with the provisions of § 1010.4(a)(2) for a period of 2 years. The applicant has been directed to modify, in accordance with § 1010.4(d), the tags, labels, or other certification required by § 1010.2 (21 CFR 1010.2), which are permanently affixed to or inscribed upon products marketed under this variance, to state the following: "This product complies with Variance No. 75002, effective on September 15, 1975".

Under § 6.1(b) (21 CFR 6.1(b)), the possible environmental consequences of this variance have been considered carefully. It has been determined that the action will have neither a marginal nor a significant impact on the environment. Based on this determination, it has been concluded that an environmental impact statement pursuant to section 102(2)(c) of the National Environmental Policy Act is not required.

A copy of the environmental analysis report is available for public review in the office of the Hearing Clerk, Food and Drug Administration, Rm. 4-65, 5600 Fishers Lane, Rockville, MD 20852.

Variance No. 75002 shall become effective on September 15, 1975, and terminate on August 15, 1977, unless written objections and supporting information are filed with the Hearing Clerk, Food and Drug Administration, on or before September 15, 1975, requesting that the variance be modified or not granted. Upon receipt of such objections and supporting documentation, the effective date of the variance will be stayed until the Director, Bureau of Radiological Health, rules on them. Pursuant to § 1010.4(c)(3), the applicant shall be notified by certified mail, and a notice of the stay shall be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The ruling on the objections shall be made within 60 days, shall be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER, and shall constitute final agency action subject to judicial review under section 358(d) of the act. The application for this variance and all related correspondence are available for public disclosure in the office of the Hearing Clerk, except for information covered by the confidentiality provisions of section 360A(e) of the act (42 U.S.C. 263i(e)).

Dated: August 8, 1975.

CIVIL AERONAUTICS BOARD

[Docket 28166; Order 75-8-46]

LANSA, S. DE R.L.

Statement of Tentative Findings and Conclusions and Order To Show Cause

Adopted by the Civil Aeronautics Board at its office in Washington, D.C. on the 11th day of August, 1975.

Lansa, S. de R. L. (LANSA), also known as Aerovias Lansa, a Honduran air carrier, holds a foreign air carrier permit[1] authorizing: (a) foreign air transportation of property and mail between a point or points in Honduras; the intermediate points Belize City, Belize (formerly British Honduras); Cozumel, Mexico; and Grand Cayman, Cayman Islands; and the terminal point Tampa, Florida; and (b) the performance of offroute charter trips in foreign air transportation pursuant to Part 212 of the Board's Economic Regulations.

The Board is advised that LANSA has ceased its operations to the United States pursuant to its foreign air carrier permit. Despite the existence of a shell organization in Honduras, the carrier is not operating any aircraft and its foreign air carrier permit is effectively dormant. So long as the permit is left outstanding, there exists the possibility that it could be the object of misuse by unauthorized parties.

In view of the foregoing, the Board tentatively finds that it is in the public interest to cancel the foreign air carrier permit held by LANSA.

Accordingly, it is ordered, That:

1. All interested persons are hereby directed to show cause why the Board should not issue an order making final the tentative findings and conclusions stated herein, and which would, subject to the approval of the President, cancel the foreign air carrier permit held by Lansa, S. de R.L., issued pursuant to Order 72-11-57;

2. Any interested person having objection to the issuance, without hearing, of an order making final the tentative findings and conclusions stated herein shall file a statement of objections supported by evidence within twenty days after the adoption of this order. If an evidentiary hearing is requested the objector should state in detail why such hearing is considered necessary and what relevant and material facts he would expect to establish through such hearing which cannot be established in written pleadings;

3. If timely and properly supported objections are filed, further consideration will be accorded the matters and issues raised by the objections before further action is taken by the Board; Provided, That the Board may proceed to enter an order in accordance with the tentative findings and conclusions herein if it determines that there are no factual issues presented that warrant the holding of an evidentiary hearing;[2]

4. In the event no objections are filed, all further procedural steps will be deemed to have been waived, and the Board may proceed to enter an order in accordance with the tentative findings and conclusions set forth herein; and

5. Copies of this order shall be served upon Lansa, S. de R.L. and the Ambassador of Honduras in Washington.

This order will be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER and will be transmitted to the President.

By the Civil Aeronautics Board.

SOUTHERN AIRWAYS, INC.

Application

Adopted by the Civil Aeronautics Board at its office in Washington, D.C. on the 11th day of August, 1975.

On April 21, 1975, Southern Airways filed a revised application, pursuant to Subpart M of the Board's Rules of Practice, for amendment of its certificate of public convenience and necessity for route 98 so as to permit the carrier to provide, on a subsidy-ineligible basis, nonstop or direct single-plane service between Greenville/Spartanburg, S.C., on the one hand, and Washington, D.C. and New York/Newark, on the other.[1] Southern also requests that the restriction in its certificate precluding single-plane service between Atlanta and Washington/New York/Newark be removed, which would permit Southern to offer one-stop service in these markets.[2] Southern requests that, should the Board determine that its Atlanta proposal is not suitable for processing under Subpart M, that part of its application dealing with Atlanta be given an expedited hearing, consolidated with any proceeding involving its Greenville/Spartanburg proposal.

Eastern Air Lines and Delta Air Lines have filed updated statements requesting dismissal of Southern's application. A revised statement in support was filed by the Greenville/Spartanburg Airport Authority.[3] Southern filed a revised answer to Eastern and Delta's statements.[4]

Upon consideration of the foregoing, we find that Southern's application is in compliance with and is appropriate for processing under the provisions of Subpart M, insofar as it seeks authority between Greenville/Spartanburg and Washington, D.C./New York/Newark. Accordingly, we will order further proceedings pursuant to the provisions of Subpart M, sections 302.1306-1310, with respect to that aspect of Southern's application.

However, we have further determined that Southern's request for the removal of its single-plane restriction between Atlanta and Washington/New York-Newark is inappropriate for processing under Subpart M. Moreover, we have decided not to set down that part of Southern's application for an immediate hearing under the usual hearing processes at this time. Thus, the portion of [1] Order 72-11-57, approved November 13, 1972.

[2] Since provision is made for the filing of objections to this order, petitions for reconsideration will not be entertained.

[1] This would be accomplished by designating Greenville/Spartanburg (currently an intermediate point on Segment 1) as an intermediate point between Columbus, Ga., and Washington, D.C. on Segment 7 (of which New York/Newark is a terminal point).

[2] Southern originally filed for the authority in issue on September 22, 1972. However, by Order 75-3-14, March 6, 1975, the Board noted that the 1972 exhibit material was out-of-date and directed Southern to submit revised exhibits. In its letter accompanying the present revised application, Southern states that the new filing is "intended to replace the original September 22, 1972, application in its entirety."

[3] All three parties filed pleadings taking the same positions in response to Southern's original 1972 application. Delta incorporates its original statement in its present pleading.

[4] Southern accompanied that answer with a motion for leave to file an otherwise unauthorized pleading, which motion will be granted.

Southern's application dealing with Atlanta will be dismissed.

As Southern recognizes in its application, the Board has held that Subpart M procedures are not applicable to requests to remove restrictions precluding single-plane service. Order 75–5–93, May 23, 1975; Order 69–8–77, August 14, 1969. Therefore, its Atlanta proposal cannot be considered under Subpart M. As to its alternative request to give that proposal immediate hearing under Subpart A procedures, Southern has not even alleged that there are service deficiencies in the primary markets, Atlanta-Washington, D.C. or Atlanta-New York/Newark, which require priority hearing for its request. Both markets are markedly well-served by a large number of flights throughout the day, most of them nonstop, provided by four carriers.[8] Therefore, we find that the portion of Southern's application dealing with Atlanta does not present facts which warrant an investigation at this time.

• • • • •

Accordingly, it is ordered, That:

1. The revised application of Southern Airways, Inc., Docket 24778, insofar as it requests amendment of the certificate of public convenience and necessity for route 98 so as to add Greenville/Spartanburg, S.C. to segment 7 as an intermediate point between Columbus, Ga. and Washington, D.C., be and it hereby is set for further proceedings pursuant to rules 302.1306–1310 of the Board's Rules of Practice, and is dismissed in all other respects;

2. The motion of Southern Airways, Inc. for leave to file an otherwise unauthorized revised answer be and it hereby is granted: and

3. This order shall be served upon all parties served by Southern Airways in its revised application.

This order shall be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

UNITED AIR LINES, INC.

Order To Show Cause

Adopted by the Civil Aeronautics Board at its office in Washington, D.C. on the 8th day of August, 1975.

On July 22, 1974, United Air Lines, Inc. (United), filed an application for amendment of its certificate of public convenience and necessity for route 1 so as to add a new segment to permit nonstop service between Denver, Colo., and Grand Rapids, Mich.,[1] along with a petition requesting an order to show cause why its certificate should not be amended to reflect the new authority. In the alternative, the carrier seeks an exemption pursuant to section 416(b) of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958, as amended, for nonstop Denver-Grand Rapids service until the Board's decision on the certificate amendment application can be made effective.

In support of its requests, United alleges that the proposed nonstop service will provide significantly improved service to Grand Rapids and Saginaw passengers who primarily utilize United's on-line connecting services today; that United will not only be offering first nonstop service to Denver for Grand Rapids passengers, but will also be providing the first through-plane service to the West for Saginaw passenger;[2] that transfer of passengers to the Denver nonstop will release capacity on the Grand Rapids/Saginaw-Chicago segments to the benefit of the local passengers traveling over those segments; that the proposed service will be profitable; and that there will be no significant diversion from other carriers.

Answers in support of United's applications have been filed by the Grand Rapids Parties,[3] the City and County of Denver and the Public Utilities Commission of the State of Colorado, the Tri-City Airport Commission (Freeland, Mich.), the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation and the Michigan Aeronautics Commission, the Flint, Michigan Airport Commission, and the Joint Air Service Committee for the Chambers of Commerce of Saginaw, Bay City, and Midland, Mich.[4] In addition, the Michigan Aeronautics Commission filed a motion for leave to intervene.[5]

North Central has filed an answer in opposition to United's applications, contending that Grand Rapids/Saginaw-Denver is an extremely small market, with only 18 local O&D passengers per day in each direction; that well-timed one-stop connecting service is offered throughout the day in both directions; that United's single proposed nonstop flight will lose money, primarily because it will do little more than divert traffic from existing services provided by United, North Central, and other carriers, and that a more efficient way of routing the limited Grand Rapids/Saginaw-Denver traffic is over Milwaukee.[6]

United has filed a reply to North Central's answer.

Upon consideration of the foregoing and all the relevant facts, we have decided to (1) issue an order to show cause why United's certificate for route 1 should not be amended under section 401(g) of the Act so as to permit nonstop service between Denver, Colo., and Grand Rapids, Mich., and (2) deny United's exemption request.

We tentatively find and conclude that the public convenience and necessity require the proposed amendment to United's certificate.[7] In support of our ultimate determination, we make the following tentative findings and conclusions. We find that grant of the requested authority will permit United to provide improved service to the traveling and shipping public. United would not only be able to offer first nonstop service to Denver from Grand Rapids, but would also be able to provide the first through-plane service to the West for Saginaw passengers. Elimination of the Chicago connecting stop should reduce travel time for the Grand Rapids-Denver passengers and the Saginaw-Denver passengers by approximately 1 hour and 35 minutes and 35 minutes, respectively. At the same time the congestion situation at Chicago's O'Hare terminal should be benefited, not only by the proposed overflights, but also by lessening the possible need for additional Grand Rapids/Saginaw-Chicago frequencies. Although numerous connecting possibilities are available over the Chicago gateway to points west of Denver, the Denver connection point would provide an additional choice of service and thereby benefit the Michigan passengers who will not be required to move via Chicago. Moreover, the authority requested involves no new stations or equipment for United, and would merely permit the carrier more scheduling and operating flexibility.

North Central raises three principal objections to the grant of nonstop authority to United. First, North Central asserts that the Saginaw/Grand Rapids-Denver markets are small and already receive well-timed connecting service in both directions. Second, it is argued that United will be unable to operate its proposed daily nonstop round trip on a profitable basis. Finally, North Central suggests that there are more efficient ways to route the limited volume of Saginaw/Grand Rapids-Denver traffic (i.e., one-stop via Milwaukee) and that United's

[8] Eastern, Delta, Piedmont and United. OAG, July 1, 1975.

[1] Denver is situated on segments 1, 5, 6, and 9 of United's certificate for route 1; Grand Rapids is situated on segment 1 of route 14. The carrier's best authority between the two points is one-stop via the route junction point Chicago.

[2] At the present time, Denver-Grand Rapids/Saginaw passengers must use connections via Chicago. United proposes to provide a daily B–727 service wth one westbound early morning flight and one eastbound early evening flight over a Denver-Grand Rapids-Saginaw routing, with flights in both directions serving an unspecified point west of Denver.

[3] The City of Grand Rapids, Mich., the Greater Grand Rapids Chamber of Commerce, and the County of Kent, Mich.

[4] The Joint Air Service Committee also filed a motion for leave to file a late answer. We will grant the motion.

[5] Since the Board's Regulations do not provide for intervention in informal economic proceedings, we will dismiss the motion.

[6] North Central has applied for Milwaukee-Denver nonstop authority in docket 26646. The carrier contends that United's applications should not be considered prior to consideration of its application.

[7] We further tentatively find that United is a citizen of the United States within the meaning of the Act and is fit, willing, and able properly to perform the transportation pursuant to the amended certificate proposed and to conform to the provisions of the Act and the Board's rules, regulations, and requirements thereunder.

authority should not be improved in advance of Board consideration of new authority for North Central which would permit one-stop Saginaw/Grand Rapids-Milwaukee-Denver service.

We believe that the size of the market argues in favor of, rather than against, the elimination of United's existing restriction which now precludes the operation of nonstop service. Authorizing unrestricted authority in markets which are small and which, as a result, do not present competitive considerations of significant magnitude is essentially noncontroversial and consistent with Board precedent.[8] United holds one-stop authority in the market via the route junction point Chicago and, more importantly, carried 100 percent of the single-carrier Saginaw/Grand Rapids-Denver traffic in 1974 notwithstanding North Central's existing single-carrier authority. While we are inclined to accept North Central's view that United may not be able to operate its daily round trip on a profitable basis, we do not believe that the carrier should therefore be precluded from attempting to experiment with nonstop service. In short, we believe that the elimination of United's one-stop restriction so as to permit (although not require) the carrier to attempt to improve service, without any significant competitive impact upon any other carriers, is required by the public convenience and necessity.

The grant of improved authority to United should have only a limited bearing, if any, on North Central's objective of routing Saginaw/Grand Rapids-Denver traffic via Milwaukee. To begin with, the thrust of North Central's request in docket 26646 is not toward the Michigan-Denver markets here at issue. Rather, the carrier seeks removal of its existing single-plane restriction in the Milwaukee-Denver market so as to permit it to become a second nonstop carrier in competition with United. To be sure, North Central urges that it can help support a Denver-Milwaukee route with beyond traffic to and from Saginaw/Grand Rapids. However, the carrier's application must, in the last analysis, be focused on the requirements of the Milwaukee-Denver market in which it seeks its fundamental authority. Not surprisingly, therefore, the carrier does not assert that simultaneous consideration is required by the Ashbacker doctrine since it clearly is not. See, e.g., Southern Tier Competitive Nonstop Investigation, order 73–2–89, Feb. 23, 1973, aff'd. Delta Air Lines v. CAB, 505 F.2d 386 (D.C. Cir. 1973), cert. denied 417 U.S. 930 (1974). See also, Application of Continental Air Lines, order 73–4–113, Apr. 26, 1973, pp. 2–3. We see no reason to deprive the traveling public and United of the opportunity to enjoy improved service and profits simply because, at some time in the future, North Central may wish to propose Denver-Milwaukee flights which also serve Saginaw/Grand Rapids.[9]

Interested persons will be given 30 days following the date of adoption of this order to show cause why the tentative findings and conclusions set forth herein should not be made final. We expect such persons to support their objections, if any, with detailed answers, specifically setting forth the tentative findings and conclusions to which objection is taken. Such objections should be accompanied by arguments of fact or law and should be supported by legal precedent or detailed economic analysis. If any evidentiary hearing is requested, the objector should state in detail what he would expect to establish through such a hearing that cannot be established in written pleadings. General, vague, or unsupported objections will not be entertained.

Finally, we have decided to deny United's application for exemption authority. The carrier has not persuaded us that the exercise by the Board of its extraordinary exemption powers under section 416(b) of the Act is required by the public interest.

ACCORDINGLY, IT IS ORDERED THAT:

1. The application of United Air Lines, Inc., in docket 26891 for an exemption be and it hereby is denied;

2. The motion of the Joint Air Service Committee for the Chambers of Commerce of Saginaw, Bay City, and Midland, Mich., for leave to file a late answer be and it hereby is granted;

3. The motion filed by the Michigan Aeronautics Commission for leave to intervene be and it hereby is dismissed without prejudice;

4. All interested persons are directed to show cause why the Board should not issue an order making final the tentative findings and conclusions stated herein, and amending United's certificate of public convenience and necessity for route 1 so as to permit nonstop service between Denver, Colo., and Grand Rapids, Mich.;

5. Any interested persons having objections to the issuance of an order making final any of the proposed findings, conclusions, or certificate amendment set forth herein shall, within 30 days after the date of this order, file with the Board and serve upon all persons listed in paragraph 8 below a statement of objections together with a summary of testimony, statistical data, and other evidence expected to be relied upon to support the stated objections; [10]

6. If timely and properly supported objections are filed, full consideration will be accorded the matters and issues raised by the objections before further action is taken by the Board;

7. In the event no objections are filed, all further procedural steps will be deemed to have been waived and the Board may proceed to enter an order in accordance with the tentative findings and conclusions set forth herein; and

8. A copy of this order shall be served on Braniff Airways, Inc.; Continental Air Lines, Inc.; Frontier Airlines, Inc.; North Central Airlines, Inc.; Eastern Air Lines, Inc.; Aspen Airways, Inc.; Texas International Airlines, Inc.; Trans World Airlines, Inc.; Ozark Air Lines, Inc.; United Air Lines, Inc.; Western Air Lines, Inc.; Governor, State of Colorado; the Public Utilities Commission of the State of Colorado; Governor, State of Michigan; the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation and the Michigan Aeronautics Commission; the City and County of Denver, Colo.; Mayor, City of Grand Rapids; Airport Managers, Kent County Airport and Stapleton International Airport; the Joint Air Service Committee for the Chambers of Commerce of Saginaw, Bay City, and Midland, Mich.; Air Rampart, Inc.; Rocky Mountain Airways; S. I. Airways; Air Midwest; Mayor, City of Saginaw; the Tri-City Airport Commission (Freeland, Mich.); and the Postmaster General.

This order will be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

COMMITTEE FOR THE IMPLEMENTATION OF TEXTILE AGREEMENTS

CERTAIN COTTON AND MAN-MADE FIBER TEXTILE PRODUCTS PRODUCED OR MANUFACTURED IN THE REPUBLIC OF CHINA

Entry or Withdrawal From Warehouse for Consumption

AUGUST 11, 1975.

On June 19, 1975, there was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (40 FR 25848) a letter dated June 13, 1975 from the Chairman, Committee for the Implementation of Textile Agreements, to the Commissioner of Customs, implementing

[8] We have also determined that grant of the proposed authority is by its very nature not one which could lead to a "major Federal action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment" within the meaning of section 102(2)(C) of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA). In its application for exemption authority in docket 26891, United proposes the operation of a single daily Saginaw-Grand Rapids-Denver-beyond round trip. In view of the size of the Saginaw/Grand Rapids-Denver markets (less than 15,200 O&D passengers in fiscal year 1974) and the level of existing service, it is unlikely that United would offer significantly more service. Therefore, it is unreasonable to suppose on the face of the matter that authorization of unrestricted Grand Rapids-Denver service will lead to more than very minor environmental changes.

[9] In orders 73–4–97 and 73–1–47, Texas International obtained nonstop authority in 18 nonexclusive markets which generated 10 or fewer O&D passengers per day. Moreover, two Texas International markets (Corpus Christi-New Orleans, 19 O&D, and Houston-Wichita Falls, 16 O&D) were larger than 10 O&D passengers per day, but nevertheless were realigned so as to authorize nonstop operations. The size of the market also leads us to make the new authority permissive.

[10] All motions and/or petitions for reconsideration shall be filed within the period allowed for filing objections, and no further such motions, requests, or petitions for reconsideration of this order will be entertained.

those provisions of the Bilateral Cotton, Wool and Man-Made Fiber Textile Agreement of May 21, 1975, between the Governments of the United States and the Republic of China which establish specific export limitations on certain cotton and man-made fiber textile products produced or manufactured in the Republic of China and exported to the United States (1) during the twelve-month period beginning on January 1, 1975 for cotton textiles and cotton textile products; and (2) during the fifteen-month period beginning on October 1, 1974 and extending through December 31, 1975 for man-made fiber textile products. As set forth in that letter, the levels of restraint are subject to adjustment pursuant to paragraph 6 of the Bilateral Cotton, Wool and Man-Made Fiber Textile Agreement of May 21, 1975, which provides that within the aggregate and applicable group limits, specific levels of restraint within Categories 1–38, 64, 200–213 and 241–243 may be exceeded by 10 percent; and within Categories 39–63 and 214–240, by 7 percent.

Accordingly, at the request of the Government of the Republic of China and pursuant to the provision of the bilateral agreement referred to above, there is published below a letter of August 11, 1975, from the Chairman of the Committee for the Implementation of Textile Agreements to the Commissioner of Customs amending the levels of restraint applicable to cotton and man-made fiber textile products in selected categories for the agreement periods which began, respectively, on January 1, 1975 and October 1, 1974.

Chairman, Committee for the Implementation of Textile Agreements, and Deputy Assistant Secretary for Resources and Trade Assistance.

COMMITTEE FOR THE IMPLEMENTATION OF TEXTILE AGREEMENTS

COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS,
Department of the Treasury,
Washington, D.C. 20229.

AUGUST 11, 1975.

DEAR MR. COMMISSIONER: On June 13, 1975, the Chairman, Committee for the Implementation of Textile Agreements, directed you to prohibit entry of cotton and man-made fiber textile products in certain specified categories, produced or manufactured in the Republic of China and exported to the United States during the agreement periods beginning, respectively, on January 1, 1975, and October 1, 1974, in excess of designated levels of restraint. The Chairman further advised you that the levels of restraint are subject to adjustment.[1]

Under the terms of the Arrangement Regarding International Trade in Textiles done at Geneva on December 20, 1973, pursuant to paragraph 6 of the Bilateral Cotton, Wool and Man-Made Fiber Textile Agreement of May 21, 1975, between the Governments of the United States and the Republic of China, and in accordance with the provisions of Executive Order 11651 of March 3, 1972, you are directed to amend, effective on August 14, 1975, the levels of restraint established in the aforesaid directive of June 13, 1975, for cotton and man-made fiber textile products in the indicated categories to the following amounts:

|---|---|
| 9/10 | 37,821,523 square yards. |

| Category | Amended 12-month level of restraint [1] |
|---|---|
| 18/19 | 2,046,223 square yards. |
| 22/23 | 4,058,416 square yards. |
| 43/62 pt. | 877,976 square yards equivalent. |
| 45/46/47 | 13,284,602 square yards equivalent (of which not more than 33,760 dozen may be in Category 45). |
| 48 | 23,540 dozen. |
| 49 | 37,450 dozen. |
| 50/51 | 675,148 dozen (of which not more than 323,776 dozen may be in Category 50 and not more than 520,160 may be in Category 51). |
| 60 | 42,800 dozen. |
| 213 | 10,520,073 pounds. |
| 219 | 6,693,241 dozen. |
| 221 | 4,709,334 dozen. |
| 222 | 4,425,523 dozen. |
| 224 | 11,338,462 pounds (of which not more than 282,500 pounds shall be in T.S.U.S.A. Nos. 380.0420 and 380.8143 and not more than 792,000 pounds shall be in T.S.U.S.A. Nos. 380.0402 and 380.8103). |
| 234/235 | 81,925,284 square yards equivalent. |

The actions taken with respect to the Government of the Republic of China and with respect to imports of cotton and man-made fiber textile products from the Republic of China have been determined by the Committee for the Implementation of Textile Agreements to involve foreign affairs functions of the United States. Therefore, the directions to the Commissioner of Customs, being necessary to the implementation of such actions, fall within the foreign affairs exception to the rule-making provisions of 5 U.S.C. 553. This letter will be published in the Federal Register.

Sincerely,

ALAN POLANSKY,
Chairman, Committee for the Implementation of Textile Agreements, and Deputy Assistant Secretary for Resources and Trade Assistance.

[1] The term "adjustment" refers to those provisions of the Bilateral Cotton, Wool and Man-Made Fiber Textile Agreement of May 21, 1975, between the Governments of the United States and the Republic of China which provide, in part, that: (1) within the aggregate and applicable group limits, specific levels of restraint within Categories 1–38, 64, 200–213, and 241–243 may be exceeded by 10 percent, and within Categories 39–63 and 214–240, by 7 percent; (2) these levels may be increased for carryover and carryforward up to 11 percent of the applicable category limit; and (3) administrative arrangements or adjustments may be made to resolve minor problems.

[1] The levels of restraint have not been adjusted to reflect any entries of cotton textile products after December 31, 1974 or of man-made fiber textile products after September 30, 1974.

COTTON TEXTILES AND COTTON TEXTILE PRODUCTS PRODUCED OR MANUFACTURED IN PORTUGAL

Entry or Withdrawal From Warehouse for Consumption

AUGUST 11, 1975.

On June 6, 1972, there was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (37 FR 11287) a letter dated June 1, 1972 from the Chairman, Committee for the Implementation of Textile Agreements, to the Commissioner of Customs, establishing a visa requirement for cotton textiles and cotton textile products produced or manufactured in Portugal and exported to the United States. The purpose of this notice is to advise that, inasmuch as the Bilateral Cotton Textile Agreement of November 17, 1970, as amended and extended, between the Governments of the United States and Portugal, has expired, the visa requirement established pursuant to that agreement is also being terminated.

Accordingly, there is published below a letter of August 11, 1975, from the Chairman of the Committee for the Implementation of Textile Agreements to the Commissioner of Customs cancelling the directive of June 1, 1972.

ALAN POLANSKY,
Chairman, Committee for the Implementation of Textile Agreements, and Deputy Assistant Secretary for Resources and Trade Assistance.

COMMITTEE FOR THE IMPLEMENTATION OF TEXTILE AGREEMENTS

COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS,
Department of the Treasury,
Washington, D.C. 20229

AUGUST 11, 1975.

DEAR MR. COMMISSIONER: This directive cancels and supersedes the directive of June 1, 1972 from the Chairman, Committee for the Implementation of Textile Agreements, which directed you to prohibit entry into the United States for consumption and withdrawal from warehouse for consumption of cotton textiles and cotton textile products, produced or manufactured in Portugal, for which the Government of Portugal had not issued an appropriate export visa.

The actions taken with respect to the Government of Portugal and with respect to imports of cotton textiles and cotton textile products from Portugal have been determined by the Committee for the Implementation of Textile Agreements to involve foreign affairs functions of the United States. Therefore, the directions to the Commissioner of Customs, being necessary to the implementation of such actions, fall within the foreign affairs exception to the rule-making provisions of 5 U.S.C. 553. This letter will be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

Sincerely,

ALAN POLANSKY,

Crisis Exemption To Control West Indian Sugarcane Root Borer on Citrus in Florida

Pursuant to the provisions of section 18 of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA), as amended (86 Stat. 973; 7 U.S.C. 136), the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) hereby gives notice that the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has availed itself of a crisis exemption for use of the pesticide carbaryl to control the West Indian sugarcane root borer; approximately 250 acres of citrus outside an established quarantine area near Apopka, Florida, are infested. This exemption is in accordance with, and subject to, the provisions of §§ 166.2, 166.8, and 166.9 of 40 CFR Part 166. These regulations concerning exemption of Federal and State agencies for the use of pesticides under emergency conditions were published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on December 3, 1973 (38 FR 33303). § 166.8(b) of the regulations requires that if treatment pursuant to the crisis exemption is expected to continue for more than fifteen (15) days, certified information shall be accompanied by an application for a specific exemption. Such application has been submitted, and is the subject of another notice which will be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. As required, the USDA has submitted in writing the following certified information regarding the crisis exemption.

According to the USDA, the West Indian sugarcane root borer (Diaprepes abbreviatus) poses a serious threat to U.S. citrus production. This exotic beetle became established in the United States in 1968 in Apopka, Orange County, Florida. At present, there are no pesticides registered to control this pest on citrus. Treatment and eradication efforts began on June 25, 1975. Approximately 250 acres of citrus outside an established quarantine area near Apopka, Florida, are infested. Repeated aerial applications of carbaryl (80 percent wettable power) are being applied to citrus foliage. The program is being directed by experienced Plant Protection and Quarantine Programs or State supervisors, supervisory pilots, trained inspectors, and technicians experienced in the application and use of pesticides.

Applications are being timed to avoid the full bloom season of citrus when there is maximum bee activity in the orchards. When foliar sprays are applied by air, cutoffs are being made over open bodies of water. The control program is being monitored to prevent adverse effects on man and the environment.

The official file concerning this exemption is available for inspection in the Office of the Director, Registration Division (WH-567), Office of Pesticide Programs, EPA, 401 M St., S.W., Room E-347, Washington, D.C. 20460.

Dated: August 1, 1975.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Receipt of Application for Specific Exemption To Control West Indian Sugarcane Root Borer

On June 25, 1975, the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) availed itself of a crisis exemption pursuant to the provisions of section 18 (40 CFR Part 166), of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA), as amended (86 Stat. 973; 7 U.S.C. 136) for use of the pesticide carbaryl to control the West Indian sugarcane root borer (Diaprepes abbreviatus). Section 166.8(a) of the regulations states that within ten (10) days of the application or use of a pesticide in a crisis situation, the head of the Federal or State agency or a designated representative shall file in writing with the Administrator, Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), specific certified information regarding the circumstances of the emergency. The USDA has fulfilled that requirement.

Furthermore, § 166.8(b) of the regulations requires that if treatment pursuant to the crisis exemption is expected to continue for more than a total of fifteen (15) days, such certified information shall be accompanied by an application for a specific exemption. Accordingly, the USDA has submitted an application for a specific exemption in which an estimated 15,000 pounds of carbaryl (80 percent wettable power) are requested to control the West Indian sugarcane root borer. The treatment area would include 4,000 acres of citrus groves north east of Apopka, Florida, and two isolated nurseries of 2½ acres each in Broward and Dade Counties. This specific exemption, if granted, will be valid for no longer than one (1) year from the date of approval by EPA.

The application is in accordance with the provisions of 40 CFR Part 166, issued December 3, 1973 (38 FR 33303), which prescribes the requirements for exemption of Federal and State agencies for the use of pesticides under emergency conditions.

This notice does not indicate a decision by EPA on the application. Interested parties may review the application in the Office of the Director, Registration Division (WH-567), Office of Pesticide Programs, EPA, 401 M St., S.W., Room E-347, Washington, D.C. 20460.

Issuance of Experimental Use Permit

Pursuant to section 5 of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA), as amended (86 Stat. 973; 7 U.S.C. 136), an experimental use permit has been issued to the U.S. Department of the Interior, Washington, D.C. 20240. Such permit is in accordance with, and subject to, the provisions of 40 CFR Part 172; Part 172 was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on April 30, 1975 (40 FR 18780) and defines EPA procedures with respect to the use of pesticides for experimental purposes.

This experimental use permit (No. 11683-EUP-1) allows the use of 8,050 pounds of 2,4-dichlorophenoxyacetic acid on Eurasian watermilfoil in the Fort Cobb Reservoir. ## FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION

OBJECTIONABLY LOUD COMMERCIALS

Statement of Policy

JULY 29, 1975.

In its policy statement concerning loud commercials, 1 FCC 2d 10, 5 RR 2d 1621 (1965), the Commission listed a number of practices that commonly cause loud commercials and concluded that these practices were generally a result of factors that were technical or partly technical in nature and in a large measure within the control of the broadcaster. Complaints in this area still persist.

The Commission reminds all licensees that they have an affirmative obligation to see that objectionably loud commercials are not broadcast. In order to emphasize the importance of the Commission's policy concerning loud commercials, the Commission is mailing to all licensees a copy of the 1965 Statement along with this notice.

Action by the Commission July 22, 1975.[1]

[SEAL] VINCENT J. MULLINS,
Secretary.

[FCC 65-618, 69685, Pub. Notice B]

STATEMENT OF POLICY CONCERNING LOUD COMMERCIALS

JULY 12, 1965.

1. During the past two years, the Commission has studied intensively the problem of loud commercials in television and radio. We are told by industry engineers, broadcasters and others that subjective loudness of commercials cannot be electronically measured, and therefore the Commission cannot act to prevent them. However, in hundreds of complaints from the public we are also told that some commercials are objectionably loud, often louder than adjacent programming—and often so objectionably loud that listeners are compelled to turn the volume down.

2. We conclude today in our Report and Order in the inquiry proceeding (Docket No. 14904) that objectionably loud commercials are a substantial problem, are contrary to the public interest, and that their presentation is to be avoided.[1]

3. The purpose of this policy statement is threefold—to set forth our policy and the policy we expect licensees to follow in this respect, to detail some of the practices which are common causes of loud commercials, and to advise licensees not knowingly to broadcast commercials involving such practices. All licensees are expected to take appropriate measures to assure strict adherence to this policy. The Commission, through its complaint procedure or by spot checks at renewal time, will determine whether licensees are carrying out their obligation in this respect, and will take whatever action is appropriate on the basis of such review.

4. Among the practices which the Commission has identified as often causing loud commercials, and which licensees shall avoid, are the following:

(1) Excessive modulation on commercials as, for example, through inadequate control-room procedures. We are today amending our modulation rules to make it clear that minimum modulation on peaks of frequent recurrence need not be as much as 85% if a lesser level is required to avoid objectionable loudness.

(2) Excessive volume compression resulting from the use of automatic gain control, or similar devices—particularly in the broadcast of pre-recorded commercial material which may have been prepared with extensive compression and other electrical processing. Excessive compression permits material to be broadcast at a higher than normal average level of modulation. At least on pre-recorded commercial material, a maximum of 6 db compression in broadcasting is recommended.

(3) Excessive use of other electrical processing devices, such as filters, attenuators and reverberation units—again, particularly where pre-recorded material is being presented.

(4) The use of pre-recorded commercials which have been subjected to excessive compression, filtering, attenuation, "equalization" or reverberation (echo).

(5) Voice commercials presented in a rapid-fire, loud and strident manner; and

(6) The presentation of commercial matter at modulation levels substantially higher than the immediately adjacent programs. A maximum of 4 db increase (40% to 60% to 100% modulation) is recommended.

To make sure that such practices are avoided, licensees are to adopt adequate control-room procedures to prevent them, and to take appropriate steps to provide for pre-screening recorded commercials for loudness.

5. Much of the loud commercial problem arises in connection with the broadcast of pre-recorded commercials. In fulfilling their obligations in this area, broadcasters are expected to take reasonable steps to get the cooperation of the recording industry so as to prevent the presentation of loud commercials.

6. We now turn to a brief discussion of the matters referred to above.

MINIMUM MODULATION REQUIREMENT

7. One argument advanced by some broadcasters is that they are prevented by our rules from avoiding loud commercials, because the rules require modulation on peaks of frequent recurrence to be at least 85%, thus prohibiting the operator from reducing the transmitter gain even if necessary to eliminate loudness. We do not so construe the rules. However, in order to make this matter completely clear, we are today amending the modulation rules (Section 73.55, 73.268 and 73.687(b)) to provide that, while in general modulation should not be less than 85% on peaks of frequent recurrence, it may be reduced to whatever level is necessary to avoid objectionable loudness in commercial and other material, even if this is substantially less than 85% on peaks. We expect television and radio broadcasters to observe this practice where necessary to avoid loud commercials.

CONTROL ROOM PROCEDURES

8. Presentation of loud commercials is due partly to inadequate or lax control-room procedures. One cause is inaccurate reading of or inattention to the modulation monitor (required by our Rules) or the widely-used volume unit (vu) meter. Another aspect is excessive reliance on automatic gain control (AGC) or peak-limiting devices, which, unless properly regulated, are likely to result in loud commercials. Broadcasters are to adopt control-room procedures adequate to prevent the presentation of loud commercials which result from these deficiencies or practices. Attention is invited to a description of accepted procedures in the IRE (now IEEE) Standards on American Practice for Volume Measurement of Electrical Speech and Program Waves, 1953 (53 IRE 3.S2).

COMPRESSION AND OTHER PROCESSING

9. One contributing cause to the problem of loud commercials is the use of moderate amounts of volume compression, which permits material to be broadcast at a higher than the normal average level of modulation without having peaks exceed 100% on the modulation meter. Compression in broadcasting, when used in moderation, appears to be desirable; but excessive use thereof, particularly in the broadcast of commercial material, is unquestionably undesirable and a major factor in causing objectionable loudness. Broadcasters are to exercise care in using devices causing compression. It is recommended that an appropriate maximum amount of compression is 6 db, at least in broadcasting pre-recorded commercials. Certainly, as a general rule, no more compression should be used in broadcasting a commercial than in presenting preceding material. Similar care should be used in connection with employment of other processing devices, such as attenuators, filters, or reverberation units. Particular care is to be exercised when the commercial material has been pre-recorded, where substantial amounts of compression and other processing may have been used in the recording. The combination of such processing in recording and in broadcasting—e.g., what might be called "compression on compression"—may, when carelessly used, produce what one broadcaster has termed "a rather overwhelming effect" in terms of loudness. Therefore, the use of further compression or other electrical processing in broadcasting such commercials is to be avoided to the extent necessary to prevent objectionable loudness, and the amount thereof which may properly be used may well be substantially less (e.g., 6 db of compression less) than that which is appropriate for other types of material.

USE OF RECORDED COMMERCIAL MATERIAL: PRESCREENING

10. Compression, filtering, "equalization", reverberation, and other processing are extensively used in recording commercial material, along with a generally high-volume level of recording. Again, these techniques when used in moderation serve desirable purposes, such as protecting equipment, producing a recording of good technical quality, and producing distinctive effects other than loudness. But it appears that sometimes they are used extensively for no other purpose than to produce loud commercials. Broadcasters are to exercise care in the presentation of recorded material in which such processing has been used resulting in an effect of excessive loudness. Under the revised modulation rules, where a commercial has been pre-screened and found too loud, a licensee should reduce modulation below 85% where necessary to avoid objectionable loudness. Also as mentioned above, care is to be exercised in use of any further electrical processing in broadcasting recorded commercial material.

11. We note in "A Guide for Advertising Agencies and Television Stations in handling Materials for SPOT TELEVISION COMMERICIALS," a joint recommendation of the Station Representatives Association and the American Association of Advertising Agencies, that film, tape and slides should be in the hands of licensees 48 hours in advance of use. The Guide further suggests that materials should be examined by the station on receipt for "damage, defects and completeness". Clearly this contemplates delivery in adequate time to permit pre-screening.

12. We are aware that in actual practice these guidelines are not always observed. However, we expect broadcasters to adopt appropriate practices and procedures to provide time for pre-screening, not only for damage, defects and completeness, but for loudness.

13. We recognize that to require each station, large or small, to pre-screen all commercials for loudness may impose some burden. The small radio licensee can engage in extensive spot pre-screening, and, if a loud commercial escapes prior detection through this process, he can be alert to the need for pre-screening further commercials from the same source. Further, we suggest that the organizations, state or national, which represent advertisers, station representatives, agencies and licensees, should consider the establishment of a group to prescreen and label commercial material as to loudness for the industry.

STRIDENT DELIVERY

14. One common source of complaint is commercials which are delivered in a loud, rapid and strident manner, with the maximum number of words crammed into the time period and all delivered at or close to maximum peak modulation. Presentation of such material is to be avoided.

CONTRAST WITH PRECEDING PROGRAM MATERIAL

15. Aside from differences resulting from varying degrees of electrical processing used in different types of material, another common source of complaint is the contrast between loudness of commercials as compared to the volume of preceding program material—e.g., soft music or dialogue immediately followed by a rapid-fire, strident commercial. Such contrasts are to be avoided. For guidance, it is recommended that a maximum of 4 db increase over the immediately preceding program segment (40% to 60% to 100% modulation) is appropriate for general observance.

CONCLUSION

16. We conclude that the presentation of objectionably loud commercials is contrary to the public interest. Therefore, to the extent it is within their control, broadcasters have an affirmative obligation to see that such material is not presented. In today's Report and Order we recognize that loudness—the impression created in the listener—is to a degree the result of factors beyond the broadcaster's control and varies as between individual listeners (for example, a reaction to a particular product or a particular sound effect other than volume). But we conclude that objectionably loud commercials result in large measure from factors of a technical or partly technical nature which are within the broadcaster's control, and which are not adequately controlled simply by adherence to our rules in the various broadcast services limiting modulation to 100% on peaks of frequent recurrence. While there is no evidence that broadcasters in substantial numbers deliberately "boost the power" in presenting commercials, neither is there indication of any concerted, industry-wide effort to deal with the problem. While most complaints of loud commercials are directed to television rather than radio (particularly at pre-recorded commercials), the problem is by no means confined to television.

17. We have set forth above the broadcaster's general affirmative obligation, and specific practices and policies to which we expect strict adherence. The list of specifics is not intended to be all-inclusive, and there may well be other steps that can be taken. What is called for is a good faith effort on the part of licensees to prevent the presentation of commercials which are too loud. In setting forth this policy statement, we recognize the underlying importance of advertising to the American system of broadcasting, and the legitimate interest of the advertiser in presenting his message attractively and understandably, and in drawing attention to what he has to say. But these are not irreconcilable alternatives.

18. We note with pleasure a recent suggestion by the American Association of Advertising Agencies that its Subcommittee on Commercial Production might assist in dealing with this problem, by screening commercials referred to it by the Commission about which loudness complaints have been received. We appreciate this offer of assistance, and if the circumstances appear appropriate we will take advantage of the suggested procedure.

19. We also appreciate the consideration and attention being given this problem by the N.A.B. Engineering Advisory Committee. It is understood that investigations and studies are to be made by this committee, regarding the technical considerations that may be involved in the matter of "loudness", and also as to the possibility of developing a new volume measuring meter. The technical staff of the Commission is, of course, ready to cooperate in this endeavor as may be requested.

Adopted: July 9, 1965.

CABLE TELEVISION ANNUAL FEE PENDING JUDICIAL REVIEW

Suspension of Collection

AUGUST 7, 1975.

In Docket 19658, the Commission adopted, inter alia, a revised cable television annual authorization fee ($.13 per subscriber) to be paid on or before April 1 of each year for the preceding calendar year. Report and Order, FCC 75-32, 50 FCC 2d 906 (1975). For calendar year 1975 the fee would be due on April 1, 1976. The Commission also indicated that "recalculated" annual fees for 1973 and 1974 would be collected, and, in the Second Report and Order, FCC 75-182, 51 FCC 2d 372 (1975), set those fees at $.06 per subscriber, due on or before August 1, 1975. Appeals of these actions are presently pending before the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.

On consideration of a motion to stay the collection of the fees due on August 1, the Court, on July 28, 1975, ordered that "the Federal Communications Commission may collect fifty percent, but no more, of the fees which are due on August 1, 1975, and on April 1, 1976, until further order of this Court." In response to this Order, and to lessen administrative burdens, the Commission is suspending all cable annual fee collections until the pending litigation has been completed. This suspension is limited to cable annual fees and does not affect the continuing applicability of other types of cable and non-cable fees contained in the Commission's revised fee schedule.

Action by the Commission August 1. 1975.[1]

TOWN AND COUNTRY RADIO, INC. ET AL.

Memorandum Opinion and Order Enlarging Issues

In re applications of Town and Country Radio, Inc., Suffolk, Virginia, Docket No. 20268, File No. BPH-8250; John Laurino, Gordon L. Hood and Vernon S. Lee, d/b/a Voice of the People, Suffolk, Virginia, Docket No. 20269, File No.

[1] Commissioners Wiley (Chairman), Lee, Reid, Quello and Washburn with Commissioners Hooks and Robinson concurring.

[1] Commissioners Wiley (Chairman), Lee, Reid, Hooks, Quello, Washburn and Robinson.

[1] As industry parties point out, there is now no acoustic or electrical tool for determining precisely whether or not a given sound is objectionably loud. Nevertheless, it has been repeatedly held that objectionable or excessive loudness is both a proper subject for preventive governmental action, and a condition sufficiently definable for its existence to be established for legal purposes. See, for example, Kovacs v. Cooper, 336 U.S. 77 (1949); Ex parte Trafton, 271 S.W. 2d 814, 160 Tex. Cr. 407 (1954), and Thompson v. Anderson, 153 P. 2d 665, 107 Utah 331 (1944).

BPH-8405; Tidewater Sounds, Inc., Suffolk, Virginia, Docket No. 20270, File No. BPH-9036; for construction permits.

1. The Chief of the Broadcast Bureau, acting pursuant to delegated authority, designated the mutually exclusive applications of Town and Country Radio, Inc., John Laurino, Gordon L. Hood and Vernon S. Lee, d/b/a Voice of the People (Voice), and Tidewater Sounds, Inc. (Tidewater) for hearing by Orders, 40 FR 2472, published January 13, 1975, and 40 FR 2613, published January 14, 1975. Presently before the Review Board is a petition to enlarge issues, filed April 23, 1975, by Voice, requesting addition of Rules 1.514, 1.65, financial, and misrepresentation issues against Tidewater.[1]

2. In support of the requested Rule 1.514 issue, Voice states that Tidewater's original application failed to disclose several business interests of its president, treasurer, and 50% stockholder, Michael T. Hall.[2] With regard to the requested Rule 1.65 issue, Voice first asserts that, while purporting to satisfy the requirements of Rule 1.65, a number of Tidewater amendments have been incomplete and or misleading. Specifically, petitioner avers that Tidewater's amendment of October 4, 1974, failed to fully reveal Hall's business interests. In addition, petitioner maintains that Tidewater has failed to amend its application to reflect four recent court actions, including two judgments against the H & F Development Corp. (H & F),[3] in excess of $1,100,000.00,[4] which, Voice contends, raise substantial questions as to Hall's ability to provide the required collateral for Tidewater's proposed bank loan.[5] In particular, Voice alleges that these court actions, when considered together, establish contingent liabilities against Hall personally, as well as two of his principal assets, Spring Knoll Associates and H. D. Hall, Inc., which, petitioner submits, prevent the sale or use as collateral of the assets listed on Hall's balance sheet. As a related matter, Voice argues that Tidewater made a calculated, willful misrepresentation to the Commission in its opposition to Voice's February 12, 1975 petition to enlarge issues. In support, Voice refers to part of paragraph 17 of that opposition and alleges that it indicates that Hall knew of the existence and impact of the aforementioned suits, yet denied under oath that his ability to meet his commitment was impaired at any time.

3. In support of the requested misrepresentation issue, petitioner urges that Tidewater is also guilty of attempting to conceal from and mislead the Commission regarding Hall's relationship with H & F. Specifically, Voice states that by the above-noted October 4, 1974 amendment, Tidewater indicated that Hall's association with H & F continued only "to March, 1974"; however, asserts petitioner, on March 25, 1974, H & F represented to the Virginia Corporation Commission that Hall was still associated with the corporation.[6] Furthermore, continues Voice, an examination of the chronology of the Yeonas and Fraley suits demonstrates a continuing relationship with H & F and establishes that the motive for attempting to "foreclose inquiry" into Hall's relationship with H & F after March 1, 1974, was that the subsequent court actions and judgments would cast doubt on Hall's ability to comply with his financial commitment to Tidewater and would reveal the full extent of Hall's failure to disclose his business associations. Next, in support of a financial issue, petitioner argues that Hall deliberately concealed the existence of these suits from the Bank of Virginia so that the loan commitment, which was originally granted on September 27, 1974, prior to the filing of the court actions, would be extended. In support, Voice submits the extension letter from the Bank of Virginia, dated February 19, 1975, and contends that it indicates that the bank continued to rely on the information disclosed by Hall in September, 1974. Therefore, petitioner concludes, a serious question is raised as to the bank's willingness to continue the loan commitment relied on by Tidewater, and, for this reason, and because the availability of Hall's assets is in doubt, a financial issue is warranted.

4. In opposition to the requested Rule 1.514 issue, Tidewater initially states that Spring Knoll Associates (a partnership), (see note 2, supra), was listed in Hall's original balance sheet by a descriptive title as Spring Knoll Farm Venture, and subsequently listed in a Tidewater amendment of October 4, 1974, as Spring Knoll Associates, Inc. However, explains Tidewater, both errors in listing were inadvertent, the latter due to a minor communications problem between Hall and Mark Fowler, Tidewater's vice president, who was principally responsible for preparing the amendment. Also, continues opposer, Hall's interest in H. D. Hall, Inc. was voluntarily reported by the October 4, amendment. Finally, in this regard, Tidewater states that H & F Properties, Inc. and Spring Knoll, Inc. are corporations formed for real estate ventures for which the corporations were ultimately not used, that the corporations have no assets and do no business, and, thus, that the failure to report is without significance. Accordingly, Tidewater reasons, citing Western Television Co., 50 FCC 2d 1165, 32 RR 2d 350 (1974), that a Rule 1.514 issue is not warranted. Next, in reference to Hall's connection with H & F, supra, Tidewater states that Hall severed his relationship with H & F on March 7, 1974, and that, while the Corporation Commission report was stamped by the State of Virginia on March 25, 1974, it is dated February 28, 1974, and only consists of information up to the date of the signature. Therefore, concludes Tidewater, the October 4, 1974 amendment reporting Hall's termination with H & F "in March, 1974" was correct and the representation in the report filed with the Virginia Corporation Commission was also correct when it was submitted on February 28, 1974.[7] Turning to the court suits discussed by petitioner, Tidewater provides a detailed statement of the history and present status of these proceedings and contends that none of the law suits represent contingent liabilities with respect to Hall.[8] In any event,

[1] Also before the Board are the following related pleadings: (a) Broadcast Bureau's partial opposition, filed May 14, 1975; (b) opposition, filed May 15, 1975, by Tidewater; (c) reply, filed June 4, 1975, by Voice; (d) motion to strike (c), filed June 13, 1975, by Tidewater; (e) opposition to (d), filed June 19, 1975, by Voice; (f) motion for leave to file special pleading, filed July 10, 1975, by Tidewater; (g) supplement to (b), filed July 10, 1975, by Tidewater; (h) opposition to (f) and reply to (g), filed July 21, 1975, by Voice; and (i) opposition to (f) and (g), filed July 21, 1975, by the Broadcast Bureau. Tidewater's motion for leave to file special pleading will be granted and the supplement to opposition will be accepted since it contains material which, pursuant to the public interest, must be considered. In addition, we note that Voice's arguments in opposition to the supplement are largely speculative and effect no change in our deposition.

[2] Specifically, Voice alleges that the following business interests of Hall were not disclosed in Tidewater's original application: Spring Knoll Farm Venture; Spring Knoll Associates, Inc.; H. D. Hall, Inc.; Spring Knoll Associates (a partnership); Spring Knoll, Inc.; and H & F Properties, Inc.

[3] Tidewater's application indicates that Hall is vice president and director of H & F, a real estate development corporation.

[4] Specifically, petitioner refers to a consent judgment for $204,345.00, plus interest and attorney's fees, entered for the Yeonas Company against H & F on October 1, 1974, and a judgment for non-payment of notes in the amount of $679,000.00, plus interest and attorney's fees, entered for the American Realty Trust against H & F on April 14, 1975. In addition, petitioner cites a suit for an accounting, filed October 2, 1974, by Harlan Fraley against H & F, H. D. Hall, Inc., and others including Hall individually, and a suit to enforce the above-noted consent judgment, filed January 23, 1975, by the Yeonas Company against H & F and Spring Knoll Associates, a partnership (including Hall as one of the partners).

[5] Tidewater relies on a bank loan commitment from the Bank of Virginia, Falls Church, Virginia, dated September 27, 1974. The commitment letter requires that the loan be evidenced by a promissory note in the name of Tidewater, endorsed, inter alia, by Hall. Hall's endorsement was to be secured "by his personal assets satisfactory to the Bank and pledged as collateral." The letter also notes that "Hall's financial statement dated December 31, 1973, evidences unencumbered personal assets, which, if pledged as collateral, would be satisfactory to * * * secure [Hall's] endorsement."

[6] In support, petitioner submits a copy of H & F's 1973 annual report to the State Corporation Commission of Virginia.

[7] Tidewater also observes that Hall "never held any stock in [H & F], and therefore ha[s] no financial interest in the welfare of that corporation."

[8] In support, Tidewater submits a letter from Hall's real estate counsel which analyzes each of the suits and concludes that Hall's financial position will not be affected. Counsel also indicates the existence of another suit, filed by Fraley against H. D. Hall, Inc., and inter alia, Hall individually, which petitioner did not refer to. According to counsel, this suit will likewise have no effect on Hall's financial position.

continues Tidewater, to the extent that any of the court actions described above may affect Hall's financial position, they have been taken into consideration in computing the valuations of the assets set forth on his May 20, 1974, balance sheet. Based on the above analysis, Tidewater also asserts that Hall's financial position remains as indicated in earlier submissions to the Commission, that nothing was hidden from the Bank of Virginia, that Hall remains capable of supporting Tidewater's financial commitments, and that, therefore, a financial issue is unwarranted.[9]

5. The Review Board will add a Rule 1.65 issue and deny the other requested issues.[10] Rule 1.65 requires that the Commission be informed of all facts that may be of decisional significance so that the Commission can make realistic decisions based on all relevant factors. See Southern Broadcasting Co., 33 FCC 2d 1044, 23 RR 2d 1197 (1972). In our view, the judgments and pending suits in question should have been reported within thirty days because they could affect Hall's ability to guarantee the applicant's proposed bank loan by a pledge of unencumbered personal assets at the time of funding, as required by the bank's loan commitment letter.[11] In light of the potential significance of this matter, and since Tidewater's assertions that the suits and judgments either do not affect Hall personally or are already reflected in his balance sheet are disputed, an evidentiary inquiry into the apparent violation of Rule 1.65 is warranted.[12] However, we will deny the requested misrepresentation issue since petitioner's allegations in that regard are either speculative and, therefore, insufficient to warrant such an inquiry or have been satisfactorily rebutted by Tidewater. Specifically, statements made in Tidewater's opposition to Voice's February 12, 1975, petition to enlarge issues have not been shown to be false; the applicant has adequately explained its references to H & F both in its application and in the report filed with the Virginia Corporation Commission; and petitioner has not shown that Hall's failure to report the judgments and pending litigation was a deliberate attempt to conceal.[13]

6. The Board also believes that an inquiry is not warranted concerning the availability of Tidewater's proposed bank loan since the applicant's submissions satisfactorily refute petitioner's allegations in that regard. Specifically, both the Hall affidavit and the letter from the bank's executive vice president, which are contained in Tidewater's supplement to opposition, indicate that the bank is presently willing to continue its commitment, even with knowledge of the judgments and pending suits and familiarity with Hall's assets. Thus, reasonable assurance of the proposed bank loan is now present and petitioner's allegation to the contrary is, at this point, speculative.[14] Finally, with regard to the other alleged violations of the Commission's reporting requirements, the Board notes that while Hall's omitted business interests should have been reported, Tidewater's explanation for the omissions and errors is reasonable. In these circumstances, where the violations are apparently unintentional and not so numerous as to indicate a pattern of nondisclosure, and the information not reported is of questionable significance,[15] the Board has consistently denied requests for issues predicated on the violations. See, e.g., Western Connecticut Broadcasting Co., Inc., 47 FCC 2d 142, 30 RR 2d 527 (1974); Gilroy Broadcasting Co., Inc., 42 FCC 2d 730, 28 RR 2d 428 (1973).[16]

7. ACCORDINGLY, IT IS ORDERED, That the motion for leave to file special pleading, filed July 10, 1975, by Tidewater Sounds, Inc., IS GRANTED, and the supplement to opposition IS ACCEPTED; and

8. IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, That the motion to strike, filed June 13, 1975, by Tidewater Sounds, Inc. IS DENIED; and

9. IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, That the petition to enlarge issues, filed April 23, 1975, by Voice of the People, IS GRANTED to the extent indicated herein, and IS DENIED in all other respects; and

10. IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, That the issues in this proceeding are enlarged to include the following issue:

To determine whether Tidewater Sounds, Inc. has complied with the provisions of Section 1.65 of the Commission's Rules by keeping the Commission advised of lawsuits and judgments involving Michael T. Hall, and if not, the effect of such noncompliance on the basic or comparative qualifications of the applicant to be a broadcast licensee;

11. And, IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, That the burden of proceeding with the introduction of evidence under the issue added herein SHALL BE on Voice of the People; and the burden of proof under that issue SHALL BE on Tidewater Sounds, Inc.

Adopted: August 5, 1975.

Released: August 14, 1975.

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION,
[SEAL] VINCENT J. MULLINS,
Secretary.

[FR Doc.75 21228 Filed 8-13-75;8:45 am]

[9] The Broadcast Bureau supports addition of a comparative Rule 1.514 issue but opposes addition of the other requested issues. In its supplement to opposition, Tidewater submits an affidavit in which Hall avers that on May 6, 1975, he met with Malcolm S. McDonald, the executive vice president of the Bank of Virginia, that they discussed, inter alia, Hall's personal financial ability to secure a $300,000.00 loan and reviewed the letter of opinion of counsel regarding the litigation in question and its possible effect on his assets, and that McDonald reiterated that the commitment remains in effect. Also included in the supplement is a letter from McDonald describing the foregoing meeting and stating that the loan is still in effect and that: "At such time as we are asked to fund the loan commitment, the assets must still be unencumbered and subject to our review to determine if they will still be satisfactory as collateral at that time."

[10] The subject petition is admittedly late-filed and good cause for late-filing has not been established since Voice has failed to satisfactorily explain the three-month delay in procuring the specific information leading to the filing of the instant petition. Nevertheless, pursuant to The Edgefield-Saluda Radio Co., (WJES), 5 FCC 2d 148, 8 RR 2d 641 (1966), we will consider this petition since it raises serious public interest questions.

[11] See notes 5 and 9, supra.

[12] To the extent that Voice's petition entails a request for a Rule 1.514 issued based on Tidewater's failure to report these judgments and pending actions in its original application, it must be denied. The information provided by petitioner indicates that the judgments were rendered and the suits filed subsequent to Tidewater's filing of its application on June 14, 1974.

[13] While Tidewater may ultimately be shown to have been mistaken as to the extent of Hall's liability under the litigation in question, such an error in legal judgment does not raise a question of deliberate misrepresentation to the Commission.

[14] This does not alter our earlier conclusion, however, that the judgments and law suits should have been timely reported because of their potential impact on Hall's ability to satisfy the bank's conditions at the time the loan is extended.

[15] In this regard, we do not agree with Voice's speculation that the decisional significance of failing to report Hall's business interests may be inferred in light of the subsequent judgments and pending suits which might affect Hall's financial status. Cf. Post-Newsweek Stations, Florida, Inc., 49 FCC 2d 92, 31 RR 2d 692 (1974).

UA-COLUMBIA CABLEVISION, INC. AND TELEPROMPTER CORP.

Procurement of Equipment for Domestic Satellite Earth Stations; Declaratory Ruling

1. The Commission has received letters dated May 20 and 23, 1975, from UA-Columbia Cablevision, Inc. (UA-Columbia), and Teleprompter Corporation (TPT), respectively, requesting clarification of the applicability of Section 319(a) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, to the procurement of equipment for fixed, receive-only earth stations. Both of these parties are cable television operators who have expressed an interest in use of these stations to obtain access to domestic satellite communications. On April 28, 1975, UA-Columbia through its subsidiary, Micro-Cable Communications Corporation, filed for a construction permit to establish a fixed receive-only earth station at Ft. Pierce, Florida. The proposed earth station would receive programming via satellite supplied by a non-affiliated company for distribution on the applicant's nearby cable television systems. TPT also contemplates construction of earth stations to serve a number of its cable systems and in its letter asserts that "early resolution of these issues is essential to the effective utilization of domestic satellite facilities by cable television operators * * *."[1]

[16] Tidewater's motion to strike page 22, paragraph 28 of Voice's reply will be denied. Tidewater's contention that Voice failed to include affidavits in support of the allegation that Hall did not go to the bank to discuss the impact of the above-noted pending judgments and suits, is not, under the circumstances herein, a sufficient basis for striking the paragraph in question. In any event, even if granted, the requested action would have no decisional significance in light of Tidewater's supplement to opposition. See note 9, supra.

2. Section 319(a), in pertinent part, provides:

No license shall be issued under the authority of this Act for the operation of any station the construction of which is begun * * * unless a permit for its construction has been granted by the Commission.

The Commission has established criteria for determining which activities constitute unauthorized construction. In a series of rulings primarily involving erection of broadcast facilities, the Commission has taken the position that the scope of Section 319(a) was not intended to reach all forms of pre-grant activity despite their cost to the applicant. The case law has traditionally excluded from the concept of construction the purchase and storage of station facilities on the site contemplated for use after grant. Childress Broadcasting Corporation, 24 RR 669 (1962). Instead, the Commission has interpreted Section 319(a) to proscribe erection of buildings or installation of equipment at the proposed site. Alvin E. O'Konski (WLIN), 8 RR 843 (1953), TV Colorado, Inc., 8 RR 700 (1952). Further, only those facilities having an intrinsic communications function have been ruled within the prescription. WSAV, Inc., supra; Spectrum Communications, Inc., 40 FCC 2d 467 (1973).

3. By letter dated July 21, 1972, Western Union Telegraph Company requested the Commission's opinion as to the applicability of Section 319 to the procurement of satellites for a domestic satellite system. On July 26, 1972 (FCC 72-686), the Commission adopted a letter to Earl D. Hilburn, President of Western Union, in which it expressed the opinion "that Section 319 does apply to contracts for the construction of domestic communications satellites, particularly in view of the legislative intent underlying that section and since the facilities are not such a nature as to entail physical installation on the ground or on-site construction." TPT filed a request on March 13, 1973, for an advisory opinion on the applicability of Section 319 to the procurement of a transportable receive-only earth station for developmental/experimental use. The Commission responded by letter dated March 29, 1973 (FCC 73-344) addressed to Raymond D. Shafer, Chairman of the Board of Teleprompter, in which it stated that Section 319 does apply to procurement of an earth station "of this nature particularly in view of the proposed uses." In each of the foregoing cases the Commission granted a partial waiver of Section 319(d) to permit the proposed procurement of facilities. However, the Commission emphasized that its action did not constitute a determination on the merits of the pending applications for permits to construct the facilities and that any contractual commitments made in advance of the issuance of construction permits were entirely at the applicant's own risk.

DISCUSSION

4. The requests for clarification filed by UA-Columbia and TPT are limited to questions concerning procurement of fixed receive-only earth stations for use by cable television operators. In view of the number of applications by cable television operators, either now pending or anticipated, we agree that prompt resolution of this matter is essential. However, since we anticipate a growth in demand for earth station authorizations for use by services other than cable television, we believe that more general reexamination and clarification of our policies would be in the public interest. We also note that the manner of constructing an earth station, including the equipment and facilities installed therein, is essentially unaffected by the proposed use of the station. Accordingly, we are expanding our determinations to encompass transmit-receive as well as receive-only stations intended to serve the communications needs of both specialized users and common carriers. In addition, we believe that any policy to be adopted herein should include review of our position with regard to procurement of transportable earth station facilities.

5. Our position to date that Section 319(a) is applicable to equipment procurement for fixed earth stations is fully consistent with legal precedent. The requirement of securing a construction permit was first adopted by Congress as part of a 1922 legislative enactment which preceded passage of the Federal Radio Act of 1927. At the time of this initial legislation, the state of the radio art was such that construction of a station to the extent it involved installation of radio equipment was dependent on the "wave length" a station was to use. Since the goods involved had to be built to order, an entrepreneur had to make a substantial investment in equipment for which there was no readily available resale market. Congress adopted the construction permit requirement to discourage applicants from making considerable expenditures in such unmarketable equipment[4] and using these investments to exert undue pressure on the licensing authority in its effort to establish zones of wave lengths.[5]

6. In terms of the facilities involved, radio broadcasting, as well as other terrestrial communications services, has undergone considerable change since its inception. Station construction no longer involves large investments in special order items. Instead, facilities for terrestrial radio have become relatively standardized despite retaining certain specific characteristics such as tuning for a particular frequency. Consequently, entrepreneurs no longer must risk considerable financial loss if their applications for a construction permit or a station license are ultimately denied by the Commission. Unneeded equipment usually can be sold to other applicants or radio licensees. Since the station equipment constitutes fungible goods, the Commission has determined that the ordering and storage of such facilities no longer constitutes an intimidating investment. (Childress Broadcasting Corp., supra)

7. While licenses have been issued for broadcast radio stations since 1922, the Commission has been receiving applications for domestic satellite earth stations only since late 1970 when Western Union filed the first one. Like radio broadcasting before it, the inception of domestic satellite operations was fraught with uncertainties. In our first Report and Order in Docket No. 16495 (Report), we alluded to such presently unknown factors as the extent of demand for domestic satellite services, the particular services that can be provided most effectively and efficiently via this medium, and the costs involved. * * **

In addition, the Commission expressed its continuing concern with various technical problems including those involving frequency usage and orbital location. As noted throughout the Report and the Technical Annex attached thereto, these problems had a direct bearing on earth station specifications. For instance, the Commission was aware of the critical importance of earth station design on minimizing intersatellite interference levels and ensuring efficient utilization of the geostationary satellite orbit.[7]

8. As a result of these econometric and technological unknowns, we recognized that attempts to prescribe detailed design and operational parameters for domestic satellite facilities would be premature. Instead, we adopted minimal filing procedures and technical guidelines and encouraged both common carriers and specialized users to file concrete system proposals for our consideration. We were of the opinion that the state of the art would advance considerably once

[1] TPT also requests Commission clarification of its policies regarding sharing and resale of earth station facilities. The Commission expects to address this issue in the near future. But shall not do so here. Nor are we considering here any changes to our policies prohibiting the procurement of satellites themselves and launch vehicles and services prior to the issuance of a space station construction permit.

domestic satellite operations commenced. Accordingly, we made clear our intention to be guided by a policy of flexibility so that we could adjust our views in light of subsequent developments.[8] This objective would have been adversely affected if we had permitted major investment in particular domestic earth station facilities prior to taking an opportunity to consider the desirability of individual expenditures. Consequently, we required the filing of applications for construction permits to reduce the pressure to which we would have been subjected by the fait accompli of prior procurement.

9. Interest in and demand for domestic satellite services by the private sector have been substantial in the intervening years since the issuance of the first Report and Order. As previously noted, we expect this growth to continue. This demand for satellite services leads us to anticipate both a trend toward standardization in the manufacture of earth station equipment and the creation of a market for such facilities. In fact, there is substantial evidence that earth stations, including transportable stations, now constitute fungible goods. For instance, UA-Columbia in its May 20, 1975, letter to the Commission points to the sale of TPT's transportable earth station to a Canadian user. As fungible goods, earth station equipment can be purchased without resulting in the intimidating investment against which Congress intended to protect the Commission. Consequently, we believe that we should now bring our policies on satellite earth station procurement into conformance with our current practices regarding procurement of broadcasting and terrestrial microwave equipment.

10. The Commission finds that the public interest would benefit by allowing the procurement of earth station facilities prior to the issuance of a construction permit, pursuant to Section 319(a) of the Act. Accordingly, Commission authorization will not be required for purposes of effecting the purchase and storage of facilities or equipment for either a fixed or a transportable domestic satellite earth station. A permit for construction will still be necessary prior to the actual erection or installation of station facilities or equipment, having an intrinsic communication function, at the proposed site.

11. The policies clarified herein shall apply to both common carriers and specialized users such as UA-Columbia and TPT. Any pre-grant expenditures made by a common carrier or specialized user toward the procurement of earth station facilities or equipment shall be undertaken entirely at its own risk. In addition, any procurement costs incurred by a common carrier prior to the issuance of a construction permit shall be accounted for as a deferred cost pending proper disposition of the matter. In the event an application for such permit is ultimately denied, these costs shall be excluded from the carrier's rate base and revenue requirements for ratemaking purposes; the pregrant expenditures shall be treated either as a charge against the carrier's retained earnings or classified in an account such as Miscellaneous Physical Property if it has some continuing value for nonjurisdictional purposes.

12. In bringing our pre-grant procurement policies for domestic satellite earth station facilities into general conformance with those for other radio services, we must point out several of the risks potential applicants face in such pregrant procurement activities. For example, the 4 and 6 GHz frequency bands presently utilized by domestic satellite systems are heavily used in many parts of the country by terrestrial microwave relay stations which share these bands with satellite systems on a co-equal basis. For this reason, potential domestic satellite earth station applicants should carefully assess the interference environment surrounding the planned station site before committing substantial funds for the procurement of earth station facilities for which satisfactory frequency coordination pursuant to Part 25 of the Rules and Regulations might not later be effected.

13. Essentially the same type of considerations apply to the pre-grant procurement of small earth station antennas less than 9 meters in diameter. The Commission will not authorize such small earth terminals if the applicant cannot demonstrate that the satisfactory operations of such small earth terminals require satellite orbital separations no greater than those required for the satisfactory operations of larger earth station antennas and that no other constraints are placed on the operations of domestic satellites as a result of the operations of such small earth terminals. As a result, potential applicants for terminals may find it advisable to file prototype applications for such small earth terminals so that considerations of a system-wide nature can be addressed by the Commission before substantial amounts of funds are committed to the procurement of facilities which may not ultimately receive Commission authorization.

14. Finally, in this regard, potential domestic satellite earth station applicants should recognize that in such a newly developing service, there are numerous matters of a policy nature which have not yet been addressed by the Commission, such as the questions raised by TPT regarding shared use or lease to other parties of domestic satellite earth station facilities, or proposed earth stations to be located outside of a common carrier's presently certified service area. Pre-grant procurement in such cases should be undertaken with caution since such uses of domestic satellite earth station facilities might not be ultimately authorized by the Commission or, if such uses are permitted, the terms and conditions attached to such uses might make the originally intended operations impractical.

15. We also note that, for some types of domestic satellite earth station facilities, the actual on-site construction occupies a relatively small portion of the total construction period specified in the construction permit compared to the period of time needed to procure the facilities. Since this trend can be expected to become more noticeable with pre-grant procurement activities, we believe that our application processing procedures might be streamlined to some extent if domestic satellite earth station applicants are afforded the opportunity of filing applications for simultaneous construction permits and licenses, in addition to the present procedure of initially requesting only a construction permit followed at a later date by a separate license to cover the construction permit. However, an application for a simultaneous construction permit and license for a domestic satellite earth station will be accepted only under the following terms and conditions in addition to the requirements generally applicable to earth station construction permit applications:

(a) A properly executed FCC Form 403 must be attached to the construction permit application, and all of the parameters of the proposed earth station facilities must be specified in the application, including particulars of operation, antenna and transmitting equipment descriptions, and space segment to be accessed by the station;

(b) The application must specify the earliest date on which on-site construction may be commenced and that such construction will be completed within ninety days of the effective date of the station authorization;

(c) The effective date of the station authorization will be either the earliest date specified in the application on which construction may be commenced or the date of grant of the application, whichever is the later date, and no on-site construction shall be commenced before the effective date of the station authorization;

(d) The station authorization will be issued for a term of three years beginning on the effective date of the station authorization, except in the case of developmental authorizations which are limited to a one year term by Section 25.390 of the Rules and Regulations;

(e) The station authorization shall be automatically forfeit if the station is not ready for operation within ninety days of the effective date of the station authorization, unless an application for modification of construction permit for additional time to complete construction (FCC Form 701) is filed by that date together with a showing that failure to complete construction within ninety days of the effective date of the station authorization was due to factors not under the control of the applicant; and

(f) The station shall not be deemed to be ready for operation until the grantee certifies in writing to the Commission that the station has been constructed exactly in accordance with the technical parameters and the terms and conditions specified in the station authorization, with a copy to the Engineer in Charge of the appropriate Commission field office specified in Section 0.121 of the Rules and Regulations, and until any additional showings that may be required prior to the commencement of actual operations, such as the radiation level survey required by the Commission's Memorandum Opinion and Order on reconsideration in Docket No. 16495, 38 FCC 2d 665, 704 (1972) for transmitting stations, are submitted to the Commission.

It should be noted that the acceptability of simultaneous construction permit and license applications for domestic satellite earth stations is being implemented at this time on a trial basis for the purpose of improving domestic satellite earth station application processing procedures. As experience is gained with these procedures, additional requirements may be imposed in certain instances as necessary, or on a general basis to all such applications through the issuance of a public notice setting forth such additional requirements. In addition, the Commission reserves the right to grant only the construction permit requested in a simultaneous construction permit and license application if it determines that such a course of action is in the public interest, or to terminate the acceptability of such simultaneous requests if serious problems arise in the implementation of these procedures.

16. In conclusion, it must be emphasized that although domestic satellite communications have advanced in the past few years to the point where domestic satellite earth station equipment appears to have the characteristics of fungible goods in many circumstances, this service is still in an early stage of development with many major policy issues, such as the ones indicated above, yet to be raised and considered by the Commission. In permitting pre-grant procurement of domestic satellite earth station facilities by potential applicants, we will categorically reject any arguments or requests made by domestic satellite earth station applicants for approval or expedited treatment of their applications based on pre-grant procurement activities. While it appears on the basis of the information presently before us that the public interest would benefit from the policies stated above regarding pre-grant procurement of domestic satellite earth station facilities, we will closely monitor the implementation of these policies and specifically reserve the right to revise these policies as appropriate should abuses arise or if we find that such revisions would better serve the public interest.

POWERPLANT ENERGY SOURCES; PROHIBITION

Compliance With the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969

● Purpose. On June 30, 1975, the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) issued 32 prohibition orders to utilities which, if made effective, will prohibit the burning of petroleum products or natural gas as the primary energy source of certain existing powerplants. These orders were issued pursuant to the authority of section 2(a) of the Energy Supply and Environmental Coordination Act of 1974 (ESECA), Pub. L. 93-319. The purpose of this notice is to explain FEA's mode of compliance with section 102(2)(C) of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (NEPA) for those orders, and to provide advance notice to the public, in accordance with § 1500.6(e) of the Council on Environmental Quality's Guidelines for implementing section 102 (2)(C) of NEPA (40 CFR § 1500.1 et seq.), that FEA intends to prepare environmental impact statements in connection with certain of the prohibition orders issued on June 30, 1975 prior to their being made effective. This notice does not apply to plants receiving construction orders pursuant to section 2(c) of ESECA. ●

Subsection 2(b)(3)(B) of ESECA stipulates that a prohibition order shall not be effective until (i) the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) notifies FEA under section 119(d)(1)(B) of the Clean Air Act that the ordered powerplant will be able to burn coal and to comply with all applicable air pollution requirements without a compliance date extension under section 119(c) of the Clean Air Act, or (ii) if such notification is not given, the date which the Administrator of EPA certifies pursuant to section 119(d)(1)(B) of such Act is the earliest date that such ordered powerplant will be able to comply with all applicable requirements of section 119. Hence, the prohibition orders issued by FEA on June 30, 1975, were not effective upon issuance and will not become effective until after EPA has transmitted an appropriate notification or certification to FEA under subsection 2(b)(3)(B) of ESECA. FEA has therefore determined to make a prohibition against burning certain fuels contained in the orders effective by means of a Notice of Effectiveness (NOE), which will not be issued until after EPA transmits its notification or certification to FEA under subsection 2(b)(3)(B) of ESECA and which will stipulate a date on which such prohibition shall become effective.

NEPA requires Federal agencies to prepare an environmental impact statement (EIS) in conjunction with "major Federal actions significantly affecting the quality of the human environment." Section 102(2)(C). In view of the fact that no prohibition order can be effective until and unless an NOE is issued, FEA has determined that the major federal action with respect to individual prohibition orders issued under subsection 2(a) of ESECA is the Notice of Effectiveness.

FEA has previously set forth the procedures it intends to follow in making prohibition orders effective with respect to the EIS requirement of NEPA in regulations issued by FEA on May 5, 1975, implementing FEA's authority under subsections 2(a), (b) and (c) of ESECA. (10 CFR Parts 303, 305 and 307; 40 FR 20462, May 9, 1975). Section 305.9 of those regulations requires FEA to publish a programmatic EIS covering the scope of the coal utilization program embodied in subsections 2(a) and (b) of ESECA. It further requires FEA to conduct environmental analyses of each NOE and prepare either a negative declaration or an EIS for each NOE, or groups of related NOE's. FEA published a draft programmatic EIS on January 31, 1975. After receiving and considering comments on the draft EIS submitted by interested persons and other Federal agencies, FEA issued a final programmatic EIS on April 25, 1975. The remainder of this Notice will explain how FEA intends to conduct its environmental analyses and prepare negative declarations or EIS's triggered by the possible issuance of NOE's on the 32 prohibition orders issued.

OVERVIEW OF METHODOLOGY

After consultations with representatives of the President's Council on Environmental Quality, the Environmental Protection Agency, the Department of the Interior and the Department of Commerce, FEA adopted the following methodology for compliance with NEPA on a site-specific basis. FEA has preliminarily screened all 32 prohibition orders and placed each in one of two categories: (1) orders which, if made effective by an NOE, are likely to have a significant environmental impact, for which an EIS will be prepared either separately or in conjunction with orders to other similar or related plants; and (2) orders which, if made effective by an NOE, may have a significant environmental impact, for which an environmental assessment (EA) will be prepared to ascertain whether an EIS should be prepared or a negative declaration should be issued. The results of this screening process appear in the list of powerplants accompanying this Notice.

The purpose of the screening process was to obviate the need for preparing environmental assessments for those orders for which it was feasible to determine initially that an EIS is required to be prepared. Preparation of EIS's for those orders clearly requiring EIS's before they can be made effective, therefore, begins immediately. EA's will be prepared for all other orders. If an EA indicates that the environmental impact of a particular order or group of similar or related orders, if made effective by an NOE, would be likely to be "significant" within the meaning of NEPA, an EIS will be prepared. If, however, the EA indicates that no significant impact is likely, then FEA will issue a negative declaration stating that issuance of an NOE would not have a significant impact on the quality of the human environment. The paragraphs below describe the impacts which FEA considered during the screening process to determine whether an EA or EIS should be prepared as well as the procedures to be used and impact evaluation to be used to determine whether, after the preparation of an EA, a negative declaration should be issued or an EIS prepared.

THE SCREENING PROCESS

During the initial screening process FEA has looked at available data on the potential impact of each order on air and water quality, noise, endangered species, environmental values in adjacent communities, land use in general, and land with particular environmentally important qualities such as wetlands, recreational facilities, and historic and archaeological sites.

The information used in the screening process has been limited to sources which are current and readily available including relevant source material developed in conjunction with other Federal and State programs. In this screening process FEA has utilized information on existing environmental quality at and near the powerplants, on present operating procedures of the powerplants, and on endangered species, parks, historical sites and recreational areas in the vicinity of each powerplant. In those cases which FEA, on the basis of the available information considered during the preliminary screening, has been able to estimate the impacts of making a particular order effective by an NOE and concluded that a significant impact is likely, preparation of an EIS has been initiated. For powerplants under order where it has not been readily apparent that prohibiting the use of natural gas or petroleum products would have significant impact, FEA is preparing EA's to determine if an EIS or negative declaration is appropriate.

ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT

Each EA will include a detailed qualitative and, where possible, quantitative analysis of the anticipated environmental impacts of making effective a particular prohibition order or group of orders. However, FEA does not at this time intend to prepare cost/benefit analyses in connection with the preparation of an EA. FEA will look at the full range of environmental impacts associated with the issuance of an NOE, including indirect as well as direct impacts on air, water and land, and on the human and animal environments. While the programmatic EIS referred to above covered the impact of additional coal mining, FEA will analyze the potential environmental impact of any additional coal mining for a specific powerplant, where FEA is certain of the mine from which the coal to be burned at the powerplant is to be extracted. FEA will, to the degree possible, also analyze the potential economic impact of issuance of an NOE on consumers of electric power from the owner of the powerplant under order.

A judgment that an EIS is not required will be accompanied by a negative declaration that the NOE, or group of NOE's is not likely to have a significant impact on the quality of the human environment. To the extent that an evaluation of the environmental impact caused by issuance of an NOE or group of NOE's depends on action to be taken by EPA under Section 119 of the Clean Air Act, FEA will await the outcome of any such EPA proceeding before issuing such negative declaration. FEA may commence the preparation of an EIS before such EPA action and may publish a draft EIS prior to such actions if FEA can estimate the likely environmental impacts of issuance of an NOE prior to EPA action. Negative declarations and draft EIS's will be made available to the public by means of notice of availability for review in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

CONSIDERATIONS FOR DECIDING WHETHER TO PROCEED WITH PREPARATION OF AN EIS

FEA will analyze the potential environmental impact of individual orders at three levels in order to determine whether issuance of an NOE is likely to affect significantly the quality of the human environment. They are:

(1) The predicted impact of the prohibition order on the environment as measured against baseline data on environmental quality available prior to the issuance of an NOE.

(2) The predicted impact of the prohibition order, if made effective, on compliance with applicable Federal, State and local air, water, noise and land use standards and the attainment and maintenance of recognized safe levels of contamination or pollution; and

(3) The predicted impact of the prohibition order, if made effective, on environmental values of adjacent communities which may be affected but are not adequately or properly protected by existing standards, regulations, or recognized safe levels of contamination or pollution.

With respect to the first level of analysis, an impact might be significant where a predicted adverse change in ambient environmental quality is ascertainable within the limits of accuracy associated with the available measurement techniques for evaluating a particular pollutant. Thus, if the variation in natural or observed background levels of the pollutant or the margin of error associated with the estimation procedure utilized is greater than the predicted adverse impact on environmental quality, FEA may deem such impact not to be "significant" within the meaning of NEPA.

For example, a powerplant under a prohibition order may discharge incremental concentrations of dissolved solids from its ash pond and coal pile into a stream upon which it is situated. The impact of this incremental discharge can be quantified by existing techniques. However, if the plant is already burning large amounts of coal, there may not be a significant impact from the marginal increase in coal use stemming from the prohibition order. Similarly, if the receiving water body is a high flow river or estuary where the natural variation in ambient dissolved solids is larger than the predicted incremental increase in pollutants, the impact may not be considered significant. On the other hand, if the receiving body of water is already contaminated with a particular pollutant at a level above that established for that body of water by EPA, an additional discharge of such pollutant, that might not have occurred if no prohibition order had been issued and made effective by an NOE, could be the basis for requiring an EIS to be prepared. Similarly, if such incremental pollution contains hazardous materials for which no safe level for human health has been established, FEA may determine that an EIS covering the potential impact of such pollution is required.

With respect to the second level of analysis, an EIS may be required if it is found through the EA that anticipated changes in ambient conditions likely to result from compliance with a prohibition order would exceed relevant standards or recognized safe levels established by Federal or State government for air, water or noise pollution or for solid waste disposal. Relevant national standards or guidelines criteria include but are not limited to: EPA's Federal Ambient Air Quality Standards, EPA's "Noise Levels Identified as Requisite to Protection of Health and Welfare," EPA's Proposed and PHS's Drinking Water Standards, and EPA's Water Quality Criteria 1972, developed by the National Academy of Sciences. Appropriate State standards are presently being compiled. Comments identifying any additional industry or government standards, guidelines criteria or other relevant source material are specifically invited.

With respect to the third level of analysis, an EIS may be required if an air, water, or solid waste discharge caused by making a prohibition order effective would be likely to have an adverse impact on unique aesthetic or cultural values or on species which are not adequately protected by existing standards, regulations or recognized safe levels. This may include impacts on: (1) habitats of endangered or threatened species, (2) estuarine or wetland areas, (3) State or National Parks and Monuments or sites of historical, cultural or archaeological importance which may be disrupted, endangered, or harmed by coal burning resulting from compliance with a prohibition order. In addition, particular attention will be given to impacts on land and water use patterns, quality and quantity of surface and ground waters, and possible disruption or displacement of residential, commercial or industrial activities.

VI. PROCEDURES FOR WRITTEN COMMENTS

Interested persons are invited to submit their comments with respect to the procedures and methodology outlined in this Notice to the Executive Secretariat, Federal Energy Administration, Box DW, Washington, D.C. 20461.

Comments should be identified on the outside envelope and on documents submitted to the FEA Executive Communications with the designation "ESECA—Compliance with NEPA." Five copies should be submitted. All comments received by September 15, 1975, and all relevant information submitted therewith will be considered.

Any information or data considered by the person furnishing it to be confidential must be so identified and submitted in writing one copy only. The FEA reserves the right to determine the confidential status of the information or data submitted and to treat it according to its determination.

Additional opportunity to comment with respect to the potential environmental impact of individual prohibition orders will be afforded in the future prior to such orders being made effective by a Notice of Effectiveness.

FEDERAL POWER COMMISSION

[Docket No. ER76-45]

CONSUMERS POWER CO.

Tariff Change

AUGUST 7, 1975.

Take notice that Consumers Power Company (Consumers), on July 30, 1975, tendered for filing proposed changes in all of its FPC electric service tariffs. Consumers states that these changes would affect the following wholesale customers in the State of Michigan:

City of Bay City (FPC No. 1), City of Charlevoix (FPC No. 36), City of Eaton Rapids (FPC No. 4), City of Harbor Springs (FPC No. 5), City of Hillsdale (FPC No. 6), City of Marshall (FPC No. 7), City of Petoskey (FPC No. 8), City of Petoskey (FPC No. 40), Village of Chelsea (FPC No. 9), City of Portland (FPC No. 32), Village of Union City (FPC No. 38), Southeastern Michigan Rural Electric Cooperative, Inc. (FPC No. 12), Alpena Power Company (FPC No. 13), Edison Sault Electric Company (FPC No. 14), Edison Sault Electric Company (FPC No.), City of St. Louis (FPC No. 17), City of Coldwater (FPC No. 29), Wolverine Electric Cooperative, Inc. (FPC No. 30).

Consumers states that the proposed changes would increase revenues from jurisdictional sales and services by approximately $5,065,720 based on the 12-month period ended December 31, 1975.

Consumers states that the proposed rates modify the structure of the demand charge by increasing the number of blocks and increase demand charges on average $2.73 per kilowatt per month. Consumers states that the new rates also modify the structure of the energy charge by proposing a flat rate and increase energy charges on average 0.78¢ (7.8 mills) per kilowatthour.

Consumers states that the proposed rates also (i) eliminate the present differential between total requirement purchasers and partial requirements purchasers so that all customers will purchase from a single schedule of rates, (ii) revise the fuel cost adjustment clause to comply with FPC Order No. 517, issued November 13, 1974; (iii) eliminate the conjunctive billing feature contained in the existing rates so that all customers will be treated on the same basis for billing purposes and (iv) modify the transformer ownership credits so that they more closely follow the capital costs saving realized through customer ownership of transformer facilities.

Consumers states that Consumers Power Company has also tendered for filing a Schedule of Rates Governing Wholesale For Resale Electric Service, which includes sheets covering General Information regarding Consumers Power Company, an Index of Purchasers, System Map, Standard Service Agreement, Standard Rules and Regulations, and Wholesale for Resale Electric Service .Contract Rate "WR". Consumers states that the rates contained in Wholesale for Resale Electric Service Contract Rate "WR" are the same as the rates contained in the superseding rate schedules referred to above. Consumers states that the Schedule of Rates Governing Wholesale For Resale Electric Service is proposed to be made effective for each of Consumers Power Company's wholesale for resale customers upon the expiration or termination of the customer's presently effective wholesale for resale contract.

Consumers Power Company has advised the Commission that the proposed rate increase is being filed because the earnings of the Company from its wholesale electric service are inadequate as a result of ongoing inflation, and that the return from its wholesale business will be only 2.59% based upon forecasted 1975 conditions. Consumers Power Company has also advised the Commission that in order to meet the requirements of its customers, it will be required to expend approximately $3 billion in construction activities during the five-year period 1976 through 1980 and that much of this construction expenditure must be financed with outside capital. Consumers Power Company states that rate relief is required if the Company is going to be able to carry on the financing necessary to sustain its construction program.

Consumers states that copies of the filing were served upon Consumers Power Company's jurisdictional customers and the Michigan Public Service Commission.

Any person desiring to be heard or to protest said filing should file a petition to intervene or protest with the Federal Power Commission, 825 North Capitol Street, N.E., Washington, D.C. 20426, in accordance with Sections 1.8 and 1.10 of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure (18 CFR 1.8, 1.10). All such petitions or protests should be filed on or before August 25, 1975. Protests will be considered by the Commission in determining the appropriate action to be taken, but will not serve to make protestants parties to the proceeding. Any person wishing to become a party must file a petition to intervene. Copies of this filing are on file with the Commission and are available for public inspection.

NORTHERN INDIANA PUBLIC SERVICE CO.

Proposed Changes in Rates and Charges

AUGUST 7, 1975.

Take notice that Northern Indiana Public Service Company (NIPSCO) on August 1, 1975, tendered for filing proposed changes in its FPC electric service tariff (Second Revised Volume No. 1). The proposed changes would increase revenues from jurisdictional sales and service by $5,821,644. The increase to municipal customers would be $856,653 and the increase to the Rural Electric Membership Corporations would be $4,964,991. The increases are based on the projected twelve (12) month period ending December 31, 1975, and are to be effective September 1, 1975.

NIPSCO states that the jurisdictional rates filed herewith are designed to enable NIPSCO to recover its increased jurisdictional operating and maintenance costs for the test period which is based on the projected twelve (12) months ended December 31, 1975. In addition to the increased cost of operation and maintenance NIPSCO states that further increased costs result from a proposed increase in overall rate of return to 9%, a change in the depreciation rate to 3.0% for all electric property which was formerly depreciated at a 2.7% rate and the inclusion of substantial electric property not previously included in NIPSCO's rate base.

NIPSCO states that copies of the filing were served upon its jurisdictional customers, the Public Service Commission of Indiana and the United Rural Electrification Administration.

Any person desiring to be heard or to protest said application should file a petition to intervene or protest with the Federal Power Commission, 825 North Capitol Street, N.E., Washington, D.C. 20426, in accordance with Sections 1.8 and 1.10 of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure (18 CFR 1.8, 1.10). ## NORTHWEST PIPELINE CORP.

Petition To Amend

AUGUST 7, 1975.

Take notice that on July 29, 1975, Northwest Pipeline Corporation (Petitioner), P.O. Box 1526, Salt Lake City, Utah 84110, filed in Docket No. CP75-80 a petition to amend the order issuing a certificate of public convenience and necessity in said docket pursuant to Section 7(c) of the Natural Gas Act to include authorization to provide for the operation of a fourth point of interconnection between the gathering systems of Petitioner and El Paso Natural Gas Company (El Paso), all as more fully set forth in the petition on file with the Commission and open to public inspection.

Petitioner states that it was authorized by the order of the Commission of January 22, 1974, in Docket No. CP73-331, et al., to implement a gathering agreement with El Paso and was authorized to balance gas at two points of interconnection. Petitioner further states that it was authorized to operate a third point of interconnection by the order of the Commission in the instant docket on November 18, 1974. Petitioner requests that an additional point of interconnection with El Paso in La Plata County, Colorado be authorized for delivery of balancing gas from Petitioner to El Paso, as set forth in a letter agreement of April 9, 1975, between Petitioner and El Paso.

Petitioner states that the proposed additional delivery point for balancing gas is at an existing interconnection at the outlet of the Ignacio Gasoline Plant and that the three currently authorized delivery points are upstream from the Ignacio Plant, so that this additional point of interconnection would assure a minimum intake volume that would allow the Ignacio Plant to operate efficiently.

Any person desiring to be heard or to make any protest with reference to said petition to amend should on or before August 29, 1975, file with the Federal Power Commission, Washington, D.C. 20426, a petition to intervene or a protest in accordance with the requirements of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10) and the Regulations under the Natural Gas Act (18 CFR 157.10). All protests filed with the Commission will be considered by it in determining the appropriate action to be taken but will not serve to make the protestants parties to the proceeding. Any person wishing to become a party to a proceeding or to participate as a party in any hearing therein must file a petition to intervene in accordance with the Commission's Rules.

TEXAS GAS TRANSMISSION CORP.

Notice of Application

AUGUST 7, 1975.

Take notice that on July 28, 1975, Texas Gas Transmission Corporation (Applicant), 3800 Fredrica Street, Owensboro, Kentucky 42301, filed in Docket No. CP76-33 an application pursuant to Section 7 (c) and (b) of the Natural Gas Act for a certificate of public convenience and necessity authorizing the relocation of its Indianola Meter Station, and permission and approval to abandon certain of its facilities by sale to Mississippi Valley Gas Company (Valley), all as more fully set forth in the application on file with the Commission and open to public inspection.

Applicant requests in the instant application authorization to relocate its Indianola meter station from the terminus of the facilities that are proposed to be conveyed to Valley to a point on Applicant's Greenville, Mississippi, compressor station property. Applicant estimates that the cost of the proposed relocation would be approximately $34,800, and the Applicant and Valley have agreed that Valley would reimburse Applicant for the cost of the proposed relocation up to $35,000.

Applicant further proposes the abandonment by sale to Valley of approximately 1.76 miles of 12-inch pipeline, approximately 19.75 miles of 8-inch pipeline, two 6-inch river crossings (approximately 0.11 mile each) and five meter stations. Applicant states that the facilities that are proposed to be sold to Valley are used exclusively to serve Valley and that the agreed price of the proposed sale is $147,000. Applicant states further that Valley desires to purchase the facilities proposed to be sold to allow it more flexibility in its operations and that the sale would benefit Applicant and its customers by reducing Applicant's operating and maintenance costs. Applicant asserts that the proposed sale and relocation would not change the contract demand or quantity entitlements of Valley and that the relocated meter station at its proposed location would enable Applicant to render adequate service to Valley.

Any person desiring to be heard or to make any protest with reference to said application should on or before August 28, 1975, file with the Federal Power Commission, Washington, D.C. 20426, a petition to intervene or a protest in accordance with the requirements of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10) and the Regulations under the Natural Gas Act (18 CFR 157.10). All protests filed with the Commission will be considered by it in determining the appropriate action to be taken but will not serve to make the protestants parties to the proceeding. Any person wishing to become a party to a proceeding or to participate as a party in any hearing therein must file a petition to intervene in accordance with the Commission's Rules.

Take further notice that, pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by Sections 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act and the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, a hearing will be held without further notice before the Commission on this application if no petition to intervene is filed within the time required herein, if the Commission on its own review of the matter finds that a grant of the certificate and permission and approval for the proposed abandonment are required by the public convenience and necessity. If a petition for leave to intervene is timely filed, or if the Commission on its own motion believes that a formal hearing is required, further notice of such hearing will be duly given.

Under the procedure herein provided for, unless otherwise advised, it will be unnecessary for Applicant to appear or be represented at the hearing.

WESTERN TRANSMISSION CORP.

Application

AUGUST 7, 1975.

Take notice that on July 30, 1975, Western Transmission Corporation (Applicant), 250 Park Avenue, New York, New York 10017, filed in Docket No.

CP76-35 an application pursuant to Section 7(c) of the Natural Gas Act for a certificate of public convenience and necessity authorizing the transportation of natural gas for Colorado Interstate Gas Company, a divison of Colorado Interstate Corporation (CIG), from Carbon County, Wyoming, to Sweetwater County, Wyoming, and for redelivery to CIG, all as more fully set forth in the application on file with the Commission and open to public inspection.

Applicant requests that it be authorized to transport from the Blue Gap II Area in Carbon County, volumes of gas that are controlled or will be controlled by CIG. Applicant states that it would receive such gas into its existing 12-inch pipeline from CIG through facilities that CIG would construct pursuant to budget-type authorization in Docket No. CP75-204. Applicant would then transport the gas approximately 25 miles and would redeliver the gas at an existing interconnection between Applicant's pipeline and CIG's transmission facilities in Sweetwater County.

Applicant states that the transportation charge would be equal to the differential rate, set forth in Applicant's Rate Schedule F, between Applicant's gas cost and Applicant's selling price to CIG, and further states that at the present time the effective transportation charge would be 9.0 cents per Mcf of gas at 14.65 psia.

Applicant states that the nearest pipeline of CIG is approximately 30 miles distant from the Blue Gap II area and that no other pipeline is located as near to the area as is Applicant's. Applicant further states that it has unused pipeline capacity and the volumes of gas that CIG purchases can easily be connected to Applicant's pipeline. Applicant asserts that for Applicant to transport the gas CIG purchases, as proposed, would be the most economical method for redelivering such gas into CIG's system.

Any person desiring to be heard or to make any protest with reference to said application should on or before September 2, 1975, file with the Federal Power Commission, Washington, D.C. 20426, a petition to intervene or a protest in accordance with the requirements of the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure (18 CFR 1.8 or 1.10) and the Regulations under the Natural Gas Act (18 CFR 157.1). All protests filed with the Commission will be considered by it in determining the appropriate action to be taken but will not serve to make the protestants parties to the proceeding. Any person wishing to become a party to a proceeding or to participate as a party in any hearing therein must file a petition to intervene in accordance with the Commission's Rules.

Take further notice that, pursuant to the authority contained in and subject to the jurisdiction conferred upon the Federal Power Commission by Sections 7 and 15 of the Natural Gas Act and the Commission's Rules of Practice and Procedure, a hearing will be held without further notice before the Commission on this application if no petition to intervene is filed within the time required herein, if the Commission on its own review of the matter finds that a grant of the certificate is required by the public convenience and necessity. If a petition for leave to intervene is timely filed, or if the Commission on its own motion believes that a formal hearing is required, further notice of such hearing will be duly given.

Under the procedure herein provided for, unless otherwise advised, it will be unnecessary for Applicant to appear or be represented at the hearing.

NATIONAL TRANSPORTATION SAFETY BOARD

[N–AR 75–19]

ACCIDENT REPORTS; SAFETY RECOMMENDATIONS AND RESPONSES

Notice of Availability and Receipt

Two aircraft accident reports and two railroad safety recommendation letters were made public by the National Transportation Safety Board last week.

Report No. NTSB–AAR–75–10, released August 3, 1975, concerns the nine-fatality collision of a controlled Air Force Convair VT–29D and an uncontrolled Cessna 150H near Newport News, Virginia, January 9, 1975. The Board determined that the probable cause of this accident was the human limitation inherent in the see-and-avoid concept, which can be critical in a terminal area with a combination of controlled and uncontrolled traffic; a possible contributing factor was the reduced nighttime conspicuity of the Cessna against a background of city lights. On April 25 the Board, as a result of this accident, issued four safety recommendations, Nos. A–75–35 through 38—two to the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and two to the FAA–DOD Joint Review Group (40 FR 19045). FAA's response to these recommendations was reported at 40 FR 30136.

Report No. NTSB–AAR–75–11, released August 5, 1975, resulted from the Safety Board's investigation of the FAA Douglas DC–3 crash on takeoff at DuBois, Pennsylvania, March 27, 1975. The Board determined that the probable cause of the accident was loss of control at takeoff because of the inexperience of the unqualified pilot making the takeoff and because of the failure of the experienced pilot in the right seat to assume timely control. The Board added: "The accident sequence was initiated by the poor judgment of the pilot-in-command in allowing an unqualified pilot to make the takeoff and by the Regional Director's assuming the left seat which was contrary to his own operating rules to assure that this aircraft was operated by qualified pilots at their respective duty stations." Recommendation A–75–57 (40 FR 32177) was directed to FAA as a result of this accident.

Two recommendation letters, one directed to the Federal Railroad Administration (FRA) and the other to the Metropolitan Transportation Authority of New York (MTA), were issued on August 7, 1975. Both letters concern the collision of two Penn Central commuter trains at Botanical Garden Station in New York City, January 2, 1975. Recommendations R–75–34 and 35 to MTA are to (1) require Penn Central to establish procedures to assure that all train personnel operating MTA commuter trains comply with the company requirements for physical examinations, and (2) make necessary alterations to existing M–1 commuter cars to correct injury-producing features of the car design. Recommendations R–75–36 through 38 ask that FRA promulgate regulations to (1) ensure that commuter trains will be controlled by signal system requirements in the event of failure of engine control, (2) establish minimum physical standards and require periodic physical examination of all crewmembers responsible for train movement, and (3) establish minimum standards for commuter car interiors to provide passengers with adequate crash injury protection.

The following letters were received by the Board last week in response to earlier safety recommendations:

Letter dated July 22, 1975, from FAA responds to recommendation A–75–57 (40 FR 32177). FAA concurs and plans to "distribute copies of the NTSB DC–3, N–6, accident report to all Region and Center Directors, along with further instructions to stress the policy of total compliance with specific standards, procedures, and operating practices to assure the highest degree of professionalism in FAA aircraft activities."

Letter of July 28, 1975, from the Penn Central Transportation Company, concerns the Board's report, NTSB RAR–75–3 (40 FR 27081), on the collision of a freight train with an open drawbridge at Cleveland, Ohio, May 8, 1974. The letter is responsive to recommendations R–75–11 through 13 contained in the report. Penn Central states that its rule enforcement program has been reviewed and that compliance with radio rules, signal rules, and rules governing the registering of crews have been subject to special emphasis over the entire Penn Central system. The company also states that after several months of study, a substantially revised set of radio rules was developed and will become effective August 15. The prime purpose of the revised rules will be to provide more explicit instructions in the use of radio for the control of train movements. Current examination is being made of problems encountered by drawbridge operators, the letter states, and a meeting was held July 22 with the Chief, Bridge Section, 9th Coast Guard District, in Cleveland, Ohio, to discuss establishment of more operational criteria for the opening of drawbridges. Further discussions with the Coast Guard are planned.

In reply to the Safety Board's followup letter of June 18, 1975, the Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA) responded July 30 to recommendations R–71–15, 16, and 18, contained in the Board's "Special Study of Rail Rapid Transit Safety" (NTSB RSS–71–1), and to recommendation R–73–33 (a reiteration of recommendation R–71–15) which was included in another Board study, "Safety Methodology in Rail Rapid Transit System Development" (NTSB RSS–73–1). UMTA provides a copy of a draft notice of proposed rulemaking which would add Part 615—Safety and System Assurance Programs for Fixed Guideway Systems—to Title 49, Code of Federal Regulations. UMTA anticipates promulgation of the rule in FY 1976. As part of the proposed rule, UMTA intends to "assist the development, implementation and conduct of required programs through existing funding processes, through functional communication and interaction, through approval of documented plans, and by periodic review and evaluation of planned programs." Recommendation A–71–18 urged UMTA to undertake a study of selected rail rapid transit systems in the planning stage to determine the feasibility of separating passengers from tracks, in underground and above-grade stations. UMTA notes that several transit systems in the planning stage have been examining this issue. However, two Transit Authorities have rejected use of train screens or platform barriers, primarily on the basis of long-term cost. UMTA states, "The use of train screens also was discussed with the Transit Development Corporation (TDC) during its conduct of recent UMTA Grant activities to identify safety priorities in rail rapid transit. Two issue papers are contained in the TDC Report to UMTA. A copy of this report (Volume 1—Report, Volume 2, Exhibits) is attached. Exhibits 22 and 23 Volume 2, contain the issue papers. Page 20, Volume, 1, presents a viewpoint of the operating authorities."

The reports and recommendation letters are available to the general public; single copies may be obtained without charge. A $4.00 user-service charge will be made for each recommendation response, in addition to a charge of 10¢ per page for reproduction. All requests must be in writing, addressed to: Publications Unit, National Transportation Safety Board, Washington, D.C. 20594.

Multiple copies of the reports may be purchased from the National Technical Information Service, U.S. Department of Commerce, Springfield, Virginia 22151.

NUCLEAR REGULATORY COMMISSION

[Project No. 561]

ENERGY RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT ADMINISTRATION REPORT ON LIGHT WATER BREEDER REACTOR

Receipt of Safety Analysis Report

The U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) has submitted a Safety Analysis Report to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) for review and comments. The Safety Analysis Report is provided by ERDA in support of the planned operation of the Light Water Breeder Reactor (LWBR) core in the Shippingport Atomic Power Station, a government-owned reactor plant located in Shippingport Borough on the Ohio River in Beaver County, Pennsylvania.

By law, the Shippingport reactor is exempt from licensing by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. However, the NRC staff will provide comments on the LWBR Safety Analysis Report as requested by ERDA.

The Shippingport Atomic Power Station has been operated for the Atomic Energy Commission (now ERDA) with two light-water cooled, seed-blanket, pressurized water reactor cores designated as PWR Core 1 and PWR Core 2, respectively, since December 1957. Safety Evaluation Reports for both of these cores were previously written by the Regulatory staff of the Atomic Energy Commission (now NRC), and reviewed by the Advisory Committee on Reactor Safeguards.

It is anticipated that the NRC staff's review of the Safety Analysis Report will be completed in approximately twelve months. At that time, notice of the availability of the NRC's staff evaluation will be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. A separate environmental review is being conducted by ERDA.

A copy of the Safety Analysis Report is available for public inspection at the Commission's Public Document Room, 1717 H Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20555, and at the B. F. Jones Memorial Library, 663 Franklin Avenue, Aliquippa, Pennsylvania 15001.

Dated at Bethesda, Maryland, this 8th day of August 1975.

DELMARVA POWER AND LIGHT CO. SUMMIT POWER STATION, UNITS 1 AND 2

Issuance of Limited Work Authorization

Pursuant to the provisions of 10 CFR 50.10(e) of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's (Commission) regulations, the Commission has, pursuant to certain conditions for the protection of the environment, authorized the Delmarva Power and Light Company to conduct certain site activities in connection with the Summit Power Station, Units 1 and 2, prior to a decision regarding the issuance of construction permits.

The activities that are authorized are within the scope of those authorized by 10 CFR 50.10(e)(1) and include the following:

(1) Clearing and grubbing of the main plant area; (2) Installation, testing and operation of a dewatering system including monitoring wells and silting basin; (3) Construction and operation of a series of deep water wells; (4) Excavation of the main plant area as required for construction of permanent plant building foundations; (5) Improvement of existing road into the main plant area and extension of electrical and telephone service into the site; and (6) Erection of fencing around the site and installation of temporary construction facilities (trailers).

Any activities undertaken pursuant to this authorization are entirely at the risk of the Delmarva Power and Light Company and the grant of the authorization has no bearing on the issuance of a construction permit with respect to the requirements of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended, and rules, regulations, or orders of the Commission promulgated pursuant thereto.

PINE TREE CORP.

Filing of Application

AUGUST 6, 1975.

Notice is hereby given that Pine Tree Corporation ("Applicant"), (formerly Pine Tree Fund, Inc.) 670 Sharon Park Drive, Menlo Park, California 94025, a Delaware Corporation registered as a non-diversified, closed-end management investment company under the Investment Company Act of 1940 (the "Act"), has filed an application pursuant to Section 8(f) of the Act for an order of the Commission declaring that Applicant has ceased to be an investment company as defined in the Act. All interested persons are referred to the application on file with the Commission for a statement of the representations set forth therein, which are summarized below.

On August 15, 1974, at a special meeting of shareholders, a majority of Applicant's shareholders approved a proposal to change the nature of Applicant's business so that it would cease to be an investment company. Applicant's shareholders also approved an amendment to Applicant's certificate of incorporation for the purpose of changing Applicant's name from Pine Tree Fund, Inc. to Pine Tree Corporation and eliminating a provision which made the outstanding stock of Applicant redeemable. The certificate of incorporation was amended on August 15, 1974, in accordance with the applicable provisions of the General Corporation Law of Delaware. Applicant's shareholders were informed in the proxy statement that if the proposed changes were approved, Applicant would proceed to liquidate its portfolio of securities and would become primarily engaged in the business of investing, owning and holding interests in real estate.

In November 1974, Applicant, through its wholly owned subsidiary Maple Tree Realty Corporation ("Maple Tree"), purchased a tract of 55 acres of real property for $180,000, giving a 5-year purchase money mortgage in the amount of $140,000. Applicant states that Maple Tree has entered into a joint venture with a builder who will construct residential housing on the property upon the receipt of necessary approvals and permits which Maple Tree is now seeking to obtain. Applicant further states that upon commencement of construction it is prepared to expend a substantial amount of cash for a construction loan commitment fee as well as for certain initial construction expenses which will be incurred prior to the time the construction loan is taken down.

In March 1975, Lemon Tree Realty Corporation ("Lemon Tree"), a wholly owned subsidiary of Applicant, entered into an agreement for the purchase of a tract of 95 acres of real property for $263,520 of which it had paid $60,000 at the time of the closing in May 1975. Lemon Tree has taken title to the property subject to an existing mortgage in the amount of $179,520, which is payable in installments between 1979 and 1983, and has given a five-year purchase money mortgage in the amount of $24,000.

Applicant states that it has sold most of its portfolio securities and has applied the proceeds to its present business. Applicant represents that the securities which it still holds constitute less than 10% of its total assets and are thinly traded and difficult to sell, but that it intends to dispose of such securities as soon as it can reasonably do so.

Applicant submits that it is presently engaged, through its wholly owned subsidiaries, in the real estate business and that it intends to continue to be primarily engaged in such business.

Applicant states that in view of the illiquid nature of its real estate assets, and the carrying costs thereof, such as taxes, interest, amortization, and insurance, Applicant intends to maintain a relatively large cash reserve. Applicant further states that it will invest a portion of its cash reserves in certificates of deposit, short term commercial paper and United States Government Securities. Applicant represents that it will not make any investment if as a result of such investment the value of all securities which it owns would be in excess of 40% of the value of Applicant's total assets on an unconsolidated basis.

Section 3(b)(1) of the Act provides, in pertinent part, that any issuer primarily engaged directly or through wholly owned subsidiaries in a business other than that of investing, reinvesting, owning, holding or trading in securities is not an investment company.

Section 3(c)(6) of the Act provides, in part, that any company not engaged in the business of issuing redeemable securities, face-amount certificates of the installment type or periodic payment plan certificates and which is primarily engaged, directly or through majority owned subsidiaries, in the business of purchasing or otherwise acquiring interests in real estate is not an investment company.

Section 8(f) of the Act provides, in pertinent part, that when the Commission, upon application, finds that a registered investment company has ceased to be an investment company, it shall so declare by order, and upon the effectiveness of such order the registration of such company shall cease to be in effect.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than September 3, 1975, at 5:30 p.m., submit to the Commission in writing a request for a hearing on the matter accompanied by a statement as to the nature of his interest, the reason for such request and the issues of fact or law proposed to be controverted, or he may request that he be notified if the Commission shall order a hearing thereon. Any such communication should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, Washington, D.C. 20549. A copy of such request shall be served personally or by mail (air mail if the person being served is located more than 500 miles from the point of mailing) upon Applicant at the address stated above. Proof of such service (by affidavit, or in case of an attorney-at-law, by certificate) shall be filed contemporaneously with the request. As provided by Rule O-5 of the Rules and Regulations promulgated under the Act, an order disposing of the application will be issued as of course following said date unless the Commission thereafter orders a hearing upon request or upon the Commission's own motion. ## DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

Manpower Administration

EMPLOYMENT TRANSFER AND BUSINESS COMPETITION DETERMINATIONS UNDER THE RURAL DEVELOPMENT ACT

Notice of Applications

The organizations listed in the attachment have applied to the Secretary of Agriculture for financial assistance in the form of grants, loans, or loan guarantees in order to establish or improve facilities at the locations listed for the purposes given in the attached list. The financial assistance would be authorized by the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act, as amended, 7 USC 1924 (b), 1932, or 1942(b).

The Act requires the Secretary of Labor to determine whether such Federal assistance is calculated to or is likely to result in the transfer from one area to another of any employment or business activity provided by operations of the applicant. It is permissible to assist the establishment of a new branch, affiliate or subsidiary, only if this will not result in increased unemployment in the place of present operations and there is no reason to believe the new facility is being established with the intention of closing down an operating facility.

The Act also prohibits such assistance if the Secretary of Labor determines that it is calculated to or is likely to result in an increase in the production of goods, materials, or commodities, or the availability of services or facilities in the area, when there is not sufficient demand for such goods, materials, commodities, services, or facilities to employ the efficient capacity of existing competitive commercial or industrial enterprises, unless such financial or other assistance will not have an adverse effect upon existing competitive enterprises in the area.

The Secretary of Labor's review and certification procedures are set forth at 29 CFR Part 75, published January 29, 1975 (40 FR 4393). In determining whether the applications should be approved or denied, the Secretary will take into consideration the following factors:

1. The overall employment and unemployment situation in the local area in which the proposed facility will be located.

2. Employment trends in the same industry in the local area.

3. The potential effect of the new facility upon the local labor market, with particular emphasis upon its potential impact upon competitive enterprises in the same area.

4. The competitive effect upon other facilities in the same industry located in other areas (where such competition is a factor).

5. In the case of applications involving the establishment of branch plants or facilities, the potential effect of such new facilities on other existing plants or facilities operated by the applicant.

All persons wishing to bring to the attention of the Secretary of Labor any information pertinent to the determinations which must be made regarding these applications are invited to submit such information in writing within two weeks of publication of this notice to: Deputy Assistant Secretary for Manpower, 601 D Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20213.

Signed at Washington, D.C., this 11th day of August 1975.

BEN BURDETSKY,
Deputy Assistant Secretary for Manpower.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION

[Notice No. 64]

MOTOR CARRIER, BROKER, WATER CARRIER, AND FREIGHT FORWARDER APPLICATIONS

AUGUST 8, 1975.

The following applications are governed by Special Rule 1100.247[1] of the Commission's general rules of practice (49 CFR, as amended), published in the FEDERAL REGISTER issue of April 20, 1966, effective May 20, 1966. These rules provide, among other things, that a protest to the granting of an application must be filed with the Commission within 30 days after date of notice of filing of the application is published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Failure seasonably to file a protest will be construed as a waiver of opposition and participation in the proceeding. A protest under these rules should comply with section 247(d)(3) of the rules of practice which requires that it set forth specifically the grounds upon which it is made, contain a detailed statement of protestant's interest in the proceeding (including a copy of the specific portions of its authority which protestant believes to be in conflict with that sought in the application, and describing in detail the method—whether by joinder, interline, or other means—by which protestant would use such authority to provide all or part of the service proposed), and shall specify with particularity the facts, matters, and things relied upon, but shall not include issues or allegations phrased generally. Protests not in reasonable compliance with the requirements of the rules may be rejected. The original and one (1) copy of the protest shall be filed with the Commission, and a copy shall be served concurrently upon applicant's representative, or applicant if no representative is named. If the protest includes a request for oral hearing, such requests shall meet the requirements of section 247(d)(4) of the special rules, and shall include the certification required therein.

Section 247(f) of the Commission's rules of practice further provides that each applicant shall, if protests to its application have been filed, and within 60 days of the date of this publication, notify the Commission in writing (1) that it is ready to proceed and prosecute the application, or (2) that it wishes to withdraw the application, failure in which the application will be dismissed by the Commission.

Further processing steps (whether modified procedure, oral hearing, or other procedures) will be determined generally in accordance with the Commission's general policy statement concerning motor carrier licensing procedures, published in the FEDERAL REGISTER issue of May 3, 1966. This assignment will be by Commission order which will be served on each party of record. Broadening amendments will not be accepted after the date of this publication except for good cause shown, and restrictive amendments will not be entertained following publication in the Federal Register of a notice that the proceeding has been assigned for oral hearing.

Evidence respecting how equipment is expected to be returned to an origin point, as well as other data relating to operational feasibility (including the need for dead-head operations), must be presented as part of an applicant's initial evidentiary presentation (either at oral hearing or in its opening verified statement under the modified procedure) with respect to all applications filed on or after December 1, 1973.

If an applicant states in its initial evidentiary presentation that empty or partially empty vehicle movements will result upon a grant of its application, applicant will be expected (1) to specify the extent of such empty operations, by mileages and the number of vehicles, that would be incurred, and (2) to designate where such empty vehicle operations will be conducted.

Each applicant (except as otherwise specifically noted) states that there will be no significant effect on the quality of the human environment resulting from approval of its application.
